INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Gathered From the Local Police Station.

At yesterday's police court, the first proceeding was the magistrate telling P. C. McGinty to ask an Assyrian prisoner, a peddler from McKeesport, Pa., what his name was. The constable after asking the question could not make it out, but it sounded like Tim McLay. The man was evidently non-compos mentis, by his silly acting and lolling about as the magistrate questioned him, and his foolish answers in broken English, as well as his saying several times "I crazy." The magistrate thought the best thing for him to do was to send the prisoner to the Central Prison, where he would learn English and acquire a trade. The swarthy son of Syra was given six months in that stone Toronto building.

Mr. Frank Clark was charged with not keeping the ice off the pavement in front of his store. Judgment was reserved.

Mr. E. F. Mason was charged with having placed bags and boxes in front of his store. In reply to the question, "Guilty or not guilty." Mr. Mason said "Well, your honor, if there is to be a discrimination made and an example must be made, I suppose I am guilty." It seems that the by-law does not allow merchants to place, expose or open any goods on the pavement on Saturdays before noon.

It seems that Mr. Mason was in the council the year the by-law was passed, but he had afterwards tried to upset it, but as a matter of courtesy as the mover of the original by-law not being present, the by-law still stands. He thought that whilst many other merchants break this by-law, he having more goods coming in than others he thought the police picked on him. He was fined $5.

Bert Windrum was charged with having on April 19th, assaulted Samuel E. Mack with intent to extort. Mr. Kerr appeared for the prisoner, and County Crown Attorney Wood for the Crown.

Mr. Kerr decided to have a summary trial. Whilst the charge as laid was "assault to extort money," the section, No. 400 reads, "Assault with intent to rob;" the charge was amended to read "to rob."

Samuel Mack, the first witness, who keeps a barber shop on Brock street, said the prisoner was an apprentice of his. Prisoner had engaged to stay two months, and gave him $50 as a bonus for teaching him the trade and for board. On Saturday afternoon, after being only three weeks prisoner wanted his $50 back. Saturday morning a customer refused to be shaved by prisoner, and prisoner gave him a sharp answer. He was writing out a receipt for the $50, prisoner grabbed him by the neck, saying the receipt was not right. Prisoner claimed that Mack was to have given him $2 a week, but witness had made no such agreement. The same night, at 11 o'clock, as they had their coats on, and going home, witness went to the back of the shop to get his groceries, prisoner took off his coat and grabbing him by the throat, threw him down, and said he would choke him till he got all the money witness had. When they got up, witness turned on the lights and told prisoner if he did not let him out, witness would call for help.

The prisoner in the box said, that on Saturday night he asked Mack for his wages. Mack had told him, he, Mack, was a first-class barber. He gave Mack $50. Mack was to let him have $2 a week during two months board him and teach him the trade. He worked three weeks. The first two Saturdays Mack pleaded having no money. He had had to go out and beg bread for Mack. Last Saturday he wanted his money, but did not lay a hand on him. Mack told him he would give him a lien on his shop to secure his $50.

The magistrate said as an indictable offence the case was not proven. There had been evidently some squabbling, but the man who did the greatest wrong was Mack.

Time Not Yet Ripe

Ottawa, March 13.—The Deputy-Minister of Trade and Commerce is dubious as to the despatch from Melbourne, Australia, stating that negotiations between Canada and Australia for reciprocal trade relations have reached an important stage. While Canada made an offer some months ago, and replies have been received, Mr. Parmelee does not expect definite results until the Imperial Conference gives the delegates an opportunity of personal negotiations.

A distinguished writer, 80 years old with the vigor of youth, writes of the benefits derived from proper food.

Do You Think For Yourself?

Or, do you open your mouth like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you?

If you are an intelligent thinking woman, in need of relief from weakness, nervousness, pain and suffering, then it means much to you that there is one tried and true, honest medicine of known composition, sold by druggists for the cure of women's ills.

The makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of weak, nervous, run-down, over-worked, debilitated, pain-racked women, knowing this medicine to be made up of ingredients, every one of which has the strongest possible indorsement of the leading and standard authorities of the several schools of practice, are perfectly willing, and in fact, are only too glad to print, as they do, the formula, or list of ingredients, of which it is composed, in plain English, on every bottle-wrapper.

The formula of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will bear the most critical examination of medical experts, for it contains no alcohol, narcotics, harmful, or habit-forming drugs, and no agent enters into it that is not highly recommended by the most advanced and leading medical teachers and authorities of their several schools of practice. These authorities recommend the ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the cure of exactly the same ailments for which this world-famed medicine is advised.

No other medicine for woman's ills has any such professional endorsement as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has received, in the unqualified recommendation of each of its several ingredients by scores of leading medical men of all the schools of practice. Is such an endorsement not worthy of your consideration?

A booklet of ingredients, with numerous authorative professional endorsements by the leading medical authorities of this country, will be mailed free to any one sending name and address with request for same. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. J. R. Stratton Replies to the Objectors

In our issue of Tuesday morning appeared an account of the banquet to be tendered to Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, previous to his removal to Winnipeg. In this we noted that some exception had been taken by specified members of the committee to Mr. J. R. Stratton being chairman and proposing the health of the guest of the evening, and proposing the name of Mayor McWilliams for that honorable place. Among those objecting to Mr. Stratton being chairman was Mr. Jas. Kendry, ex-M.P., Mr. Stratton has written to Mr. Kendry as follows:

Peterborough, March 11.

Jas. Kendry, Esq., City.

Dear Mr. Kendry,—Your favor of March 11, was handed me at noon today.

On Saturday evening nearly all the gentlemen that were connected with my me inviting them to be present were present.

All the arrangements arrived at were made by the gentlemen present at the meeting, and not by me. I only acted as chairman, Mr. Fair as secretary.

Mr. Bradburn made the suggestion which you embody as ground for objection in your letter, but it was not seconded, and it was unanimously decided that this banquet was a "Citizens" banquet not a "Civic" banquet. The arrangements as made by the committee will be carried out and any citizen who cannot feel himself free to join in honoring one of our citizens most worthy of honor is also free to withhold his presence.

Mr. Hugh Waddell who signs your letter had previously signified his acquiescence.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., who was present, further than the suggestion mentioned acquiesced at the meeting. Col. Miller is not a member of the committee; Mr. J. H. Burnham raised no objections and had stated he would be pleased to act; Mr. G. W. Hatton is not a member of the committee, and Mr. Kendry was not present.

Any citizen who desires to be present at the banquet will have the opportunity afforded him.

I suppose that the honor was conferred on me, because I was the originator of the Citizens' banquet idea, rather than because of any prominence I occupy as a citizen.

Yours faithfully,

J. R. STRATTON.

Thaw Case Unexpectedly Adjourned for the Day

How Thaw Tried to Convict White of Wrong by Bullying Evelyn---End of Case is Now in Sight.

New York, March 14.—James Gleach Smith, Stanford White's brother-in-law, was called again as witness in the Thaw trial yesterday morning. Mr. Smith was tardy in arriving and Mr. Jerome summoned Abraham Hummel to the stand. Hummel had scarcely taken his seat when Smith put in his appearance. Therefore Hummel was temporarily excused, and Smith took his place.

Mr. Smith was questioned by Mr. Delmas for the defence, having been recalled to testify as to the cablegram he received from District Attorney Jerome early in February, summoning him to return to this country.

Mr. Smith said he did not have either the original or the cablegram or a copy. Mr. Jerome offered a letter-press copy, but Mr. Delmas refused to accept this.

Mr. Smith said he returned on February 17th last, and met Assistant District Attorney Garvan on the 19th. Mr. Smith said he had reduced to writing this conversation with Thaw on the Madison Square Roof Garden, and had showed the memoranda to his counsel, and to Mr. Garvan. They both said it was good. Mr. Smith was excused, and Abraham Hummel once more took the stand.

"Did you, after a conversation with Evelyn Nesbit on October 27th, dictate something to a stenographer?" asked Mr. Jerome.

Mr. Delmas objected that this was not in rebuttal of any testimony offered by the defence, but was overruled.

"Yes," answered the witness.

to swear to documents he had prepared involving White and charging that he had wronged her, and that Thaw had beaten her because she would not sign the papers?" asked Mr. Jerome.

Mr. Delmas interposed to ask Hummel if at the time of the conversation with Miss Nesbit he was acting as her legal advisor and attorney.

"I was acting only for Stanford White," replied the witness.

"Did you not contemplate some action in Miss Nesbit's behalf?"

"No, there was no legal action contemplated so far as she was concerned."

"There was no communication between you and Miss Nesbit as counsel and client?"

"None."

END OF CASE IN SIGHT.

New York, March 14.—At last the end of the Thaw case seems to be in sight. The prosecution has practically finished its rebuttal, with the exception of the experts, and by tonight District Attorney Jerome will have examined all of his witnesses except the three or more alienists who will be called to show by their answers to a hypothetical question that in their opinion Harry Thaw was sane when he shot Stanford White.

INVOKE THE LAW.

Delphin M. Delmas, who, in the early days of the trial, stated in open court that the defence would take no advantage of the court's ruling that no evidence may be introduced to show that the story Evelyn Nesbit said she told her husband was not true, but would allow the district attorney to go as far as he liked into the truth or falsity of the story, has, since Mr. Jerome began offering evidence in rebuttal, invoked the rule, and Tuesday, when Mr. Jerome demanded that he stand by his waiver and offered to prove that White was not where Evelyn Thaw said he was on the night she says she was ravished, Mr. Delmas made no further reply than to again invoke the rule of law which shut out the offered evidence.

MAY NOT CALL CHORUS GIRLS.

May MacKenzie, Evelyn Thaw's chorus girl friend, and Music Follette, her chorus girl enemy, are both under subpoena by the prosecution, and both of them were at the court building yesterday, but it is doubtful if either of them will be called.

"Did Mrs. Thaw tell you that Thaw wanted to injure White and put him in the penitentiary, and that Thaw had begged her time and time again

AN AUTOMOBILE SERVICE

LAKEFIELD TO HAVE QUICK CAR SERVICE.

Mr. Fred. E. Darcy Has Appointed Both Peterboro and Lakefield Ticket Agents.

As noted in a former issue of The Times, Mr. Fred Darcy of the Palace Hotel and Restaurant has been for some time back, appointed local agent for the Oldsmobile motor cars and other gasoline conveyances manufactured at Lansing, Mich.

Mr. Darcy has, at some trouble arranged for a systematic and well-timed service between the city and Lakefield, the regular schedule to begin on or about April 1st from this city to the Lakefield post office. Mr. H. Fitzgerald of Lakefield, will be the agent at that village of the Peterborough Automobile Co., and the autos will start on their trips from the National Hotel. Mr. J. A. Lawless being the local ticket agent. All passages from Peterborough to Lakefield can be procured ahead of time from Mr. Lawless. Within a short time a detailed schedule will be published in The Morning Times by Mr. F. Darcy, local agent.

THE HEALTHY STOMACH

"We Never Know We Have a Stomach Unless Some hing is Wrong With It"

When you begin to realize that you have a stomach, it means that this organ is not in good condition, and it is reminding you of the fact.

Do not feel discouraged and miserable because of the presence of indigestion. It is the best thing in the world for you if you can only see it and give the stomach proper treatment.

Change the weak stomach to a healthy one by using Mi-o-na stomach tablets. This remedy is not a mere digestive giving only temporary relief, but a combination of remedies that actually strengthen the stomach, excite the secretion of gastric juices and enable the digestive organs to care for food you eat in a natural, normal way.

By taking a Mi-o-na tablet before each meal you can enjoy a good dinner without distress and suffering, and you will never know that you have a stomach.

Our druggists sold a good many 50c. boxes of Mi-o-na stomach tablets, and the more the remedy is used, the more friends it has, for every box gives satisfaction.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50c box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50c.

Write today for a free sample package, and also give us your symptoms, and one of the best known stomach specialists will give your case his careful and personal attention without charge. Booth's Mi-o-na Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Japs in Row Over Limited Passports

Restriction of Travel Rouses Ire of Mikado's Subjects.

Tokyo, March 14.—A question has arisen regarding the last clause of article 1 of the treaty between Japan and the United States, which has been cited by the Government in Washington as authority for the statement that the Japanese hitherto have been issuing passports limiting the destination of emigrants. The passports simply certify to the nationality of their holders and the placing of a restriction on them by an administrative measure is declared here to be unauthorized by law and an infringement of the personal right to travel, guaranteed by the Constitution.

In view, however, of the attitude of the American Government in not calling for the enforcement of the clause mentioned, it is thought that the limitation so placed will be left unquestion. Even then Japanese jurists believe that the action of the American Government in restricting the destination of holders of passports will not be upheld before a court.

Administrative action and litigation since the San Francisco school trouble have brought the clause into prominence, and Japan has begun to smart under the alleged humiliation. It would be no surprise should pressure be brought on the government to have it abstain from issuing passports limiting the destination of their bearers.

Preventics, as the name implies, prevent all Colds and Grippe when "taken at the sneeze stage." Preventics are toothsome candy tablets. Preventics dissipate all colds quickly, and taken early, when you first feel that a cold is coming, they check and prevent them. Preventics are thoroughly safe for children, and as effectual for adults. Sold and recommended at 5 cent and 25 cent boxes by J. D. Tully.

Peterborough Man Has Gone to the West

Mr. William Christie, the well known local machinist, will leave next week for Strathcona where he will enter the real estate business. Mr. Christie is well known to many of our citizens as a man of integrity and trust and will undoubtedly make a success in that far western town. He will enter the real estate business in Strathcona under particularly favorable auspices as he will have not only the confidence of the people, but has an ample capital to begin such business in Strathcona.

BASKETBALL.

A basketball league will be organized in connection with the Y.M.C.A. for the next few weeks. The league was finished about six weeks ago after a creditable record, and it is expected that much interest will be taken in the one to complete the indoor season. The names of those who will play are being secured and when this is done four captains will be appointed and teams chosen. It is expected that four or five teams can be got together. Everything will be in working shape for next week when the first games of the schedule will be played. Two or more games will be played each week until the schedule is finished.

HOCKEY.

The Lindsay Midgets will meet the Strathconas at Brock Street rink tomorrow night. The Midgets will bring their regular team and are confident of winning. The Strathconas should give the Scugwills bunch a hard tussle. It will be a great game and a big crowd will likely turn out.

It now seems that after the greatest game on earth, i.e., the hockey match between the Barbers and the Examiner bunch, which a local contemporary reported as resulting in the losers digging down to their jeans (for the price of an oyster supper at McClelland's, was just vice-versa. The winners pulled out and paid over their long green.

Fabulous Wealth In New B.C. Mines

Victoria, B.C., March 14. —Sixteen claims of copper, gold, silver, and zinc on Hankins' Mountain, at McDame Creek, in the Laird mining district, were purchased recently by Rosenthal, Kurs, and Hirschel of Chicago. Development is to be carried out on a vast scale, and an expenditure of $1,500,000 is planned. A railway is to be built from the head of navigation on the Stickine River to the mines, 153 miles, with a tunnel through mountains three miles long.

The claims are enormously rich, and it is calculated by experts that they will be good for $20,000,000 in six months' work. Concentrators and other machinery of most modern kind are to be installed.

HEAVY DEATH ROLL IN TOULON DISASTER

Commander of the Iena is Among the Dead.

155 NOT ACCOUNTED FOR

Besides 44 Seriously Injured in the Hospitals.

Toulon, March 14.—Minister of Marine Thomson arrived here yesterday from Paris. The roll of the battleship Iena, on which the disastrous explosions occurred Tuesday, was immediately called, and 407 men replied to their names. Those of the crew who are uninjured are quartered temporarily in the naval barracks. Twenty-four officers and engineers are also reported to be safe, and besides there are 44 of the crew lying in the hospitals seriously injured. As the officers and crew numbered 630 it will thus be seen that 155 are not accounted for. But the naval authorities consider it most probable that a large number of those who have sought refuge with relatives or friends in Toulon.

CAPTAIN AMONG THE DEAD.

Toulon, March 13.—In the explosion of the powder magazine on board the battleship Iena yesterday, Captain Adigard, her commander, and Captain Vernier, chief-of-staff of the Mediterranean squadron, were killed.

Those who escaped death suffered severe injuries and, becoming temporarily insane, rushed frantically about the vicinity of the dry dock until they fell exhausted.

DELAY IN OPENING LOCK.

It is declared that for 30 minutes the authorities were unable to find the keys of the locks with which to flood the dry dock, but when they did finally submerge the ship the explosions came to an end. Then, amidst clouds of dense smoke, the search for the dead and wounded was begun.

TOWN IN MOURNING.

Toulon, March 13.—The entire town is in deepest mourning. Crowds are gathered at the gates of the arsenal and docks awaiting the announcement of the names of the dead. Although the belief continues to prevail that the number of missing will be reduced, no more sailors have reported their safety.

Fire-hose played all night on the unsubmerged portions of the battleship.

One of the officers who escaped said that Admiral Manceron owed his life to the fact that the portholes of his cabin were open, thus permitting the suffocating gases to escape.

Eccentric Hermit Dead

Port Huron, Mich., March 14.—Archimedes Galbraith, an aged hermit, who was carried from his hut a few miles from here, a week ago because he was no longer able to care for himself, died in the county poorhouse. He left a will, in which he directs that his body be sold to any medical college for dissection, and that the proceeds, together with the proceeds of his estate, be placed in the hands of a prominent lawyer and editor, who are to "fight and expose the corrupt court and lawyers of St. Clair (this) county." It was his contention that the law in St. Clair county was controlled by graft. His estate, consisting of money in the banks, and a farm in Cuba, is worth twelve thousand dollars.

Train Went Down With the Bridge

Three are Drowned, High Water Had Weakened the Structure.

Pittsburg, March 14.— Three men drowned, a railway bridge washed away, a county bridge in danger of following the railway bridge into the Allegheny river, and an engine and five freight cars in the water, are results of the rapid rise during the night of Deer Creek, near Harmarsville, Pa., on the West Penn. Railway.

THE DEAD.

The dead are; J. B. Mikrald, engineer, 28 years old, Allegheny; W. J. Cantwell, fireman, 25 years old, Darlington, Pa., J. M. Johns, brakeman, 25 years old, Freeport, Pa. About 4.50 o'clock yesterday morning a freight train, eastbound, entered on the bridge, but had not got further than the second pier when it suddenly gave way. Before the engineer, fireman or a brakeman on the front part of the train could realize what had happened the bridge went down, carrying the engine, trainmen, and five freight cars with it.

DRAGGED INTO THE CURRENT.

So rapidly had Deer Creek risen during the night that it had attained a height of 16 feet, instead of the normal of from 4 to 6 feet. So great, too, was the force of the current, that one of the five freight cars heavily loaded was carried down the creek over a quarter of a mile. The fireman, engineer and brakeman were dragged into the roaring current and drowned.

A Desperado who Bullies Orangeville

Orangeville, March 14.—There's a "bold, bad man" in town just like they used to talk about out West. And the town seems to have 'knuckled down' to him, just like they used to do out West.

Ever a special officer had nothing to say when this "bold, bad man" fastened his hawk-like eye upon him over the sights of a couple of "guns" and coolly strolled away.

Fighting Bob Cook, said to be the strongest man in Dufferin county, appeared on Broadway Monday, after a season in the lumber shanties. He is said to be a fugitive from justice; at least, he completely routed three local constables last fall when they tried to arrest him on the charge of breaking jail in Grand Valley.

So no one offered to impede his progress until Special Officer Marshall spied him lounging nonchalantly in front of the Commercial Hotel.

"You're my prisoner," said Marshall, tapping him on the shoulder.

Cook's retort, which was in anything but ludylike language, was backed up by two revolvers mysteriously but rapidly extruded from somewhere in his clothes.

Marshall didn't seem to think of anything to say or do that would fit the occasion, and Cook walked up the street, waving the revolvers and laughing.

It is said he went to his home, a short distance of the town.

—Just in: A very fine lot of souvenir postal cards of all public places of interest. See them at Times Bookstore.

Novelist's Injuries

Galt, March 14.—Dr. W. P. Caven was in Galt on Monday, being summoned here by Dr. Vardon for a consultation regarding the condition of Rev. R. E. Knowles, who was in the recent railway wreck near Guelph. Dr. Caven found the injuries received, especially to the spine and the nervous system, to be of such a character that he ordered absolute rest and seclusion for some weeks. He also said that Mr. Knowles would not be able to resume his regular duties for some months to come.

While Admitting the Claims of this City the Representatives Decide to Hold the Show in Toronto.

Toronto, March 14.—A meeting of the representatives of the Eastern and Western Ontario Dairymen's Associations, and of the Ayrshire, Holstein, and Jersey Cattle Breeders' Association was held in the City Hall yesterday morning.

Mr. J. N. Pagot occupied the chair, and said the object of the meeting was to decide as to the advisability of holding a combined dairy show at some central point or of having two separate shows in connection with the winter fairs at Guelph and Ottawa.

Mr. Dargavel, M.P.P., spoke strongly in favor of the combined show.

Mr. John McKee, president of the Ayrshire Breeders' Association, pointed out that the dairy interests had suffered when combined with the fat stock shows in the past, and announced that their association had placed $200 at the disposal of his committee to assist in the organization of the new project.

Mr. J. B. Mallory, Belleville, representing the Holstein Breeders' Association, announced that he had $300 of an appropriation for the same purpose, and moved;

"That this committee recognize the importance of forming a national dairy show, and that all necessary steps be taken to organize and establish the same."

This was seconded by Mr. John McQuaker, Owen Sound, president of the Western Ontario Dairy Association, who intimated that the association he represented would not be behind with the monetary assistance. He suggested that a pure food show be made a part of the scheme.

The motion was unanimously carried.

Where to hold the show was then taken up, and Ald. Chisholm and Commissioner Harris presented Toronto's claims, offering north St. Lawrence Market and St. Lawrence Hall free of charge.

Peterborough was represented by a delegation twenty strong, who said the city was to build a new market, and it would be made suitable for the show.

After full discussion it was decided to hold the show in Toronto, provided that the city would give proper accommodation under proper conditions.

TORONTO GIRL FELL FROM A HIGH BRIDGE

Or So It Is Suspected as She Was Found In an Unconsious Condition In the Ravine and Died on the Way to the Hospital.

Toronto, March 14.—How did Margaret Wilson, the youngest daughter of Mr. W. H. Wilson, 652 Parliament street, come to her death?

Shortly after nine o'clock yesterday morning the young woman was found in an unconscious condition in Rosedale ravine, immediately below Huntley street bridge. Dr. Stenhouse, who was called to the scene shortly afterwards, states that when he arrived she was in a convulsion, epileptic in character, and that, so far as an examination could reveal there were no marks on the girl's body indicating that she might have fallen from the bridge. The police ambulance was called, but the young woman died on her way to the General Hospital.

A party of ladies and gentlemen driving through the ravine yesterday morning saw the girl lying under the bridge. Mounted Officer Thompson (43) was at that moment riding over the bridge.

He immediately communicated with No. 5 police station and Dr. Stenhouse and the ambulance were immediately summoned. The doctor states that there was nothing to indicate what length of time the girl had been there.

THE FATHER'S STATEMENT.

"My daughter had been threatened over the phone," said Mr. W. H. Wilson, when seen shortly after the identity of the young woman found in the ravine has been established.

"She told me that on more than one occasion a young man had called her up over the phone and told her he would prevent her from going with any other fellow even if he had to throw her over the bridge or give her something. My daughter was employed by Mrs. Moody, 40 North Sherbourne street, and was home last night just before going to the Majestic theater. She told us last night that she was afraid of this man. We did not know she had not returned to Mrs. Moody's until this morning when we received an enquiry as to why she had not returned to her place of employment.

"We made inquiries finally of the police and found that a young woman answering her description had been found in the ravine. My daughter was only seventeen years old.

GRABBED BROTHER'S ARM.

"I called at Mrs. Moody's for my sister last evening," said Alex. Wilson, brother of the dead girl. "Coming over the ravine bridge she saw a man whom neither of us knew, and she grabbed my arm and said, 'I am so afraid.' We came down home, and my sister afterwards went to the theater.

"I called for her at the theater shortly after ten o'clock, and accompanied her to Mrs. Moody's. Then I went back to the theater. On my way home again I saw my sister standing at the southeast corner of Parliament and Wellesley streets, talking to somebody—whether a man or woman I cannot tell.

It was learned from a sister that the dead girl had gone to the theater alone, and at the request of her brother had left before the conclusion of the last act.

Mr. Wilson declares that the young man who had threatened his daughter over the telephone, had been informed twice that her parents preferred that he should not keep her company.

"Once I chased him up the street," said Mr. Wilson yesterday; "the threats made to my daughter were of such a character that the police were notified of the matter, and I understand, have been watching the young man. My daughter has never threatened to take her own life, and was not subject to epilepsy.

Dr. Silverthorn stated yesterday that he could not determine whether the young woman had been wronged or not. When informed that it was reported that the young woman had thrown herself over the bridge, he stated that the condition of the body did not indicate it.

Chief Coroner Johnson has ordered an investigation of the circumstances

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

INTERESTING NOTES FOR THIS WEEK.

Practice for the Crucifixion Tonight and Other Meetings for the Week.

Next Thursday, March 21st, being the date for the "Crucifixion" in All Saints' church, the ordinary choir practice this week in St. John's church is specially important for Easter music. Choristers please note and attend tonight at 8 p.m.

MASS MEETING.

At the mass meeting, arranged by the Brotherhood of St. Andrew in the Grand Opera House on Palm Sunday, March 24th at 4.15 p.m., Miss Helen Davies will sing "The Palms," by Rameau.

Mr. George Chandler will sing "Ye people rend your hearts" (b) "If with all your hearts."

STAINERS' "CRUCIFIXION."

The above oratorio will be solemnly sung in All Saints' church on Thursday, March 21st, and in St. John's on Good Friday, March 29th. The combined choirs number sixty voices and are under the training and direction of Mr. Richard J. Dyer.

If you like Coffee but dare not drink it, try Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee. It is true that real Coffee does disturb the Stomach, Heart and Kidneys. Constable Killed Hunting for Convict Woodstock, March 14.—Police Constable Archie Pow of the Woodstock police force was instantly killed at Beachville early yesterday morning. With Turnkey Forbes of the city jail he set out in a buggy at midnight in search of A. E. Forbes, a convict who escaped from the jail early Tuesday evening, and the two were driving towards Ingersoll, when their conveyance went over an embankment at Beachville. Both were thrown out, and the theory is that P. C. Pow struck on his head, and that injuries to the spine caused death. He arose after the fall, but immediately fell over dead. The night was intensely dark, which accounts for the horses getting off the road.

The dead officer was 50 years of age and leaves a widow and grown-up family. He was a faithful and popular officer here for the past four years, and was formerly chief at Tilsonburg.

Goes to War in an Automobile

Puerto Cortes, Honduras, March 8, via New Orleans, March 14.—President Bronilla, of Honduras, is conducting operations at the front with the aid of an automobile. Although his troops are two days' march from Tegucigalpa, their capital, their commander is able to reach it in a few hours. The army of Honduras has taken position facing the Nicaraguan frontier, and is deployed in a line including five principal divisions, each occupying a town or important road. President Bonilla is in command at Choluteca, where he has nearly five thousand men.

Nicaragua's line of battle has been pushed past the frontier into Honduras territory. Within the last two days, however, the Nicaraguan outposts were driven back from Namasique.

Both armies have thrown out an advance party of 100 to 300 men each, and all the encounters reported up to this time, have been between these bands.

Best Thing Yet for the Working People

Ottawa, March 14.—Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King, Deputy Minister of Labor, under examination before the Parliamentary Special Committee yesterday, in Mr. Monk's bill to encourage the establishment of co-operation banks and industrial establishments, claimed that the trade union and the co-operative movements had done more than any other thing to better the condition of the working classes. At the close of Mr. King's examination Mr. Monk expressed the opinion that if the bill was passed the department would be the best agency to administer it.

Brantford, March 14.—After being out nearly four hours, the jury in the defamatory libel case, in which Mayor Bowlby was charged with circulating a document reflecting on the character of A. G. Montgomery, one of his opponents in the last mayoralty election, returned at nine o'clock last night and reported a disagreement. Mr. Justice Britton discharged them, and it is not known whether the case will be pressed further. The jurors stood ten for acquittal and two for committal.

"There's a Reason"

Pale Faced Girls

Thousands Using Successful Cure For Paleness and Anaemia.

The pallid girl always lacks appetite. What little she eats is badly digested.

At night she is restless, she dozes, but doesn't sleep soundly.

Vital force must be increased, new blood must be applied and a general rebuilding take place before she will feel like she ought.

Dr. Hamilton had invaluable experience in these cases and found nothing so prompt in building up the young women as his vegetable pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills begin by cleansing the system and purifying the blood; they also improve digestion and render food ready for absorption. Additional nourishment is quickly supplied and the patient is fast strengthened and invigorated.

"In using Dr. Hamilton's Pills I find my system is wonderfully built up. It is certainly the most effective remedy I ever used. I have now a good appetite, sleep more soundly and awaken in the morning feeling quite refreshed.

"Formerly I felt tired and depressed. I looked as if a severe illness was hanging over my head.

"Nothing could give quicker results than Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I strongly advise every young woman to use them."

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for $1, by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

ONE OF THE WORLD'S GREAT MEN

Whether we judge him by the results of his work or by any other standard, General Booth, the founder and honored leader of the Salvation Army, who is now in Toronto, is worthy of rank among the world's few great men.

At first he and the Salvation Army were misunderstood and were consequently subjected to persecution. Gradually, however, by tremendous earnestness and deep abiding sympathy with humanity this great and forceful Christian organization won public confidence, and at the same time its right place among the Christian forces of the world. The Army is today, whether we speak of it as regards its rescue work, its evangelists, colonization or other spheres of activity, one of the most aggressive, energetic and withal successful agencies in the moral realm.

It is natural for people to endeavor to ascertain the reason for the success of any person or any movement, and that reason is nearly always found to be simplicity itself. That is the secret of the success of the Salvation Army, whose methods have for their basis the principle that Christianity is a motive and a living force, a principle in which every Christian and every Christian minister must believe mightily if he is to achieve the success that should be his. This principle the Salvation Army has not only declared, but as well has applied vigorously and without conventionality in any degree whatever.

In its work among the poor and the outcast, the Salvation Army has been wonderfully successful because it sought earnestly to reach these classes in the community without stopping to worry over the ethical problems which might have deterred others from this important work.

General Booth in the moral world is worthy of rank with the scientists, because he, like they, revealed dormant rather than created new forces. He is one of the greatest men the nineteenth century has produced, and Toronto, as the capital city of our fair province, did itself honor when it so cordially received this distinguished man.

The new Pure Food and Drug Law will mark it on the label of every Cough Cure containing Opium, Chloroform, or any other stupifying or poisonous drug. But it passes Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure as made for 20 years, entirely free. Dr. Shoop all along has bitterly opposed the use of all opiates or narcotics. Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure is absolutely safe even for the youngest babe—and it cures, it does not simply suppress. Get a safe and reliable Cough Cure, by simply insisting on having Dr. Shoop's. Let the law be your protection. We thoroughly recommend and sell it. J. D. Tully.

Colonial Agents To Report Tariff

London, March 13.—Lord Elgin, addressing the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, and referring to his visit to Liverpool in 1854, said he came essentially as a colonial product, for he was then a Canadian boy coming home. Lord Elgin opens the Colonial Products Exhibition at Liverpool today.

Lloyd George, replying to Sir Gilbert Parker in the Commons, said the examination of colonial tariffs was part of the duty of the commercial department of the Board of Trade. A reference to an advisory committee was inexpedient. He was not sure the colonial representatives would approve of the change which would make it part of their duties to report on colonial tariff proposals.

Opposing a motion against Sunday trading in the House of Lords, Lord Lansdowne objected to any haste, remarking that they had object lessons in the attempts made by France and Canada to deal with the question.

An Icicle Dropped Motorman Killed

Niagara Falls, N.Y., March 13.—A huge icicle dropped from the cliffs of the Niagara gorge onto a trolley car of the Gorge Road yesterday afternoon as it was passing the Whirlpool Rapids. Motorman Evert Ramsdell was killed. Dr. and Mrs. M. B. Nervy, of Sioux City, Iowa, and Miss Nervy were struck on the back and badly bruised, and S. S. Lindsay and wife of Pittsburg, were injured, the former having his hand smashed. The injured were taken to the Prospect House.

Cheap Groceries for Sale Today

In order to obtain permanent premises, China Hall has purchased the large and well assorted stock of groceries, etc., of Mr. A. Rountree, No. 324 George street. This stock, which is one of the finest grocery stocks in Peterborough, will, together with the balance of the China Hall stock, be thrown on the market at cost price, commencing March 2 and continuing until both stocks are entirely disposed of, but no longer than the 15th of April, after which date the store will be re-fitted, and opened about May 1, with an entirely new stock of crockery, china, glassware, cut-glass, plated ware, fine china ornaments, etc. China Hall, after that date, will be beyond a doubt one of the finest and most complete china stores in Canada. Deakin's Position

Melbourne, March 13.—Premier Deakin yesterday declared that he did not intend to force any resolutions in favor of preferential trade on the Motherland. He admits that a majority at present of the home parliament is opposed to free trade, but says it does not follow that when the subject is dispassionately considered, apart from preconceptions, and extraneous influences, they will not be able to find a modus vivendi.

Most Birds Love Toys.

Most birds love toys. The playthings help to while away the time and prevent them from tearing their plumage. Parrots are especially devoted to playthings and can be trained to do simple tricks with the objects specially fancied. A soft billed bird will amuse itself for an hour with a peanut which it cannot break, a tiny bell or a mirror just big enough to reflect its own head. —Mary Dawson in St. Nicholas.

Fixing the Value.

James—So the price of that "old master" is $5,000. It doesn't look to be worth $10.

Art Dealer—Yes, but remember it was painted in 1249. Just think what $10 at compound interest would amount to for that length of time!

The Wrong Way.

The late John C. Paige had at one time as a protege the son of a very particular friend, a pleasant, gentlemanly young fellow, but always ready to make a bet or to take a hand in a quiet game, and on this account it was thought best by his parents to send him to Boston on a limited income with the hope of breaking away from old associates and of getting some business energy into him.

Mr. Paige gave him some good, wholesome advice and started him along in business, particularly instructing him to "get his name before the public to let the people know he was living," etc.

Not very long after this Boston debut Mr. Paige very late one evening was requested to call at a nearby police station. The young man, it appeared, had got into a very noisy game and was arrested, but not before he had been cleaned out of everything he possessed.

"Well, young man," said Mr. Paige, "this is nice, isn't it?"

"Well, sir, you told me to get my name before the public."

"Oh, yes," Mr. Paige replied, "but I didn't tell you to have a judge and jury go with it to fix the advertising rates."—Boston Herald.

OLD TIME PUNISHMENTS.

Cold Water Baths Helped to Cure Swearing and Scolding.

To punish a child in such a way that it will see the direct connection between the correction and the fault is one of the precepts of modern education. The judge of the eighteenth century was not worried by such psychological theories, but his decisions often had the grim humor of fitness.

What could be better for the scold than a cooling plunge or for the wife beater than a few lashes on his own back?

A number of tender handed English gallants joined a pioneer expedition to Virginia. The weather was cold and the work hard. When these soft muscled young men were set at chopping trees their hands were sorely blistered by the ax helves. With the cries of pain many oaths were heard.

The president of the company soon put a stop to this swearing by ordering a can of cold water to be poured down the sleeve of the guilty one at every oath he uttered.

In colonial days hog stealing was considered one of the most serious of crimes. At the first offense the thief's ears were slit, at the second his ears were nailed to a pillory, and at the third he suffered death "without benefit of clergy."

Deceitful bakers and careless fish dealers had to "lose their ears," while he who spoke detracting words had his tongue bored by a bodkin.

A Frenchman, traveling in America in 1700, describes the ducking stool as a "pleasant mode" of punishing a scolding woman.

"Day before yesterday at 2 of ye Clock, I saw this punishment given to one Betsey Walker, who by ye violence of her tongue made her house and her neighborhood uncomfortable. They had a machine for ye purpose, yt belongs to ye Parish. It has already been used three times this summer.

"Ye Woman was allowed to go under ye water for ye space of ½ minute. Betsey had a stout stomache and would not yield until she had been under five times. Then she cried piteously. Then they drew back ye Machine, untied ye Ropes and let her walk home a hopefully penitent woman."

BUSINESS PROVERBS.

Not the big earner, but the wise investor, is the future capitalist.

The wise man knows that wealth is not worth getting save for the purpose of using and so gets after it early.

Investment is putting money into chicken farming; speculation is counting the chickens before they are hatched.

The chap who does his work indifferently because he thinks he is above his job thereby proves his unfitness for the job that is above him.

The man who yields to honest persuasion slowly and imperceptibly, as rock to water, may make a loyal investor when won. But he who is quick to lay hold of a good investment makes the most money.

Multitudes of people sleep soundly nights, believing their savings to be protected in the banks, not dreaming that the banks have invested them in business enterprises that the depositors themselves declined to buy shares in because they thought their earnings were too large to be safe.

Willing to Chance It.

It is reported of the Earl of Mansfield that he once dismissed a servant, but wrote for him a "character," as follows: "The bearer, John ——, has served me for three years in the capacity of coachman. He is an able driver and a very sober man. I discharged him because he cheated me." A day or two later the man returned to thank his old master for the help he had afforded him in getting him a new birth. How had the testimonial helped him? The man explained that his new master had observed that ability to drive and sobriety were the qualities he required in a coachman. As for the cheating, his employer had said, "I'm a Yorkshireman, and I'll be hanged if you cheat me."

The English of It.

An English actor of some prominence was dining with some friends in this country. One of them asked him if he had found any American plays that he thought he could use in England. "Oh, yes," he replied, "I have seen one or two that I fawncy will be on the other side. In fact, I have entered into negotiations for several. One that appeals to me strongly is a play called 'Ten Evenings in a Public House,' where I shall play John Morgan, and another is named 'Uncle Thomas' Residence,' which has a fine part for me in Marks, the barrister."

Papa's Fault.

Father—I have just heard that that incorrigible son of mine has just married a well known actress. Daughter—Well, you have yourself to blame, father. Father—How do you make that out? Daughter—Haven't you often told him to hitch his wagon to a star?

Bunkoed.

The elephant trumpeted loudly.

"What's the trouble?" asked the chimpanzee.

"Somebody's worked the shell game on me," replied the pachyderm as he threw away the bag of empty peanut shells which had just been handed to him.

Fourth Member to Die This Session

Ottawa, March 13.—Thos. Martin, Liberal M.P., for North Wellington, who underwent a serious operation Last Friday afternoon, died yesterday morning. He was 56 years of age, and had been, up till quite recently, in the enjoyment of the most robust health. He was a native of Fergus, Ont., and entered Parliament three years ago.

Mr. Martin's demise makes the fourth death that has occurred in the ranks of Parliament since the opening of the present session. His loss is a severe shock to the House, as it had not been generally understood that his condition was even dangerous.

Manhattan Gold Field

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of today are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 10 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

"Respectfully submitted,
"WM. R. PAYNE, President.
"J. ROGER BROWN, Secretary."

THE REFUGEES

By A. CONAN DOYLE,

Author of "The Return of Sherlock Holmes"

COPYRIGHT, 1893, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"He is a good for naught!" she cried. "He does not even know how to torture. Now, I could have got a cry out of him. I am sure of it. But you, monsieur, you are very white!"

"It was the sight of such a hellish deed. Ah, if we were but set face to face, I with my sword, he with that weapon he chose, he should pay for it with his heart's blood!"

The Indian woman seemed surprised. "It is strange to me," she said, "that you should think of what befalls me when you are yourself under the same shadow. But our fate will be as I said. You are to die at the stake. She is to be given to the dog who has left us."

"Adele! Adele! What shall I do?" He tore his hair in his helplessness and distraction.

"No, no, fear not, Amory, for my heart will not fail me. What is the pang of death if it binds us together?"

"The younger chief pleaded for you, saying that the Mitche Manitou had stricken you with madness, as could be seen by your swimming to their canoe, and that a blight would fall upon the nation if you were led to the stake. But the Bastard said that love came often like madness among the palefaces and that it was that alone which had driven you. Then it was agreed that you should die and that she should go to his wigwam, since he had led the war party. As for me, their hearts were bitter against me, and I also am to die by the pine splinters."

"When is it to be?" asked De Catinat.

"Now; at once. They have gone to make all ready. But you have time yet, for I am to go first."

"Amory, Amory, could we not die together now?" cried Adele, throwing her arms round her husband. "If it be sin, it is surely a sin which will be forgiven us. Let us go, dear. Let us leave these dreadful people and this cruel world and turn where we shall find peace."

The Indian woman's eyes flashed with satisfaction. "You have spoken well, White Lily," said she. "Why should you wait until it is their pleasure to pluck you? See! Already the glare of their fire beats upon the tree trunks, and you can hear the howlings of those who thirst for your blood. You have said rightly, White Lily. There lies the only path for you."

"But how to take it?"

Onega glanced keenly at the two warriors who stood as sentinels at the door of the hut. They had turned away, absorbed in the horrible preparations which were going on. Then she rummaged deeply within the folds of her loose gown and pulled out a small pistol with two brass barrels and double triggers in the form of winged dragons. It was only a toy to look at, all carved and scrolled and graven with the choicest work of the Paris gunsmith. For its beauty the seigneur had bought it at his last visit to Quebec, and yet it might be useful, too, and it was loaded in both barrels.

"I meant to use it on myself," said she as she slipped it into the hand of De Catinat. "But now I am minded to show them that I can die as an Onondaga should die and that I am worthy to have the blood of their chiefs in my veins. Take it, for I swear that I will not use it myself unless it be to fire both bullets into that Bastard's heart."

A flush of joy shot over De Catinat as his fingers closed round the pistol. Here was indeed a key to unlock the gates of peace. Adele had laid her cheek against his shoulder and laughed with pleasure.

"You will forgive me, dear?" he whispered.

"Forgive you! I bless you and love you with my whole heart and soul."

They had sunk on their knees together when three warriors entered the hut and said a few abrupt words to their country woman. She rose with a smile.

"They are waiting for me," said she. "You shall see, White Lily, and you also, monsieur, how well I know what is due to my position. Farewell, and remember Onega!"

"Now, Amory," whispered Adele, closing her eyes and nestling still closer to him.

He raised the pistol, and then, with a quick sudden intaking of the breath, he dropped it and knelt with glaring eyes, looking up at a tree which faced the open door of the hut.

It was a beech tree, exceedingly old and gnarled, with its bark hanging down in strips and its whole trunk spotted with moss and mold. Some ten feet above the ground the main trunk divided into two, and in the fork thus formed a hand had suddenly appeared, a large reddish hand, which shook frantically from side to side in passionate dissuasion. The next instant as the two captives still stared in amazement the hand disappeared behind the trunk again, and a face appeared in its place, which still shook from side to side as resolutely as its forerunner. It was Captain Ephraim Savage of Boston.

And even as they stared and wondered a sudden shrill whistle burst out from the depths of the forest, and in a moment every bush and thicket and patch of brushwood was sprouting fire and smoke, while the snarl of the musketry ran round the whole glade, and the storm of bullets whizzed and pelted among the yelling savages. The Iroquois sentinels had been drawn in by their bloodthirsty craving to see the prisoners die, and now the Canadians were upon them, and they were hemmed in by a ring of fire. First one way and then another they rushed, to be met always by the same blast of death, until, finding at last some gap in the attack, they streamed off like sheep through a broken fence and rushed madly away into the forest.

But there was one savage who had found work to do before he fled. The Flemish Bastard had preferred his vengeance to his safety. Rushing at Onega, he buried his tomahawk in her brain, and then, yelling his war cry, he waved the blood stained weapon above his head and rushed into the hut where the prisoners still knelt. De Catinat saw him coming, and a mad joy glistened in his eyes. He rose to meet him, and as he rushed in he fired both barrels of his pistol into the Bastard's face.

He fired both barrels.

An instant later a swarm of Canadians had rushed over the writhing body, the captives felt warm friendly hands which grasped their own, and, looking upon the smiling well known faces of Amos Green, Savage and Du Lhut, they knew that peace had come to them at last.

* * * * * * *

And so the refugees came to the end of the toils of their journey, for that winter was spent by them in peace at Ste. Marie, and in the spring, the Iroquois having carried the war to the upper St. Lawrence, the travelers were able to descend into the English provinces and so to make their way down the Hudson to New York, where a warm welcome awaited them from the family of Amos Green. The friendship between the two men was now so cemented together by common memories and common dangers that they soon became partners in fur trading, and the name of the Frenchman came at last to be as familiar in the mountains of Maine and on the slopes of the Alleghanies as it had once been in the salons and corridors of Versailles.

As to Captain Ephraim Savage, he returned safely to his beloved Boston, where he fulfilled his ambition by building himself a fair brick house upon the rising ground in the northern part of the city, whence he could look down both upon the shipping in the river and the bay.

The manor house of La Ste. Marie was soon restored to its former prosperity, but its seigneur was from the day that he had lost his wife and son a changed man. He grew leaner, fiercer, less human, forever heading parties which made their way into the Iroquois woods and which outrivaled the savages themselves in the terrible nature of their deeds. A day came at last when he sallied out upon one of these expeditions from which neither he nor any of his men ever returned.

THE END.

Petty Criticism.

Cyrus Small's time was largely spent in discovering the faults and shortcomings of things animate and inanimate, while Mrs. Small, as it seemed, was equally vigilant in attempting to bring forward something of which she could say, "There, you can't pick any flaws in that!"

Once she thought this happiness would be hers. A certain man in the town inherited large wealth under peculiar circumstances. It was his under the law, but when the court awarded it to him he stood up and said that, in view of all the facts in the case, he believed that the property belonged of right to another heir. His action was generally looked upon as a noble one.

Mrs. Small was loud in her expressions of praise.

"Yes, I know," said her husband, "'twas a fine thing. Few men would have done it, and that's why he felt so awkward to stand up there and say what he did. He showed that he felt embarrassed by the way he stood."

"Cyrus Small, I should hope you would not find fault with his attitude when he was doing such a grand thing!"

"Oh, no; I have no wish to criticise," said Cyrus, "but if I had been on the platform, facing all those people, I should have tried to toe out a little more."

KENNEDY COBALT, Ltd.

is recommended

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. 32. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 15 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 30 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 30 acres of J. B. 32 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 6 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 20 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 50 feet, and in it shows 6 inch nicolite, 18 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 673-1231-492-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

New Liskeard, 17th November, 1906.

Impure Blood

Clogs the Kidneys
Slows the Heart
Flags the Brain.

Weakens Every Part of the Body. Causes Organic Diseases.

Just as strength is the natural outcome of pure blood, so is debility and sickness the result of impure blood.

To know how quickly, how surely Ferrozone cures, to see how it rebuilds and restores, you have only to read the following letters—read them carefully—see if the symptoms resemble yours.

Miss Evelyn M. Gaetz, of Kingston, writes: "I have had an attack of blood disorder which broke out in horrid looking pimples. They were ugly, red, disfiguring blotches that ruined the appearance of my face. I tried all sorts of medicine, but the pimples didn't leave. I was recommended Ferrozone and gave it a trial. I noticed an improvement after the second box, and kept up the treatment which finally cleared my skin. As the result of Ferrozone I have a clear healthy complexion and can recommend it to all other young women similarly affected."

Another young lady well known in society circles of Springfield, who derived exceptional benefit from Ferrozone, says: "I felt it my duty to make known the value of Ferrozone. My trouble was poor, weak blood, and as a consequence my lips were pallid, and my cheeks had no color. I wasn't at all strong, and required a bracing tonic. Ferrozone soon brought color to my cheeks, improved my appetite and made me stronger than I have been in years. I favor Ferrozone because it is so simple to take and works so quickly."

No blood remedy exists that has the power to cure, to heal, to restore like Ferrozone; try it, 50c per box at any drugstore.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Gathered From the Local Police Station.

Yesterday summonses were issued by a local pool room proprietor against two young men who, whilst under the influence of liquor tried to play "rough house" in the premises of the aforesaid pool room proprietor.

Acting under the advice of friends and on his own judgment the proprietor in question, considering that the warning conveyed by said proposed action will have the effect of stopping this nuisance in the place of a gentleman who contributes many hundreds of dollars towards the city's revenue, the poolroom proprietor consented to stop proceedings sooner than see the young men in trouble. Mr. Gordon of O'Connell & Gordon, acted for the plaintiff.

At yesterday's police court Messrs. Roger, Bennett, Goodwill, and A. P. Poussette, were charged with not keeping the pavement in front of their place of business clear of ice, and snow as required by the city by-law. They pleaded not guilty. Mr. Bennett claimed that in the six years the bylaw has been in force it has not been enforced before. Mr. Roger in the box said that generally the firm has a man to keep their sidewalk clear. The ice there now could not be removed without injury to the pavement.

The magistrate thought the bylaw was a good one if sensibly enforced, but that a little snow on the sidewalk was safer than the bare pavements. It was most unreasonable for the police to notify the merchants to get their sidewalks clean on a Saturday when every one was busy. The informations were made with no particular date. As the law punishes anyone who injures the pavement he asked the chief to make the information notices of motion for next year. The chief would not withdraw them so the defendants were discharged.

Two young men who had a mix up Saturday night at the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte Streets, each paid $4.00 for engaging in battle.

Miss E. A. Heagle Now Mrs. W. Heath

Yesterday morning a quietly celebrated marriage ceremony was performed in the George street Methodist church, when Miss Ethel Alberta Heagle, daughter of Mr. John Heagle of Rawdon township, became the bride of Mr. Walter Heath, son of Mr. David Heath, of the same township. The ceremony was consummated at ten o'clock by Rev. Dr. Crothers. The bridal pair were unattended.

Mr. and Mrs. Heath will reside in Rawdon township, where they have a large number of friends.

Mr. H. D. Kennedy Is Making Converts

Great Success of a Former Peterboro Man in Far Off California.

The Daily Morning Union of Grass Valley and Nevada City, Cal., in it its issue of March 7th, contains an illustrated column long article concerning, and displaying the portrait of Mr. H. D. Kennedy, the evangelist. Mr. Kennedy is a son of Mr. Dawson Kennedy of this city.

This article says in part that Mr. Kennedy has practically brought about "A brotherhood of men in Redding. Cal., as Baptists, Methodists and Presbyterians have agreed to get together and lend their assistance in making the evangelist's (Mr. Kennedy) work a success." The article goes on further to say, "It has been a long time since an evangelist of Rev. Mr. Kennedy's force visited this city. He hits straight from the shoulder and is not afraid to tell his hearers the things which another might gloss over."

At a recent meeting in that town Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy were presented with a handsome silver spoon, in the bowl of which was engraved a likeness of one of the local churches.

The Dennistoun Banquet Discussed

Much diversity of opinion exists throughout the city over the contretemps involved in the R. M. Dennistoun banquet, where several citizens, as noted in a former issue have declined to take part in the ceremony unless Mayor McWilliams be the chairman and propose the toast of the guest of the evening. Yesterday a Times representative interviewed quite a number of local citizens to ascertain their unbiased opinions as to the letter sent, first privately, and then when said letter was, it is alleged, disregarded, afterwards in the public press.

Our representative after talks with quite a number of prominent citizens, retired within his shell and whispered to himself, "damn these politics." Whilst not expressing an opinion, proper con, it seems a pity on account of the guest of the evening at least, that this matter had to get into print. It might, however be noted that those who signed the letter in question, will not, although friendly in the utmost degree to Mr. Dennistoun, attend the banquet. This is a matter not within our province to express an opinion on, it being strictly a matter of private opinion. In any event we hope that the banquet, under whose chairmanship it may be held, will be a success and worthy of the honour due to a departing respected citizen of Peterborough.

How to Save on the Coal Bill

City Clerk Kent, of Hamilton, says the city has saved over $23,000 since it went into the coal business on its own account in 1903. The hard coal figures, he says, are of special interest. The city pays a fraction over $5 a ton for which dealers charge $6.25. For egg, stove and nut coal the city pays $6.35, compared with $6.50, the retail price. For soft coal the city pays $4.43 at Hamilton, which, with 27 cents for teaming and handling, makes the net price per ton $4.80 delivered.

The Story of a Medicine.

Its name—"Golden Medical Discovery" was suggested by one of its most important and valuable ingredients — Golden Seal root.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. Pierre discovered that he could, by the use of pure, triple-refined glycerine, aided by a certain degree of constantly maintained heat and with the aid of apparatus and appliances designed for that purpose, extract from our most valuable native medicinal roots their curative properties much better than by the use of alcohol, so generally employed. So the now world-famed "Golden Medical Discovery," for the cure of weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or biliousness and kindred derangements was first made, as it ever since has been, without a particle of alcohol in its make-up.

A glance at the full list of its ingredients, printed on every bottle-wrapper, will show that it is made from the most valuable medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. All these ingredients have received the strongest endorsement from the leading medical writers, teachers and writers on Materia Medica who recommend them as the very best remedies for the diseases for which "Golden Medical Discovery" is advised.

A little book of these endorsements has been compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and will be mailed free to any one asking same by postal card, or letter addressed to the Doctor as above. From these endorsements, copied from standard medical books of all the different schools of practice, it will be found that the ingredients composing the "Golden Medical Discovery" are advised not only for the cure of the above mentioned diseases, but also for the cure of all catarrhal, bronchial and throat affections, accompained with catarrhal discharges, hoarseness, sore throat, lingering, or hang-on-coughs, and all those wasting affections which, if not promptly and properly treated are liable to terminate in consumption. Take Dr. Pierce's Discovery in time and persevere in its use until you give it a fair trial and it is not likely to disappoint. Too much must not be expected of it. It will not perform miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. It will cure the affections that lead up to consumption, if taken in time.

A Difficult Surveying Indian Job Completed

Mr. G. Blizzard, a son of the late Mr. Thos. Blizzard, M.P.P., who has been out with Mr. F. Cameron, O.L.S., has returned from Alderville. Just across from Hiawatha, where Mr. Cameron's party was engaged in making a survey of the Indian Reserve. The party had six members and it is said that the country they surveyed was one of the roughest possible. The party left the city on Monday morning last, crossing Rice Lake by sleighs. On Tuesday morning last the party drove out to Alderville, where they discovered that the country to be surveyed was one of the hardest in any surveyors' experience. One redeeming feature of this difficult work was the kindly treatment accorded the party by the Indians through whose land the survey was made. The chief "Marsden" as well as all the other members of the band did all they could for the surveyors. The survey was made for the Dominion Government Indian Department.

HYMAN IS STILL THE MEMBER FOR LONDON

Special Committee Reports to House That His Resignation Was Not Rightly Witnessed---Need Not Hold By-election.

Ottawa, March 15.—By decision of the Parliamentary Committee on Privileges and Elections yesterday Hon. C. S. Hyman's resignation of his seat in the House as member for London was adjudged invalid. In other words, the Minister of Public Works is still a member for London, and if he still feels called upon to withdraw from the House and test sentiments of his constituents he will have to resign all over again.

The point raised in the House by Mr. Borden, the Conservative leader, some weeks ago, was that the letter of resignation was invalid, because of the necessary seal and the signatures of the two witnesses not having been affixed in Mr. Hyman's presence.

It had been stated at the last meeting of the committee by one of the witnesses that his signature was attached to the letter of resignation on the authority of a telegram received from Mr. Hyman by James Duffield of London. That telegram was produced yesterday, in the following terms:

"Coronado, Cal., Feb. 2, 1907.

"J. C. Duffield, London, Ont.:

"Please have seal attached to my resignation as member for London, and have same properly witnessed.

"Charles S. Hyman."

Mr. Duffield explained that he had accompanied Mrs. Hyman to St. Louis, and had been with Mr. and Mrs. Hyman both in St. Louis and New Orleans. When he left Mr. Hyman in New Orleans, on the first of December last, the Minister of Public Works appeared to be a nervous wreck. After on Mr. Duffield sent to Mr. Hyman, enclosed in a letter to Mrs. Hyman, clippings from the Toronto papers regarding the statements made in the House by George S. Fowler regarding Mr. Hyman's resignation.

On the 1st of March he received a second telegram from Mr. Hyman, which said; "Any statements or insinuations that my resignation, either as a member or minister, was prompted by any other motive than was contained in my letter, are absolutely untrue."

COULD NOT SIGN HIS NAME.

The first was written by Mrs. Hyman on Dec. 12 from Los Angeles, Cal., and mentioned that Mr. Hyman was much upset by something he had seen in the London Advertiser about his resignation of his seat in Parliament not being in such form that it could be acted upon.

The next letter, dated Dec. 27, spoke of Mr. Hyman as enjoying the races, but added that at the very mention of business he broke down. On many days he was not able even to sign his name.

A letter from Mrs. Hyman, dated Dec. 30th, contained a note from Mr. Hyman himself, in which that gentleman, after expressing his inability to meet Mr. Aylesworth's and Sir Wilfrid's wishes, concluded with the words; "Heaven bless you, dear old fellow."

LETTER TO PREMIER.

In a letter to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, dated Dec. 30, Mrs. Hyman wrote that the result of her husband receiving letters was that he had lost any improvement made in the six weeks since he had left home. "It is impossible that he can attempt any work for a long time to come. I see only too plainly that the only thing to do is to remove all worry in the future. A specialist had told Mr. Hyman before he went away that he was at a critical time of his life, and that unless he rested completely there was little chance for his complete recovery. "He fears a complete breakdown."

RESIGNATION INVALID.

The report of a special sub-committee of members upon the legal aspect of Mr. Hyman's resignation was then presented to the committee, which, after a recital of the facts of the matter, and the statutes bearing thereon, decided unanimously that Mr. Hyman's resignation was invalid. This was accepted by the Committee on Privileges and Elections and reported to the House.

Strathconas to be Banquetted

It was decided at a meeting held in the Oriental Hotel, with President F. A. Clarke in the chair, that the Strathconas, winners of the city league honors, will be banqueted by the league on Monday, April 8th. There were present among others, Vice-President Milner, and Messrs. N. McWilliams, W. Shaw, W. E. Wasson and W. Mitchell.

The financial balance sheet for the season was presented, which showed that the receipts will about meet expenditures.

The following committee was appointed to arrange for the banquet: N. McWilliams, convenor; W. Shaw, G. Ferguson, W. E. Wasson and a representative from the Lakefield Club.

FUNERAL IS TOMORROW

OBSEQUIES OF THE LATE MRS. JAS. DOLAN.

Well Known Peterboro Lady Passes Away in Chicago.

As sadly foreshadowed in The Times of the past day or two, Mrs. James Dolan passed away on Wednesday morning in Chicago, Ill. Mrs. Dolan has been for some months in that city, where several of her sons occupy prominent positions, one son being the principal buyer for one of Chicago's greatest drygoods places, the "Hub" on State street.

Mr. James Dolan her husband, in response to a telegram received from Mr. Bert Dolan left yesterday morning for Chicago.

The deceased was 52 years of age and had been in ill health for some years. Her maiden name was Sophie LeMay. She was the daughter of Mr. Francis LeMay of this city. The late Mrs. Dolan had lived all her life in this city and was highly esteemed by a large circle of friends. Her first husband was the late Mr. Thos. Dolan, a brother of her surviving husband. By her first marriage four sons and three daughters were born. The sons are Messrs. Robert E., Edward P. and Herman, all of Chicago, and Mr. Jas. Dolan, of Columbus, Ohio. The daughters are Sister St. Ambrose, of Cornwall; Miss Sadie, of Chicago, Ill., and Miss Margaret, in the convent at Kankakee, Mich.

Mrs. H. LeBrun, of this city, is a cousin of the deceased. The remains will arrive in Peterborough today at noon and the funeral will take place on Saturday morning at eight o'clock, from the residence of Mr. H. LeBrun, Simcoe street, and proceed to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

GOLD BY THE BUSHEL

WONDERFUL RICHNESS OF THE ALASKA GRAVEL.

Nelson Gulch Mining Co. Own and Control a Large Number of Claims.

The name of Nome, Alaska, is associated in the public mind with the word "gold." Gold has been taken from both the rocks and gravel of the territory surrounding Nome literally in bushels, and still there are millions left for those lucky enough to own gold bearing claims in that country of frost and wealth.

One of the first hardy pioneers to face the dangers and toil incidental to travel in a country where the ordinary thermometer is useless as the mercury freezes, was Andrew S. Nelson. Mr. Nelson, having ascertained that four miners had in the winter of 1900 brought some forty pounds of pure gold from the territory to the north of Nome into that city, set out with a dog team to ascertain the source of this gold. Happening to know the Esquimault language he ascertained from one of the natives whence came the gold and at once staked out several claims. He formed the Nelson Gulch Mining Company, which now owns fourteen claims of twenty acres each on Nelson Gulch, where he made his great discovery. This property is on a gravel bed of a former river, into which gold absolutely by the bushel has been washed during bye-gone ages from all the surrounding auriferous country.

The property is situated only three miles from a natural hot springs and to bring this hot water to the property will involve a considerable cost. To meet this the company are allotting 900,000 shares of treasury stock at 10 cents per share. When this block has been disposed of the price will at once be raised to 25 cents a share, or more likely taken from the market. Major William Nelson, U. S. army, retired, writing on February 18, 1907, says, after seeing the property, he considers that every $100 worth of this stock will sell at $5,000. The gravel bed owned by the company is 18 feet in thickness, so the possibilities for wealth are beyond computation.

Those desiring to obtain this stock at its present low price can communicate with F. C. Gay, Financial Agent, 510 Kansas City Life Building, Kansas City, Mo.

Peterborough Man Has Got the Job

Mr. Smithson is Now Principal of Norwood School.

At a special meeting of the Board of Education of Norwood, Mr. S. A. Smithson, of Peterborough, was appointed principal of the Public school, the duties to commence at Easter. Miss Eva MacKenzie, of St. Thomas, was appointed science teacher on the High school staff.

Mr. Smithson was for several years principal of the Villiers Public school and has recently been connected with the teaching staff of the Peterborough Business College. He is secretary of the East Peterborough Teachers' Institute, and his new appointment will undoubtedly redound to the credit of the Norwood school staff and ultimate advancement.

Peterborough Man Well Recommended

Edmonton Journal Has High Praise for a Former Local Man.

The Edmonton Journal says.—The provincial ministry, it is understood have appointed Mr. William A. Buchanan, proprietor of the Lethbridge Herald, provincial librarian. This office may possibly carry with it the work of organizing the free librarian system of the Government which the Legislature have endorsed. For the past year Mr. Buchanan has edited the Herald in the South city and made it one of the best of the newest weeklies in the province. Previous to this he had an extensive newspaper experience. His early training was received in Peterborough, where he worked eight years. For three years he was city editor of the Toronto Telegram and for the same period managing director of the St. Thomas Journal. Mr. Buchanan is therefore well qualified to undertake a work that requires literary training, and the historical spirit which is unduly developed in a newspaper man whose work is necessarily of that nature. Mr. Buchanan has the additional qualification of being a young man of energy and good address, and will undoubtedly fill with honor to himself this important position.

Mrs. William Millar Has Passed Away

The Times received word at a late hour last night that Mrs. William Millar, who resided at the corner of Dublin and Water streets, had passed away.

MANY TOWNS UNDER WATER

Rivers Rise Thirty Feet and Much Country is Indunated.

PITTSBURG IS IN DANGER

Flood Conditions Promise to be the Worst in 75 Years.

Pittsburg, March 15.—Pittsburg is experiencing one of its greatest floods. The record of ten years has already been passed, and the rivers are still rising.

If the rise continues at the present rate the record of 1884, when the water reached the highest stage since 1835, will have been passed long before nightfall. The stage in 1884 was 33 feet 4 inches.

Yesterday at ten o'clock the marks registered 32 feet, with the water creeping up at the rate of six inches an hour, and still rising at all headwater points.

Every tributary along the upper rivers is swollen and despatches from all sections of Western Pennsylvania report the smaller streams beyond their banks and the surrounding districts submerged.

Weather bureau officials predict 34 feet or over at Pittsburg. If this stage is reached, the flood will not only be the greatest in 75 years, but the most disastrous in the history of the city.

COAL MINES FLOODED.

Many towns are almost submerged; hundreds of houses are surrounded by water, and the people are living in the second floors; the coal mines along the rivers in the Monongahela Valley are flooded, and thousands of miners are idle; mills and business houses have one to three feet of water in their first floors, stopping business. Damage to property will be at least $500,000. In Allegheny County several fatalities have occurred on account of the high water, and a number of deaths are reported from the river sections.

The danger is increased by heavy ice gorges in the Monongahela and Allegheny Rivers, about 25 miles above the city. One ice gorge alone in the Clarion River at Parker, Pa., is 30 miles in length, and continued rains and high temperature threaten to start it toward Pittsburg. The Youghiogheny and Kiskiminitas Rivers are swollen, and the large volume of water is causing the Monongahela River to overflow its banks.

STREET CARS SUSPENDED.

All the railroads entering Pittsburg except the main line of the Pennsylvania and Pittsburg and Lake Erie are crippled. On the Baltimore and Ohio train service is almost suspended, and on the branch lines there is a complete suspension. Trains on the West Penn division of the Pennsylvania Railroad are being brought direct into the city, as they are unable to reach the Allegheny station. Street car lines in the suburbs are either suspended, or are running spasmodically, and many persons are having much difficulty in reaching the city.

USE SKIFFS AND WAGONS.

The stage at two o'clock was eight feet over the danger mark. The lower portions of Pittsburg and Allegheny and surrounding towns were inundated. Skiffs and wagons are being used for transportation in the flooded sections.

The weather bureau says the present flood is the most remarkable on record, and the situation is serious.

The health bureau has notified the people to boil drinking water, as the water is poisonous, owing to the floods, and a typhoid fever epidemic is feared.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"Sergeant Kitty"

The great military comic opera success, "Sergeant Kitty," was presented last night to a big audience at the Grand Opera house. The offering is one of the best on the road, and is replete with bright, sparkling song and melody, combined with side-splitting comedy. The company are preceded with an enviable reputation for high-class opera, which last night's presentation demonstrated to be in no particular overdrawn. They are a strong aggregation of operatic worth, doing ample justice to a production made up of a charming admixture of music, wit, humor and mirth-provoking incidents, perfectly irresistible to any audience. In "Sergeant Kitty" there is much to please and nothing to offend.

The piece is admirably staged, while the costumes are perfectly superb and faithful to the characters portrayed. No pains or expense has been spared in these directions.

Carrie Major, as General Dubois, has a splendid baritone voice, and his several numbers were demonstratively received. He sustained the character of a fussy eccentric old general to perfection. Miss Helen Byron, in the leading role of Sergeant Kitty, is irresistibly vivacious and is well named the dainty commedienne. James McElhern, as Jacques Jonquiniere, the armorous captain of hussars, is a combination of song, contagious comedy and witticism which stamps him as a master of his profession. His vocal numbers last night elicited enthusiastic calls for encores. He is also admirably supported by Miss Marion Langdon as Kitty's aunt, and Jack Hadaway as Chestin Brideaux, both of whom are extremely mirth-provoking in light comedy.

The remainder of the company have a very creditable conception of their several characters, and this whole aggregation of operatic talent are offering an entertainment in "Sergeant Kitty" that can safely return again with assured success.

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, are to be congratulated on booking the best companies on the road.

The company paid a beautiful compliment to the British Empire last night in singing at the close of the performance, the National Anthem. What must they have thought of the affidavit, however, who exhibited so little respect for "God Save the King," as to start crowding out of the theater while their American visitors were paying a graceful tribute to Canada and the Empire at large. They might at least have remained quietly standing until the strains of the grand old anthem had died away. The courtesy of the Americans should at least have been returned by fitting respect on the part of their Canadian and English audience.

LOCAL BILL HAS PASSED

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT ACCEPTS MEASURE.

Which Passed With Very Few and Trifling Amendments.

A Toronto despatch received yesterday afternoon says that only a few amendments were made, and these mainly to bring the clauses within the province of the general law, in the private bill submitted by the City of Peterborough.

The (Water Commissioners' request to become a corporate body, and for power to impose a tax on vacant property was granted, on condition that it first be passed by a vote of the people. All the industrial by-laws and money by-laws were confirmed.

The Coates Company agreement, was, at the request of the city's representatives, held over for the time being, pending future developments.

The city was given authority to purchase the electric light and gas plants of the Peterborough Light & Power Co. But full expenditures must first be passed by a vote of the people.

The request to give a fixed assessment to the Canadian General Electric Company was granted.

The C.P.R. Will Build Two New Empresses

Montreal, March 14.—The Canadian Pacific has now decided to build two new steamships for the Atlantic service, which will take the place of the Empress of Ireland and the Empress of Britain. These latter steamers, it is understood, will be transferred to the Orient service and will provide faster and better service on the Pacific than any now in existence.

This would release the two present Empresses from the China and Japan line, and these it is proposed to put on the Australian and New Zealand route.

Trade on the Pacific has been increasing so enormously and the conditions of competition are altering so rapidly that these changes are considered absolutely necessary in order to cope with them.

New Zealand is offering an annual mail subsidy of $160,000 for a direct service between one of its principal ports and British Columbia.

The present Australian-Canadian service, which is conducted by the Union Steamship Company of New Zealand, will thus be greatly strengthened by the introduction of the Orient Empresses, whose names would naturally be changed to suit the geographical conditions of the new traffic in which they will be engaged. As to the new Atlantic steamers, it is understood that they will be larger and faster than anything now running on the Canadian-Atlantic route, but nothing definite will be decided as to the character of the vessels until Sir Thomas Shaughnessy pays his usual yearly visit to England. This will probably be early next month. The new vessels will, it is reported, be capable of making considerably over twenty knots an hour—possibly twenty-two or twenty-three. This will mean a great development in the North Atlantic passenger service.

DELMAS WINS BIG POINT IN THE TRIAL

Hummel is Not Allowed to Bring Out an Affidavit Mrs. Thaw is Alleged to Have Made About Thaw and White.

New York, March 15.—When the Thaw trial opened yesterday morning Abraham Hummel was recalled to the stand.

Delphin M. Delmas immediately began his argument in reply to District Attorney Jerome as to the admissability of the evidence Hummel has to offer regarding an affidavit Evelyn Nesbit is said to have made. In this affidavit, the district attorney stated Wednesday, Miss Nesbitt asserted that Thaw had beaten her when she refused to sign papers charging White with her ruin, and swore that the charge against White was not true. In his argument Mr. Delmas said; "We still contend that this witness was acting as attorney to this girl. It is not for him by his word, to deny that such a relation existed. However, we will reserve that objection."

Mr. Delmas then turned to the admissibility of evidence contradicting the statements of a witness made out of court. He said he had notobjected to Mr. Jerome's address Wednesday, as he trusted "to the fair-mindedness of the jury, which is my only protection."

Mr. Delmas finally asked that the court rule out Hummel's testimony as improper and having no bearing on the case.

The judge upheld the contention of Mr. Delmas.

DEPENDS ON THE AFFIDAVIT.

New York, March 15. — A crucial point in the trial of Harry K. Thaw has been reached. It revolves about the affidavit which Abraham Hummel has in his position and which is said to have been dictated by him at the instance of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. The legal fight to admit this testimony began Wednesday, when District Attorney Jerome made the most impassioned address yet heard at the trial, in which he pleaded eloquently for its admission. It was to give the defence time to study precedents and to otherwise prepare for the fight that court adjourned yesterday after a brief session.

The importance of the affidavit was brought out by Mr. Jerome in his address yesterday. He told of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's story on the stand, which she said she told to Thaw in Paris, and, the district attorney said if the jury believed this story they would carry it in their minds and seriously weigh it in determining the question of whether Thaw's reason was unhinged.

"If, on the other hand," he said, "I am allowed to show that Evelyn Nesbit did not tell Thaw that White had drugged her and attacked her; if I can show the jury that there is grave reason to doubt the story, will not that be a fact which the jury should weigh when they retire for their final deliberation in determining whether this man was of unsound mind when he killed White?"

Mr. Jerome declared that in this affidavit Evelyn Nesbit swore that she never told Thaw in Paris the story about her treatment by White. Furthermore, she swore that Thaw had tried to induce her to sign papers in proceedings to get White in jail, using this story as a basis, that she told him it was not true and that when he insisted that she sign some papers and she refused, he beat her and lashed her with a whip until her skin was lacerated.

THE COMPETITION CLOSES

LAST DAY FOR SENDING IN THE NAMES.

Many Names Submitted for Otonabee Navigation Company's New Palatial Steamer.

Very much interest has been taken in the novel competition as to who will win a season family ticket good over all boats of the Otonabee Navigation Company. We might remind our readers that in this competition the one submitting such name as the company may select for their splendid new twin screw steamer, now being built by Ship-Carpenter Hickey on the company's ground in the East Ward, will get a ticket good for every member of the winner's immediate family. Only one name may be submitted by each person, and the competition is open to all, adults or children. Many letters have been received from places outside this city, e.g., Toronto, Kingston, Montreal, Lindsay and Port Hope.

As a sample of the cases of letters received might be noted one received yesterday from a local professional man who submitted the name "Champlain," in which the writer gives a short history of Champlain's journey from Quebec to Lake Nipissing and the French River, and thence via the Georgian Bay through Simcoe County to the Bay of Quinte, the latter stretch of his route being in all probability via the Otonabee River. Many of the letters in which Indian names are suggested display quite a knowledge of Indian history and nomenclature.

The competition closes at 12 o'clock tonight, and the name selected will be announced some day next week.

In addition to the names already published, the following were received yesterday:

Onelta.
Neegon.
Yatesa.
Florence Nightingale.
Wanda.
Minnie M. White.
Il-la-ell-la-wit.
Maxwell.
Miss Maxwell.
Otonabee Flyer.
Calcutta.
Geronimo.
Meteor.
Bonanza.

St. Petersburg, March 15.—The Government has resolved to take drastic steps against the universities and other institutions of high learning of the empire. The board of the institute he will be prosecuted for criminal negligence for permitting the sheltering of arms and ammunition for revolutionary purposes in the institution entrusted to his supervision. The faculty of the institution will hand in their resignations in a body as a protest against the degradation of Prince Gagarin.

Must Keep Forests

Ottawa, March 15.—At the eighth annual meeting of the Canadian Forestry Association, opened yesterday, Professor Macoun declared that unless the eastern slopes of the Rockies are protected from denudation the plains of Alberta and Saskatchewan will become arid.

Mr. E. Stewart, the retiring Dominion Superintendent of Forestry, spoke of the urgency of impressing upon the Government, the need of co-operation with the forestry movement.

Yelisavetgrad, Russia, March 15.—An estate in this vicinity was attacked by robbers yesterday, who bound and decapitated the proprietor, five laborers and a woman. Two witnesses of the slaughter, a soldier who hid in a hay stack, and a child, lost their reason. The soldier subsequently died in a hospital of delirium. The booty amounted to $1,000.

KILLS CATARRHAL GERMS

Breathe Hyomei's Medicated Air and You Will Soon be Well.

If you have catarrh in the nose, head or throat, with offensive breath, coughing, irritation of the throat, raising of mucous, difficulty in breathing, sneezing, husky or hoarse voice, discharge from the nose, tickling and dropping at the back of the throat, especially at night, begin the use of Hyomei at once.

Its healing medication breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, will give quick relief in all catarrhal troubles, and its continued use will kill the catarrhal germs, and drive them from the system.

By using Hyomei you get in your own home the same results as though you lived out of doors in the Adirondacks or the Colorado mountains. The germ-killing properties of Hyomei reach the most remote air cells of the respiratory organs, soothing and healing any irritation there may be in the mucous membrane, and killing all catarrhal germs.

Here in Peterborough where Hyomei has been known and sold, there are many who freely attest its wonderful powers but the best testimony that can be offered in favor of Hyomei is the guarantee with every outfit "money back if it fails."

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, extra bottles, if needed, 50 cents, making it the most economical treatment for catarrh as well as the only one that is sold under a guarantee to refund the money if it fails to cure.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei, or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Write us today for a symptom blank, which we will send you free, together with a treatise on Catarrh and how to cure it. When you fill in and return to us the symptom blank, our consulting physician will give your case the best care and attention, and write you a letter of advice without charge. Do You Seek Health?

Consult Dr. Hamilton And You Will Be Shown the Way.

Thousands are in the same boat—all sickly, bilious and feeling far from well.

Trouble is, the system is clogged with impurities which need to be cleared away.

Before downright sickness arrives you should cleanse and purify the system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

At once you feel their mighty influence building up weak spots, clearing out disease, and putting you again on your feet.

These purely vegetable pills change your tired, worn-out condition to one of health and vigor, because they supply the body with nourishing blood that builds up and enlivens the entire system.

Mr. John Whitley, of Stanwood, P. O., Ont., knows the merit of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and says; "I wouldn't be alive today had it not been for Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Last winter I was sick with grippe, and when spring came I was weak, bilious and rheumatic. I used enough medicine to cure twenty times, but I didn't get any help till I tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They purified my blood, took the yellow color out of my face, put new tone in my my stomach, and increased my appetite. The bilious attacks and rheumatic pains gradually departed, and Dr. Hamilton's Pills made a new man of me. I proved their merit, and proclaim them a medicine for all men."

THE BRITISH NAVY

The recent discussion which took place in the House of Lords upon the question of Lord Lovat as to whether the condition of the navy was such as to guarantee the safety of the country has brought forth expressions from such distinguished soldiers and public servants as Lord Roberts to the effect that it was not safe to rely entirely upon the fleet as a means of defense. Although Lord Tweedmouth maintained that the fleet was in a much better condition today than ever before Lord Lovat insisted that facts and figures be laid before the house in support of this condition.

There is no doubt that much good will result from a discussion of national defense, and while there are certain pessimists who say today that guard of the entegrity of Britain's shores and that after all these centuries of immunity they may yet be invaded, it has been amply demonstrated that there is no particular reason for uneasiness, far less for alarm, in regard to the efficiency of the British navy. The wonderful showing of the fleet in mobilization has been demonstrated during recent maneuvers and when comoared with the slow and clumsy work of the Russian navy in the late war, it must be realized that by the comparative standard the British navy has a fairly comfortable position. It has been suggested that a combination of hostile powers could starve Britain out by cutting off her food supplies. The possibility of a temporary commercial crisis is admitted but no enemy could long evade a definite engagement, and in short, in serious warfare commerce destroying is not the business of a navy, and is bad strategy.

C. P. R. Official Gets Offer of $30,000

Winnipeg, March 14.—G. J. Bury, general manager of the western lines of the C.P.R. at Winnipeg, has been offered the position of general manager of the Chicago, Rock Island, and Pacific Railroad Company. The salary is $30,000.

Mr. Bury is at Calgary at present, but there has been a rumor in local railway circles for several days that he was considering a fine offer from a big United States corporation. Bury is one of the best-known railway men in the West, and was recently promoted from the position of general superintendent of the C.P.R. at Winnipeg to that of general manager of the western lines of the company. His salary is larger now, but nothing like the amount of the Chicago offer.

High Price of Lumber Checks Immigration

Winnipeg, March 14.—In spite of the investigation by Parliament now under way, the British Columbia mill-men yesterday gave notice of an increase of two dollars per thousand on April 1st. Logs, they claim, are selling at $13 per thousand now, based upon which rough lumber is selling at $28 to $30, and difficult to secure at that price.

With the vast rush to the new provinces this exorbitant price of lumber is regarded as the chief drawback to the American movement into Western Canada.

General Nepluefl Removed from Sabastopol

Odessa, March 14.—It developed yesterday that the recent transfer of General Nepluefl, commander of the fortress at Sebastopol, was due to the inhabitants of that city, who sent a petition that their nerves were being shattered through the danger which they incurred whenever the commandant appeared in public.

Two attempts to kill the commandant failed, but many citizens were killed and wounded. Whenever he appeared in public there was a general scurry for shelter.

STORIES OF THE CAT.

Legends and Facts About the Still but Half Tamed Animal.

"There are few tales of cat fidelity and many of dog, yet one thinks no worse of the cat for this," says an observer. "His very independence compels respect. He walks 'by his wild lone, waving his wild tail, through the wild woods,' as an inspired modern writer has set forth. All the generations have not served to tame him, and the most domestic of the race will revert sooner to a wild life at 'the call of the blood' than any other friend of man. It is thus scarcely surprising to find that the most famous cat lovers have been drawn from the ranks of politicians and poets, those whom reasons of state or a sensitive temperament have rendered averse from trusting their fellow creatures and who consequently bestow all their affections upon the 'fireside sphinx.' We are invited to believe that the most famous of all cats, he who brought fame and fortune to his master, Dick Whittington, was no four legged animal at all, but merely the French word 'achat'—to buy and sell at profit—and that the great merchant made a pet only of his merchandise from the very beginning. Thus in later years do the idols of our youth topple about our heads.

"But other legends—nay, facts—are left us. Cardinal Wolsey, for instance, when acting in his official capacity as lord chancellor is said to have had his favorite cat always seated beside him, and another prince of the church, Richelieu, found his only relaxation in keeping a number of kittens in his private cabinet and watching their gambols during his spare moments. We cannot really reckon Richelieu as a true lover of the race, however, for directly the kittens grew to three months he had them sent away and replaced by others. Lord Chesterfield left in his will life pensions to his favorite cats and their kittens. Victor Hugo's great cat Chanoine always sat on a large red ottoman in the center of his salon and received his guests in state, showing marked displeasure if any one failed to caress or praise her.

"Tasso wrote a sonnet to his favorite cat, and Petrarch had one he loved as dearly, we are told, as Laura. No doubt she was the confidant of many of his trials and consoled him for much of the fair lady's disdain, and when pussy died the poet had her embalmed in the Egyptian fashion and carried her mummy about with him everywhere. Baudelaire, the French poet, a very shy man, was always ill at ease in any new house he entered until the family cat was brought up and introduced to him, after which, with the cat on his knee, he was perfectly happy in his silent poet fashion.

"Traditions respecting cats are, of course, legion. From time immemorial they have been regarded as somewhat uncanny, omens of weal or woe, beings to be either conciliated or crushed. The cat worship of ancient Egypt and, later, the Roman creed that the cat was sacred to Diana speak of the one; the wild charges of witchcraft—or concern in it—rife during the dark ages of Europe will attest the latter. But there is another popular belief deserving also of mention, that which sets forth the old maid as the cat's only friend, a legend arising in the mediaeval nunneries overrun with mice, where one or more cats were always kept and were no doubt much petted by the good nuns."

Twice Two.

"Do you really believe two heads are better than one?"

"Give it up, but I know we wouldn't amount to much without foreheads."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, skips irregular, that nerves and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

BEES IN WARFARE.

Two Instances In Which the Insects Were Used as Weapons.

History records two instances in which bees have been used in warfare as weapons against besieging forces. The first is related by Applan of the siege of Themisgyra, in Pontus, by Lucullus in his war against Mithridates. Turrets were brought up, mounds were built, and huge mines were made by the Romans. The people of Themiscyra dug open these mines from above and through the holes cast down upon the workmen bears and other wild animals and hives or swarms of bees.

The second instance is recorded in an Irish manuscript in the Bibliotheque Royale at Brussels and tells how the Danes and Norwegians attacked Chester, which was defended by the Saxons and some Gallic auxiliaries. The Danes were worsted by a stratagem, but the Norwegians, sheltered by hurdles, tried to pierce the walls of the town when "what the Saxons and the Gaeidhil who were among them did was to throw down large rocks, by which they broke down the hurdles over their heads." What the others did to check this was to place large posts under the hurdles.

What the Saxons did next was to put all the beer and water of the town into the caldrons of the town and boil them and spill them down upon those who were under the hurdles, so that their skins were peeled off. The remedy which the Lochians applied to this was to place hides outside on the hurdles. What the Saxons did next was to throw down all the beehives in the town upon the besiegers, which prevented them from moving their hands or legs from the number of bees which stung them. They afterward desisted and left the city.

DORMOUSE DELICACIES.

Titbits That Were Relished In Ancient Roman Times.

Brawn was originally a Roman dish and was eaten with garum, and cow's and calf's foot jellies were likewise dainties with Rome's upper ten in the time of the Caesars. One would hardly suppose that black puddings were so old as the reign of Tiberius, but this is the fact. They were made of pig's blood, with little cubes of fat interspersed in the compound, and were the invention of a gentleman, who rejoiced in the name of Bambonielvergius. It was he who invented all kinds of sausages—that is, meat stuffed into skins, which, we take it, is the ground plan, so to speak, of a sausage.

This gentleman also wrote a learned treatise on the fattening of dormice for the table, for at one period dormice were a craze. There were dormouse soup, dormouse sausage, dormouse brawn, dormouse cooked in every conceivable way, and the demand for this delicacy in prime sizes was so great that there was room for a book on the subject, though unfortunately this book is lost to posterity, and the only knowledge which we have of the fattening of dormice in Rome is from Petronius Arbiter, who tells us that they became fat by sleeping.

He also tells us that the best sauce to eat with dormouse is a mixture of poppy seed and honey, a mixture which probably had the merit of inducing sleep after a meal.

Cheering Tommy Up.

The obstacles which beset the pathway of a photographer when he endeavors to secure "a pleasant expression" are many, particularly when his sitters are of a tender age.

"I do not believe whipping does children a particle of good," said Mrs. Green, returning flushed and discouraged from a visit to the photographer with her Tommy. "Here I've spent over an hour in that hot room trying to make this child look pleasant. I've slapped his hands twice, and he looked crosser each time than he did before."—Youth's Companion.

The Corpse Plant.

The corpse plant is a remarkable carnivorous specimen that grows in the colony of Natal. Its principal feature is a bell shaped mouth, with a throat opening into a hollow stem. It is almost black and covered with a thick, glutinous secretion, while its odor is very offensive. This attracts carrion feeding birds to it, and once they alight on it they are lost. Their claws become entangled in the secretion, the bell shaped mouth folds up, and they are literally swallowed.

Costliest of All Fish.

The fish was no bigger than a silver dollar. Its color was bright gold, and it had a beautiful bushy golden tail.

"That," said the pet stock dealer, "is the finest aquarium fish in the world, a Chinese brush tailed goldfish. It is handsome, healthy and long lived. A good brush tailed goldfish," he concluded, "costs $250 or $300, and some fine specimens have sold for as much as $700 apiece."

Good Some Other Time.

"Just as Jack was about to kiss me last night father walked into the room."

"What did you do?"

"I gave Jack a rain check."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. D. 32, This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 15 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 30 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 30 acres of J. D. 32 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 5 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 20 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 50 feet, and in it shows 6 inch nicolite, 18 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 672-1233-492-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

WEDDING STATIONERY

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENTS are always in order. The season for the final result of being a disciple of Cupid finds expression in the Hymeneal ceremony at the altar—that occasion when "two hearts that beat as one" are joined together—pronounced one.

For this auspicious occasion the printing must be chastely dignified—must be appropriate in appearance to this one time of life when everything "best" is donned—when happiness reigns supremely.

Marriage Announcements
Marriage Invitations
Marriage Reception Cards
Post Nuptial Reception Cards

All of these we are able to supply in a proper form and printed artistically. Our work is conducted under the supervision of skilled typographical mechanics and may be unhesitatingly presented to the most fastidious critic.

Our charges for such work are moderate—yet good printing is ever valuable. However, we give quality for our figures, and an order entrusted to our care will be speedily, carefully and satisfactorily executed.

No work can be well done which has to be done hurriedly. Time is necessary for the accomplishment of faultless printing. We will fulfil all expectations if given ample time for completion.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

A FAMOUS GAMESTER.

Amazing Skill of Captain John Scott at Whist.

HIS RAPID ROAD TO WEALTH.

The Winnings of the "Gentleman Gambler" at White's, in London, in the Eighteenth Century Exceeded $5,000,000—Fox's Reckless Play.

Of all the gentlemen gamblers at the close of the eighteenth century in England a single one is noted for the immensity and the regularity of his winnings. This was John Scott, who, beginning as a penniless captain, wound up his career as a millionaire general. On the subject of the campaigns he conducted history is silent, but contemporary London was full of talk of his marvelous luck with dice and cards, and the marital misfortunes of his later life gave more material for the gossips.

"The great event is the catastrophe of Sir John Bland, who has flirted away his whole fortune at hazard. He gother night lost in reckless play an immense sum to a Captain Scott, who at present has nothing but a few debts and his commission."

Sir John Bland, to conclude here the history of that luckless dicer, shot himself dead, after losing the last of his fortune, in Kippax park.

Captain John Scott was of that branch of the numerous Scott family of which Sir Walter was a member, and his ancestor in the thirteenth century was that famous chemist, Michael Scott, who won the name of wizard. A later Scott distinguished himself in the time of Charles II. by marrying, when he was himself only fourteen years old, a lady who was three years his junior. The bride was Mary, countess of Buccleuch, in her own right the richest heiress in Scotland. The marriage was a secret one, and none of the friends and few of her family were informed of it until the day after. The youthful bridegroom did not profit greatly by this match, for his bride died at thirteen. Her sister Anne, who succeeded to her titles and estates, made a marriage with the pet son of Charles II., Monmouth, and had a numerous family.

It was sixty years later, or about 1750, that young Scott, son of the laird of Scott's Tarvet, entered King George's army. Two years later he was in London and in the midst of the most reckless set of spendthrifts, rakes and gamesters that English society has ever known. Sir John Bland was only one of a thousand rich young Englishmen who threw away fortunes over the gaming table at White's. The one historic loser of that era was Charles James Fox, Pitt's rival. Fox gambled away, all told, no less than $5,000,000. Scott was the very antipodes of Fox. When he died, at a ripe old age, he left a fortune as great as that with which Fox had begun, and every penny of it had been won at the gaming table. Fox was a ripe scholar. Scott was almost illiterate. Fox said that losing was the next greatest pleasure to winning. Scott never lost or so rarely that it did not affect the serenity of his career as a winner. Fox would go home in the morning after a night in which he had gambled away £10,000 or £20,000 and immediately lose himself in a study of Sophocles or Æschylus. Scott, like the sensible fellow he was, would button his coat over the portemonnaie in which he carried away winnings of an equal or even greater amount and immediately go to bed to be fresh for play in the evening.

When Scott found himself in London and amid the wild young men of his era, he determined that gaming was his only chance of getting money. When he engaged himself to throw a series of mains with Sir John Bland, he had, as Horace Walpole puts it, nothing "but a few debts and his commission." His shrewdness taught him that there was nothing in dicing, at which a stupid man has as good a chance as a bright one, and so he speedily gave up hazard and applied himself to whist, at which game fortune lights on the side of the skillful player. Never in the history of play did men gamble for such high stakes as Scott and his victims did at White's between 1753 and 1780. Scott's system was an exceedingly simple one. He gave himself the best of it in every possible way. He never went to the gaming table unless his head and his stomach were in the very best order. He never lost his composure or his good nature for an instant. He played a perfectly fair and honorable game, and at first he made it a rule never to play for more than a fixed sum, which he could afford to lose. He won so steadily that it wasn't long before he was prepared to risk any sum which even the wealthiest or the most reckless of his adversaries would venture to propose.

A story which illustrates capitally Scott's patience in the face of hard luck has been preserved. One night while he was at the card table news was brought to him that his wife, the first Mrs. Scott, had given birth to a girl.

"Ah," he said, "I shall have to double my stakes to make a fortune for this young lady."

But in a few hours he was £8,000 to the bad. Retaining his invariable serenity, he said he was sure of his luck returning, and at 7 a. m. he went home the winner of £15,000. That's the sort of play that went on at White's night after night during the years that John Scott was winning the largest fortune ever accumulated by a gentleman gambler.

Luck and Reputations.

"Nobody gifted with a sense of humor can fail to be diverted by the Puck-like manner in which luck makes and unmakes reputations for business ability," says Will Payne in Everybody's. "Years ago a gentleman named Jennings was an extensive owner of downtown real estate in Chicago. He was the first, I believe, to develop on a large scale the modern system of the ninety-nine year lease, whereby the owner insures to himself and his heirs for a century an absolutely fixed rental, free and clear of all charges. After Mr. Jennings had leased a lot of his lands for ninety-nine years a depression came on. Other people's incomes were curtailed, but his was stable. 'What foresight!' said the town. 'What sagacity!' 'What superb business judgment!' Mr. Jennings' views on the business situation and outlook were eagerly sought. The depression passed. Realty prices advanced immensely. The Jennings lots could have been leased at twice the rental named in the old indenture. The town shook its head sympathetically over poor Mr. Jennings' deplorable shortsightedness."

Woes of a Drummer.

"I'm just a little discouraged with my work," said the tall New York boy who has started out on the road. "I was making my second trip west when I met an old drummer who had been on the road for more than thirty years. He sat with grip between his knees and talked to me.

"'Chuck it, my boy,' he said. 'If there is anything else in the world you can do, do it. Look at my gray hairs. I don't know what it is to have a home. For thirty years I have seen my wife about once in five weeks. I know that I've a wife and children in a flat in New York, but that's all I do know about them. The children have grown up and married, but I have not had time to attend their weddings. My wife has grown gray, too, but she has had the best of it. She has had a home and the children. If there is anything else in the world you can do, my boy,' he repeated, 'quit drumming, and do it.'"

Curious Blunders.

Some remarkable mistakes in memorials have totally escaped notice until it was too late to rectify them. The spurs on the boots of Cromwell's statue at Westminster abbey, London, are the most interesting feature of the monument, although they generally get no attention at all from sightseers. They are worn upside down. In a painted window on the staircase which leads from the floor of Westminster palace to the committee rooms an inscription on a sword wielded by the "Black Prince" has the words "Prince of Wales." Again, in the fresco depicting the embarkation of the pilgrim fathers in the corridor leading from the outer lobby at St. Stephen's to the house of lords the Mayflower is shown to be hoisting the union jack, a flag which did not come into existence until 250 years after the days of the historic Mayflower.

A "Ringers' Jug."

A beer jug in a belfry is happily somewhat of a rarity in these days. At the beginning of the last century, however, people were not so particular. The ringers' jug at Beccles, in Suffolk, holds six gallons, a sufficiency to sustain the ten weary ringers, though the weight of the bells did exceed six tons. The vessel is made of red earthenware and has three handles, one of which is concealed by the neck. It bears the following inscription in quaint spelling:

"When I am fill'd with liquor strong
Each Man drink once and then ding dong.
Drink not too much to Cloud your Knobs
Least you forget to make the Bobbs.

On the reverse side is the maker's name, "Samuel Stringfellow, Potter."—London Strand.

The Scallop.

The scallop can anchor itself as well as any ship. It never fails to drop its anchor on the approach of rough weather. The scallop, lying in its bed of shoal water, foresees a storm in true sailor fashion and at once puts out a tough and elastic little cable from a point near its hinge. This cable it fastens firmly to the nearest rock. It is then secure in the vilest weather. He who wades through scallop haunted shoals as a storm approaches may see the tiny shellfish mooring themselves on all sides with silent hustle.

Men-of-war on Paper.

Each man-of-war is built upon paper before a single plate of steel is forged. Not only are the length and breadth of a ship decided upon, but the naval constructor can tell to an ounce how much water she will displace when her armor and guns are mounted upon her, how many times her propellers will revolve in a minute with a given pressure of steam and how many tons of coal an hour must be consumed to attain a certain rate of speed.—London Graphic.

GOLD BY THE BUSHEL

THE SEARCH FOR GOLD has ever been man's strongest passion. No obstacles have deterred him. Heat and cold, famine and thirst, hardship and exposure alike have failed to conquer the insatiable desire. From the dawn of history, when King Solomon opened up the famous wealth of the mines of Ophir, to the present day, men have sought the yellow metal. Countless lives have been sacrificed, and yet the search goes on.

In the winter of 1900-1901 four miners tottered into the city of Nome, Alaska; their feet and hands black with frostbite; their bodies emaciated almost to skeletons; their eyes sunken. Their dogs had died of starvation and cold; they had abandoned their sleds and provisions; but they staggered under the weight of forty pounds of pure GOLD!

The city buzzed at once with excitement. Where had they found it? To all questions the strangers were dumb. There was one man in Nome, however, who thought he knew a way to locate the new discovery. He had been a friend of the Esquimaux to the North; he spoke their language well; he had relieved their want; and he had spent nearly four years among them. He could talk the "true talk" of these simple natives. That man was ANDREW S. NELSON. Within twelve hours he was speeding North, with a team of six tried dogs and a supply of provisions.

It is needless to recite the hardships he endured in this lonely journey, facing the fierce north wind. Suffice it to say he found an old Esquimau who showed him where the strangers had made their find.

Under the Northern Stars he drove the stakes which now mark the boundaries of NELSON GULCH MINING CLAIMS.

Three Hundred Dollars in Two Hours

Connected with Mr. Andrew S. Nelson were his father, Major William Nelson, U. S. Army, retired, and Dr. G. M. Morris, an English surgeon. When spring opened up these three men began to test their ground. They found it exceedingly rich, but they were troubled to get water. They tried various schemes, but as their money had nearly run out they could work only on a small scale. Once they were lucky in saving some water with a dam after a rain, and Mr. Nelson and Dr. Morris washed out $500.00 in gold in less than two hours. Numerous tests made over the ground showed the top gravel to run a dollar a cubic yard.

At other times and places from $10.00 to $50.00 were secured from single yards of gravel. Nuggets ranging in value from $1.80 to $47.00 each were found. This is an ancient river bed into which, for ages, the waters have been washing and disintegrating the rock which held the gold.

More than $1,000,000 have been taken by other parties from the gravel which was washed from this Company's ground into the stream below, and they have only just begun work. They expect millions more, and their tests justify their expectation. $150,000 were taken from Old Glory Creek, which is one of its bends swung into the edge of our old river.

Favorable Government Report

In the summer of 1903 the United States Geological Survey sent out an exploring party to cover this ground, under Mr. Fred. H. Moffit. This is a part of his report:

"This small gulch (Nelson Gulch), barely three-fourths of a mile long, leads down from a broad, low saddle in the divide between Old Glory and Inmachuck, and is of interest since it is probably an important factor in the origin of the rich ground just below its mouth on Old Glory."

What is Placer Gold?

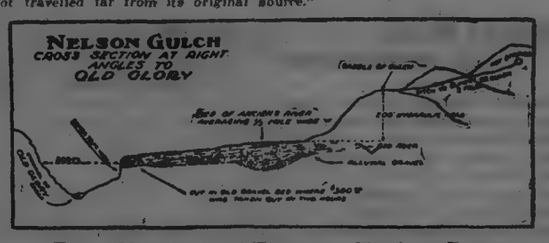
Nowhere on earth have the elements and glaciers worn away the mountains as in Alaska. All the gold in their veins has been carried into river beds, the heavier pieces being deposited nearby, the lighter ones going farther.

Now, it does not take much thought to realize that, as Nelson Gulch is the source of all the gold on the Inmachuck River, the heaviest particles and the greatest amount must be on the Company's ground.

This is further shown by the fact that the gold found there is sharp-cornered and angular. Now, pure gold is very soft, and as it travels down stream it is rubbed against the sand and gravel and the sharp corners worn off. When you find the particles of gold in a river bed are worn and the corners rounded, then you may be sure they have travelled some distance.

The gold in Nelson Gulch is angular and sharp-cornered. Notice what the United States Government Report says on this subject:

"The gold from Nelson Gulch is brighter than that of Old Glory, is rough and angular, and contains considerable quartz, and evidently has not travelled far from its original source."



Three Hundred and Thirty-six Working Days

Although the season for hydaulicing in Alaska is but 140 days, every hour of that 140 days is daylight. For a full month the sun never sets, and during two other months it does not get dark. Therefore, by keeping on three shifts of men, eight hours each, the work does not stop, and we get 336 working days of ten hours each. This is a larger number of hours than the great placer mines of Colorado, Montana or Idaho can work in any one year.

Mr. Andrew S. Nelson is now on the property with a force of men getting everything in readiness for the spring work. We fully expect to have the gold running down our sluice-ways by June.

Gravel Richer as it Goes Down

Everybody knows that in old river beds carrying gold the gravel gets richer as it goes down next to bed rock.

In several places on bed rock this Company's gravel washed at the rate of $50.00 a yard. Of course, it is not all that rich; but suppose we average it at $10.00 a yard; this would make an acre worth $300,000.00!

Railroad, Telegraph and Telephone Lines to the Mines

A railroad is now in operation part way from Nome to Deering, and will be finished through next season. All the above lines will pass very close to this property, and will give us perfect transportation and communication facilities.

During the open season three regular steamers per week between Seattle and Deering, together with the many irregular ones, give us freight rates no greater than those in effect from Kansas City to points in Arizona.

Letter from Major William Nelson, U. S. Army, retired, under date of February 18, 1907:

"Could the public be made to see the property as I know it there would be no trouble in selling stock, for it will prove the best investment anyone could make. Every $100.00 will return at least $5,000.00 to the investor if you can only get it opened up. I feel sure that with thirty days' work you can declare a dividend on the capital."

Our Property

The Company owns fourteen claims of twenty acres each, free and clear of all encumorances, on the gravel terrace of Nelson Gulch, near the head of the Inmachuck River, Seward Peninsula, Alaska, nearly due north of Nome. Since January 1st three hundred acres more have been added to the Company's holdings.

Mr. J. W. Pickard, a mining engineer of high standing, has been engaged since the spring of 1900 in making tests of the gold-bearing gravels of Seward Peninsula. He represents there a New York Syndicate, which has, through him, secured large holdings. He says of these deposits: "If I were to tell you the values that exist under the tundra (species of heavy bunch grass), you would hardly believe what I tell you. The values are almost beyond computation. I found gravel averaging $4.87 to the cubic yard in one place; in another hole it averaged $9.64; in another $6.10; another showed an average value of $5.00; still another $12.41. To figure out the values in an acre of such gravel produces figures so prodigious as to literally stagger one."

"Mr. W. H. Bond, Paul Denhart and P. T. Nixon have a claim whose pay streak yielded all the way from 30 cents to $3.50 per pan, or $576.00 per yard. A single shift has taken out as much as $35,000.00, and $42,000.00 have been secured in one day's sluicing. Without exaggeration gold by the bushel is being washed from these gravels. The stream of gold constantly pouring into Nome attests this fact, and justifies the prediction of those best informed regarding the conditions existing there, which is that 'These gravel benches with their wealth of golden deposits will continue to be found on Seward Peninsula after the present generation of miners has been gathered to their fathers; a golden stream will still be pouring from the creeks, hills and tundra fifty years hence, if the promise of the future be but half fulfilled.'"

Mr. Rex Beach, in The Saturday Evening Post of January 5th, 1907, gives numerous instances of enormous strikes on Seward Peninsula—$13,000.00 in one day! $3,080,000.00 taken from Little Creek in one winter. Two men, in a few weeks, working under difficulties with the crudest machinery, took out $410,000.00.

Mr. Beach is entirely disinterested, being merely a writer and correspondent of The Post.

Inexhaustable Water Supply and only 3 miles of ditch

NEARBY PROPERTIES AMAZINGLY RICH.

Eighty per cent. of the world's gold has been taken from beds of old streams.

One company is building a ditch 52 miles long to bring water from a lake with which to wash the gravel that has been carried from Nelson Gulch down the Inmachuck River. If these washings justify the enormous expense of this ditch, and if $1,000,000.00 have already been secured from them with the crudest methods, how many millions will this property yield?

OUR WATER FACILITIES PERFECT.

An enormous, unfailing hot spring, three miles away, will furnish this Company water enough to handle 5,000 cubic yards of gravel per 24 hours at a cost of less than one cent per yard. Its claims lie close up to the contact between the lime and schist, where all of this gold originates. It is at the fountain-head, and others get only what is washed further on. Its nuggets have sharp points and edges; those found further beyond are worn smooth by the friction of their journey.

Placer Mining the Cheapest

Placer mining is the cheapest and oldest way to mine for gold. We estimate that it will cost us only half of one cent to wash a cubic yard.

Why We Sell Stock

Money is needed to bring water from the hot springs and to provide hydraulic apparatus.

The Board of Directors of Nelson Gulch Mining Company have allotted 900,000 shares of the Treasury stock to be sold at ten cents per share. When this allotment shall have been sold the price of the stock will positively be advanced to 25 cents per share; or, what is more likely, will be withdrawn from the market.

Our gravel beds average 18 feet in thickness. At a dollar a cubic yard this would make $30,000.00 per acre, or over $8,000,000.00 for the entire property. This is certainly an underestimate, because bed-rock gravel will run far higher. We are capitalized at $3,000,000.00, but with ten-cent stock this means a valuation of only $300,000.00 on a property which must certainly run away up in the millions. This is another way of looking at the great value of this investment to you.

Stock Now 10 Cents a Share

Reserve Before the Advance

Write today and reserve your shares at ten cents a share. The next advance will be to 25 cents.

Better still, wire your reservation. There is only a certain allotment for sale; when that is gone the stock is off the market. It is first come, first served.

Baseball Affairs Are Booming

Now that the crows caw in the morning and the oldest citizens swears to having seen robins (not to mention encountering several "swallows") baseball is once more in the public's mind. It now looks as though the Charlotte Street Guild, will have a strong team, and make an effort to land the honors again. St. Paul's expect to have a stronger team than last year. Last year's George street team will be known as the Strathcona this summer, and will undoubtedly make the others go a few.

It is understood that the T.A.S. will make applications to the league to enter a team to be known as the Shamrocks.

In all probability the Y.M.C.A. will also make application to the league to enter a team.

There is also some talk regarding the organization of a junior league, the players in which would have to be under thirteen years of age, or some age limit, settled by mutual understanding.

King Edward School Heating

Messrs. McGregor & Reid have about completed their contract for heating the King Edward school. The steam has been turned on and the building heated for several weeks, but there was some minor work in connection with the installation of the heating and plumbing system that is being done at present.

An Amusement Park

Mr. W. C. Genno, the well-known skating expert, is in town looking over the ground with a view to the establishment of an amusement park and roller rink. Mr. Genno has had considerable experience in this business, and should he come to terms with the parties who are mainly interested, the success of the enterprise will be assured.

J. E. A. Fitzgerald Buys a Tug

Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald, of this city, has purchased the tug "Ajax" from the Trent Valley Navigation Company, of which Mr. Boyd of Bobcaygeon is manager. The Ajax is a splendid boat, and well adapted to the requirements of the new proprietor. The boat will be used by Mr. Fitzgerald to bring wood from the upper lakes. This necessitates a large amount of tugging and it is for this work that he will use the tug he has just purchased.

Big Farmers' Picnic

Arrangements have been about completed for a big farmers' excursion and picnic to Idyl Wild early in June. Steamers will leave all points on Rice Lake (including Hastings and Trent Bridge on the river Trent) and Otonabee river, for the picnic grounds, returning in the evening. The new steamer will handle this end of the business, leaving Peterborough about 8.30 a.m. A number of good speakers will be invited to attend, who will deliver short addresses at Idyl Wild. First-class music will be provided for dancing.

New Lakefield G.T.R. Train

The Grand Trunk Railway with their proverbial hustling methods, have decided to place an extra train on the Peterborough-Lakefield line for the tourist season next summer. The train will be placed in service to enable Toronto men, summering at the lakes to reach Toronto in time for work in the morning. It is proposed to have the extra train leave Peterborough in the morning in time to depart from Lakefield at 7.45 o'clock. This would land the passengers in Peterborough at 8.15, and they would be in time to eat of the morning train for Toronto.

Bat Leahy Loses a Horse

Bat Leahy of Douro, a well-known local eccentric is one horse to the debit side of his ledger. It seems that Bat drove his fine team down to the Peterborough Cereal Company's mill on Simcoe street, when one of the horses got frightened by something and the team ran away. One of the horses fell into the 16 feet deep excavation made by the Gas Company, just across the street, and in its fall broke a water pipe that ran across the excavation. Whilst the gas house employes and others, who saw the runaway, did all they could to get the horse out it succumbed, whether from drowning or from injuries received in its fall, the deponent sayeth not.

Anglican Parson on Greek Church

Rev. C. H. Brooks, of Grafton, in St. John's church during the Lenten services on Wednesday night preached a most eloquent and convincing sermon. The rev. gentleman said that there were three branches of the Catholic Church, the Anglican, the Greek and the Roman churches, to place them alphabetically. The Greek Church has several national divisions, one in Greece, one in Turkey and one in Asia Minor and Russia. There are 80,000,000 adherents of this church in Russia alone. The Greek Church is the oldest branch, dating from Jerusalem. In the Greek Church there was no such thing as the Immaculate Conception or papal infallibility. The speaker said that the Church of England was much closer to the Greek Church doctrine than to the Roman Church.

Work Progressing on New Steamer

Work is being rapidly pushed on the fine new steamer being constructed on the Otonabee Navigation Company's property in the East Ward. Ship-Carpenter Hickey yesterday stated that the hull of this the finest steamer on the Trent Valley Canal System, is the best he has ever seen, being of oak and rock-elm. The new boat will be 120 feet in length with 24 foot beam, or some 20 feet longer than the old "City of Peterborough. Neither trouble nor expense is being saved to have this boat perfect in every respect.

Bylaw Will be Strictly Enforced

Whilst as a rule anonymous letters to the local police force receive no attention, for obvious reasons, yesterday the chief received a letter that is worthy possibly of repetition. The letter was as follows;

Chief of Police, City.

Dear Sir,—Is it fair that while a bylaw is in effect in this city to close the several places of business at six o'clock, a few are allowed to remain open for business until nine and sometimes ten o'clock every night, while the rest of us, close our places at the hour called for in the bylaw. If these places are allowed this privilege, why the rest of us are bound to follow.

Remaining yours,

A MERCHANT.

The truth of the matter is that there is no bylaw preventing merchants from doing so, but there is one preventing said merchants from keeping open after seven o'clock; and if the writer will acquaint the chief with the names of any law-breakers, Chief Ramsel will get after them with what President Roosevelt calls "The big stick."

DOCTORS MISTAKES

Are said often to be buried six feet under ground. But many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they present alike to themselves and their easy-going or overbusy doctor, separate diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some uterine disease. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, keeps up his treatment until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better by reason of the wrong treatment, but probably worse. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

Cheap Groceries for Sale Today

In order to obtain permanent premises, China Hall has purchased the large and well assorted stock of groceries, etc., of Mr. A. Rountree, No. 394 George street. This stock, which is one of the finest grocery stocks in Peterborough, will, together with the balance of the China Hall stock, be thrown on the market at cost price, commencing March 3 and continuing until both stocks are entirely disposed of, but no longer than the 15th of April, after which date the store will be re-fitted, and opened about May 1, with an entirely new stock of crockery, china, glassware, cut-glass, plated ware, fine china ornaments, etc. China Hall, after that date, will be beyond a doubt one of the finest and most complete china stores in Canada. The China Hall Company.

Signalling Work Proceeding Well

The signalling class at the drill hall is attracting much attention and good attention from members of Peterborough's vigilant corps, the 57th Peterborough Rangers.

Lieut. Stroud and Sergt. Crowley, are instructing the members of the class in the signal alphabet, and most satisfactory progress is being made. Learning the alphabet is the first work taken up in the course. The officers of the regiment are greatly pleased with the attendance and interest shown as also are the instructors. The class met again last night.

Dr. Neal Buys New House

Dr. Neal has purchased the handsome residence of Mr. R. H. Bradburn at the corner of Stewart and Charlotte streets, and will take possession in the near future. The house is one of the handsomest dwellings in the city.

Market is Stronger Canadians Optimistic

Feverish Tendencies Still Show, But It is Felt That Canadian Securities Will Rally Readily

Toronto, March 16.—The [illegible] and reassured by the news which they receive at these institutions.

NO FURTHER SLUMP.

No further slump in New York stocks seems to be expected. In fact, as one broker said, "things must become better, for they could hardly get worse." A general rally yesterday morning supported the opinion that the crisis was past, for the time at least.

No failures are reported in Toronto, although there are the usual and inevitable rumors as to the way in which local firms have suffered. New York holdings have been more than cut in half during the year, so far as Canada is concerned. Cobalters, who made money easily, have invested heavily in New York stocks in the hope of becoming millionaires in a moment. Some of these have been hard hit by the heavy slump.

The most reassuring bit of gossip of the morning came from London, where it was said the Rothschilds were in the market buying all the stocks they could get at these bargain prices. Whether anyone by the name of Rothschild saw a stock-ticker all day or not, the rumor served its purpose, or at least it represented the reaction from Thursday's pessimism. Loosely, too, a learned Jewish rabbi might have been observed in one of the brokers' offices, and this might be taken as strengthening the gossip from London. The Gentile has a great respect for the bargain-scenting proclivities of the Hebrew race, a respect which is amply justified by the position of that race in Wall street, Downing St., and all the other money markets of the world.

Some liquidation in Canadian securities will probably follow the present state of the market.

The Same Old Bone of Contention

Accident to the Taurida Palace, St. Petersburg

Ceiling Broke Down Under Extra Weight of New Decorations—Terrible Catastrophe if Parliament Had Been in Session.

St. Petersburg, March 16.—The ceiling of the hall in the Taurida Palace, where the Lower House of Parliament meets, collapsed at six o'clock yesterday morning, and caused widespread wreckage among the seats below.

Though many rumors were circulated to the effect that the falling of the ceiling was the result of a plot to enterfere with the meeting of parliament, its purely accidental character was clearly established. The nails and other fastenings binding the ceiling to the rafters had not been renewed since the time of Catherine II., and broke under the extra weight of the new decorations. The aggregate weight of the ceiling material was so great that in its fall it twisted the massive bronze electroliers in such a way as to indicate that a terrible catastrophe would have resulted had the fall occurred during the session of the house.

President Golovin ordered chairs to be placed in the rotunda, and the session commenced with scarcely half an hour's delay.

After a brief session an indefinite adjournment was taken because of the lack of proper facilities.

SHOT ONE ANOTHER OVER A BIRD

Four Men Went Hunting Off Coast of Labrador.

ALL THREE NAMED DYSON

Although it Occurred Last Fall No Arrests Have Yet Been Made.

Sydney, N.S., March 16. —Advices received at Brigus, Nfld., from Battteau, Northern Labrador, last week, conveyed intelligence of a terrible crime which occurred in that remote country some time last fall. It is stated that as yet no effort has been or could be made to punish the criminals.

It appears that four men, all named Dyson were out shooting in two boats. A man from each boat fired simultaneously at a bird, and the nearest boat rowed alongside to pick it up. One of the Dysons took the bird into his punt, but no sooner had he done so than he was shot dead by the man who fired at the bird from the other boat. This enraged the chum of the Dyson who was shot, and, taking aim, he killed the murderer. The boatmate of the second Dyson retaliated by shooting Dyson No. 3, and then rowed to land.

The awful tragedy must have happened in November last, as the place was frozen up later, and it would be impossible for the men to be shooting in boats, and in December they would be gone trapping.

Battteau is about 70 miles from Battle Harbor, and it is evident the news came from there.

The only justice of the peace on the Labrador coast is Mr. Fraser at Bagotist, about 125 miles from the scene, who, no doubt, has since heard of the affair.

The News—No Pure Drug Cough Cure Laws would be needed, if all Cough Cures were like Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure is—and has been for 20 years. The National Law now requires that if any poisons enter into a cough mixture, it must be printed on the label or package. For this reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison-marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and see. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Simply refuse to accept any other. Ten Square Miles of Pittsburg is Flooded

Water Reached 37 Feet Burying the Gauge---Humane Society Stops Use of Horses--- Much Damage Done.

Pittsburg, March 16.—The crest of the flood passed Pittsburg this morning at six o'clock, when 37 feet was recorded at the Market street wharf. The authenticity of this stage, however, is not known, as the gauge was buried under water that night long before midnight.

At eight o'clock the weather bureau announced that the rivers had begun to fall, although in the flooded districts of both Allegheny and Pittsburg there is no perceptible change of conditions. The fears for the bridges at 16th and 9th streets, where Associated Press observers were driven from their posts at an early hour today, were dispelled at daylight.

The crest of the flood moved out slowly and did not do the damage that was expected.

PITTSBURGERS ARE AMAZED.

Pittsburgers today are amazed at the immensity of the flood in the Monongahela, Allegheny, and Ohio rivers, which has submerged ten square miles in the downtown section of the city. After reaching the highest stage ever known, which was 37 feet at Market street, the water is now slowly receding.

Enormous damage to industries has been caused. Over 100,000 persons have been temporarily thrown out of employment.

Every transportation company is crippled.

TAKE SKIFFS TO BUSINESS.

Skiffs are carrying hundreds of persons to their places of business.

The old-fashioned wagons and horses as conveyances, which did inestimable service yesterday, was discontinued owing to protests by the Humane Society.

Twenty fatalities have occurred in Allegheny county directly due to high water.

Four massive bridges, the Sixteenth, Ninth, Seventh, and Sixth street structures, were threatened with destruction owing to heavy ice gorges which came down the Allegheny river.

LOSS BY FLAMES $200,000.

Pittsburg, March 16.—Four business houses and fifteen residences have been burned to the ground in the Mount Washington district, across the Monongahela river. Two attempts were made to stop the flames by dynamiting adjacent buildings, but the wreckage caught fire. No water is available and the flames are being fought with chemicals and a bucket brigade. Several of the residents are tenements.

The fire practically burned itself out at noon. Insurance men estimate the loss at $200,000.

Twenty-five business houses and dwellings were destroyed or badly damaged.

TO BUILD IN MONTREAL

LAKEFIELD CEMENT CO. MAKE GOOD.

Wonderful Growth of the Portland Cement Business in Canada.

We are pleased to note that the Lakefield Portland Cement Co., of our northern suburb has met with such success that the company has decided to erect a branch factory in Montreal.

The company has placed an order for its electrical equipment with the Canadian General Electric Company, comprising three 1,300 h.p. transformers, two 2,000 h.p. transformers, one 20 h.p. motor, twelve 100 h.p. motors, eleven 75 h.p. motors, three 50 h.p. motors and three 10 h.p. motors, all complete with the necessary switchboard and spiked connexions.

One feature that has contributed to the Lakefield Company's success, apart from the excellence of their products, is the adoption of the most modern class of machinery and consequent cheapness of manufacture.

The manufacture of Portland cement in Canada practically dates from the year 1891, when operations were begun at Marlbank, Hastings county, and also at Shallow Lake, Grey county. The output of these two establishments for the first year amounted to only 2,033 barrels. In the following year the production was increased to 20,247 barrels. In 1893 it amounted to 31,924 barrels, and so on. In 1901 four factories were making Portland cement, their total output amounting to 350,660 barrels. By the following year the number of establishments had increased to eight, with an actual production of 752,899 barrels. In 1903 there were nine plants in operation with an output of 895,260 barrels, while in 1904 cement was made at no less than eleven establishments to the extent of 880,871 barrels.

Since that date factories have been started at Hull, Que.; Belleville, Ont.; Sydney, C.B.; Waterous, Ont.; Morden, Man.; Calgary, Alberta and Vancouver, B.C., giving the cement establishments of Canada a combined annual capacity of at least 3,950,000 barrels, estimating 300 working days to the year.

Mrs. William Miller's Funeral on Monday

The death occurred on Thursday afternoon of Mrs. Wm. Miller at her residence, Dublin street, after a short illness. Her death was due to the effects of la grippe.

The deceased was born in Port Hope seventy years ago. She was married to her surviving husband 50 years ago in Port Hope. They removed to this city fifteen years ago, after residing many years in Omemee, and have lived here ever since. The late Mrs. Miller was a member of the George street Methodist church.

Besides her husband four sons are left to mourn her loss, viz., Wm. L., of Bangor, Maine; G. M., of Toronto; Stephen M., of Arizona, and Walter L., of Chicago, Ill. One brother and two sisters also survive her. They are John F. Lonsdale, of New York city, and Mrs. J. W. Wallis, of Port Hope, and Mrs. Fennoff, of Oshawa.

The funeral will take place on Monday morning to the 11.45 G.T.R. train to Port Hope, where interment will be made.

Mr. Richard Foster Has Passed Away

In this city few people had a larger circle of friends and acquaintances than Richard Foster, who, without meaning the least disrespect, was popularly known as "Dick." Mr. Foster passed away at two o'clock yesterday afternoon, after a long illness. Mr. Foster, as is known to a large majority of our citizens, carried on a large express business. Prior to going into this line of business, Mr. Foster was employed at the G.T.R. station. The late Mr. Foster had been ill since October with cancer. He was 60 years of age and was born in Port Hope. For over twenty years he had resided in this city. In 1873 he was married to Agnes Telford in Port Hope, who survives him. The deceased was a member of All Saints' church. In politics he was a staunch Conservative.

Besides his wife, one son, John, at home, is left to mourn his loss. Mr. Thos. Foster, of this city is a brother of deceased and Mrs. Jas. Young of Toronto, and Mrs. G. Stevens, of Barrie, are sisters.

The late Mr. Foster was a member of the Ancient Order of Foresters and the Woodmen of the World.

The funeral will take place Sunday afternoon at three o'clock from the family residence, 250 Charlotte street, to the Little Lake cemetery.

East Ward School Was Burglarized

Yesterday morning it was ascertained that during Thursday night the East Ward Public school had been burglarized, and between five and ten dollars of the children's fees stolen.

Yesterday morning about 9 o'clock when Caretaker Fred Norris went to the building to attend to the furnace, he was surprised to see the door leading into Principal Kelly's room standing open. Mr. Norris then found that the drawer in the principal's desk had been pried open. From the desk to one of the windows there were strewn burnt matches. The thief had got in through a window the lock of which was broken.

The caretaker found burnt matches everywhere. The teachers' desks had all been opened, and everything of value abstracted. There was no money in Mr. Kelly's desk, but some in the other desks. The scholars had lately paid their fees, and about ten dollars was stolen. Mr. Kelly informed Inspector Walker, who notified the police. The thief was evidently well acquainted with the school.

It is now up to the local police to solve so simple a conundrum as to who got the coin.

Mayor McWilliams on Sidewalk Cleaning

Mayor McWilliams is anxious that the public knows his position on the snow cleaning bylaw. The mayor is endeavoring to enforce the bylaw, and has issued instrict instructions to the police.

His Worship instructed the chief to start in the business section of the city from Charlotte street to Brock street on George street. If no attention were paid to the order the chief was to bring before the magistrate all who had failed to clean their walks after the second warning.

—Mr. Fred Darcy's beautiful police touring car, "Red Demon," arrived yesterday afternoon and will be unloaded this morning.

ON "THE ROAD"

And It's Really Lots of Fun

An Ind. woman solved the food question with good sounding reasoning. She says:

"For almost ten years I suffered from poor health, which was plainly the result of improper food.

"I was always drowsy, had headache, stomach trouble, was getting a sallow complexion—in short was simply miserable.

"Yet I did not realize the real cause of my trouble until recently. I have given Grape-Nuts and the exercises in the little book, The Road to Wellville, (which I found in the pkg.) a thorough trial, and they have worked wonders for me.

"I noticed a change from the beginning. My headache disappeared and at the end of the first week my stomach did not trouble me so much.

"Now, in less than a month, my nerves are strong and I begin to have some ambition to do things. I have gained six pounds and feel full of life.

"Grape-Nuts food, with cream, makes a delicious dish and I never grow tired of it. I consider "The Road to Wellville" one of the most valuable books ever printed, for I owe my present good health to it and Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. "There's a reason."

Dr. Stockton Dead

Member for St. John Passed Away in Ottawa Hospital.

Ottawa, March 16.—Members of the House of Commons were shocked yesterday morning to hear that Dr. A. A. Stockton, the junior member for St. John, N.B., who had been ill in the Water street hospital for over four weeks, had passed away early yesterday morning. This makes the fourth death among the members this session, a like number of Senators having passed away. Dr. Stockton was laid low by an attack of kidney trouble, but there is every reason to believe that he would have recovered had he not, a few days ago, been attacked by pleurisy in an acute form.

Dr. Stockton's death is profoundly regretted in all circles. He was an able debater, some claim the best in the House, and a courteous gentleman of the old school. His last speech in the House was a protest against the publication in a local paper of the details of Mrs. Thaw's evidence the first day she was on the stand. He pleaded eloquently for a higher moral tone in Canada.

The remains will be sent to St. John for interment. Mrs. Stockton is now en route to Ottawa, and will accompany them eastward. A daughter was with Dr. Stockton when he died. A large parliamentary delegation will attend the funeral.

Two Negroes Lynched

Monroe, La., March 16.—Feint Williams and Henry Gardner, two young negroes, were taken from the city jail about one o'clock yesterday morning and hanged by a party of about 50 men. Both negroes confessed to having with a third negroe shot and robbed two Italians on Monday night. Gardner also confessed to having entered the room of Miss Jessie Dumpus about three o'clock Tuesday morning.

SPORTING TOPICS

HOCKEY.

The Grit bunch played a tie game at Lindsay with the Post players of Sougogville, before some 200 lovers of Canada's great winter game. The score was 4—4.

The Lindsay Midgets, who were to have played the Strathcona here last night in the Brock street rink, did not show up. The Midgets could not get a team together and had to cancel the match. They did however play in Whitby on Wednesday night.

Two Women Arrested

Toronto, March 16.—Bertha Wilson and Nannie Sherman, the two women arrested on vagrancy charges Thursday, were remanded for a week by Magistrate Denison yesterday, and bail was fixed at $1000 each, the amounts being divided into two sureties if they could get them.

The police allege that they are connected with a band of three male crooks, and specific charges will not be laid against them until the arrests of the three are made.

A gambling device and a complete outfit of opium-smoking utensils were seized when the women were arrested. The police are mysterious over the arrests and will not even say where the women lived.

MUTUAL LIFE OF CANADA

GREAT PROGRESS MAKE DURING 1906.

Directorate and Officers Have Reason for Congratulation.

The Mutual Life Company, with head offices in Waterloo, Ont., on December 31st last, held their annual shareholders meeting.

A glance over the statement contained in other columns of this issue must be most encouraging both to shareholders and policyholders, as during 1906 the company had a most successful business, and display a most conservative zeal for protection of policyholders whilst making strenuous and progressive strides in the matter of new business.

During the past year the company wrote $5,509,547 of new business, which covered 9,026 new policies, to which should be added 43 revived policies for $52,092. A feature worth recognition is that all this business was transacted in the Dominion, with the exception of $46,000 written in Newfoundland. The total policies now in force amount to $46,917,468. During the year $679,663 was paid to policyholders. The cash assets of the company, amounting to $9,900,345 are all of high class, such as mortgages, bonds and debentures, etc.

Rev. Canon Davidson is Now a Major

In the last issued orders of the militia headquarters at Ottawa, several important changes are noted concerning our gallant 57th Regiment. The orders read as follows:

57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers;—To be Major, Captain E. B. Clegg, vice Major L. M. Hayes, who is permitted to resign his commission, 25th January, 1907.

To be Paymaster, with honorary rank of Major, under the provisions of paragraphs 46 and 47, King's Regulations and orders for the Militia, 1904, Louis Martin Hayes, esquire, vice Paymaster and honorary Major R. M. Dennistoun, who is permitted to retire, retaining rank, 25th January, 1907.

Chaplain and Honorary Captain the Reverend J. C. Davidson is granted the honorary rank of Major, under the provisions of paragraph 23, King's Regulations and orders for the Militia, 1904, 25th January, 1907.

INTEMPERATE HABITS INCREASE THE LIABILITY TO CONSUMPTION

The susceptibility of people to tuberculosis is just about trebled by intemperate habits. This is the estimate of scientific men.

The disease is not caught as you catch scarlet fever or smallpox, but by germs from dried sputum getting into the lungs. If our bodies are strong and healthy the germs are resisted successfully by the operation of Nature; if weakened and depleted, the germ will make headway, and death is inevitable, unless proper methods of cure are followed. Temperance lecturers could well make use of these facts.

Neglected colds are also a prolific source of consumption, as they leave the lungs in a peculiarly receptive condition for the tubercular germs. A simple remedy, which is said to break up a cold in twenty-four hours, and cure any cough that is curable, can be obtained from any good prescription druggist at small cost: Take one-half ounce Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), two ounces of Glycerine and eight ounces of good Whisky. Shake well and take in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

To avoid substitution, it is best to purchase the ingredients and prepare the mixture yourself. The Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) should be purchased in the original half-ounce vials, which are securely sealed in a round wooden case, with engraved wrapper, with the name—Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Windsor, Ontario—plainly printed thereon. There are many rank imitations of Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), which are put out under similar names and style of package. Never accept these as a substitute for the Pure Virgin Oil of Pine, as they will invariably produce nausea and never effect the desired result.

ROYAL Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Healthful cream of tartar, derived solely from grapes, refined to absolute purity, is the active principle of every pound of Royal Baking Powder.

Hence it is that Royal Baking Powder renders the food remarkable both for its fine flavor and healthfulness.

No alum, no phosphate—which are the principal elements of the so-called cheap baking powders—and which are derived from bones, rock and sulphuric acid.

IMPROVE YOUR COMPLEXION

Give Up Cosmetics And Seek The Cause of Your Bad Color.

When it's so easy to bring back the bloom of youth, to remove the blemishes and fill the hollows, isn't it foolish to plaster on cosmetics?

Sallowed skin and fallen in cheeks are produced by disorders of the alimentary canal.

Remove the cause—correct the condition that keeps you from looking as you ought. Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills and very soon you'll have a complexion to be proud of.

Just imagine how much happier you will feel when those pimples and murky look have gone.

Dainty looks came to Miss Vrooman, a well known resident of Belfast, from using Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I used to look so yellow I thought it might be jaundice. There was simply no color in my cheeks at all. Today my skin is clear and never gets that murky, dull appearance, it had before. Dr. Hamilton's Pills have also given me a good appetite and improved my general health also."

Not only the complexion, but every organ of the body is strengthened, cleansed and made healthy by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Buoyancy, vim and a feeling of vigor invariably follow their use. Sold in yellow boxes by all dealers; 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

AN EDUCATIONAL EXPERIMENT

Although not definitely announced, yet it is understood that the Ontario Government will at the present session bring down a measure inaugurating an important experiment in the teaching of agriculture, says The Farming World. The scheme is said to embody the co-operation of the trustees of county high schools, the Department of Education and the Department of Agriculture. It provides a grant for each high school that will establish as one of its regular classes a class in agriculture, and will agree to support a teacher recommended by the Agricultural Department. The plan provides for plots adjacent to the school, which will be used for actual and practical experiments, the material for which will be supplied by the Ontario Agricultural College. The teachers to be selected for the work will be men who have taken high standing at the Ontario Agricultural College, and are qualified in other ways for the work. Several such graduates are now available for such work, and it is proposed to begin in four or five schools as soon as possible by way of experiment. The time of the teachers, when not wholly taken up with this work, will be available for assisting and encouraging nature study in the rural schools.

While it is, perhaps, too early to comment on the proposed legislation, the general outline, as stated above, gives promise of something more aggressive and advanced in the way of agricultural education than anything we have yet had in this country. Agricultural education, to be effective and lasting, should begin in the rural schools, but the average rural school teacher has neither been trained nor educated to teach it effectively. This new proposition is evidently intended to provide for this deficiency. We shall, however, be able to discuss the scheme more fully and intelligently when the measure is brought down in the Legislature.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Dr. Robert Bell, in "Medical Times," says: That cancer is nature's protest against over-indulgence of the appetite and the persistent neglect or disobedience to those hygienic laws which she has enacted becomes more evident the longer one pursues the study of this dreadful scourge.

During the last six months the Garstang and Knott End (Lancashire) Railway, the smallest line in England, has earned a net revenue of £464. The half-yearly meeting of the proprietors, summoned lately at Garstang, was attended by one person, the secretary. Here is a chance for E. H. Harriman to get his bond work in.

Mr. Balfour has got out of touch with the young national party in London as well as with his old electorate. Owing partly to accident, partly to the defects of his virtue, his splendid intellectual powers and force of character are at present not "pulling their weight." The henchman, whom Mr. Balfour's charm attracts to himself in too great force, spend their time in blanketing him from contact with the vulgar world, and regard the most loyal criticism as a sort of blasphemy.

Children's Lips Sealed with Sticking Plaster

Lynn, Mass., March 15.—The School Committee met yesterday, and listened to serious charges against supervisory teachers in the Eastern Ave. Training School. It was openly charged that Normal school graduates under supervision were found guilty of sealing the children's lips with sticking plaster, placing stockings over their mouths and applying green soap as a remedy for laughing.

About three hundred indignant fathers and mothers were present to press the charges of abuse of pupils.

Irving Williams, fifteen, declared a sticking plaster was placed tightly over his lips by a teacher, who wet it with her own lips, and when taking it off cut it with a pair of scissors and picked the smaller pieces off with her finger nails.

Clarence M. Strickland, fourteen, was punished by use of a black stocking. Lustened tightly over his mouth. This caused much difficulty in breathing. The same stocking was used on each pupil.

William O'Donnell, eleven, did not answer a question to the satisfaction of his teacher and was taken into the dressing room, seized and shaken, after which he was thrown on a sofa and sat upon. The teacher then forced half a cake of green soap into his mouth.

Helen Thompson, thirteen, had her arms tied behind her, her feet tied to the desk and her head fastened to the desk by rags.

Bride of Two Weeks Committed Suicide

Fredericton, N.B., March 15.—Mrs. R. L. Black, of this city, a bride of a fortnight, committed suicide yesterday by drinking carbolic acid. Her husband is a dry goods merchant here, and she herself was prominent in social church circles.

This tragedy is the end of a sad and unfortunate love affair. For eight years Black and Miss Minnie Blackmer were betrothed, and a few months ago the engagement was broken by Black. Miss Blackmer had brothers, and when they learned the state of affairs they forced Black to marry her. The ceremony was quietly performed a couple of weeks ago, but the disgrace of her situation had so preyed upon the young woman's mind that twice she tried to kill herself. Her body was found lying across that of her infant, which she apparently had tried to smother.

NEW YORK BY NIGHT.

The Spectacle of Its Lights From Rivers and Harbor.

By whatever route you reach or leave Manhattan Island in the evening the river lights are beautiful. On the North river the spectacle varies according to the hour and season, for the downtown lights in Manhattan are more numerous when the days are short and the tenants of the great office buildings have to light up to finish their day's work. Across from the lower Jersey ferries late in the afternoon of a winter day glow and sparkle the great company of tall shafts grouped against the sky, each one pierced to the top with regular rows of shining windows. A memorable sight they make, those shafts and huge blocks of gleaming holes, reaching far above their neighbors that come between them and the river. There is much in that spectacle to recompense a tired man for being a commuter, and nowhere else on earth is there the like of it.

And, besides the tall shafts and the intervening lower lights and the glow of the streets that run to the river and border it, there are all the river lights—the ferryboats, with their long rows of bright windows, hurrying on their various courses; the sound steamers going out, other steamers coming in; all manner of lights more sober on all manner of shipping; the street glare and the ferry house and wharf lights ashore, and, higher up, here and there the obtrusive and commercial but none the less radiant advertising signs.

The downtown office building lights go out early, most of them, but up the river some of the tall uptown hotels continue, all the evening and in spite of curtained windows, to be lighthouses.

On the East river, besides the city lights and the river lights, are the high, curving bridges, very striking and beautiful, with their unobstructed outlines marked by the glow of the electric bulbs.

There is poetry in these river lights, bordered and framed by the darkening water and reflected in it.—E. S. Martin in Harper's.

Impertinent.

Old Doctor—What are those white objects I see in the distance, my dear? Miss Pert—Those are signs advertising your profession, sir. Old Doctor—Ah, I thought they might be tombstones Miss Pert—So they are.

EX-MAYOR CRUMBO RECOMMENDS PE-RU-NA.

"My Endorsement of Pe-ru-na is Based On Its Merits."
—Ed. Crumbo.

ED. CRUMBO, Ex-Mayor of New Albany, Ind., writes from 511 E. Oak street:

"My endorsement of Peruna is based on its merits.

"If a man is sick he looks anxiously for something which will cure him, and Peruna will do the work.

"I know that it will cure catarrh of the head or stomach, indigestion, headache and any weary or sick feeling.

"It is bound to help anyone, if used according to directions.

"I also know dozens of men who speak in the highest terms of Peruna and have yet to hear of anyone being disappointed in it."

Mr. Crumbo, in a later letter, dated Aug. 25, 1904, says:

"My health is good, at present, but if I should have to take any more medicine I will fall back on Peruna."

President Roosevelt Won't Run Again

Los Angeles, March 15.—In an interview here yesterday Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, said:

"President Roosevelt will not run for president again, no matter what pressure is brought to bear on him. The principles which Roosevelt stands for are greater than the man. The Republican party must support these principles, no matter who its standard-bearer may be at the next election.

"With Mr. Root as president and Mr. Taft, chief justice of the supreme court (conditions would be pretty nearly ideal. But I hardly look for such a combination to succeed.

History as She Is Wrote.

Agnes Deans Cameron thinks with an old master of Harrow that the schoolmaster should not allow his boys to wear him out before his time, but should find in their quaint turns of thought and unconscious humor that which should keep him always young. She quotes some extracts from history examination papers which ought not to cause a teacher to turn gray. Here are some of them:

"Henry VIII. was a frequent widower, conceited, cunning, cruel and corpulent. He burned the Pope's bull in effigy, beheaded his best friend, made himself Defender of the Faith by a Latin law, and had inordinate ambition and an ulcer in his leg. Henry sternly denied the validity of the proud Pope of Roam, and at last worn out by an infernal discord died more in sorrow than in anger."

"The conquest of Ireland was begun in 1170, and is still going on." "The United Empire Loyalists were fought with future." "Isaac Walton was such a good fisherman that he was called 'the judicious Hooker.'"

Most Decidedly.

"Do you know that one man owns all the hand organs in town?"

"That's a grinding monopoly."

What Breathing Accounts To.

In each respiration an average adult inhales one pint of air. A man respires sixteen to twenty times a minute, and a young child about twenty-five to thirty-five times. While in a standing posture the number of respirations is greater than when lying down. A man takes only thirteen breaths of air to the minute while reclining. The superficial surface of the lungs is 200 square yards. The amount of air inspired by an adult in twenty-four hours is about 10,000 quarts. The least amount of air needed by an adult in one hour is 580 quarts. The heart sends through the lungs 5,000 gallons of blood daily.

A Diplomat.

Mrs. Chubber—My dear, Mrs. Highup has had her portrait painted by a celebrated artist, and I haven't a thing but a common, ordinary, everyday photograph to show. Husband (a wise man)—The idea of advertising to the world that her complexion is so bad that it won't stand the camera! Mrs. Climber—Well, that's true.

She Was Careful.

Spats—That old maid, Miss Van Shelf, is the most careful and methodical boarding mistress I have ever had disturbing my den. Socratoots—Yes; I can imagine when she goes to heaven she will want in summer time to lay away her wings in camphor.

A Discarded Jack.

"Jack," said the one in chiffon, "proposed to me last night."

The one in gauze smiled.

"He doesn't do it at all well, does he, dear?" she said.

'Tis better to win man's esteem than their wonder.

SHOT GRIZZLY BEAR.

How Little Indian Boy Saved His Father Who Was Crushed.

With arm broken, injured shoulders, and scarred head, Roderick, a member of the Peel River Indians, called on acting Governor Lithgow the other morning to ask for aid. The old man had been in a fight with a bear, and was injured.

Far in the Arctic wilderness beyond the Rockies, Roderick and his little boy, several months ago, met a giant grizzly. The father had his rifle, and gave fight to the mammoth brute. The animal was wounded, and Roderick went up to him. The animal arose, made a lunge for the man, struck him with his powerful arms, and furiously endeavored to snuff out the life of the Indian.

The old man's little son, who had stood by, stole up close to the raging bear, and sneaking back awaited his chance. When the time came the little fellow, with lion heart and nerve of steel, drew a steady bead. It was a trying time. To the boy it was a most desperate test of whether or not he should save his father and perhaps also himself. There was no time to meditate. When the bead was drawn the little warrior hesitated not. His steady forefinger bent over the trigger. There was a sharp crack and the grizzly fell back. The big animal dropped in his tracks.

Then the younger rushed to the side of his father. He drew the bleeding man aside and staunched his wounds, and rushing to the brook got water and bathed the injured man. With all the loving kindness that the filial heart can know did the little fighter stand by his injured father. Then when the man could arise, the lad led him to the tribe. There the Indians made a rude splint and set the broken arm, and from the leaves of the trees and otherwise they prepared their crude medicines.

Weeks, weary weeks, crept by and Roderick grew better. In the meantime the little boy was exalted among his people. He it was who had killed the great bear and had brought the claws back in triumph. The skin of the huge grizzly was hung by the family tent, and there tanned by the squaws, and bucks and women told tales of the bravery of the little man.

The other day old Roderick came with the sad tale to the Governor that broken and injured as he is he no longer can work and earn his way like the energetic, able-bodied men of his tribe. And, to add more to his sorrow, his little son, the saviour of his life in the fight with the great bear, is dead. The little fellow took ill not long ago, and died in his wilderness home at the head of the Blackstone River, in the wilds of the Rockies. The old father came to Dawson, 200 miles over ice and snow, and through the untrodden forests, with the Peels who arrived last week with the first mails, caribou skins, and beadwork of the year from their region.

Chief Isaac, of the Mocsakide tribe, and Chief Peltze, of the Tagaene tribe, accompanied Roderick to the Governor, and led in the big pow-wow which followed the smoking of the pipe of peace. It is likely, since the Peels are on British soil, and Dawson is their nearest post, that they will be given every consideration, and the old fellow given what treatment is needed. The work of the Indians in putting a spline on the broken arm was in itself something of credit to sons of the wild.

Good Land in the North.

Reports have been received by the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines regarding the work of surveyors in northern Ontario during the past season. In all 36 townships in the Districts of Algoma and Nipissing have been outlined or surveyed. Messrs. Speight and Van Nostrand located the boundary lines of eight townships in the former district, while Surveyor Niven performed a similar task between the Missanabie and Metagami Rivers. Both parties found that from 75 to 90 per cent. of the land could be converted into excellent farms. In Nesbitt and Aubin, laid out by E. D. Bolton, of Listowel; Dargavel and Lennox, surveyed by Surveyor Hutcheon, Guelph; Reid and Carnegie, laid out by Surveyor Fiston, Orillia, and in Lucas, Duff and Caldew, where the work was done by Messrs. Cavana and Watson, there are good prospects for the agriculturists, as a clay and clay loam soil prevails. Hydaze, surveyed by J. W. Tyrrell, is heavily wooded, and is only a medium one, therefore, for agricultural purposes. The Townships of Bradburn and Beck, laid out by Mr. Fitzgerald, of Peterborough, are in part timbered with spruce from 12 to 16 inches in diameter. About fifty per cent. of the two areas would be suitable for immediate settlement. It is supposed that the Grand Trunk Pacific will pass through the Township of Clute, which was surveyed by Mr. Galbraith, of Bracebridge, and it is estimated that 65 per cent. of it will be suitable for the farmer. Fournier and Ottaway Townships were learned by O. L. S. Code, of Alwinston, to consist of from 70 to 80 per cent. of fertile land. The former is covered with bush. J. J. Newman, Windsor, did the work in the Townships of Macathon and Sherring, in the district of Nipissing. The soil there is of fertile loam, with spruce, poplar, deal tamarac and balm of Gilead. J. H. Smith found Sweetman and Stimson Townships in the great clay belt to be of good agricultural land, fairly well timbered and watered.

Another Dan McGillicuddy.

Canadians who thought they were possessed of the only Daniel McGillicuddy may be surprised to notice that such a belief is not well-founded. There is another of the name to wit, Rev. Daniel F. McGillicuddy, pastor of St. Stephen's Church, Worcester, Mass., who has returned home after a tour of the world began last February, which included a journey across the border of the Independent Sikkim, over the Nathula Pass, through the Kampu Valley, and a 14 days' trip into Tibet.

Cheap Generosity.

A great smoker handed his cigar case to his right hand neighbor. "Thank you, but I don't smoke," said the man.

He therefore handed it to the man on the left, who made the same reply, whereupon his wife nudged him and said, "Why don't you hand it to the captain?"

"No, thank you; he smokes."—Nos Loisirs.

MILES UNDER ONE ROOF

BIG CAPITAL INVESTMENT IN VALLEYFIELD COTTON MILLS.

An Outlay Which Embraces in the Vicinity of $6,000,000 — Buildings Are of Wonderful Massiveness, and Suggest the Mediaeval Fortress—Power From St. Lawrence River—The Gault Institute.

Reference was made in The Montreal Standard recently to the "bit of Lancashire which had been set down in Valleyfield" in Quebec Province, but a recent visit to the great cotton factories, by the same paper, which are operated there, discloses the wonderful activities which mark this town, whose population is now over ten thousand.

The combined cotton factories at Valleyfield represent an investment of between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000. They employ between two and three thousand hands. The majority of these are French-Canadians. There is, at the same time, a large Old Country element, and a cordial feeling exists amongst all classes.

The buildings suggest a wonderful massiveness. They are built of stone, and it would seem as though in the thought of the builders, they were to be as stout as any mediaeval fortress.

Dwarfs Everything Else.

There is something, perhaps, almost intimidating in the enormous bulk which they present to the eye, and which dwarfs, by comparison, everything else in the town. The mills are all connected, and one can walk for miles, it would be safe to say, under a single roof. The machinery is the latest which has been applied to the weaving of cotton, and the various products which come from it.

The conditions are ideal in this respect; that all the power is supplied by electricity, which is produced by an abundant water supply, derived from an arm of the St. Lawrence river. The power house of the mills is the largest and latest in the world. Indeed, even England, the home of the cotton industry, cannot show, either in this matter of the generation of power, or the character of the machinery, an advance so wonderful as is disclosed at Valleyfield.

Power Serves Other Purposes.

This power not merely keeps four or five thousand looms going, with all the other machinery, associated with the work of manufacturing curtains, portieres tablecloths and all sorts of colored goods, but it lights the town and the residences of the citizens.

One may see, in a succession of departments, the history of everything we use in the way of cotton goods, from the bale of raw material to the beautiful, delicate curtains, or the exquisitely designed portieres or tablecloths. Each process requires skill and patience. The vast concern is as clean as a new pin. The rooms are amply lighted, while the ceilings are high, and in the whole planning of the factories the latest word has been spoken.

The company, too, does not stop with paying wages for work done. It provides the employes with neat residences, for which a moderate rent is charged. These are lighted by electricity. Each has a little bit of garden in front, and in the summer prizes are awarded by the company for that little plot which shows in its care the best taste.

The company is also a farmer on a large scale, farming four hundred acres for the purpose, chiefly, of giving the people pure milk at six cents a quart the year round.

A Hopeful Feature.

Perhaps one of the most hopeful features of the allied interests which will always be honorably associated with the name of Gault is the Gault Institute, where the children of the workers receive an admirable education—the best, as Mr. Louis Simpson, the able and popular general manager, affirms, outside the city of Montreal. This is a fine stone building, with ample playgrounds. There is a staff of efficient teachers.

A nominal fee is charged, and scholarships are awarded. The teaching is such as to fit for matriculation in collegiate and other higher educational institutions. This is a work of almost inestimable benefit to the English-speaking residents, and it is pointed to with pride, as guaranteeing to the children of those who have come out from England a modern education to fit them for that permanency of citizenship which possibly some of their parents find it difficult to experience for the first few years of their residence in a new country.

Company Provides Club Rooms.

There is another feature deserving of notice—the club rooms provided by the company. Here there are a library, billiard rooms, baths, smoking rooms, and reading rooms, while allied to this club are bowling greens, lawn tennis courts and parks lighted by electricity, in which the people can sit in the summer evenings.

The relations between the employers and employes are friendly, and the workers are loyal to those who have invested their money in one of the most notable enterprises in the Dominion.

Pleasant Canadian Dialect.

The Lancashire dialect sounds pleasantly. One notes how well all are dressed, as they proceeded to the Anglican or Presbyterian, or Methodist Churches, which are all close to the mills—Indeed, the mills, the institute, the churches, and club house, form a town by themselves, and to which individual distinction is given by the canal, which divides the two sections.

There is a pleasant meeting of the people every Sunday afternoon in the club house, where bright talks are given by the prominent people of the place.

Mr. Louis Simpson, the general manager of the company, is the president and takes a great interest in this work.

About the Limit.

A newly married couple came in a hotel where we were resting and asked how much it would cost to get two bowls of boiled rice and milk and were informed that the price was 15 cents per portion. The groom pulled a small package wrapped in a bit of newspaper from his pocket and, opening it, displayed about a double handful of rice, which he said they had gathered from their clothing after the shower which followed the early morning wedding. He inquired how much would be deducted if they furnished their own rice and upon being informed that no allowance could be made became indignant and remarked that they would wait until they reached home for their dinner rather than submit to such unfair dealing and left the place. The proprietor said that the young man owned one of the best farms in the town and had established quite a famous reputation locally for economy, although that is not exactly the way he expressed it.—Forest and Stream.

Lowell Got His Whacks.

In his volume on the practice of diplomacy John W. Foster relates an illuminating anecdote concerning James Russell Lowell when he was our minister at Madrid. At a royal reception Minister Lowell, in plain evening dress, was preceded up the palace stairway by a minister from Central America, gorgeously appareled, wearing a jewel-hilted sword, who was saluted at each landing by the magnificent halberdier with a heavy whack of the battle ax on the marble pavement. As Mr. Lowell wore no insignia of office, he received no attention. At last, his patriotic blood boiling, he addressed the halberdier in excellent Spanish, "Do you know who I am?" "I don't." "Well," said Mr. Lowell, "I am the minister plenipotentiary of the United States of America, the greatest nation on earth, and if you don't whack the next time I pass you I will forget you at Christmas!" And the halberdier whacked thereafter as directed.

Child Cynics.

A London writer exclaims at thinking "there is really nothing to account for the extraordinary critical mood which the modern child has developed in regard to toyland." The modern child will simply not make believe. Little boys and girls alike become sticklers for the "correct thing," and if the build of a steamship or a motor car, the cut of a doll's frock or the mysteries the eye does not usually see are not "just like" the real thing there is trouble. It is said that toy makers have even now to employ scientific experts and French milliners if they hope to pass the critical eyes of the "new child." The fact is the modern child is born a cynic and a sated little darling. It has no emotions, no desires save to destroy and be lived and breathed for by necessary parents.

Romance of a Necklace.

Some years ago an old Frenchwoman died in a poor part of Dublin, and her little effects were put up for auction. Among other odds and ends was a necklace of dirty looking green stones, which did not attract much attention. However, a shrewd pair of dealers thought there might be "money in it" and decided on purchasing, clubbing together £5 for the purpose. On taking it to a well known jeweler he promptly offered £1,500, which sum they refused and sold the necklace of purest emeralds for £7,000 in London, where Lord Rosebery on his marriage purchased it for something like £20,000. The old Frenchwoman's mother had been attached to the court of France, and the emeralds had once formed part of the crown jewels.—London Answers.

A Smooth Villain.

"Before we were married," she complained, "you always engaged a cab when you took me anywhere. Now you think the street car is good enough for me."

"No, my darling, I don't think the street car is good enough for you. It's because I'm so proud of you. In a cab you would be seen by nobody, while I can show you off to so many people by taking you in a street car."

"You dear! Forgive me if I gave you pain in saying what I did."

The Story of a Charm.

A titled English lady has a story of a woman who had a little Japanese charm given her. Every time she wore it some mischance happened, and she generally fell ill. Her son at last took the jewel to the keeper of the Japanese curios in the Paris museum and requested to be informed what the charm represented. "This," said the expert at once, "is the emblem of sickness." The woman never wore it again.

Petticoats.

The really economical woman is careful about exercising her economy when she buys a petticoat, particularly a silk one. A cheap silk petticoat is never worth having sent home from the shop, for as a usual thing it is skimpy in quantity as well as poor in quality, and a really good silk or moire will more than repay the original outlay in durability and satisfaction. When buying a silk petticoat, among the minor details to be taken into consideration is that of color, for some dyes render the silk much more brittle than others. All shades of blue, dark as well as light, are good for this reason, the dye having but little effect on the wearing qualities.

MARTYRS OF SCIENCE

HEROES WHO HAVE SACRIFICED THEMSELVES TO RESEARCH.

Acted So In Order to Determine Things In the Aid of Mankind—Awful Experiences of Dr. John Hall-Edwards of London Who Devoted His Life to Experimenting With the X-Rays—Is Now Dying.

Slowly, inexorably, there is being enacted in London an inexpressibly sad ending to a drama which, unless a miracle intervenes, must result in another martyr to science.

There Dr. John Hall-Edwards is dying. He is president of the British Electro-Therapeutic Society, and has been one of the great leaders in the investigation of X-ray phenomena.

He is a man of means, with position, loved ones, everything desirable to live for, and yet he must die—another victim of the great cause of science.

Can you imagine anything more altruistic than the motives that led to the fast-ending career of this man? No pecuniary consideration has impelled him to the experiments which have already disabled him. His whole desire has been simply to add another truth to the dazzling crown of science.

Devoted His Life to It.

Since Roentgen gave to the world the mysterious electric ray which penetrates flesh as easily as daylight pierces glass, it has been patent to investigators that untold possibilities for aiding the human race lie back of the wonderful glass tube.

Already this force has been proved a great aid in the cure of cancer, goitre and skin diseases, while as a means of diagnosis it has been the boon of the age to medical science.

Among those men who devoted their lives to experiment with the X-ray, hoping to develop its possibilities, was Dr. Hall-Edwards. He was one of the pioneers of the Roentgen ray. The first operation ever performed by aid of a Roentgen-ray photograph was from one taken by him.

Unconscious of Peril.

Once an expert photographer, he threw all his being into the new science, working day and night. He worked all unconscious of peril, and neglected his general medical practice, until he was acknowledged to be one of the most capable experts in England. In 1900 he went as a radiologist to the Boer war, and published the result of his work on the battlefield.

At present a truth is known regarding X-rays which was not suspected when Dr. Hall-Edwards took up his work. It is that, while the energy is beneficial when applied occasionally to a patient, it is extremely harmful to one who spends too much time in its vicinity.

He Still Experiments.

Not knowing this, Hall-Edwards slept near his instruments; he spent whole days in a room where the mysterious current was turned on full force.

The result was a drying-up of the blood in the veins of his hands. When the vitality had left his hands, the skin became broken out with warts—very painful little lumps—and they increased in number and virulence constantly.

Excruciating pain, as if a red-hot needle had been run into his hand, attacked him. He slept with difficulty, and intermittently.

After having exhausted all possible methods of cure, and now certain that death is but a short way off, Dr. Hall-Edwards does not cease his experiments. Thus does he prove a love for science which does not balk at death.

Cries Out With Pain.

Warts have now broken out on his brow. He wrote a few days ago:—"I have not experienced a moment's freedom from pain for more than two years, and at times the pain is so severe that I am rendered absolutely incapable of work, either physical or mental.

"Hope I have none. Death is certain, and I am waiting for it with such fortitude as I can command. I adjure all who have engaged in X-ray work to protect themselves before it is too late."

Fortunately, it is possible to protect one's self against X-rays. This is the truth which Dr. Hall-Edward's death will give to the world. It has been shown that the rays do not penetrate lead.

A Barricade of Lead.

Thanks to the experience of those who have fallen martyrs to this branch of science, the X-ray investigator now places between himself and the tube a wall of lead. Here, behind the barricade, he may manipulate the levers of the switchboard, while watching through a mirror the operations of the rays.

This is the method adopted by Dr. M. K. Kassabian, of Philadelphia, whose hands are covered with warts, as are those of Dr. Hall-Edwards. Dr. Kassabian believes that, in time, he will recover from the dreadful affliction, which robs him of sleep and causes him constant pain while awake.

As a result of constant exposure to X-rays in perfecting the fluoroscope, Clarence M. Daily, an electrical engineer, assistant in Thomas A Edison's laboratory at West Orange, N.J., died October 2, 1904.

He had undergone no less than seven surgical operations to remove a cancerous growth on his left wrist. Finally, both his arms were amputated.

Spirit of Martyrdom.

Throughout all his sufferings he retained his mental faculties. As an indication of the spirit of martyrdom that lay back of his suffering, one of his last expressions was the hope that Edison, who has been similarly afflicted, but in less degree, might be spared. Much to the surprise of physicians, amputation did not stop the progress of the treacherous ailment, which soon penetrated Daily's system.

By inches, Dr. Louis A. Weigel gave up his life at Rochester, N.Y., in pursuit of the solution of mysteries of the Roentgen rays.

The Mean Thing!

"Who was that fool you bowed to?"

"My husband."

"Oh, I—er—I—humbly apologize. I"—

"Never mind, I'm not angry. But what a keen observer you are!"

Did you ever notice that the size of trouble depends on whether it is coming or going?—Mankato Free Press.

GOLD BY THE BUSHEL

THE SEARCH FOR GOLD has ever been man's strongest passion. No obstacles have deterred him. Heat and cold, famine and thirst, hardship and exposure alike have failed to conquer the insatiable desire. From the dawn of history, when King Solomon opened up the famous wealth of the mines of Ophir, to the present day, men have sought the yellow metal. Countless lives have been sacrificed, and yet the search goes on.

In the winter of 1900-1901 four miners tottered into the city of Nome, Alaska; their feet and hands black with frostbite; their bodies emaciated almost to skeletons; their eyes sunken. Their dogs had died of starvation and cold; they had abandoned their sleds and provisions; but they staggered under the weight of forty pounds of pure GOLD!

The city buzzed at once with excitement. Where had they found it? To all questions the strangers were dumb. There was one man in Nome, however, who thought he knew a way to locate the new discovery. He had been a friend of the Esquimaux to the North; he spoke their language well; he had relieved their want; and he had spent nearly four years among them. He could talk the "true talk" of these simple natives. That man was ANDREW S. NELSON. Within twelve hours he was speeding North, with a team of six tried dogs and a supply of provisions.

It is needless to recite the hardships he endured in this lonely journey, facing the fierce north wind. Suffice it to say he found an old Esquimau who showed him where the strangers had made their find.

Under the Northern Stars he drove the stakes which now mark the boundaries of NELSON GULCH MINING CLAIMS

Three Hundred Dollars in Two Hours

Connected with Mr. Andrew S. Nelson were his father, Major William Nelson, U. S. Army, retired, and Dr. G. M. Morris, an English surgeon. When spring opened up these three men began to test their ground. They found it exceedingly rich, but they were troubled to get water. They tried various schemes, but as their money had nearly run out they could work only on a small scale. Once they were lucky in saving some water with a dam after a rain, and Mr. Nelson and Dr. Morris washed out $500.00 in gold in less than two hours. Numerous tests made over the ground showed the top gravel to run a dollar a cubic yard.

At other times and places from $10.00 to $50.00 were secured from single yards of gravel. Nuggets ranging in value from $1.00 to $47.00 each were found. This is an ancient river bed into which, for ages, the waters have been washing and disintegrating the rock which held the gold.

More than $1,000,000 have been taken by other parties from the gravel which was washed from this Company's ground into the stream below, and they have only just begun work. They expect millions more, and their tests justify their expectation. $150,000 were taken from Old Glory Creek, which is one of its bends swung into the edge of our old river.

Favorable Government Report

In the summer of 1903 the United States Geological Survey sent out an exploring party to cover this ground, under Mr. Fred. H. Moffit. This is a part of his report:

"This small gulch (Nelson Gulch), barely three-fourths of a mile long, leads down from a broad, low saddle in the divide between Old Glory and Inmachuck, and is of interest since it is probably an important factor in the origin of the rich ground just below its mouth on Old Glory."

What is Placer Gold?

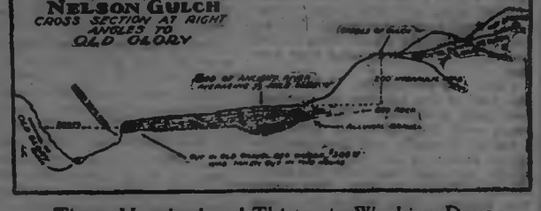
Nowhere on earth have the elements and glaciers worn away the mountains as in Alaska. All the gold in their veins has been carried into river beds, the heavier pieces being deposited nearby, the lighter ones going farther.

Now, it does not take much thought to realize that, as Nelson Gulch is the source of all the gold on the Inmachuck River, the heaviest particles and the greatest amount must be on the Company's ground.

This is further shown by the fact that the gold found there is sharp-cornered and angular. Now, pure gold is very soft, and as it travels down stream it is rubbed against the sand and gravel and the sharp corners worn off. When you find the particles of gold in a river bed are worn and the corners rounded, then you may be sure they have travelled some distance.

The gold in Nelson Gulch is angular and sharp-cornered. Notice what the United States Government Report says on this subject:

"The gold from Nelson Gulch is brighter than that of Old Glory, is rough and angular, and contains considerable quartz, and evidently has not travelled far from its original source."



Three Hundred and Thirty-six Working Days

Although the season for hydaulicing in Alaska is but 140 days, every hour of that 140 days is daylight. For a full month the sun never sets, and during two other months it does not get dark. Therefore, by keeping on three shifts of men, eight hours each, the work does not stop, and we get 336 working days of ten hours each. This is a larger number of hours than the great placer mines of Colorado, Montana or Idaho can work in any one year.

Mr. Andrew S. Nelson is now on the property with a force of men getting everything in readiness for the spring work. We fully expect to have the gold running down our sluice-ways by June.

Gravel Richer as it Goes Down

Everybody knows that in old river beds carrying gold the gravel gets richer as it goes down next to bed-rock.

In several places on bed rock this Company's gravel washed at the rate of $50.00 a yard. Of course, it is not all that rich; but suppose we average it at $10.00 a yard; this would make an acre worth $200,000.00!

Railroad, Telegraph and Telephone Lines to the Mines

A railroad is now in operation part way from Nome to Deering, and will be finished through next season. All the above lines will pass very close to this property, and will give us perfect transportation and communication facilities.

During the open season three regular steamers per week between Seattle and Deering, together with the many irregular ones, give us freight rates no greater than those in effect from Kansas City to points in Arizona.

Letter from Major William Nelson, U. S. Army, retired, under date of February 18, 1907:

"Could the public be made to see the property as I know it there would be no trouble in selling stock, for it will prove the best investment anyone could make. Every $100.00 will return at least $6,000.00 to the investor if you can only get it opened up. I feel sure that with thirty days' work you can declare a dividend on the capital."

Our Property

The Company owns fourteen claims of twenty acres each, free and clear of all encumbrances, on the gravel terrace of Nelson Gulch, near the head of the Inmachuck River, Seward Peninsula, Alaska, nearly due north of Nome. Since January 1st, three hundred acres more have been added to the Company's holdings.

Mr. J. W. Pickard, a mining engineer of high standing, has been engaged since the spring of 1900 in making tests of the gold-bearing gravels of Seward Peninsula. He represents there a New York Syndicate, which has, through him, secured large holdings. He says of these deposits: "If I were to tell you the values that exist under the tundra (species of heavy bunch grass), you would hardly believe what I tell you. The values are almost beyond computation. I found gravel averaging $4.57 to the cubic yard in one place; in another hole it averaged $9.24; in another $6.10; another showed an average value of $5.00; still another $12.41. To figure out the values in an acre of such gravel produces figures so prodigious as to literally stagger one."

"Mr. W. H. Bond, Paul Denhart and P. T. Nixon have a claim whose pay streak yielded all the way from 20 cents to $9.60 per pan, or $675.00 per yard. A single shift has taken out as much as $25,000.00, and $42,000.00 have been secured in one day's sluicing. Without exaggeration gold by the bushel is being washed from these gravels. The stream of gold constantly pouring into Nome attests this fact, and justifies the prediction of those best informed regarding the conditions existing there, which is that these gravel benches with their wealth of golden deposits will continue to be found on Seward Peninsula after the present generation of miners has been gathered to their fathers; a golden stream will still be pouring from the creeks, hills and tundra fifty years hence, if the promise of the future be but half fulfilled."

Mr. Rex Beach, in The Saturday Evening Post of January 6th, 1907, gives numerous instances of enormous strikes on Seward Peninsula—$33,000.00 in one day! $2,000,000.00 taken from Little Creek in one winter. Two men, in a few weeks, working under difficulties with the crudest machinery, took out $40,000.00.

Mr. Beach is entirely disinterested, being merely a writer and correspondent of The Post.

Inexhaustable Water Supply and only 3 miles of ditch

NEARBY PROPERTIES AMAZINGLY RICH.

Eighty per cent. of the world's gold has been taken from beds of old streams.

One company is building a ditch 52 miles long to bring water from a lake with which to wash the gravel that has been carried from Nelson Gulch down the Inmachuck River. If these washings justify the enormous expense of this ditch, and if $1,000,000.00 have already been secured from them with the crudest methods, how many millions will this property yield?

OUR WATER FACILITIES PERFECT.

An enormous, unfailing hot spring, three miles away, will furnish this Company water enough to handle 3,000 cubic yards of gravel per 24 hours at a cost of less than one cent per yard. Its claims lie close up to the contact between the lime and schist, where all of this gold originates. It is at the fountain-head, and others get only what is washed further on. Its nuggets have sharp points and edges; those found further beyond are worn smooth by the friction of their journey.

Placer Mining the Cheapest

Placer mining is the cheapest and oldest way to mine for gold. We estimate that it will cost us only half of one cent to wash a cubic yard.

Why We Sell Stock

Money is needed to bring water from the hot springs and to provide hydraulic apparatus.

The Board of Directors of Nelson Gulch Mining Company have allotted 200,000 shares of the Treasury stock, to be sold at ten cents per share. When this allotment shall have been sold the price of the stock will positively be advanced to 25 cents per share; or, what is more likely, will be withdrawn from the market.

Our gravel beds average 18 feet in thickness. At a dollar a cubic yard this would make $70,000.00 per acre—or over $8,000,000.00 for the entire property. This is certainly an underestimate, because bed-rock gravel will run far higher. We are capitalized at $3,000,000.00, but with ten-cent stock this means a valuation of only $300,000.00 on a property which must certainly run away up in the millions. This is another way of looking at the great value of this investment to you.

Stock Now 10 Cents a Share

Reserve Before the Advance

Write today and reserve your shares at ten cents a share. The next advance will be to 25 cents.

Better still, wire your reservation. There is only a certain allotment for sale; when that is gone the stock is off the market. It is first come, first served.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

GREAT LABOUR SAVING DEVICE

The Penman & Sprang

DUPLICATOR

Will produce 100 copies in ten minutes, and is without doubt one of the greatest inventions of its kind ever conceived.

THE DUPLIGRAPH

The most reliable, cleanest, simplest, quickest and most up-to-date duplicating machine on the market

It will reproduce one hundred facsimile copies of a pen written original in fifteen minutes; fifty to seventy-five copies of an original written on a typewriter or twenty-five copies of an original written with a copying pen.

The original is written on ordinary paper, with an ordinary pen, typewriter or copying pencil, and the copies can be taken on ordinary paper cardboard, wood or china.

THE MAN'S IDEAL HOUSE

IN IT BEAUTY AND UTILITY AND HONESTY SHOULD BE ONE.

How Perfect Utility Becomes Good to Look Upon Through the Quality of Being Able to Do the Work Designed By the Maker of Any Thing—How Dishonest Construction and Fraudulent Gawds Act On a Man.

My first idea about a house is that it should be built to live in. Throughout the house, in all the building of it, this should be the paramount idea. It must be granted that this idea is lost sight of by countless persons who build houses for every purpose under the sun except living in them.

Perhaps it is because of the practical life I have lived that I worship utility and have come to believe that utility and beauty should be one, and that there is no utility that need not be beautiful. What finer beauty than strength—whether it be airy steel or massive masonry or a delicate woman's hand? A plain black leather strap is beautiful. It is all strength and all utility, and it is beautiful. It efficiently performs work in the world, and it is good to look upon. Perhaps it is because it is useful that it is beautiful. I do not know. I sometimes wonder.

A boat on the sea is beautiful. Yet it is not built for beauty. Every graceful line of it is a utility, is designed to perform work. It is created for the express purpose of dividing the water in front of it, of gliding over the water beneath it, of leaving the water behind it—and all with the least possible wastage of stress and friction. It is not created for the purpose of filling the eye with beauty. It is created for the purpose of moving through the sea and over the sea with the smallest resistance and the greatest stability; yet, somehow, it does fill the eye with its beauty. And in so far as a boat fails in its purpose, by that much does it diminish in beauty.

I am still a long way from the house I have in my mind some day to build, yet I have arrived somewhere. I have discovered to my own satisfaction at any rate, that beauty and utility should be one. In applying this general idea to the building of a house, it may be stated in another and better way, namely, construction and decoration must be one. This idea is more important than the building of the house, for without the idea the house so built is certain to be an insult to intelligence and beauty love.

I bought a house in a hurry in the city of Oakland some time ago. I do not live in it. I sleep in it half a dozen times a year. I do not love the house. I am hurt every time I look at it. No drunken rowdy nor political enemy can insult me so deeply as that house does. Let me tell you why. It is an ordinary two-storey frame house. After it was built, the criminal that constructed it nailed on at the corners, perpendicularly, some 2-inch fluted planks. These planks rise the height of the house, and to a drunken man have the appearance of fluted columns. To complete the illusion in the eyes of the drunken man, the planks are topped with wooden Ionic capitals nailed on, and in, I may say, bas relief.

When I analyse the irritation these fluted planks cause in me I find the reason in the fact that the first idea for building a house has been violated. These decorative planks are no part of the construction. They have no use, no work to perform. They are plastered gawds that tell lies that nobody believes. A column is made for the purpose of supporting weight; this is its use. A column when it is a utility is beautiful. The fluted wooden columns nailed on outside my house are not utilities. They are not beautiful. They are nightmares. They not only support no weight, but they themselves are a weight that drags upon the supports of the house. Some day when I get time one of two things will surely happen. Either I shall go forth and murder the man who perpetrated the atrocity or else I shall take an axe and chop off the lying fluted planks.

A thing must be true or it is not beautiful, any more than a painted wanton is beautiful, any more than a sky-scraper is beautiful that is intrinsically and structurally light and that has a false massiveness of pillars plastered on outside. The true sky-scraper is beautiful—and this is the reluctant admission of a man who dislikes humanity festering cities. The true sky-scraper is beautiful, and it is beautiful in so far as it is true. In its construction it is light and airy; therefore in its appearance it must be light and airy. It dare not, if it wishes to be beautiful, lay claim to what it is not. And it should not bulk on the city-scape like Leviathan; it should rise and soar, light and airy and fairy-like.

Man is an ethical animal—or, at least he is more ethical than any other animal. Wherefore he has certain yearnings for honesty. And in no way can these yearnings be more thoroughly satisfied than by the honesty of the house in which he lives and passes the greater part of his life.

They that dwelt in San Francisco were dishonest. They lied and cheated in their business life (like the dwellers in all cities), and because they lied and cheated in their business life they lied and cheated in the buildings they erected. Upon the tops of the simple, severe walls of their buildings they plastered huge projecting cornices. These cornices were not part of the construction. They made believe to be part of the construction, and they were lies. The earth wrinkled its back for twenty-eight seconds, and the lying cornices crashed down, as all lies are doomed to crash down. In this particular instance the lies crashed down upon the heads of the people fleeing from their reeling habitations, and many were killed. They paid the penalty of dishonesty.

Not alone should the construction of a house be truthful and honest, but the material must be honest. They that lived in San Francisco were dishonest in the material they used. They sold one quality of material and delivered another quality of material. They always delivered an inferior quality. There is not one case recorded in the business history of San Francisco where a contractor or builder delivered a quality superior to the one sold. A seven-million-dollar City Hall became thirty cents in 28 seconds. Because the mortar was not honest a thousand walls crashed down and scores of lives were snuffed out. There is something, after all, in the contention of a few religionists that the San Francisco earthquake was a punishment for sin. It was a punishment for sin; but it was not sin against God. The people of San Francisco sinned against themselves.

An honest house tells the truth about itself. There is a house here in Glen Ellen. It stands on a corner. It is built of beautiful red stone. Yet it is not beautiful. On three sides the stone is joined and pointed. The fourth side is the rear. It faces the backyard. The stone is not pointed; it is all a smudge of dirty mortar, with here and there bricks worked in when the stone gave out. The house is not what it seems. It is a lie. All three of the walls spend their time lying about the fourth wall. They keep shouting out that the fourth wall is as beautiful as they. If I lived long in that house I should not be responsible for my morals. The house is like a man in purple and fine linen, who has not had a bath in a month. If I lived long in that house I should become a dandy and quit bathing—for the same reason, I suppose, that an African is black and that an Eskimo eats whale-blubber. I shall not build a house like that house.

Last year I started to build a barn. A man who was a liar undertook to do the stone work and concrete work for me. He could not tell the truth to my face; he could not tell the truth in his work. I was building for posterity. The concrete foundations were 4 feet wide and sunk 3 1-2 feet into the earth. The stone walls were 2 feet thick and 9 feet high. Upon them were to rest the great beams that were to carry all the weight of hay and the forty tons of tile roof. The man who was a liar made beautiful stone walls. I used to stand alongside of them and love them. I caressed their massive strength with my hands. I thought about them in bed before I went to sleep. And they were lies.

Came the earthquake. Fortunately, the rest of the building of the barn had been postponed. The beautiful stone walls cracked in all directions. I started to repair, and discovered the whole enormous lie. The walls were shells. On each face were beautiful, massive stones—on edge. The inside was hollow. This hollow in some places was filled with clay and loose gravel. In other places it was filled with air and emptiness, with here and there a piece of kindling wood or dry goods box to aid in the making of the shell. The walls were lies. They were beautiful, but they were not useful. Construction and decoration had been divorced. The walls were all decoration. They had not any construction in them. "As God lets Satan live." I let that lying man live, but . . . I have built new walls from the foundation up.

And now to my own house, beautiful, which I shall build some seven or ten years from now. I have a few general ideas about it. It must be honest in construction, material, and appearance. If any feature of it, despite my efforts, shall tell lies, I shall remove that feature. Utility and beauty must be indissolubly wedded. Construction and decoration must be one. If the particular details keep true to these general ideas, all will be well.—Jack London, in The Queen.

Biggest Parcel Postoffice.

The biggest parcel postoffice in the world is at Mount Pleasant, London, and at Christmas time 8,000 vanloads of parcels per day are driven in and out of its yard. The extent of this Christmas rush is best realised when it is remembered that the number of vans entering and leaving the yard daily at ordinary times is only 900.

The parcel post handles about 75,000,000 parcels, throughout the Kingdom, in a year, and of these about 23,000,000 pass through the office at Mount Pleasant, and in them are packed 160,000 parcels per day.

Under the main hall of the building is a basement measuring 300 feet, by 200 feet, and 16 feet in height. This vast room is packed from floor to ceiling with reserve baskets—25,000 of them! And these reserves are mobilised at Yule tide and see life in a whirl of excitement which makes up for their 360 days of banishment.

To fill these baskets once requires about 500,000 parcels, weighing some 1,500 tons, and every one is filled ten times over—this in addition to the baskets in regular use—during the Christmas rush.

His Gloomy Life.

"What," asked the sweet girl, "was the happiest moment of your life?"

"The happiest moment of my life," answered the old bachelor, "was when the jeweler took back an engagement ring and gave me sleeve links in exchange."

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

A WATER CLOCK.

Good Homemade Toy That Is Not Difficult to Make.

Very little difficulty will be encountered in making the water clock illustrated here, and any boy can manage it. All that is needed are a piece of cardboard, a piece of wire, two pieces of cork, some needles and a tin can.

A hole is made in the bottom of the can which shall suffice to let all the water run out in twenty-four hours. The piece of cardboard must be about twenty-six inches long and six inches wide and is cut out as shown in the diagram. This is set up on the tin can by means of wires.

A stiff wire twenty inches long has a small piece of cork fastened to one end and a shaving of cork at the other,

this last piece of cork to float in the water of the can, which is to be open at the top. The bit of cork at the top, which is to act as a pointer, can also help to steady the wire by having two needles inserted so that they will move up and down in the groove, being fixed crosswise.

One of the needles will thus serve as a pointer, and to mark out the hours on the cardboard one simply lets the water run out for an hour from the opening at the bottom and, going to the cardboard, makes a mark. The other hours are determined in the same way.—St. Louis Republic.

THE WHIRLING DERVISH.

A Singular Being Who Comes From Faraway Persia.

Nearly every circus or wild west show that comes to town has a "whirling dervish" for one of the attractions, and they are certainly wonderful creatures. I wonder if all of you know where they come from?

They are Mohammedans from Persia, a set of men who devote or are supposed to devote their entire time to religion and are perhaps as nearly like monks as anything else. Fasting for days at a time, with continual prayer, at last affects their minds, and they see wonderful visions which they disclose to their superstitious brothers, over whom they have great influence. They are always miserably poor, living on charity and earn what little they have by being hired to mourn at funerals or to conduct religious ceremonies.

Some of these men perform most wonderful tricks, such as fire eating, juggling and walking on broken glass. How they do them will never be known, but they are supposed to be invested with supernatural power, which is of course untrue. We are all familiar with the "whirling dervish." This takes years of practice, but finally they become so expert and are so used to it that they can "whirl" for hours without becoming dizzy.

Monkey With Glasses.

In the zoological gardens of Breslau, Germany, there is a spider monkey which was operated on for cataract and now wears glasses. For more than a year after it was received at the zoo it was very healthy and lively. Then it became very quiet, ceased to play and crouched in a corner. It was examined and found to be suffering from cataract, so it was immediately taken to the eye hospital and operated on. In less than a month it was fitted with a pair of spectacles, which it wears with becoming gravity.

Conundrums.

Why should a man always wear a watch when he travels in a desert? Because every watch has a spring in it.

What question is that to which you must always answer yes? What does yes spell?

How many sides are there to a tree? Two, the inside and the outside.

If.

If two plus two made six and nine
And twelve and eighty-seven,
If "was the moon" were all there was
To learn inside my reader,
No boy would be as bright as I;
In school I'd be the leader.

If school took up at nine and then
Let out in an hour or less,
If half of this was singing songs
And the other half recess,
If all the days were holidays
'Cept Christmas and Thanksgiving,
I'd know what people mean who talk
About the joy of living.

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. 32. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 15 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 30 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 30 acres of J. B. 32 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 5 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 30 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 50 feet, and in it shows 5 inch nicolilite, 18 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 672-1221-492-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

WEDDING STATIONERY

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENTS are always in order. The season for the final result of being a disciple of Cupid finds expression in the Hymeneal ceremony at the altar—that occasion when "two hearts that beat as one" are joined together—pronounced one.

For this auspicious occasion the printing must be chastely dignified—must be appropriate in appearance to this one time of life when everything "best" is donned—when happiness reigns supremely.

Marriage Announcements
Marriage Invitations
Marriage Reception Cards
Post Nuptial Reception Cards

All of these we are able to supply in a proper form and printed artistically. Our work is conducted under the supervision of skilled typographical mechanics and may be unhesitatingly presented to the most fastidious critic.

Our charges for such work are moderate—yet good printing is ever valuable. However, we give quality for our figures, and an order entrusted to our care will be speedily, carefully and satisfactorily executed.

No work can be well done which has to be done hurriedly. Time is necessary for the accomplishment of faultless printing. We will fulfil all expectations if given ample time for completion.

TO MAKE A LEVEL BED.

The Secret Lies In Having a Tight Undersheet.

The secret of a level made bed lies largely in a tight undersheet. This is not merely a smooth one, but a sheet stretched so tightly that it lies taut across the bed and springs a little up from the mattress. To effect this the undersheet should be much wider than it is ordinarily made. Indeed, when tucked under the sides it should meet and overlap for two inches beneath the mattress and hang down at least ten inches over the head and foot.

With the sheet laid evenly on the bed and tucked in, the process of tightening it begins at the head. The bedmaker stands with her right side to the bed. This rule holds good with all her work. All of the bedding is laid on from this side, and, with the exception of the bottom sheet, that side should be nicely laid and tucked in before she moves to the other side in order to save steps. Standing then at the right side, the bedmaker reaches under the mattress and with the right hand grasps the opposite side of the sheet and with the left hand the near side. She then pulls the sheet so as to bring her two hands together beneath the middle of the mattress. So she progresses to the foot, drawing the sheet together every six inches down its length. It will take all her strength to do this properly, and unless she exerts this she will realize no result.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

Try dipping lamb chops in lemon juice just before broiling them. They are delicious.

Carrots and onions will be better if soaked in cold water for twelve hours before using to draw out the strong flavor.

When boiling fish add an onion to the water and sweet herbs tied in a piece of muslin. This is a French cook's suggestion and very tasty.

Slices of fried bread or ordinary toast spread with anchovy paste are delicious if covered with scrambled eggs. This is a very nice supper dish.

When making cake beat your eggs thoroughly and mix in the last thing before baking. One well beaten egg will go as far as two badly beaten ones.

Persons who have been brought up on dried figs feel disappointed that fresh figs are not sweeter and resemble melons more than figs. Fresh figs have to be peeled and are usually eaten with cream.

The Shape of the Wrist.

To improve the shape of the wrist when it is too slender and the bones are too prominent begin treating with daily massage. As a cream to use for the purpose the following is good: Two ounces sweet oil of almonds, two ounces orange flower water, two drams white wax, one dram oil of sweet orange, two drams spermaceti. Melt the wax and spermaceti in a jar set in boiling water. Heat the almond oil and add it to the wax. Heat the orange flower water; add it, half a teaspoonful at a time, stirring the mixture quickly. Remove the vessel from the water and beat the contents. Heat again and add the oil of sweet orange. Beat until it is cold. Put away in pots and cover with parchment. Cocoa butter and olive oil are also excellent flesh builders. Rub them well into the skin.

A Hard Burial.

Some few winters ago a gang of carriage washers was engaged washing carriages on one of our northern railways when one of them remarked to his mate, an old soldier who was famous as a long bowler, "It's awful cold this morning, David."

"Cold! This is nothing," said David. "I remember when I was in Canada in 186— one of our mates died, poor chap. And you will have some idea what sort of frost it was when I tell you it froze the body so stiff and the ground so hard that we had to get hammer and chisel, make a nick in the ground and then drive him in with a pile driver. That was the only way we could give the poor chap decent burial."—London Answers.

Using the Eyes.

A scientific writer quotes Helmholtz as saying that in his work he could only liken himself to the mountaineer, painfully and slowly climbing, often obliged to turn backward, lighting later on new traces leading forward, and finally reaching the goal, only to find to his confusion that a plain road led thither, if he had only had the eyes to see. Darwin said he thought he was superior to the common run of men in noticing things which easily escape attention and in observing them carefully.

With Edged Tools

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN

Copyright, 1894, by HARPER & BROTHERS

CHAPTER I.

"MY dear madam, what you call heart does not come into the question at all."

Sir John Meredith was sitting slightly behind Lady Cantourne, leaning toward her with a somewhat stiffened replica of his former grace. But he was not looking at her, and she knew it.

They were both watching a group at the other side of the great ballroom.

"Sir John Meredith on Heart," said the old lady, with a depth of significance in her voice."

"And why not?"

"Yes, indeed. Why not?"

Sir John smiled with that well bred cynicism which a new school has not yet succeeded in imitating. They both belonged to the old school, these two, and their worldliness, their cynicism, their conversational attitude belonged to a bygone period. It was a cleaner period in some ways—a period devoid of slums. Ours, on the contrary, is an age of slums, wherein we all dabble to the detriment of our hands—mental, literary and theological.

Sir John moved slightly in his chair, leaning one hand on one knee. His back was very flat, his clothes were perfect, his hair was not his own, nor yet his teeth, but his manners were entirely his own. His face was eighty years old, and yet he smiled his keen society smile with the best of them. There was not a young man in the room of whom he was afraid conversationally.

"No, Lady Cantourne," he replied. "Your charming niece is heartless. She will get on."

Lady Cantourne smiled and drew the glove farther up her stout and motherly right arm.

"She will get on," she admitted. "As to the other, it is early to give an opinion."

"She has had the best of trainings," he murmured. And Lady Cantourne turned on him with a twinkle amid the wrinkles.

"For which?" she asked.

"Choisissez!" he answered, with a bow.

The object of his attention was the belle of that ball, Miss Millicent Chyne, who was hemmed in a corner by a group of eager dancers anxious to insert their names in some corner of her card. She was the fashion at that time, and she probably did not know that at least half of the men crowded round because the other half were there. Nothing succeeds like the success that knows how to draw a crowd.

She received the ovation self possessedly enough, but without that hauteur affected by belles of balls—in books. She seemed to have a fresh smile for each new applicant—a smile which conveyed to each in turn the fact that she had been attempting all along to get her programme safely into his hands. A halting masculine pen will not be expected to explain how she compassed this, beyond a gentle intimation that masculine vanity had a good deal to do with her success.

"She is having an excellent time," said Sir John, weighing on the modern phrase with a subtle sarcasm. He was addicted to the use of modern phraseology spiced with a cynicism of his own.

"Yes; I cannot help sympathizing with her—a little," answered the lady.

"Nor I. It will not last."

"After all," she said, "she is my sister's child. The sympathy may only be a matter of blood. Perhaps I was like that myself once. Was I? You can tell me."

He fumbled at his lips, having reasons of his own for disliking too close a scrutiny of his face.

"That is more than probable," he answered rather indistinctly.

"Then," she said, tapping the back of his gloved hand with her fan, "we ought to be merciful to the faults of a succeeding generation. Tell me, who is that young man with the long stride who is getting himself introduced now?"

"That," answered Sir John, who prided himself upon knowing every one knowing who they were and who they were not—"is young Oscard."

"Son of the eccentric Oscard?"

"Son of the eccentric Oscard."

"And where did he get that brown face?"

"He got that in Africa, where he has been shooting. He forms part of some one else's bag at the present moment."

"What do you mean?"

"He has been apportioned a dance. Your fair niece has bagged him."

The other young men rather fell back before Guy Oscard—scared, perhaps, by his long stride, and afraid that he might crush their puny toes. This enabled Miss Chyne to give him the very next dance, of which the music was commencing.

"I feel rather out of all this," said Oscard as they moved away together. "You must excuse uncouthness."

"I see no signs of it," laughed Millicent. "You are behaving very nicely. You cannot help being larger and stronger than—the others. I should say it was an advantage and something to be proud of."

"Oh, it is not that," replied Oscard; "it is a feeling of unkemptness and want of smartness among these men who look so clean and correct. Shall we dance?"

"Yes," she said, "let us dance by all means."

Here she knew her own proficiency, and in a few seconds she found that her partner was worthy of her skill.

"Where have you been?" she asked presently. "I am sure you have been away somewhere, exploring or something."

"I have only been in Africa shooting."

"Oh, how interesting! You must tell me all about it!"

She was watching the door all the while.

Presently the music ceased, and they made their way back to the spot whence he had taken her. She led the way thither by an almost imperceptible pressure of her fingers on his arm. There were several men waiting there, and one or two more entering the room and looking languidly round.

"There comes the favored one," Lady Cantourne muttered, with a veiled glance toward her companion.

Sir John's gray eyes followed the direction of her glance.

"My bright boy?" he inquired, with a wealth of sarcasm on the adjective.

"Your bright boy," she replied.

"I hope not," he said curtly.

They were watching a tall fair man in the doorway who seemed to know everybody, so slow was his progress into the room. The most remarkable thing about this man was a certain grace of movement. He seemed to be specially constructed to live in narrow, hampered places. He was above six feet, but being of slight build he moved with a certain languidness which saved him from that unwieldiness usually associated with large men in a drawing room.

Such was Jack Meredith, one of the best known figures in London society. He had hitherto succeeded in moving through the mazes of that coterie, as he now moved through this room, without jarring any one.

CHAPTER II.

MISS MILLICENT CHYNE was vaguely conscious of success—and such a consciousness is apt to make the best of us a trifle elated. It was certainly one of the best balls of the season, and Miss Chyne's dress was without doubt one of the most successful articles of its sort there.

Jack Meredith saw that fact and noted it as soon as he came into the room. Moreover, it pleased him, and he was pleased to reflect that he was no mean critic in such matters. There could be no doubt about it, because he knew as well as any woman there. He knew that Millicent Chyne was dressed in the latest fashion; no furbished up gown from the hands of her maid, but a unique creation from Bond street.

"Well," she asked in a low voice as she handed him her programme, "are you pleased with it?"

"Eminently so."

She glanced down at her own dress. It was not the nervous glance of the debutante, but the practiced flash of experienced eyes which see without appearing to look.

"I am glad," she murmured.

He handed her back the card with the orthodox smile and bow of gratitude, but there was something more in his eyes.

"Is that what you did it for?" he inquired.

She took the card and allowed it to drop pendent from her fan without looking at it. He had written nothing on it. This was all a form. The dances that were his had been inscribed on the engagement card long before by smaller fingers than his.

She turned to take her attendant partner's arm with a little flaunt, a little movement of the hips, to bring her dress and possibly her self more prominently beneath Jack Meredith's notice. His eyes followed her with that incomparably pleasant society smile which he had no doubt inherited from his father. Then he turned and mingled with the well dressed throng, bowing where he ought to bow, asking with fervor for dances in plain but influential quarters where dances were to be easily obtained.

Behind his keen old eyes Sir John watched Jack go up and claim his dance at the hands of Miss Millicent Chyne. He could almost guess what they said, for Jack was grave, and she smiled demurely. They began dancing at once, and as soon as the floor became crowded they disappeared.

Jack Meredith was an adept at such matters. He knew a seat at the end of a long passage where they could sit, the behold of all beholders who happened to pass, but no one could possibly overhear their conversation, no one could surprise them. It was essentially a strategical position.

"Well," inquired Jack, with a peculiar breathlessness, when they were seated, "have you thought about it?"

She gave a little nod.

They seemed to be taking up some conversation at a point where it had been dropped on a previous occasion.

"And?" he inquired suavely. The society polish was very thickly coated over the man, but his eyes had a hungry look.

By way of reply her gloved hand crept out toward his, which rested on the chair at his side.

"Jack!" she whispered, and that was all.

It was very prettily done, and quite naturally. He was a judge of such matters and appreciated the girlish simplicity of the action fully.

He took the small gloved hand and pressed it lovingly. The thoroughness of his social training prevented any further display of affection.

"Thank heaven!" he murmured.

The music of the next dance was beginning, and, remembering their social obligations, they both rose. She laid her hand on his arm and for a moment his fingers pressed hers. He smiled down into her upturned eyes with love, but without passion. He never for a second risked the "gentleman" and showed the "man." He was suggestive of a forest pool with a smiling, rippled surface. There might be depth, but nothing had yet reached beyond the surface.

"Well," inquired Jack, "have you thought about it?"

"Jack," said Sir John as they passed on, "when you have been deprived of Miss Chyne's society, come and console yourself with a glass of sherry."

The dutiful son nodded a semi-indifferent acquiescence and disappeared.

"Wonderful thing, sherry!" observed Sir John Meredith for his own edification.

He waited there until Jack returned, and then they set off in search of refreshment. The son seemed to know his whereabouts better than the father.

"This way," he said—"through the conservatory."

Sir John Meredith and his son stood in silence looking around them. Finally their eyes met.

"Are you in earnest with that girl?" asked Sir John abruptly.

"I am," replied Jack. He was smiling pleasantly.

"And you think there is a chance of her marrying you—unless, of course, something better turns up?"

"With all due modesty, I do."

THE SUN LIFE OF CANADA

A Record of Great Success Last Year—Assurances in Force Crossed the Hundred Million Mark—Current Profits Paid Policyholders Keeping Pace with the Company's Growth—The Insurance Investigation by the Royal Commission

At the annual meeting of the Sun Life of Canada, held at Montreal on February 26, the report of the directors was a significant one, showing that the company's operations during the past year have been exceptionally successful. The report says:

Applications for assurance were received to the number of 16,516, for $22,901,570.65. The policies actually issued and paid for numbered 12,273, and covered $17,419,054.37, the balance being declined or uncompleted. The total assurances in force at the close of the year now amount to $102,586,238.10 under 78,625 policies. The passing of the hundred million dollar line marks another milestone in the company's progress.

Income Rapidly Increasing

The income continues rapidly to increase and has now reached $6,212,615.02. The assets show the same characteristic, and are now $24,292,692.05, the addition for the twelve months being very close to the even three millions of dollars. During the past five years the assets have more than doubled, and during the past ten years they have almost quadrupled.

Growth in Strength and Profit Earning

But while the growth in size indicated by the preceding items is very gratifying, the growth in strength and profit-earning power has been even more marked. The surplus ended during the year was $921,731.24, of which $268,666.97 was distributed in cash to policyholders entitled to participate that year; $367,764.51 was set aside to place the reserves on all policies issued since 1902 on a 3 per cent. basis; and $449,643.56 was added to the undivided surplus. The surplus over all liabilities and capital stock is now $3,226,247.45, which indicates the strength of the company's position and the amplitude of the provision for those policies whose time for participation has not yet arrived.

Liabilities Calculated on Stringent Basis.

The liabilities have been calculated on the Hm. table with 3 1-2 per cent. interest for all policies issued prior to December 31, 1902, and 3 per cent. for those issued since. It should also be noted that the Hm. mortality table in itself calls for heavier reserves than the American table in use in the United States, so that both from the standpoint of the table employed and the rate of interest assumed, the liabilities have been calculated on an unusually stringent basis.

Handsome Current Dividends to Policyholders

Although the increase in the surplus on hand has been great and promises well for future distribution of profits, the dividends actually being paid to our policyholders have kept pace. The steady growth in the profit earnings permitted the company to increase the scale of distribution for the year 1905 beyond that for 1904; and the scale for 1906 in its turn beyond that for 1905. We are pleased to say that the scale which has been adopted for the current year 1907 is again beyond that for 1906. The large earnings have therefore not merely benefited the policyholders by adding to the strength of the company and by increasing the provision for future profits, but also by permitting the distribution to them of remarkably handsome current dividends.

The Insurance Investigation

The most noteworthy feature of the past year in Canadian insurance circles has been the investigation of our life companies by a Royal Commission. The public are already so thoroughly informed in regard to this matter that any detailed reference here is unnecessary. Speaking of our own company, while the commission unquestionably gave the officers an immense amount of additional labor, the results of the inquiry have been very beneficial. The great strength of the company, its profitable investments, the large dividends paid by it to its policyholders, the ample provision for profits on policies not yet participating, and, if we may be pardoned for saying so, the honesty and cleanness in all its business methods, have been brought into the light as never before.

A Most Striking Fact

Possibly the most striking fact brought out was that the company is really much stronger than it has ever claimed to be, having a contingent fund outside its published list of assets, composed largely of bonus stocks obtained in connection with purchases of bonds. This fund is already worth a large sum, and not only adds to the strength of the office but will in time materially increase the payments of profits as the various items are converted into cash.

Men Require Nerve and Blood Tonic.

How Are Your Nerves?

The daily grind of life burns up a man's vitality faster than he renews it.

He gets shaky, starts at trifles, tosses in his sleep, is ready to fly off the handle any minute.

The nervous man is nervous because his blood is so thin his nerves are starved to death.

He needs Ferrozone!

Its first action is upon digestion.

It stimulates secretion of gastric juice, ensures perfect digestion, prepares the food so it can be at once assimilated.

Hence the blood is nourished, is fortified, made redder, richer, stronger.

To the whole organism is imparted a vim, endurance and reserve of vigor that the nervous man never knew before.

The restorative power of Ferrozone is marvelous. In a month it will make you feel like new, just as it did Mr. Karl E. Newsome of Rothesay, who writes: "I owe a debt of gratitude to Ferrozone which saved my life after a severe siege of nervous prostration. About a year ago my health gave out. I was in such a weak, irritable condition I couldn't work, and found that three doctors did nothing for me. My druggist recommended Ferrozone as the best preparation for nervous troubles, so I commenced with one tablet at meals. Every box of Ferrozone I took did me more good than the previous one, and it wasn't very long before I was completely cured. Ferrozone braced up my nerves, gave me a strong, healthy constitution, and is certainly a marvelous restorer and tonic."

Orangemens' Day in Havelock

The annual celebration of the 12th July for East Peterborough, will be held in Havelock this year. Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, of Belmont, is chairman of the managing committee, and Mr. R. J. Graham of town, is the secretary.

Candidates Advanced in the I.O.O.F.

The local brethren of the triple links are being kept busy. At a joint meeting of Peterborough and Otonabee Lodges, I.O.O.F., Thursday night the first, second and third degrees were conferred on a number of candidates. About a hundred were in attendance, including Oddfellows from Lakefield, Pontypool and other

New C.P.R. Local Train

It was yesterday rumored that on May 1st, the C.P.R. will place an extra train on the Havelock-Toronto division. The train will leave Havelock early in the afternoon. This will enable Peterborough people to go to Toronto and reach that city early in the afternoon and do their shopping and return early.

Peterboro Horses for Toronto

Mr. W. Dunnon yesterday afternoon shipped to Toronto a number of horses that will no doubt bring good prices when placed on sale. There were eighteen in the lot and they were as fine a lot of horses as has left Peterborough for a long time. They were mainly heavy horses and were purchased in the vicinity of the city.

Mr. Cressman's Artistic Windows

Mr. A. W. Cressman, the George St. drygoods man yesterday had on exhibition one of the best dressed display windows ever seen here. The window was a combination of roses, well arranged, whilst the other window was dressed in keeping with St. Patrick's Day. The material used in the other is pure Irish linenumid which the Shamrock is conspicuously displayed.

Peterboro's Streets are Better

People may talk about the state of Peterborough's streets, but at them reserve their superlupous adjectives for a trip to Toronto, or what was formerly called "Muddy York." Peterborough's streets are gold paved, swept by loose feathers from angels' wings and kept in order by the grasp and work of unseen myriads of celestial philanthropists, when compared with many of the streets of Hogtown.

Street Crossings are Scandalous

If the local authorities would pay as much attention to the street crossings as they do to the pavements, many a woman would get home with dry skirts when, under existing circumstances they now arrive at their homes with wet petticoats and skirts dangling round their l——, we mean feet. The crossing at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets, involves a display of ankles, every time a lady passes that spot through two or three inches of filthy water.

Grants to East Peterboro

In the estimates of the Dominion Government for this year, the east riding seems to have been well looked after. This riding gets the following grants:

Belmont township	$600
Oak Lake Road	300
Burleigh and Anstruther	700
Chemong	500
Stoney Lake and Norwood	300
Total	$2300

The Knock-out Blow.

The blow which knocked out Corbett was a revelation to the prize fighters. From the earliest days of the ring the knock-out blow was aimed for the jaw, the temple or the jugular vein. Stomach punches were thrown in to worry and weary the fighter, but if a scientific man had told one of the old fighters that the most vulnerable spot was the region of the stomach, he'd have laughed at him for an ignoramus. Dr. Pierce is bringing home to the public a parallel fact; that the stomach is the most vulnerable organ out of the prize ring as well as in it. We protect our heads, throats, feet and lungs, but the stomach we are utterly indifferent to, until disease finds the solar plexus and knocks us out. Make your stomach sound and strong by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you protect yourself in your most vulnerable spot. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures "weak stomach," indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, bad, thin and impure blood and other diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" has a specific curative effect upon all mucous surfaces and hence cures catarrh, no matter where located or what stage it may have reached. In Nasal Catarrh it is well to cleanse the passages with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while using the "Discovery" as a constitutional remedy. Why the "Golden Medical Discovery" cures catarrhal diseases, as of the stomach, bowels, bladder and other pelvic organs will be plain to you if you will read a booklet of extracts from the writings of eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients and explaining their curative properties. It is mailed free on request. Address Dr. R.V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. This booklet gives all the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines from which it will be seen that they contain not a drop of alcohol, pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead.

Mr. E. H. Turner Has Passed Away

Word was received here yesterday that Mr. E. H. Turner, a brother of Messrs Marshall and Leslie Turner, of this city, and also a former resident of Peterborough, had passed away in Rochester, N.Y. Death was due to typhoid fever, from which deceased had suffered for a few days. Mr. Turner is survived by a wife, three daughters, four sisters and five brothers. During his residence in Peterborough, Mr. Turner conducted the Peterborough Music store, and was well known and highly respected here. He was about 42 years of age.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

REPORT OF THE DIRECTORS

The Thirty-seventh Annual Report for the year which ended on December 31st, 1906, together with the Financial Statement, is herewith submitted:—

INSURANCE ACCOUNT.—The new business for the year amounted to 5,026 policies, for $5,503,547. Adding 43 revived policies for $57.09?, the total new issue and revived for the year was $5,565,639. All of this, except $46,000 written in Newfoundland, was obtained within the Dominion of Canada.

The total amount of business in force was $46,912,407.58 under 20,985 policies, showing a net addition for the year of $2,714,453.

INCOME.—The income for the year amounted to $2,073,423.13, being for premiums, $1,604,581.74; interest and rents, $464,646.98; profit from sale of real estate, $3,194.41.

Death claims, $127,975.50; matured endowments, $158,486; purchased policies, $83,667.47; surplus, $83,947.55, and annuities, $10,645.63. While the death claims were somewhat in excess of the previous year, the ratio to the amount expected was only 53 per cent., an extremely favorable experience.

THE EXPENSES AND TAXES were $338,717.40, being $10,224.36 less than 1905, and only 16.3 per cent. of the total income.

Mortgages, $5,013,647.45; debentures and bonds, $3,429,025.49; loans on our own policies, $1,129,517.25; premium obligations, $25,786.28; real estate, $900.26; Company's head office building, $90,875.79; cash on hand and in the banks, $277,062.58. The due and deferred premiums, less cost of collection, $286,981.81, and the interest due and accrued, $197,712.83, bringing the total assets up to $10,385,539.84, being an increase of $1,089,447.60 over 1905.

The policy of the Company in regard to investments has been maintained, and it will be observed that nearly all our assets are invested in mortgages on real estate, municipal debentures and bonds, and loans on policies. Our debentures and bonds are taken into account at net cost, though their market value is a sum largely in excess of it.

No losses were made on investments in 1906, and, so far as can be foreseen, none are anticipated.

The balance of real estate acquired by foreclosure in former years was disposed of during the year at a profit. Only one small parcel, valued at $900, remains.

Interest payments were again very well met, the amount outstanding at the end of the year being only $17,056.76. A large portion of this fell due during the closing days of the year, and has since been paid. Some of the arrears are due on western loans, where borrowers were unable to market their grain. It is to be regretted that the elevator and railway facilities are not adequate to the demands in the West, so as to enable farmers to realize upon their year's crops within a reasonable time after harvest. Great hardship has ensued in many instances from this cause, and it is to be hoped that some measure of relief will be afforded, so as to avoid a recurrence of this misfortune.

In the Province of Ontario all mortgage obligations were extraordinarily well paid, the amount in arrear being but trifling. It is noteworthy also to mention that on an investment of $ 855,911 in the City of Winnipeg not one dollar of interest was in arrear.

Your Directors took full advantage of the monetary conditions during the year, and were able to invest the funds promptly and at better rates of interest than heretofore. They were fortunate in securing some choice municipal debentures extending over a long period of years, which will realize a very satisfactory return. Mortgage loans were made at rates of interest considerably in excess of those obtainable in recent years, and the result of these favorable investments is shown in the advance of the average rate earned upon the invested assets, while the benefit therefrom will continue through many years in the future.

The liabilities were ascertained on the Company's standard of valuation, viz., combined experience table mortality with 4 per cent. interest for all business up to January 1st, 1906. From that time to January 1st, 1907, on Institute of Actuaries' table of mortality with 3 1-2 per cent. interest, and thereafter on the same table with 3 per cent. interest. The reserve so computed amounted to $9,063,332.18, and the total liabilities were $9,182,161.26, leaving a surplus over all liabilities of $1,202,378.58. The increase in the surplus over 1905 was $251,377.46, and the total earnings for the year amounted to $725,-225.61. If our liabilities were computed on the Government standard of valuation, the surplus at the close of the year would have amounted to $1,552,-364.26.

The Executive Committee has examined in detail every security included in our assets, and verified the entries relating to them on the Company's books. This committee also from month to month examined and passed all items of expenditure, including death claims and other payments to policyholders.

The Manager, officers and staff continue to discharge their respective duties to the satisfaction of the Board, and in the best interests of the Company.

On behalf of the Board,
R. MELVIN,
President.

The President, in moving the adoption of the Report, gave a very interesting review of the business for the past year, dealing with some features of the evidence brought out before the Royal Insurance Commission, and emphasizing the fact that this Company came through the ordeal unscathed. In support of the motion Mr. E. P. Clement, K.C., and Mr. Justice Britton spoke eloquently of the success of the Company and its future prospects. The various reports having been adopted, a number of able, thoughtful and enthusiastic speeches were made by prominent policyholders, among whom Mr. L. J. Breithaupt and Dr. McMahon may be mentioned. Mr. T. R. Earl, Superintendent, and several of the Company's agents having spoken, the meeting adjourned.

The scrutineers reported the re-election of Hon. Mr. Justice Britton, F. C. Bruce, J. Kerr Fisken and Geo. A. Somerville.

The Directors met subsequently and re-elected Mr. Robert Melvin President, Mr. Alfred Hoskin, K. C., First Vice-President, and the Hon. Mr. Justice Britton Second Vice-President of the Company for the ensuing year.

(Booklets containing the full Report of the Annual Meeting, including Financial Statements, list of securities held and other important features of the business, are being published, and will in due course be distributed among the policyholders and others interested in the Company).

Cheap Groceries for Sale Today

In order to obtain permanent premises, China Hall has purchased the large and well assorted stock of groceries, etc., of Mr. A. Rountree, No. 394 George street. This stock, which is one of the finest grocery stocks in Peterborough, will, together with the balance of the China Hall stock, be thrown on the market at cost price, commencing March 2 and continuing until both stocks are entirely disposed of, but no longer than the 15th of April, after which date the store will be re-fitted, and opened about May 1, with an entirely new stock of crockery, china, glassware, cut-glass, plated ware, fine china ornaments, etc. China Hall, after that date, will be beyond a doubt one of the finest and most complete china stores in Canada. The China Hall Company.

Times Have Changed

"When I first came to Peterborough, away back in the forties," said an old timer to The Times yesterday, "it was no uncommon sight to see, on the streets on Saturday afternoon, a man jump up, crack his heels together, pop his fists and loudly proclaim himself the best —— man in town. Sometimes his assertion would be questioned, and then there would be a fluster for a few minutes. But it was generally smoothed out in Tom Chambers' or Bill Henthorn's saloon. The trouble rarely cost more than two and sixpence—in 'wet goods.' Those good old days are gone," mournfully remarked the old timer, as he slowly took his departure.

Norwood Personals

Norwood Register says that, Mr. and Mrs. George McConnell, of Peterborough, are visiting at the home of Mr. Robt. McConnell.—Mrs. A. P. Greenbank, and Mr. William Spence of this village, attended the funeral of the late William G. Spence, of Peterborough, on Tuesday.—Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Johnston and daughter, Miss Fern, of Peterborough, and Mrs. Robins of Clarement, are visiting at the home of Mrs. A. Sloane.—Mrs. Finlay, wife of Mr. John Finlay, M.P., had the misfortune to fracture her wrist the other day. She went down cellar to attend to the furnace and fell over some obstacle.—Mr. and Mrs. Mason of Peterborough, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Squire, over Sunday.

Our Grand New Story Opens in This Issue

"With Edged Tools" a Strong Novel by Henry Seton Merriman.

The Times has always tried to give its readers not only the brightest and latest news but also to have a serial by the best authors running from day to day, so that subscribers may not only keep posted in the news of the day but find an intellectual treat in every issue.

Our latest novel the first chapter of which appears in today's Times, is entitled "With Edged Tools," one of Mr. Henry Seton Merriman's brightest productions. Those who have read his other works, "The Sowers," "Roden's Corner," "From One Generation to Another," will appreciate our effort to amuse.

DOUBTS THAT THE SOUL HAS WEIGHT

Chicago Physiological Chemist Says Boston Doctor's Theory is Absurd---Escaping Gases Make Dead Body Lighter.

Chicago, March 18.—"If the soul it has been opened.

has weight, it can never leave the earth, it cannot go to heaven or hell. This fairy story about weighing the soul is an absurdity, pure and simple."

Charles C. Mayo, physiological chemist yesterday took issue with the Boston physician, and made the foregoing assertion with an explanation of the seeming phenomenon discovered in the recent experiment of Eastern investigators.

Mr. Mayo was in his laboratory on Randolph street. His sleeves were rolled up, and he was enveloped in a big rubber apron. A row of test tubes, filled with many colored liquids was within easy reach. The chemist was deep in an experiment.

"Evidently those Boston physicians were prejudiced," said he, laying aside his work. "Otherwise they would not have rushed into print with such an ill-digested observation, the explanation for which is relatively so simple. They just made a sensation out of a natural phenomenon, and probably still are puzzled over their 'wonderful' discovery.

LOSS OF WEIGHT EXPLAINED.

"This point about the loss of weight in a body after death was settled years ago by a little group of German students.

"They had a number of theories, so they decided to experiment. They put a mouse in a marmetically sealed bottle. The mouse was allowed to die. The mouse and bottle were weighed before and after death, and there was not one milligram difference in weight.

"The weighing was done with a scale that easily would have shown the difference of a milligram (1-448000 of a pound).

"They then let a mouse die in an open vessel, and a clear loss within one-half minute after death of ten to twenty milligrams was noticeable. It proved clearly that a 'gas was given off after death. It is the same way with the human body. While it lives the red blood corpuscles and tissue hold oxygen gas, carbonic acid gas, and other vapors in perfect solution.

RED CORPUSCLES THE AGENT.

"While in solution they can be weighed. But the moment gases assume their natural form as gases they are absolutely without weight. So in the human body these gases are in perfect solution before death, but the moment the body dies the red blood corpuscles die with it, and they no longer can hold the oxygen, carbonic acid, and probably other gases which never have been discovered.

"But suppose for a moment the soul to weigh from one-half to one ounce. It then must be a substance which never in eternity can leave the earth. Nothing that has weight ever can get away from the earth's atmosphere. It may float above as a gas, but it cannot get away. All gases weigh something. There is one-twentieth of an ounce of weight for a quart of air. Anyone can make the experiment with a bottle of soda water, weighing it before and after it has been opened.

"If men have souls mice have. That always has been the presumption in scientific experiment. The experiment performed by the Boston physicians should be repeated and the nature of the escaping gas settled beyond a doubt. If the soul weighs something it is therefore a physical thing subject solely to the laws of nature and nothing else. It forever will be held by the earth's attraction."

THIS CITY'S ADVANCE

PRESENT POPULATION MUST INCREASE.

What Changes Peterboro Has Seen Since 1837.

On Saturday evening several of Peterborough's oldest citizens were gathered in a private residence discussing over a glass or so of ale the past history of this city.

One of them, a retired merchant recalled how in the year 1837 the year of the late revered Queen Victoria's coronation that there were only four large general stores in Peterborough, including that of the late Mr. Nicholls, and two, Perry & Company's, a branch of a Cobourg establishment and Crawfurds', a branch of a shop in Port Hope.

Many of the goods sold in these stores came from Cobourg and Port Hope, orders only being placed once or twice a year in Montreal.

In those days, although wood was plentiful and cheap, people did not often let their fires go out at night, and there were no matches and it was no light job, of a frosty morning, with blue numb fingers to raise a light with flint and steel. Tallow candles, of home make, constituted the sole source of house and store illumination. In that year there were but two monthly English mails, these being brought to New York or Boston in sailing ships.

This venerable citizen noted that people came from distant points to trade and sell their grain and other farm products, as Peterborough had one of the richest markets in Upper Canada; the single struggling street would in that comparitively remote age, be lined with farmers' rigs, waiting their turn to trade.

The only way then, if one wished to make the long, and formidable trip from Peterborough to Montreal, was to take wagon to Cobourg, and thence by boat to Kingston, transferring at that town to another steamer for Prescott, and thence to Montreal. This trip was considered good if made in four days. The only way of reaching Port Hope, was by rough roads per lumber wagon. The coach line from Peterborough to the front, as well as that plying between Toronto and Montreal, was owned by the late Mr. William Weller of Cobourg, father of Judge C. A. Weller, of this city.

In that period of Peterborough's history granolithic pavements were an unthought of luxury, people being in the habit of walking along the middle of the street, until some bright genius suggested digging a ditch along the side of George St., and throwing the gravel dug up to the side of the street, thus making a walkway.

It will make the mouths of some of our readers, whose noses have acquired an alcoholic sunset tint, water to learn that whiskey, and good (sic) at that, cost only ten cents per quart. Every man having a "bee" or gathering of his friends to assist in cutting wood, fencing, etc., used to simply furnish a pailful of whiskey, frequently replenished, with a dipper for the free and general use of all present.

On the east side of George street, but one log house graced the view, between Simcoe and Hunter streets, it being occupied by Mr. Richard Winch. Just across George street a market garden was situated. Had people foreseen the coming prosperity of Peterborough, they would have put their money into George street real estate (as property now sold at scores of dollars per foot, could readily be bought then at as many dollars an acre. Those fine old pines to the north of St. John's church, are remnants of a continuous pine forest covering all the ground north of Hunter street, to the Otonabee. In view of the vast changes made in Peterborough's growth and prosperity in these comparatively few years, lies the history of a hardy industrious and intelligent class of sturdy Canadians, who had faith in the future of Peterborough, and whose example is well worth attention to the rising generation, many of whom will doubtless live to see this city double in population in the next decade.

Ald. Tovey's Bill as Seen Elsewhere

London Advertiser on Peterboro's Taxes for Confirmed Bachelors.

Adverting to Ald. Tovey's novel proposed by-law, whereby the city revenue would be increased, and men with a surplus of self over willingness to increase Canada's census, by the simple plan of taxing confirmed batchelors, the London Advertizer has the following, in part;

A Peterborough alderman has acquired fame by suggesting a novel proposition as a means of relieving that city from its financial position. His scheme is that a tax be imposed upon batchelors. The alderman proposes that the impost be made a heavy one, ranging from $20 to $120 a year, the higher figure for batchelors between the ages of 30 and 35 years, and the lower one for hardened old chaps between 50 and 60.

The idea is one that will no doubt find favor amongst all classes of society, except the bachelors themselves; indeed, it would not be difficult to find those who would be in favor of the bachelors paying all the taxes or for that matter. The result of the adoption of such a policy would have the effect of causing a stampede amongst the celebates, driving some out of the country, and those whose affairs compelled them to remain in the land of matrymdom into the ranks of the benedicts. There is reason to suspect that it is really this latter the Peterborough alderman aims at, for his scheme makes the tax a monthly one, evidently to enable the bachelor to change his state at short notice.

THE COMPETITION IS OVER

MORE NAMES SUBMITED FOR STEAMER.

Announcement as to Name for Palatial New Steamer Will be Made in a few Day.

Seldom has more general interest been taken over anything in this city of late than that in evidence regarding the competition over choice of a name for the large and handsome twin screw steamer, now on the stocks and being built for the Otonabee Navigation Company on their property in the East Ward. This boat, which is some 200 feet longer than the City of Peterborough, will be the staunchest and best equipped on the Trent Canal System.

The competition for choice of a name closed at midnight Friday. Several submitting names shoved their letters under The Times office door late Friday night, and others posted letters Friday night, which, in fairness to those keeping the rules laid down for the competition, could not be used.

In addition to the names already published in these columns at various times during the past month, the following were received in time for participation in the contest:

Mrs. James Dolan Laid to Rest

Relatives From Chicago, Columbus, and Other Outside Places Attend the Funeral.

The last mortal remains of Mrs. James Dolan, who passed away last week at Cloyne Park, eight miles from Chicago, were laid to rest in the Roman Catholic cemetery.

The funeral was held about 8.30 in the morning from Mr. H. LeBrun's residence to St. Peter's cathedral, where Rev. Father McColl conducted the service and thence to the cemetery. The bearers were, Messrs. Louis LaPlante, H. LeBrun, John Mooney, John Corkery, Martin Connors, and Bernard Morrow.

Mr. James Dolan as noted in Saturday's issue, went to Chicago, last week, but unfortunately did not arrive in time to see his wife alive. He was accompanied on the sad return trip by Messrs. Robert E., and Edward K. Dolan, of Chicago, James jr., of Columbus, O.; Thos. Herman, of Chicago sons of the deceased, and Miss Marguerite of the Kankakee, Ill. convent, a daughter of Mrs. Dolan. Mrs. Dolan's eldest daughter, formerly Miss Daisy, but now known as Sister St. Ambrose of Cornwall, was unfortunately unable to attend the obsequies. Two former Peterborough residents, Messrs. Thos. Dunn and Jas. J. Sheehy, both of Chicago, were at the depot in that city, to see the funeral party leave.

Among others besides these noted, to mourn Mrs. Dolan's loss are her sister, Ernestine LeMay of Gracebridge, and her brother Leopold Le May.

Among the many floral tributes sent to the residence of the late Mrs. Dolan, Chicago, were handsome wreaths sent by the "Hub" one of Chicago's largest drygoods establishments, of which Mr. Bert Dolan has been buyer and one from Messrs. R. Lazarus of Columbus, where Mr. Jas. Dolan, jr., occupies an important position.

The Messrs. Dolan on Saturday, requested The Times to convey an expression of their gratitude to several persons for great kindness displayed and duly appreciated in the time of their trouble. Mr. Fred Chicoine, head buyer of the Hub, Chicago, with whom Mr. Bert Dolan is associated, and who has always been almost a parent to the latter, and taught him the business, and for the family in Chicago what a father could, sparing neither time nor expense. Also to Mr. W. Hanlon, upstown C.P.R. ticket agent of this city, the Messrs. Dolan wish to convey their thanks. Mr. Hanlon on ascertaining that the party had left Chicago, at once telegraphed to all important points along the route, so that they received every courtesy from the railway officials. Mr. Hanlon to prevent any trouble by a possible misconnection by the train at Toronto, arranged to have the Toronto—Peterborough train held there thirty minutes to ensure a through connection.

Exoursion to Ottawa via Canadian Pacific Ry.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"Shadows of the Past"

This is a pretty comedy-drama in four acts, replete with varied human emotions. Saturday matinee and night's presentation at the Grand Opera House, were characterized by the presence of thoroughly appreciative audiences. Julia Gray, in the leading role of Delia Morley, is charmingly adaptable to the emotional versatility demanded by her character. Edna Earl Andrews as Dora Strong, a good in refined comedy, in which she is acceptably supported by J. H. Hawkins as Adolphus Bond. Frederick Loomis, in the double role of Joseph Morley, the drink-crazed husband, and Angus Morley, the exemplary son, presents a considerable histrionic talent, his interpretation of the former character is appallingly lifelike. The remainder of the cast is suitably balanced to the requirements of the piece, which in the hands of this company proves an interesting dramatic offering calling for no small measure of commendation.

"Shadows of the Past" is very exquisitely and naturally staged.

Havelock Prisoner Escapes from Arrest

Stolen Goods Found in a Fence Corner at Havelock.

The Havelock Standard says that Mr. F. C. McMaster has recovered the greater portion of the goods stolen from his store on the morning of the 22nd inst. The goods were found in a corner of a fence at the northeast end of the town, through information secured privately. Two arrests were made on Monday, but the youth upon whom the strongest suspicion rested, escaped from the back door as the constable entered the front door. Shortly afterward he was seen to leave town.

The other prisoner was released later on, from lack of any incriminating evidence.

Wheeling, W. Va., March 17.—Eight persons are known to have lost their lives in the fire that occurred in the plant of the Warwick Pottery Co. in the flooded district early yesterday. They were, with the exception of Watchman Holmes, all Syrians, and were drowned by leaping into the flood.

NOT A BASE FOR A WAR ON BRITISH AFRICA

Von Buelow Says the Statements of Socialist Paper Regarding German Colonies are a Contemptible Calumny.

Berlin, March 18.—The greater part of Thursday's sitting of the Reichstag was occupied with two speeches—the first from Herr Bebel, declivered in his best style, and the secondby the Imperial Chancellor, delivered in anything but his best style.

The House was extremely full and much curiosity was felt regarding the manner in which the Socialist leader would address the Reichstag after the signal defeat of his party at the elections. The worries and fatigues of the elections seem to have had no evil effects on Herr Bebel. He was as eager for battle as ever, in admirable voice, keen at seizing points, and fortified as ever with an apparently inexhaustible array of disagreeable facts with which to batter his enemies. His chief concern was to hold up the Conservatives and National Liberals to ridicule, and incidentally he said some very gracious things about the Clericals, which were greeted with loud laughter on the Right benches.

Prince Buelow entered the House when Herr Bebel was half through his speech. At once the Socialist orator turned the vials of his wrath on the Chancellor, who composedly took notes. Herr Bebel was very severe on the part which the Chancellor took in the elections, and when turning to Count Buelow's speech of Monday, examined it in depth, and combatted his assertion that the Socialists were the party of negation. "We may be beaten for a time," he said in conclusion, "but to the Social Democrats belong the future."

"We shall make good our losses at the next elections," he declared amidst laughter. "The votes of the Centre and Social Democrats will then outnumber by a million those of the whole Hottentot Bloc."

Prince von Buelow then addressed the Reichstag. He said: "Herr Bebel has been endeavoring to gloss over the defeat of his army. Beaten generals are either silent—that is the most dignified course—or else they commit suicide, or show a loquacity which only makes an impression on their immediate followers. The defeat of Social Democracy at the polls was a well-earned punishment for its previous ribaldomontade.

"The defeat of the Socialists was, moreover, a punishment for the absolutely unheard-of truculence of the Socialist press, which, like Voltaire, malignantly persecutes everything noble. Born of hate, that press could but end by adopting the tone of swineherds.

"The assertion of the Vorwaerts that we only cling to South-west Africa in order to make it a starting point for the conquest of the British possessions in South Africa is a contemptible calumny. (Loud cheers. Uproar on the Social Democratic benches.) Such intentions never existed and never will exist. For anyone to try to set foreign countries against us by such lies I can only describe as abominable. Such lies have caused the result of the elections to be regarded here and there abroad as a menace to peace, while in reality the justifiable hopes of continued peace and good relations with all the powers were thereby strengthened and confirmed."

GREAT OPPORTUNITIES

SMELTERS ARE NEEDED IN COBALT.

Such Plants are Sure to Make Good Incomes.

That Cobalt, Canada's greatest source of mineral wealth, is now producing tons upon tons of virgin silver is well known throughout the world. One drawback to mine owners in that district is the necessity for shipping the silver-laden ore to smelters in the United States, thus involving much delay, and cost in freight, etc.

The German-Canadian Smelting and Refining Co., Limited, whose president is Mr. Geo. W. Monk, ex-M.P., has been formed for the exclusive purpose of smelting and refining Cobalt ores. This company under their charter has also the right to acquire and operate mines. They have secured on very advantageous terms the smelting and refining plant of the Lake Superior Corporation at Sault Ste. Marie, which possesses an enormous volume of power and is specially adapted to the proposed work. This smelter has a capacity of some 375 tons per day. The company has secured exclusive control of the Schneeburg process for Canada, a secret process controlled by the German Government.

A German syndicate has been allotted 250,000 shares in consideration of the Schneeburg privileges, and the company is now offering 500,000 shares for sale for expansion of the company's business. The first block of this stock, 150,000 is now offered at $1.25 per share, 20 per cent. to accompany subscription and the balance payable after 15 days. For full particulars write to Anderson Bros., Traders' Bank Building, Toronto.

Free Passage for Y. M. C. A. Members

London, March 16.—In the Commons yesterday Winston Churchill stated he had no knowledge of local negotiations between Australia and Canada. He also saw no prospect of obtaining the views of colonial premiers as to the extent they regarded the expenditure on armaments as necessary to their protection.

The SS. Vancouver sailed with 800 Salvation Army emigrants today, and quite a throng marked the departure.

Sir Henry Rubin, first untonsured publican, received many congratulations from his friends in Canada.

Lord Tennyson has announced he will emigrate a part of deserving Y. M.C.A. members at his own expense.

Sir Girouard visited the Prince and Princess of Wales before departing for Nigaria today.

Blame Public for the Slump

Chicago, March 16.—Characterizing the slump in the stock market as a New York affair, and declaring that the agitation relative to the railroads has had little to do with the Wall street panic, Chicago bankers yesterday asserted that they were not troubled over the outlook, and that Chicago and the Middle West would be in no wise affected.

There was manifest among the banks no alarm or misgivings. The consensus of opinion was that the rate for money in Chicago, 6 per cent., would not be likely that there are millions in reserve here which can be utilized, and that the country is unusually prosperous. One other idea of especial interest also was expressed.

James H. Eckels, President of the Commercial National Bank, is one of the financiers who looked on the situation with some pessimism. He claimed, however, that there is too much agitation, and that the railroads are being unnecessarily assailed.

James B. Forgan, president of the First National Bank, said he felt that the wave of antagonism against the railroads may have had as much to do with the stock market slumps as any other single influence.

Goderich Magistrate Crushes Skull in Fall

Goderich, March 17.—A distressing accident occurred last evening, resulting in the death of Charles A. Humber, one of Goderich's most estimable citizens.

In carrying a heavy article down a flight of stairs Mr. Humber accidentally fell headlong to the bottom, fracturing his skull and causing concussion of the brain. As the deceased was working alone in the house it was not till some time after the accident occurred that his delayed returned home caused anxiety, when on search being made he was found unconscious on the cellar floor.

For years he served as councillor and latterly discharged the duties of police magistrate. He stood high in Masonic circles, filling high offices in Maitland Lodge No. 33, Huron Chapter No. 30, St. Elmo Preceptory No. 22, and with several degrees in the Scottish Rite.

Besides his wife Mr. Humber leaves a large family, residing in different parts of the United States and Canada. Deceased was an ardent worshipper at the Methodist church, and in politics was a staunch supporter of the Liberal party.

ENJOY EATING

Good Digestion Can be Readily Gained With Mi-o-na Stomach Tablets.

It is torment to look upon a tempting dinner and realize that to eat freely means distress and suffering.

Let us tell you how you can enjoy eating, so that the heartiest meals will set well and cause no pain, distress or uncomfortable feeling of fullness.

If you cannot eat and enjoy three good, hearty, satisfying meals a day without any feeling of discomfort, your stomach is weak and needs the strength which Mi-o-na stomach tablets will give it. You cannot afford to delay treatment for the longer you allow the digestive organs to be weak, the harder it will be to get help.

The remarkable curative and strengthening power of Mi-o-na is attested by the guarantee, given with very 50 cent box.

If you find that eating well-cooked and properly chewed food is followed by heaviness and loud on the stomach, by bloating, by gulping of acids and wind, by distress, nervousness, headache, trouble to sleep, or by any other symptoms of disordered or weak stomach, you should begin the use of Mi-o-na at once.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50c box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50c.

Write today for a free sample package, and also give us your symptoms, and one of the best known stomach specialists will give your case his careful and personal attention without charge. Booth's Mines Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

The need for a Canadian smelter for Cobalt ores has been manifested from the time when the first great discoveries were made in the Cobalt district. Present smelting facilities in the United States are inadequate, and freight rates and charges are so high that only the highest grade ore can be shipped with profit.

The above strong Canadian company has been formed for the exclusive purpose of smelting and refining Cobalt ores. Under the Ontario Mining Act it also enjoys the right to acquire and operate mines.

The company has closed a very advantageous lease of the Smelting and Refining Plant of The Lake Superior Corporation at Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, which carries with it a service of 1000 horse-power twenty-four service electric energy per annum. They have also contracted for the exclusive use of the famous and world-renowned Schneeburg process for smelting cobalt and nickel ores, which reduces ores with a loss of only one per cent. The Schneeburg process is a secret ore, controlled by the German Government, and has been in use in Saxony over three hundred years, and is in fact the only known process which smelts Cobalt ores successfully and at the same time retains all of the bye-products. Ores in Saxony average only 3 1-2 per cent. None of the ore mined in Cobalt runs as low grade as this, and the establishment of this smelter will make valuable thousands of tons of ore now lying on the dump.

The Sault Smelter now in the possession of the company, and which has been leased by the company, will rapidly be adapted to the new process, has a capacity of 375 tons per day, and this will, in all probability, be shortly increased. The large tonnage of cobalt and nickel mines of Sudbury district will crowd present capacity to the limit.

Of the capital stock 250,000 shares have been allotted to the German syndicate in consideration of the exclusive right to the Schneeburg process, 250,000 shares are retained in the treasury, and will be sold only for expansion of the company's business, and with first right of purchase to present shareholders. The balance, 500,000 shares of treasury stock is to be offered to the public.

20 PER CENT. TO ACCOMPANY SUBSCRIPTION AND THE BALANCE ON CALL AFTER 15 DAYS.

Remember, this company did not have to spend anything for plant or building. It has the exclusive use of the famous Schreeburg process, which quadruples the earning power of the ordinary smelter, it is capitalized at a reasonable amount, thus safeguarding the interests of its shareholders. The plant should be ready for operation in ninety days.

Are You Often Bilious?

Read This and Learn How to Prevent Attacks.

Biliousness is merely a term applied to a condition that exists when the body is over-loaded with bile.

Biliousness has two great causes, constipation and defective liver action.

When Dr. Hamilton's Pills are taken they not only correct the bowels, but act directly on the liver, regulating its bile secretion.

Unlike ordinary medicines which purge and give temporary relief. Dr. Hamilton's Pills remove the condition which causes biliousness; thus permanent cures are effected.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills do cure biliousness and liver ills under all circumstances.

We prove this by the statement of Mr. Fenwick Luddington, of New Harbor, N.S., who writes: "Three months ago I had no expectation of ever getting free from periodical bilious attacks. They were preceded by dizziness and dreadful headaches. If I stooped over my head would swim and a nauseous feeling crept into my stomach.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills fixed up my liver, drove all the bile out of my blood and made me a well man in a few months. Today I enjoy a good appetite, excellent digestion, and the best of health. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills today. Sold by all dealers; 25c per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn, U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

THE CRAZE FOR PHYSICAL PROWESS

Dr. Woods Hutchinson, the well-known authority on athletics, protests against the modern craze for physical prowess. Up to a certain point physical exercise is necessary to the well-being of the body, but beyond that point it is inimical to health. He deprecates the tendency toward over-indulgence in physical culture, and makes a strong plea for moderation in outdoor sports, games, gymnasium work and daily labor. He presents statistics to corroborate his contention that athletes are a short lived class; he also shows the the life of the farmer is not so healthy as is popularly imagined. In fact, the athlete and the farmer may be compared as abusers of muscular force. The athlete puts too great a strain on his frame in contests; the farmer works too hard and too many hours at a time during the spring and summer, and too little, by contrast, during the fall and winter. The man who desires to keep in health and to have life life prolonged, says Dr. Hutchinson, should avoid extremes in everything. He should not work too hard, nor play too hard, nor exercise too hard. He should work regularly and leisurely, never forcing himself unduly at any particular moment of the day or at one season of the year. He should never work or exercise each day beyond the power of the body to recover during the remaining hours. This is the doctrine of common sense. Men who work hard in offices all day imagine they must exercise half the evening in order to keep the body in health, whereas, in truth, they are overexerting the vital organs, and overtaxing the muscles. Eventually the strain becomes too great, and something must give way.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Two servant girls of Guildford (England) the other day threw the dice at the town hall for the "maid's money" left by the will of John How, thrice mayor of the town over two hundred years ago. The will provided that the proceeds of certain property should be given annually to the maid servant who threw the highest number with two dice, she being of good repute and having been in service in the borough, but not in a tavern, for more than two years. Unsuccessful candidates are allowed three further chances. Miss Cadman, with a six and a half years' record, threw two sixes from the ancient box, and Miss Emmie Turner, with an eight years' record, threw a six and a three, the former thus winning about $65.

Indebted to Primeval Life.

London, March 16.—Miss Martha Craig, lecturing at Edinburgh on the experiences and observations gained by her voyage to Labrador, claimed that they have proved her theory that the aurora borealis emanates from the ground. She said from her psychological experiences in the solitudes of Labrador forests, she came to the conclusion that great composers had carried their thoughts subconsciously from the time they lived in primeval forests, that man, in fact, had drawn his highest and purest aspirations from primeval life.

Roseberry Beaten By Lord Curzon

London, March 16.—Lord Curzon, of Kedleston, ex-Viceroy of India, was selected chancellor of Oxford University yesterday by 1,111 votes against 430 cast for Lord Rosebery.

Hitherto in the history of the university chancellors had always been chosen without a contest. Although much influential pressure was exerted to persuade Lord Rosebery to accept the nomination, there was some adverse criticism of his acceptance in the face of the almost certain election of Lord Curzon, who is a Conservative, on the ground that it gave the contest a political aspect. Lord Rosebery being a Liberal.

The polling was held in the Sheldonian Theater yesterday evening, and a constant succession of trains brought eminent voters from all parts of the country—peers, members of the House of Commons, archbishops, and bishops and other men who had attained prominence in all professions—the contest exciting the keenest interest.

HOWE'S PROPHECY.

Great Nova Scotian's Peep Into Transportation Problem Has Been Fulfilled to the Very Letter.

At a large meeting of the Toronto Canadian Club recently the speaker was Hon. H. R. Emmerson, Minister of Railways and Canals. His subject was "Some Results of a Prophecy on Transportation." Among the guests was Justice Longley of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia.

The first man to discuss transportation in Canada was a Scot—Andrew Fairburn—and had not the infamous Ashburton treaty transferred the route of his proposed railroad to the United States he would doubtless have gone on with its construction, said Mr. Emmerson in commencing his address. However, in 1850 the idea took life again, when Hon. Joseph Howe, the great Nova Scotia poet, author and statesman, conceived building a line between Halifax and the inland cities of Nova Scotia. He and others secured a loan from the British Government of £7,000,000 sterling. "This railway will promote these struggling colonies into prosperous states. Millions of industrious people will flock into these provinces in search of cheap land and work. I believe that many in this room will live to hear the whistle of the steam engine in the passes of the Rocky Mountains, and to make the journey from Halifax to the Pacific in five or six days."

Every word of this prophecy had come true, said Mr. Emmerson. The Intercolonial Railway became the chief corner-stone of the federation agreement. Each province had been a little kingdom before Maine and the New England States had been nearer to the Maritime Provinces than was Upper Canada. Ontario was like a foreign country to them. The railway altered all this. It diverted the traffic and brought the provinces closer together.

"Do not complain that the Intercolonial has never had a balance on the right side," said Mr. Emmerson. "It is the Intercolonial which has made it possible for the Toronto and Ontario merchants to find markets for their goods among the fishermen of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

"The Intercolonial has made dividends, but they are to be found in the pockets of the Ontario merchants, not in the treasury of the Government. You cheerfully pay millions for the widening of the St. Lawrence; you ask for a Trent Valley Canal and the deepening of the Welland, because you know that these are necessary for the development and expansion of the country, yet you cry out because the poor little Intercolonial doesn't pay the Government a surplus.

"Transportation affects all commodities. The freight tolls on the Intercolonial are the lowest on any railway in the world, and before many days I will prove that it is also the most economically managed in the world. The Conservatives are not the only offenders. When the Conservatives were in power the Liberals were as hyaena-like and unreasonable in their attacks as are the Conservatives to-day.

"If the Intercolonial had charged rates on the same basis as the C.P.R., they would have had a surplus last year of over $100,000.

"The Intercolonial has had a mission. It has fulfilled that mission. It has bound Canada together. It is the greatest national asset of Canada today, and a realization of Jos. Howe's prophecy to a Toronto audience in 1851."

Fall of Crimson Snow.

In a letter the Canadian Pacific agent at Glacier, in the Rocky Mountains, reports the unusual phenomenon of crimson snow having fallen in that region of the lofty ranges. This is not the first time such an occurrence has been observed in the Rockies, but the manifestation is apparently very early.

No satisfactory explanation has been advanced as to its cause. The snow coloring the mountains with the pronounced red hue over their mantle of white has an extraordinarily weird effect.

The Indians and half-breeds and others susceptible to superstitious forebodings are regarding the visitation as a portent of dire calamity, and are applying themselves with unusual fervor to devotions.

Amongst the explanations put forward to account for the visitation is the theory that it is caused by red volcanic dust from the mountains having been caught up by high winds and held in suspension until brought down by the snow. Another theory is that it is dust of plants, while a third is to the effect that some peculiar manifestation in the chemistry of nature has caused the discoloration of the snow.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine scalds, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Brights or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggist recommend and sell

Knell of the Good Fellow.

From different quarters the "good fellow" is coming in for some hard knocks, in many of which there is a good deal of truth. The Delta Pilot moralizes on him in this fashion:—"Very many men attain a wide reputation within the male circle of their acquaintance of being 'good fellows' when the men themselves know that it is undeserved, and that the term 'bad fellows' would more nearly fit their case. Of course there are hosts upon hosts of men—far more than the world at large knows of—who are in truth good fellows in every sense of the word, but it is a fact, nevertheless, that in numerous instances the designation is applied to men whose only title thereto is won at the cost of disquiet and anxiety at home and among friends and possibly of broken hearts and ruined lives. Viewed from merely the selfish standpoint, a young man cannot afford to be known as a good fellow, as the term is commonly understood, much less to be one. In its proper sense of being an agreeable companion, everyone should endeavor to be such and the first place in which to show this good fellowship is the home."

The best in Cobalt is not too good for you to buy. Try it.
KENNEDY COBALT, Ltd.
is recommended

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. 32. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 15 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 30 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 80 acres of J. B. 32 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 5 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 20 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 80 feet, and in it shows 6 inch nicolilite, 18 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 672-1283-492-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

WEDDING STATIONERY

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENTS are always in order. The season for the final result of being a disciple of Cupid finds expression in the Hymeneal ceremony at the altar—that occasion when "two hearts that beat as one" are joined together—pronounced one.

For this auspicious occasion the printing must be chastely dignified—must be appropriate in appearance to this one time of life when everything "best" is donned—when happiness reigns supremely.

Marriage Announcements
Marriage Invitations
Marriage Reception Cards
Post Nuptial Reception Cards

All of these we are able to supply in a proper form and printed artistically. Our work is conducted under the supervision of skilled typographical mechanics and may be unhesitatingly presented to the most fastidious critic.

Our charges for such work are moderate—yet good printing is ever valuable. However, we give quality for our figures, and an order entrusted to our care will be speedily, carefully and satisfactorily executed.

No work can be well done which has to be done hurriedly. Time is necessary for the accomplishment of faultless printing. We will fulfil all expectations if given ample time for completion.

SYNOPSIS Of CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

With Edged Tools

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN

Copyright, 1894, by HARPER & BROTHERS

Sir John's hand was at his mouth. He stood up his full six feet two and looked hard at his son, whose eyes were level with his own. They were ideal representatives of their school.

"And what do you propose marrying upon? She, I understand, has about eight hundred a year. I respect you too much to suspect any foolish notions of love in a cottage."

Jack Meredith made no reply. He was entirely dependent upon his father.

"Of course," said Sir John, "when I die you will be a baronet, and there will be enough to live on like a gentleman. You had better tell Miss Chyne that. She may not know it. Girls are so innocent. But I am not dead yet, and I shall take especial care to live some time."

"What is your objection?" inquired Jack Meredith after a little pause.

"I object to the girl."

"Upon what grounds?"

"I should prefer you to marry a woman of heart."

"Heart!" repeated Jack, with a suspicion of hereditary cynicism. "I do not think heart is of much consequence. Besides, in this case surely that is my province. You would not have her wear it on her sleeve?"

"She could not do that; not enough sleeve."

Sir John Meredith had his own views on ladies' dress.

"But," he added, "we will not quarrel. Arrange matters with the young lady as best you can. I shall never approve of such a match, and without my approval you cannot well marry."

"I do not admit that."

"Indeed?"

"Your approval means money," explained this dutiful son politely. "I might manage to make the money for myself."

Sir John moved away.

"You might," he admitted, looking back. "I should be very glad to see you doing so. It is an excellent thing—money."

And he walked leisurely away.

CHAPTER III.

JACK had an appointment with Millicent Chyne at half past 11 the next morning—an hour when Lady Cantourne might reasonably be expected to be absent at the weekly meeting of a society.

Jack went into the first jeweler's shop he saw and bought a plain diamond ring. Then he walked on to keep his appointment with his affianced wife.

Miss Millicent Chyne was waiting for him with that mixture of maidenly feelings of which the discreet novelist only details a selection. When Jack Meredith entered the room she was standing near the window, holding back the curtain with one hand and watching, half shyly, for his advent.

What struck her at once was his gravity, and he must have seen the droop in her eyes, for he immediately assumed the pleasant, half reckless smile which the world of London society had learned to associate with his name. She saw the diamond ring and looked upon it with the beautiful emotions aroused by those small stones in the female breast, but she did not seem to recognize her own finger within the golden hoop.

It was at this moment—while she dwelt in this new, unreal world—that he elected to tell her of his difference with his father, and when one walks through a maze of unrealities nothing seems to come amiss or to cause surprise. He detailed the very words they had used, and to Millicent Chyne it did not sound like a real quarrel such as might affect two lives to their very end. It was not important; it did not come into her life, for at that moment she did not know what her life was.

"And so," said Jack Meredith, finishing his story, "we have begun badly—as badly as the most romantic might desire."

"But it will be all right in a day or two, will it not? It is not serious," she said.

"I am afraid it is serious, Millicent." He took her hand with a gravity which made matters worse.

"What is to be done, Jack?" she said, laying her two hands on his breast and looking up pleadingly.

"There are two things," he answered. "The first and the simplest," he went on in the tone of voice which she had never quite fathomed—half cynical, half amused—"is to pretend that last night—never was."

He waited for her verdict.

"We will not do that," she replied softly; "we will take the other alternative, whatever it is."

She glanced up half shyly beneath her lashes, and he felt that no difficulty could affright him.

"The other is generally supposed to be very difficult," he said. "It means—waiting."

"Why?"

"Because I am dependent on my father for everything. We could not marry without his consent."

"But we can surely get that, between us?"

"I propose doing without it."

"Do you know what I should like you to be?" she said, with a bright smile and one of those sudden descents into shallowness which he appeared to like.

"What?"

"A politician."

"Then I shall be a politician," he answered, with loverlike promptness.

"That would be very nice," she said, and the castles she at once began to build were not entirely aerial in their structure.

This was not a new idea. They had talked of politics before as a possible career for himself. They had moved in a circle where politics and politicians held a first place, a circle removed above the glamour of art and wherein bohemianism was not reckoned an attraction.

"But," he said, "it will mean waiting."

"I don't care," she answered.

"Of course," he went on, "I must go away. That is the only way to get on in politics in these days. I must go away and get a specialty. I must know more about some country than any other man, and when I come back I must keep that country ever before the eye of the intelligent British workman who reads the halfpenny evening paper. That is fame—that is politics."

"But you must not go very far," she said sweetly.

"Africa."

"Africa? That does not sound interesting."

"It is interesting. Moreover, it is the coming country. I may be able to make money out there, and money is a necessity at present."

"I do not like it, Jack," she said in a foreboding voice. "When do you go?"

"At once. In fact, I came to say goodby. It is better to do these things very promptly; to disappear before the onlookers have quite understood what is happening. When they begin to understand, they begin to interfere. They cannot help it. I will write to Lady Cantourne, if you like."

"No, I will tell her."

So he bade her goodby, and those things that lovers say were duly said; but they are not for us to chronicle.

CHAPTER IV.

Thomas Oscard had written the finest history of an extinct people that had ever been penned; and it has been decreed that he who writes a fine history and paints a fine picture can hardly be too eccentric. Our business, however, does not lie in the life of this historian—a life which certain grave wiseacres from the west (and) had shaken their heads over a few hours before we find him lying prone

Colors and Seamstresses.

The seamstress, passing her needle through and through the fabric on her lap, said:

"I love to sew white. I love to sew green too. Pinks are easy. So are most of the clear, pale tints. But black! But red! But shepherd's plaid!"

She threw back her head in horror.

"Bright red, when you sew it, inflames your vision, it angers you, it makes you nervous. Black strains the eyes out of your head, the stitches in it are so hard to see. Black is a depressing color too. But worst of all is that combination of black and white called shepherd's plaid. Work on shepherd's plaid an hour or two and the black and white squares will dance under your eyes like living things. Polka dots dance, too," she ended. "They polka; hence the name."

The Childish Voice Too Much.

A good story is told of Signor Foli, the famous basso. Once upon a time he was singing "The Raft," when a childish voice from somewhere in the stalls suddenly piped in and attempted to organise an impromptu duet. Unfortunately the next line of the song was: "Hark! What sound is that which breaks upon mine ear?" This so tickled the fancy of the great vocalist that he burst into a hearty fit of laughter and left the platform, followed by the pianist. Twice they came back and attempted the song, and finally they had to give it up in despair, much to the amusement of the audience.

GOLD BY THE BUSHEL

THE SEARCH FOR GOLD has ever been man's strongest passion. No obstacles have deterred him. Heat and cold, famine and thirst, hardship and exposure alike have failed to conquer the insatiable desire. From the dawn of history, when King Solomon opened up the famous wealth of the mines of Ophir, to the present day, men have sought the yellow metal. Countless lives have been sacrificed, and yet the search goes on.

In the winter of 1900-1901 four miners tottered into the city of Nome, Alaska; their feet and hands black with frostbite; their bodies emaciated almost to skeletons; their eyes sunken. Their dogs had died of starvation and cold; they had abandoned their sleds and provisions; but they staggered under the weight of forty pounds of pure GOLD!

The city buzzed at once with excitement. Where had they found it? To all questions the strangers were dumb. There was one man in Nome, however, who thought he knew a way to locate the new discovery. He had been a friend of the Esquimaux to the North; he spoke their language well; he had relieved their want; and he had spent nearly four years among them. He could talk the "true talk" of these simple natives. That man was ANDREW S. NELSON. Within twelve hours he was speeding North, with a team of six tried dogs and a supply of provisions.

It is needless to recite the hardships he endured in this lonely journey, facing the fierce north wind. Suffice it to say he found an old Esquimau who showed him where the strangers had made their find.

Under the Northern Stars, he drove the stakes which now mark the boundaries of NELSON GULCH MINING CLAIMS.

Three Hundred Dollars in Two Hours

Connected with Mr. Andrew S. Nelson were his father, Major William Nelson, U. S. Army, retired, and Dr. G. M. Morris, an English surgeon. When spring opened up these three men began to test their ground. They found it exceedingly rich, but they were troubled to get water. They tried various schemes, but as their money had nearly run out they could work only on a small scale. Once they were lucky in saving some water with a dam after a rain, and Mr. Nelson and Dr. Morris washed out $500.00 in gold in less than two hours. Numerous tests made over the ground showed the top gravel to run a dollar a cubic yard.

At other times and places from $10.00 to $50.00 were secured from single yards of gravel. Nuggets ranging in value from $1.00 to $47.00 each were found. This is an ancient river bed into which, for ages, the waters have been washing and disintegrating the rock which held the gold.

More than $1,000,000 have been taken by other parties from the gravel which was washed from this Company's ground into the stream below, and they have only just begun work. They expect millions more, and their tests justify their expectation. $150,000 were taken from Old Glory Creek, which is one of its bends swung into the edge of our old river.

Favorable Government Report

In the summer of 1903 the United States Geological Survey sent out an exploring party to cover this ground, under Mr. Fred. H. Moffit. This is a part of his report:

"This small gulch (Nelson Gulch), barely three-fourths of a mile long, leads down from a broad, low saddle in the divide between Old Glory and Inmachuck, and is of interest since it is probably an important factor in the origin of the rich ground just below its mouth on Old Glory."

What is Placer Gold?

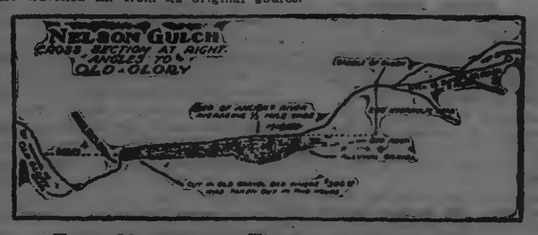
Nowhere on earth have the elements and glaciers worn away the mountains as in Alaska. All the gold in their veins has been carried into river beds, the heavier pieces being deposited nearby, the lighter ones going farther.

Now, it does not take much thought to realize that, as Nelson Gulch is the source of all the gold on the Inmachuck River, the heaviest particles and the greatest amount must be on the Company's ground.

This is further shown by the fact that the gold found there is sharp-cornered and angular. Now, pure gold is very soft, and as it travels down stream it is rubbed against the sand and gravel and the sharp corners worn off. When you find the particles of gold in a river bed are worn and the corners rounded, then you may be sure they have travelled some distance.

The gold in Nelson Gulch is angular and sharp-cornered. Notice what the United States Government Report says on this subject:

"The gold from Nelson Gulch is brighter than that of Old Glory, is rough and angular, and contains considerable quartz, and evidently has not travelled far from its original source."



Three Hundred and Thirty-six Working Days

Although the season for hydaulicking in Alaska is but 140 days, every hour of that 140 days is daylight. For a full month the sun never sets, and during two other months it does not get dark. Therefore, by keeping on three shifts of men, eight hours each, the work does not stop, and we get 336 working days of ten hours each. This is a larger number of hours than the great placer mines of Colorado, Montana or Idaho can work in any one year.

Mr. Andrew S. Nelson is now on the property with a force of men getting everything in readiness for the spring work. We fully expect to have the gold running down our sluice-ways by June.

Gravel Richer as it Goes Down

Everybody knows that in old river beds carrying gold the gravel gets richer as it goes down next to bed rock.

In several places on bed rock this Company's gravel washed at the rate of $50.00 a yard. Of course, it is not all that rich; but suppose we average it at $10.00 a yard; this would make an acre worth $200,000.00!

Railroad, Telegraph and Telephone Lines to the Mines

A railroad is now in operation part way from Nome to Deering, and will be finished through next season. All the above lines will pass very close to this property, and will give us perfect transportation and communication facilities.

During the open season three regular steamers per week between Seattle and Deering, together with the many irregular ones, give us freight rates no greater than those in effect from Kansas City to points in Arizona.

Letter from Major William Nelson, U. S. Army, retired, under date of February 18, 1907:

"Could the public be made to see the property as I know it there would be no trouble in selling stock, for it will prove the best investment anyone could make. Every $100.00 will return at least $5,000.00 to the investor if you can only get it opened up. I feel sure that with thirty days' work you can declare a dividend on the capital."

Our Property

The Company owns fourteen claims of twenty acres each, free and clear of all encumbrances, on the gravel terrace of Nelson Gulch, near the head of the Inmachuck River, Seward Peninsula, Alaska, nearly due north of Nome. Since January 1st three hundred acres more have been added to the Company's holdings.

Mr. J. W. Pickard, a mining engineer of high standing, has been engaged since the spring of 1900 in making tests of the gold-bearing gravels of Seward Peninsula. He represents there a New York Syndicate, which has, through him, secured large holdings. He says of these deposits: "If I were to tell you the values that exist under the tundra (species of heavy bunch grass), you would hardly believe what I tell you. The values are almost beyond computation. I found gravel averaging $4.87 to the cubic yard in one place; in another hole it averaged $3.64; in another $6.10; another showed an average value of $5.00; still another $12.41. To figure out the values in an acre of such gravel produces figures so prodigious as to literally stagger one."

"Mr. W. H. Bond, Paul Denhart and P. T. Nixon have a claim whose pay streak yielded all the way from 20 cents to $3.50 per pan, or $675.00 per yard. A single shift has taken out as much as $35,000.00, and $42,000.00 have been secured in one day's sluicing. Without exaggeration gold by the bushel is being washed from these gravels. The stream of gold constantly pouring into Nome attests this fact, and justifies the prediction of those best informed regarding the conditions existing there, which is that these gravel benches with their wealth of golden deposits will continue to be found on Seward Peninsula after the present generation of miners has been gathered to their fathers: a golden stream will still be pouring from the creeks, hills and tundra fifty years hence, if the promise of the future be but half fulfilled."

Mr. Rex Beach, in The Saturday Evening Post of January 5th, 1907, gives numerous instances of enormous strikes on Seward Peninsula—$75,000.00 in one day! $2,000,000.00 taken from Little Creek in one winter. Two men, in a few weeks, working under difficulties with the crudest machinery, took out $410,000.00.

Mr. Beach is entirely disinterested, being merely a writer and correspondent of The Post.

Inexhaustable Water Supply and only 3 miles of ditch

NEARBY PROPERTIES AMAZINGLY RICH.

Eighty per cent. of the world's gold has been taken from beds of old streams.

One company is building a ditch 62 miles long to bring water from a lake with which to wash the gravel that has been carried from Nelson Gulch down the Inmachuck River. If these washings justify the enormous expense of this ditch, and if $1,000,000.00 have already been secured from them with the crudest methods, how many millions will this property yield?

OUR WATER FACILITIES PERFECT.

An enormous, unfailing hot spring, three miles away, will furnish this Company water enough to handle 5,000 cubic yards of gravel per 24 hours at a cost of less than one cent per yard. Its claims lie close up to the contact between the lime and schist, where all of this gold originates. It is at the fountain-head, and others get only what is washed further on. Its nuggets have sharp points and edges; those found further beyond are worn smooth by the friction of their journey.

Placer Mining the Cheapest

Placer mining is the cheapest and oldest way to mine for gold. We estimate that it will cost us only half of one cent to wash a cubic yard.

Why We Sell Stock

Money is needed to bring water from the hot springs and to provide hydraulic apparatus.

The Board of Directors of Nelson Gulch Mining Company have allotted 200,000 shares of the Treasury stock to be sold at ten cents per share. When this allotment shall have been sold the price of the stock will positively be advanced to 25 cents per share; or, what is more likely, will be withdrawn from the market.

Our gravel beds average 18 feet in thickness. At a dollar a cubic yard this would make $20,000.00 per acre, or over $8,000,000.00 for the entire property. This is certainly an underestimate, because bed-rock gravel will run far higher. We are capitalized at $5,000,000.00, but with ten-cent stock this means a valuation of only $500,000.00 on a property which must certainly run away up in the millions. This is another way of looking at the great value of this investment to you.

Stock Now 10 Cents a Share

Reserve Before the Advance

Write today and reserve your shares at ten cents a share. The next advance will be to 25 cents.

Better still, wire your reservation. There is only a certain allotment for sale; when that is gone the stock is off the market. It is first come, first served.

Men Require Nerve and Blood Tonic.

How Are Your Nerves?

The daily grind of life burns up a man's vitality faster than he renews it.

He gets shaky, starts at trifles, tosses in his sleep, is ready to fly off the handle any minute.

The nervous man is nervous because his blood is so thin his nerves are starved to death.

He needs Ferrozone!

Its first action is upon digestion.

It stimulates secretion of gastric juice, ensures perfect digestion, prepares the food so it can be at once assimilated.

Hence the blood is nourished, is fortified, made redder, richer, stronger.

To the whole organism is imparted a vim, endurance and reserve of vigor that the nervous man never knew before.

The restorative power of Ferrozone is marvelous. In a month it will make you feel like new, just as it did Mr. Karl E. Newsome of Rothesay, who writes: "I owe a debt of gratitude to Ferrozone which saved my life after a severe siege of nervous prostration. About a year ago my health gave out. I was in such a weak, irritable condition I couldn't work, and found that three doctors did nothing for me. My druggist recommended Ferrozone as the best preparation for nervous troubles, so I commenced with one tablet at meals. Every box of Ferrozone I took did me more good than the previous one, and it wasn't very long before I was completely cured. Ferrozone braced up my nerves, gave me a strong, healthy constitution, and is certainly a marvelous restorer and tonic."

A Correction

In our issue of Friday appeared an article referring to Mr. B. Leahy, of Douro, which although handed in to us at night by a responsible citizen, and consequently taken and published in good faith, we find was incorrect. This article intimated that one of Mr. Leahy's horses had been killed by falling into an excavation made by the Gas Company. We find from Mr. Leahy, who by the way is an ex-councillor, that the horse in question did not belong to this gentleman. It is easily to be understood that people handing in news to a paper, particularly at night, and too late for thorough investigation and corroboration are apt to present statements that under other circumstances would be revised and corrected.

Chemong Cottagers Meet This Week

This week a winter meeting of the Chemong Lake Cottagers' Association will be held in the Ontario Bank Chambers to reorganize and elect officers. Mr. W. J. Hopwood will issue the notices in a day or two. Most of the cottagers are anxious to get out to the park early in the season and if arrangements can be concluded with the Peterborough and Chemong auto car company for an early and cheap service for school children, many of them will go out about the middle of May. Everything points towards a most successful season at Chemong, as many people from Rochester, Buffalo, Toronto and other places have signified their intention of spending several months at this beautiful spot.

Last "Pop" of the Season

Mr. F. D. Kerr delivered a very interesting at the last Y.M.C.A. "Pop" on Saturday night. His subject was on "Seeing the British Isles." Misses Beddegham and Clarry and Mr. Duncan Campbell rendered some excellent music.

Mr. J. S. Knapman Returns Home

Mr. J. S. Knapman has returned from a long business trip, away beyond Sherbrooke, Que., when he was buying poles for the Bell Telephone Co. This gentleman expresses a high opinion of Sherbrooke, which has a population of some 14000, and is a live and progressive little city.

City Council Meets Tonight

The City Council will hold its usual weekly meeting tonight. Representatives of the Ottonabee Power Company will wait upon the council. The building bylaw, if it is to come into force this season, will also have to be passed soon, and the council will discuss it also. The ward changes may also be considered.

Mr. Stephen Payne Has Resigned

Mr. Stephen Payne, the well known market gardener, has sold out his property in North Monaghan and has purchased a residence on Harvey street, where he will reside in future. Although Mr. Payne is well up in the 80's he looks like a man of 60, and his many friends trust that he will enjoy many years of happiness in his well earned retirement from business.

Telephone Service for Juniper

Mr. T. W. Robinson, proprietor of the Juniper Island store, at Stony Lake, is making arrangements for having that busy summer emporium connected by telephone. It is proposed that a cable be laid under Stony Lake from McCracken's Landing to the southern end of Juniper Island and by poles extend the line to the store.

Kirkfield Lift Lock Nearly Ready

Mr. W. Johe of Kirkfield, was in the city on Saturday. Mr. Johe was formerly connected with the local lift lock and at the present time is in charge of the Kirkfield Lock, for the Dominion Bridge Company. The Kirkfield Lock will be ready to operate by the opening of navigation and Mr. Johe expects that the coming season will be a busy one.

Mr. Douglas Hammond Home

Mr. Douglas Hammond, formerly of this city, but now in the Bank of Montreal, Montreal, who whilst playing hockey in that city a few days ago, had his cheek cut open so badly by a blow from the puck that it was necessary to have six stitches inserted has arrived home. He is the guest of his mother Mrs. John Hammond, Smith street.

Peterboro Cricket Club Officers

An effort is being made this spring to arouse a local interest in cricket. At a meeting held in the Y.M.C.A. the following officers were elected;

President—Dr. Burnham.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mr. C. Hill.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mr. C. Moore.

Early Closing in Millbrook

A petition is being largely signed in Millbrook, for early closing of places of business on Saturday night. A movement is being instituted by the clergy of that burg to have the stores closed at 10 p.m. on Saturday nights, instead of keeping open till midnight, and, too often, it is said, on into the day of rest. The matter come before the council at an early date. We understand that there is a counter petition to retain the old midnight system.

The Knock-out Blow.

The blow which knocked out Corbett was a revelation to the prize fighters. From the earliest days of the ring the knock-out blow was aimed for the jaw, the temple or the jugular vein. Stomach punches were thrown in to worry and weary the fighter, but if a scientific man had told one of the old fighters that the most vulnerable spot was the region of the stomach, he'd have laughed at him for an ignoramus. Dr. Pierce is bringing home to the public a parallel fact; that the stomach is the most vulnerable organ out of the prize ring as well as in it. We protect our heads, throats, feet and lungs, but the solar plexus we are utterly indifferent to, until disease finds the solar plexus and knocks us out. Make your stomach sound and strong by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you protect yourself in your most vulnerable spot. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures "weak stomach," indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, bad, thin and impure blood and other diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" has a specific curative effect upon all mucous surfaces and hence cures catarrh, no matter where located or what stage it may have reached. In Nasal Catarrh it is well to cleanse the passages with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while using the "Discovery" as a constitutional remedy. Why the "Golden Medical Discovery" cures catarrhal diseases, as of the stomach, bowels, bladder and other pelvic organs will be plain to you if you will read a booklet of extracts from the writings of eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients and explaining their curative properties. It is mailed free on request. Address Dr. R.V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. This booklet gives all the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines from which it will be seen that they contain not a drop of alcohol, pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead.

Mr. Fred Darcy's New Auto-Car Here

Mr Fred Darcy's fine new auto-car arrived per C.P.R., and was unloaded on Saturday morning. It is a fine large car, painted bright red, with top and front, and seems to possess both speed and safety. The upholstering is elegant and comfortable and the new machine is a decided addition to the number already in the city.

Mr. Darcy announces that he will run it between Lakefield and Peterborough during the summer season.

Mr. Bert Dolan Made Buyer for One of New York City's Largest Firms

Mr. Bert Dolan, an old Peterborough boy, who is in the city, leaves tomorrow for New York to accept a very important position with Messrs. Smith, Gray & Co., of that city.

Mr. Dolan, who, as is known to his many friends in the city, has for some years been associate buyer for the "Hub" a Chicago dry goods establishment, which occupies almost a whole block in the leading part of State street in the Windy City. For some weeks Messrs. Smith, Gray & Co., who operate two large dry goods stores in New York and two as large in Brooklyn have been trying to secure Mr. Dolan's services as buyer for their various stores. This gentleman accepted their offer last week and will assume his new duties this week. This is a most responsible position for so young a man and involves a salary running well into the thousands. Congratulations, Bert.

STUCK TO IT

For Years But Finally Had to Give Up Coffee.

Our habits of eating and drinking stick to us like a hungry pup to a bone. We can't always break loose even when we know we ought to.

Coffee does certainly hurt many persons, and they know it. But it is one thing to know it and another to devise some way to change the habit and still have a warm beverage at meal time. Thousands of persons all over the world have found it easy to quit coffee because they use Postum Food Coffee.

"For years I've felt the harm of drinking coffee," writes an Iowa woman, "but I liked it so well I stuck to it until about two years ago I quit coffee, and tea, too, and began to drink Postum.

"I made it, not like coffee, but boiled it according to directions on the package, and the first time we had it we all liked it. We have it now, morning, noon and night, and all feel healthier and happier for the change.

"I never have heartburn nor indigestion any more, though my husband and I used to suffer that way and with nervous headache a great deal of the time when we drank tea and coffee. We can't say enough in praise for Postum, and for the good it has done us." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

CITY AND OTONABEE POWER CO. AGREE

As to Terms and Conditions Upon Which Power Shall be Furnished New Industries Providing No. 4 Dam is Leased at a Reasonable Rental.

The City Council met in Committee of the Whole last evening when there were present, Mayor R. F. McWilliams, and Aldermen Leary, Morrow, Phelan, Johnston, Stevenson, Bradburn, McIntyre, Morgan, Wilson and Elliott.

The question of the city endorsing the Otonabee Power Company's application to the Dominion Government for a 21-years' lease of No. 4 dam, in consideration of cheap power being reserved for new industries, again came up for consideration by request of the company.

The company had amended their proposed agreement to read that so long as the company have 500 electrical horse power or any part thereof, actually developed to sell and dispose of during the life of their lease, 21 years, they will reserve the same for new industries. And in the advent of the city and the company being unable to agree as to the amount of power and terms and conditions, these questions be left to the decision of the Railway Commission.

It will be noticed that by this proposition the company did not bind themselves to sell power at $15 a horse power.

Mr. Wm. Ferguson, president of the Otonabee Power Co., and R. R. Hall, M.P., their solicitor, were present.

R. R. Hall, M.P., the company's solicitor, pointed out that since the first proposition was made, the company find that the development of the power will cost from $20,000 to $25,000 more than originally anticipated. Then should they not be permitted to divert the eastern roadway at this point, two steel and concrete bridges would have to be constructed at a cost of $13,000 each; diverting the roadway would cost but some $1,200. There, therefore remains so much uncertainty as to the actual cost of development that the company naturally are opposed to having a cast iron clause inserted in the lease which would militate against the proposed investment. Under such circumstances the company thought it but a fair proposition to leave the terms and conditions upon which power should be sold to the decision of the Railway Commission. Again, when the first proposition was made to the city, it was thought the company might get the lease of No. 4 dam at the company's open tender price, $600 a year; but the government have, after receiving expert report as to the value of the lease, have decided that $600 a year is altogether insufficient for the dam in question.

After considerable discussion on this question R. R. Hall, M.P., and the city agreed that for two years 500 horse power should be reserved to the city for new industries; after two years, if all other power is in use, the company may sell any portion of the reserved power after giving the city three months' notice of such intention.;

The city deputation will urge upon the government today the desirability of leasing to the Otonabee Power Company, No. 4 dam at as reasonable a rental as possible, in the interest of cheap power for new industries. Should the lease be secured at $600 a year the company agrees to sell power to new industries at $15 per horse power a year. An increase of rental will mean a slight increase for power. For instance, should the rents for said dam be $800, the price per horse power is to be $15.40; if the rental is $1000, then power will be sold at $15.80.

The company also agrees to measure the power as delivered at the factories, providing the contract covers a period of ten years.

BUILDING BYLAW.

The building bylaw again came up for action thereon. The bylaw as read provided that permits must be obtained for the erection of all buildings in the city, inside and outside the fire limits. Also that permits shall be secured for enlargements, repairing roofs or external walls at and above a cost of $100. This bylaw covers all building now in course of construction.

Ald. Bradburn advised that this bylaw might not be workable. He urged that the council should be sure of the ground upon which they stand before passing any more bylaws. He moved that the measure be referred back to the Property Committee for further consideration, to report at the April meeting. He was seconded by Ald. Morrow, and the resolution carried.

TORRENCE SYSTEM.

Ald. Wilson raised the question of this city adopting the Torrence system of land titles, so satisfactorily applied to Toronto. By this system, when the property is registered by the registrar the title is guaranteed by the government.

Ald. Wilson will at the April meeting move that the council go thoroughly into this question, with a view to its adoption in Peterborough.

REDIVISION OF WARDS.

The mayor again introduced the question of striking new boundaries for the different wards; to meet a more equal distribution of the new fire alarm boxes. Them boundaries were defined at last meeting as published next day.

The average population under the present system is 2982. The mayor contended that the size of each ward should be governed partly by its assessment and partly according to its population.

1—4818—1836 over average.
2—2460—515 under average.
3—3274—258 over average.
4—2684—908 under average.
5—1957—1635 under average.

The proposed change would leave the ward population as follows;

South—1—3123—131 over average.
Center—2—2454—538 under average.
West—3—3457—460 over average.
North—4—3843—852 over average.
East—5—2084—908 under average.

The new fire alarm boxes will strike the number of ward and the number of box. Hence the mayor is anxious that should there be any change of changing the wards in the near future, such change should be made now to avoid a mix-up in the ringing of fire alarms. Again his worship thought the city had arrived at a point in size to warrant a redivision of the wards, and Peterborough may go back again to the ward system for municipal elections.

Ald. Johnston will arrange for all the fire alarm boxes, with exception of the four boxes which would be concerned in a redivision of the wards. In the meantime the aldermen will consider the question.

THE CARTERS' SHELTER.

Ald. McIntyre reported that the carters are divided on the question of paying for their own phone service in the proposed carters' shelter.

Ald. McIntyre moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan,—That the city furnish said shelter whether the carters pay for a phone or not.

It was pointed out that the bylaw governing this shelter will force all city carters to use it, and as it is desired to get them off the street corners, the resolution carried. It was considered that they would be forced to instal 'phone service in their own interest.

Council Meeting

The aldermen then went into council.

Mr. Spence, the arbitrator in the dispute between the city and Mr. Bogue re the east ward outfall sewer, wrote that he was prepared to make his award when his expenses connected therewith, viz., $100, are paid.

The treasurer will be authorized to pay this bill, providing the $100 covers divers' and all other expenses connected with the arbitration.

No action will be taken to enforce the sign bylaw until after the council's meeting, April 1st. This will give the Retail Merchants' Association, and other interested parties an opportunity to appear before the council regarding this bylaw.

BOARD OF WORKS REPORT.

Ald. Duncan submitted the following;

Gentlemen,—Your Board of Works beg leave to report and recommend as follows;

1. That the city engineer be instructed to report on the best way of grading and water tabling the portions of the boundary between the city and the township of North Monaghan, which it is understood the city will maintain.

2. That when the Dickson Company has graded and water tabled to the satisfaction of the city engineer, the proposed street 45 feet wide, running west from Burnham street south of Hunter street, the city consent to the registration of the plan.

3. That the cityt reasurer be authorized to pay for 112 cords of stone more than was previously authorized, at $3 a cord, on the certification of the city engineer.

4. That the matter of Mr. Hughes' complaint regarding a street railway siding on Park street, be referred to the mayor and chairman of this Board to confer with Mr. Larmouth, manager of the railway, and that they also confer with Mr. Larmouth in regard to a claim made by Mr. Foster for an accident on George street.

5. That the street commissioner be authorized to have the concrete mixer, water carts and wheelbarrows repaired.

6. That the street commissioner be instructed to employ a man by the month to clean the crossings and gutters.

This was adopted as read.

TITLES TO LANDS.

Ald. Wilson moved, seconded by Ald. Stevenson,—That the mayor, Aldermen Stevenson, Bradburn, Morrow and Wilson be a committee to investigate the Torrence system of titles for lands.—Carried.

TRIP TO BRANTFORD.

Ald. Elliott moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre,—That Sanitary Inspector Ball be furnished transportation to Brantford to study the sanitary system in vogue there.—Carried.

Ald. Stevenson moved, seconded by Ald. Bradburn,—That the council petition the Minister of Railways and Canals to lease the Otonabee Power Co., No. 4 dam, on the conditions embodied in the action taken by the Committee of the Whole as specified above.—Carried.

T. A. S. Hold Most Successful Concert

Last night the T.A.S. of St. Peter's filled the Grand Opera house to overflowing, and presented to their patrons one of the best programs ever given to the public of Peterborough. The playlet entitled "The Limerick Boy," was excellently put on and was a program in itself. Mr. Ruthven MacDonald scored his usual success with a Peterborough audience, and was in excellent voice. The program was as follows:

Overture—T.A.S. Band.
Vocal Solo—Mr. H. Ruthven MacDonald.
Chorus—The Mendelssohn Club.
Vocal Solo—Mr. H. Ruthven MacDonald.
Vocal Solo—Miss L. Hullihan.

Inspector Ball's Official Report

At yesterday's session of the Board of Health, Sanitary Inspector George Ball, looking like a Salvation Army general in his handsome new uniform, presented his first report, which was very satisfactory. The chairman, Mr. Wm. Eyres, however, endeavored to point out several other duties, which the new official should perform. Dr. Bingham, objected to the chairman finding fault with the inspector, who had so far done splendid work, and had adopted a first-class system.

The sanitary inspector received instructions from the Board to pay particular attention to all the cellars of the stores in the city. He will also look after the various terraces, and endeavor to have sewer and water connections made.

The Board will meet every Monday morning at 9.30 o'clock during the next couple of months.

Members present were,— Chairman Wm. Eyres, Dr. Burnham, Robert Neil, A. Parker, G. Schneider, Dr. McNulty, and Mayor McWilliams. Also M.H.O. Bingham, and Sanitary Inspector Ball.

The application of the Dickson Co. for a sewer on Harvey street, was read. The company could not get into any of the present sewers and they wished to drain into the river. The only alternative was a cesspool and that is most objectionable. A special committee will go over it again.

Medical Health Officer Dr. Bingham verbally reported that the general health of the city was in excellent condition.

Inspector Ball said that he had visited nearly all the big shops in the city, including confectionery and bake shops, butcher shops and fruit stands most of which he found in good condition. He had not yet visited private yards.

In reference to the fruit stores he said he strongly recommended that all the waste vegetable matter should be removed at least once a week.

FOOLED THE PREACHER

A Doctor's Brother Thought Postum was Coffee.

A wise doctor found out coffee was hurting him so he quit drinking it.

He was so busy with his practice, however, that his wife had to write how he fooled his brother, a clergyman, one day at dinner. She says:

"Doctor found coffee was injuring him and decided to give Postum a trial, and we have used it now for four years with continued benefit. In fact, he is now free from the long train of ills that follow coffee drinking.

"To show how successful we are in making Postum properly, I will relate an incident. At a dinner we gave, Doctor suggested that we serve Postum instead of ordinary coffee.

"Doctor's brother, a Clergyman, supposed it was old fashioned coffee and remarked, as he called for his second cup, 'If you do preach against coffee I see you haven't forgotten how to make it.'"

This goes to show that well-made—fully boiled—Postum has much the flavor and richness of good coffee although it has an individuality all its own. A ten days' trial will prove that it has none of the poisonous effect of ordinary coffee but will correct the troubles caused by coffee. "There's a reason." Name furnished by Postum Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

THE POLICE SHOULD ACT

CORNER LOAFERS ARE MUCH TOO FRESH.

Officers Should Prevent Men Insulting Women on the Street Corners.

It seems from complaints received not only in this office, but heard generally throughout private residences and the better places of business of this city that the local police either are engaged elsewhere during the evenings, upwadays, or else short-sighted as to the very evident nuisance existing on the corners of our leading streets at night.

It is not only rumor but plain fact, known both to the citizens and to representatives of this journal, that at too many corners of our leading thoroughfares that things have come to an unbearable pass, so much so that many young, not to mention married ladies of the city, are by the dictates of common modesty prevented from going from house to house after dark, for fear of insult from street corner loafers. Any one possessed of even moderate intelligence, need only take a stroll through our leading streets on a fine evening, to find that tobacco chewing, spitting-on-the pavement, foul mouthed loafers congregate on the principal corners, who, whilst not speaking from actual experience but from hearsay of reputable witnesses, ogle and by what the French term "double-entendre" remarks insult such passers-by. The condition, to the certain knowledge of at least one or two representatives of The Times, existing at several of our street corners, from, say, 8 to 11 p.m. daily, are worse than would be allowed on the Bowery, N.Y., or South Clark street, Chicago.

Of course, it is only fair to the local police force to admit that they are limited in number, and cannot be everywhere at all times. However a little intelligent manipulation judiciously exercised during a few days would result in arrests and consequent punishments that would effectually blot out this disgrace to Peterborough and its womanhood. If private citizens can observe the disgusting conditions undoubtedly prevailing, and the paid police officials cannot, it is time the latter woke up and do something more than make a saunter from the station to the station and take a rest.

On Sunday night a young lady totally unacquainted with the man in question, afraid to pass through a crowd on north George street, stopped a local professional man, and after acquainting him, in modest and diffident terms of the insults tried to be offered her previously, begged the gentleman to see her to be next block. It is needless to say, that when accompanied by the gentleman regarded to, the lady was allowed to pass through some ten cowardly blackguards who had a few moments before insulted the lady and a little girl with her.

It is now up to the police to prevent these loafers from congregating on the corners by night, or ask for assistance in consummating so desirable an end towards the good name of our city.

It seems that there is a bylaw preventing this street loafing, and if the police cannot, for lack of numbers, or other reasons prevent, this form of insult to the women of Peterborough, it is up to either the citizens or the council to take measures to have this nuisance ended.

Mr. Bert Dolan's Job Is Assured

It will be remembered that in our issue of yesterday we noted that Mr. Bert Dolan, who came here last Saturday to attend the obsequies of his mother, had secured an important position as buyer for Messrs. Smith Gray & Co., of New York and Brooklyn.

Yesterday by the noon mail Mr. Dolan received a manuscript letter from Mr. Walter Jackman, his associate buyer for Smith Gray & Co., with whom Mr. Dolan will be associated in buying for the four New York and Brooklyn stores operated by the aforesaid firm, to the effect that in answer to Mr. Dolan's telegram concerning his recent loss that he, Mr. Dolan, must "take his own good time about coming to New York, and that your position here is assured." This is a nice way of conveying a practical sentiment of sympathy and shows that Mr. Dolan's position is assured. He leaves for New York this morning, stopping to call at Cornwall at the convent there, on his sister, who is now known in Roman Catholic circles as Sister St. Ambrose.

A DAINTY BREAKFAST

Served at the Y.W.C.A. by Childrens' Class.

The closing of the children's class consisting of ten lessons in a breakfast course, under the direction of Miss Bawden, domestic science teacher, at the Y.W.C.A., took place last evening, and the occasion will be pleasantly remembered by six ladies, members of the Board, who were invited to a six o'clock breakfast. The arrangement of the table, cooking and entire preparations were carried out by the twelve girls, members of the class. Miss Helen Macdonald and Miss Pearl Sheridan, who were daintily dressed in white, doing the serving to perfection.

Unique menu cards with Shamrock decorations, were placed at each plate and consisted of the following;—Oranges, cream, fondan haddie, potatoes on half shell, toast, tea biscuit, stewed prunes, tea, coffee and cocoa.

A dinner course of five lessons which is open to new members, will next be taken up, and at the conclusion of the term dinner will be served by the children.

Board of Health in Session Yesterday

Mr. Wm. Eyres Brings up the Subject of the Isolation Hospital Again.

Yesterday morning as the crows cawed their anthem to the advent of 1907's spring in the pine and other trees that ornament the city and ardent wishers for warm weather looked in vain for the welcome "Too-whit-too hoo" of the first misguided robin, to arrive, the Board of Health met in City Clerk Armstrong's rear office to conduct the city's health business.

As has been in evidence before Mr. William Eyres, the indefatiguable chairman of the Board, brought forward arguments that must surely impress the City Council with the necessity of an isolation hospital. He cannot see how the city will get through the season without one.

For several months past the people have had had no serious epidemic. They have heard nothing of the isolation hospital since last fall. Many thought the project was moribund. But, like the buds on the maple trees, this subject bids fair to once more open out into a live question.

In referring to several matters the Board of Health will have to take up this year, the chairman included the isolation hospital. Some of the other members of the Board actually got hilarious, but the presiding officer said the time is coming when this very necessary building will be erected.

The Board then adjourned.

UNIONISM IS AGAIN VICTORIOUS IN BRITAIN

Elections in London and Elsewhere Show Change in the Political Situation---Unionists Make Great Gains.

London, March 18.—A great change has come over the political situation. In the London county council elections, which include nearly the whole of the metropolitan area, the Unionists gained a victory so complete as to be absolutely astounding. Alarm was caused by Socialism, which has received a staggering, sobering blow, but the defeat of the London Radicals or Progressives, as they are fond of designating themselves, is something more than a local event. It is recognized all over the country as a political disaster to the Imperial Government, and it is believed that the aggressive policy which Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman intended to pursue against the House of Lords will not be very materially modified, if not entirely abandoned, at all events for some time to come.

DESERT LIBERAL BANNERS.

It is only a little over twelve months since the Radicals came into power with a thumping majority, chiefly on the battle cry against Chinese labor on the Rand, but by elections in Brigg and South Aberdeen and municipal elections in London indicate that what the Unionists call "national disillusionment" is working more rapidly than the most far-seeing of the political opponents of Campbell-Bannerman could have anticipated.

There are signs on many sides of a revival of powerful Unionist forces and of discomfort and disarray in the battalions enlisted under the Radical banners.

In Brigg and South Aberdeen, and in the municipal elections, the rally of Conservative and Unionist forces is more powerful than anything that has happened since the time when the Unionists came into power after the introduction of Gladstone's home rule bill.

In the London county council elections no fewer than forty-eight seats were won from Progressives or Radicals.

IRISH PLAN HOT CAMPAIGN.

But what about the Irish Nationalists? They have to be reckoned with and they are lying low at Westminster. This is what Campbell-Bannerman desires, but it is like holding a wolf by the ears. It is equally dangerous to hold on or let go. In the meantime the Nationalists intend to conduct a vigorous campaign on Irish soil. There are to be innumerable political meetings and processions.

Ulster Protestants are preparing for a strenuous fight. They believe that any powers which the Irish parliament might enjoy would be used to worry and injure them; that their trade and manufacture would so far as possible be diverted to Dublin and the Roman Catholic provinces; that their philanthropic and educational institutions would be interfered with; that every device to insult and harass them would be resorted to, and that a thriving and industrious population, whose sympathies are entirely with England and Scotland, whence it came, would be made to suffer in mind and estate, if not also in body, for its loyalty to the British connection.

Passionate protests are coming thick and fast from Ulster against any serious proposals to hand them over to the tender mercies of an Irish Parliament.

"Here, they say, "lies the difficulty which England cannot evade without dishonor or neglect and without risk of civil war."

MAY PRECIPITATE CRISIS.

The battle will rage and sway hither and thither between the two Irish even while matters seem peaceful at Westminster. The prime minister sooner or later must introduce home rule, and then will come a scattering of his forces, because the moderate Liberals in his party believe that an attempt to realise home rule leads up to a towering and unscalable wall of impossibility.

The divisions in the Irish ranks have weaned many men from the belief in the all-sufficiency of merely political activity and have made the Irish people more amendable to projects of other kinds. They begin to believe that their salvation must be "worked out" and and that the millenium cannot be "taken in."

Peterboro' Woman's Art Applauded

It will be of great interest to the many friends of a former Peterborough lady, but now a sculpturess of growing reputation in Paris to learn that the Paris edition of the New York Herald of recent date contains an interesting report of the annual show held by the English speaking women artists in Paris;

"Miss Katherine E. Wallis (a former Peterborough lady and sister of Mr. C. S. Wallis, of this city) handed some very charming and graceful work in "La Toilette" and "Le Gouter," most out in stone; her bronze Dachshund is quite natural.

A further testimony and striking evidence of the superior work of the Peterborough sculptress is attested by the fact that, out of five illustrations published in the Herald, as showing the excellence of the exhibits, two of them are reproducts of Miss Wallis' "La Toilette" and "Dachshund."

Breaks Up a Cold in Ten Hours

Breathe Hyomei and get Quick Relief. Cures all Bronchial Troubles.

As a usual thing a remedy that has immediate action contains powerful drugs that should be used sparingly. This one one of the reasons why the ordinary tablets that are sold for coughs and colds should not be taken by people with a weak heart, as they have a dangerous stimulating effect.

When Hyomei, however, is breathed quick relief is obtained in a natural way. Its healing medication goes right to the spot where the disease germs are present, at once soothing and healing the irritated mucous membrane. The action in this way is similar to spreading a soothing salve upon a burn.

No other medicine for the cure of coughs, colds and bronchial troubles is as rational as Hyomei. Breathing it through the neat pocket inhaler which goes with every outfit, it can be used either in the nose or mouth, thus getting full medication into the nasal passages or the throat and lungs as desired. It gives almost instant relief in all affections of the bronchial tubes, and is guaranteed to break up a cold in ten hours.

A complete Hyomei outfit, consisting of a bottle of Hyomei, an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket or purse, and a medicine dropper, costs but one dollar, with a guarantee that if it does not give satisfaction the money will be refunded.

Should extra bottles of Hyomei be needed they can be obtained for only 50c.; the inhaler lasts a life-time.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei, or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Write us today for a symptom blank, which we will send you free, together with a treatise on Catarrh and how to cure it. When you fill in and return to us the symptom blank, our consulting physician will give your case the best care and attention, and write you a letter of advice without charge. The need for a Canadian smelter for Cobalt ores has been manifested from the time when the first great discoveries were made in the Cobalt district. Present smelting facilities in the United States are inadequate, and freight rates and charges are so high that only the highest grade ore can be shipped with profit.

The above strong Canadian company has been formed for the exclusive purpose of smelting and refining Cobalt ores. Under the Ontario Mining Act it also enjoys the right to acquire and operate mines.

The company has closed a very advantageous lease of the Smelting and Refining Plant of The Lake Superior Corporation at Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, which carries with it a service of 1000 horse-power twenty-four service electric energy per annum. They have also contracted for the exclusive use of the famous and world-renowned Schneeburg process for smelting cobalt and nickel ores, which reduces ores with a loss of only one per cent. The Schneeburg process is a secret one, controlled by the German Government, and has been in use in Saxony over three hundred years, and is in fact the only known process which smelts Cobalt ores successfully and at the same time retains all of the bye-products. Ores in Saxony average only 3 1-2 per cent. None of the ore mined in Cobalt runs as low grade as this, and the establishment of this smelter will make valuable thousands of tons of ore now lying on the dump.

The Sault Smelter now in the possession of the company, and which has been leased by the company, will rapidly be adapted to the new process, has a capacity of 225 tons per day, and this will, in all probability, be shortly increased. The large tonnage of cobalt and nickel mines of Sudbury district will crowd present capacity to the limit.

Of the capital stock 250,000 shares have been allotted to the German syndicate in consideration of the exclusive right to the Schneeburg process, 250,000 shares are retained in the treasury, and will be sold only for expansion of the company's business, and with first right of purchase to present shareholders. The balance, 500,000 shares of treasury stock is to be offered to the public.

20 PER CENT. TO ACCOMPANY SUBSCRIPTION AND THE BALANCE ON CALL AFTER 15 DAYS.

Remember, this company did not have to spend anything for plant or building. It has the exclusive use of the famous Schneeburg process, which quadruples the earning power of the ordinary smelter. It is capitalized at a reasonable amount, thus safeguarding the interests of its shareholders. The plant should be ready for operation in ninety days.

Write for prospectus, application blanks and full information.

Look For Blood Humors

They Crop Out Constantly, Showing the System Needs Purifying.

You're not satisfied with your looks. How can you be with such disfiguring pimples, such rough un even skin?

Blood is full of humors, and it's no wonder you look and feel poorly.

You are languid,
Appetite is miserable,
Sleep is hard to get,
Snap and vim are lacking.

High time to improve matters—but what's the proper remedy?

Experience proves that Dr. Hamilton's give instant effect. They tone the entire system, fortify the blood, and impart a feeling of new life in a few days.

Unlike strong purgatives, Dr. Hamilton's Pills are exceedingly mild. They are made from concentrated vegetable extracts such as Mandrake and Butternut, and can be taken by young or old, with absolute safety.

"I learnt something very valuable after using Dr. Hamilton's Pills," writes Miss Effie Thomson of Meriden. "I used to have ugly pimples that much embarrassed me. The tonic and purifying effect of Dr. Hamilton's Pills completely restored me. My health is splendid and my complexion a great credit to this marvelous medicine."

Let your medicine be Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They do cure so thoroughly. Sold by all dealers, 25c per box, or five boxes for $1. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP IN LONDON

London has tried public ownership and now vigorously repudiates the thing as a sham and a humbug of the most costly kind. In the election of its county council the issue was squarely joined between the friends and the foes of municipal ownership and the friends were overwhelmed. This was due to the experience of the city in following the lead of those friends in some public ownership and operation experiments.

With eighty-three members in the last council, and many holdovers in the present one, the ownership side retains but thirty-six votes in the new council, against seventy-nine opposed to further fooling with that business. The proportions are nearly reversed in the strength of the opposing factions. Those who see with clear eyes call call municipal ownership municipal socialism, which is a fair description of what it is. It has proved to be so costly in London that the electorate refuse to go on with it and sharply call a halt. Every department of the local government showed money wasted through gross incompetency, owing in part to politics, in part to lack of business capacity that seems inseparable from a management that can rely on taxation to make good any deficiency in receipts.

The Thames steamboat service, run by the city, was promised to pay handsomely on an investment of $1,500,000. In fact it began losing at the rate of $320,000 a year, and for the current year its deficit is figured at more than $250,000. Not even the patient taxpayer will stand that kind of business. The result of trials in London itself, and of the experience of other cities in England led to the complete reversal of ownership sentiment. The Times has repeatedly cited the story of how British cities have gone into debt to such a degree that taxes are mounting into the skies and a return to saner methods is as certain as the coming of the tax collector.

REAL ESTATE IN EDMONTON

The retiring president of the Edmonton Board of Trade in his address declares that the price of real estate in that ambition town is altogether too high and that a relapse must follow, in which case many people of small means would lose their savings. It is to be feared that Edmonton is not the only place to which such remarks might be addressed. Throughout Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta the transactions in real estate have been on an immense scale during the last two years. Some immense fortunes have been made by companies and individuals, and a large number of people have been successful in real estate speculations. There is a limit however to the intrinsic value of properties and when this is reached prudent people withdraw, leaving the field to the speculators. It is to be feared that, as the President of the Edmonton Board of Trade asserts, prices have been pushed too high and a reaction is likely to ensue. It is to be hoped that the resultant losses will not cause any serious financial disturbance.

Girls of Ten Enter Pact To Commit Suicide

St. Louis, March 17.—It was developed through testimony yesterday at the coroner's inquest into the suicide last night of Liebling Slocum, aged 10 years, that she had entered into a suicide pact with Gertrude Harper, also 10 years old.

Gertrude Harper testified that yesterday she had told her mother that she was going to take her life and was prevented.

The two girls were school children and chums. Liebling had been reproved for playing truant, and became melancholy. The two girls brooded over the matter and agreed to die together. Friday Liebling swallowed carbolic acid and died that night.

The Flood Subsides

Pittsburg, March 17.—The rivers are again back into their channels, and the greatest flood ever known here is a matter of history. For 24 hours the water has been steadily receding (and the stage at ten o'clock yesterday was 21 feet and still falling at the rate of about six inches an hour.

With the receding water the extent of the damage caused is laid bare, and there is no reason to change yesterday's estimate of property and business losses. The most conservative figures are $10,000,000, running from this all the way to $20,000,000.

At least a score of persons met death in the flood and many are said to be missing.

The News—No Pure Drug Cough Cure Laws would be needed, if all Cough Cures were like Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure—and has been for 20 years. The National Law now requires that if any poisons enter into a cough mixture, it must be printed on the label or package. For this reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison-marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and see. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Simply refuse to accept any other. Sold by J. D. Tully.

THE EARL'S PRIZE.

Winnipeg Takes It With "The Release of Allan Danvers."

When the Winnipeg Dramatic Club brought his Excellency's musical and dramatic competition to a splendid climax on the first Saturday night in February before a crowded and enthusiastic audience at the Russell Theatre, Ottawa, with a rarely finished and uniformly excellent presentation of their original drama, "The Release of Allan Danvers," there was a unanimity of judgment that the trophy was unquestionably theirs. This popular verdict was borne out by the later announcement that the amateur dramatists from the West had been awarded the trophy by the judges, and that the Quebec Symphony Orchestra had, as was generally expected, carried off the trophy in music.

The play presented by the Winnipeg company was written especially for the competition by Major Devine, who organized the company, assisted by Mr. Ernest Beaufort, who played the title role in a manner which stamped him as an amateur, who would in professional ranks reach "stardom," and by Mr. Wilson Blue, an ex-Toronto newspaper man, who staged the production. It was by all odds the strongest of any presented during the competition, in point of dramatic intensity and compelling force. The company was admirably adapted to the large requirements of the play, their whole presentation being marked by fine dramatic technique, by smoothness and virility of action, and by careful attention to detail. It was more like a professional performance of metropolitan rank than a production by amateurs. Miss Daisy Crawley, Mr. Beaufort, and Mr. R. S. Skuse showed themselves to possess dramatic and histrionic ability of rare excellence. At the conclusion of the play the audience cheered again and again, and gave an enthusiastic curtain call to Major Devine and the collaborateurs.

The second half of the evening was taken up by a fairly adequate rendering of the military drama, "Arms and the Man," by the McGill University Dramatic Club of Montreal. Except for the meritorious performance of Mrs. Stephen Leacock, the company was hardly in the same class with their Winnipeg competitors.

In so far as the dramatic part of the competition was concerned the entries were all of a very creditable degree of excellence and most of them would not need to fear comparison with many of the professional touring companies. With the exception of the Quebec Symphony concert the musical events were considerably below the level expected of a national competition. In view of the general success of the week's performances, it was announced by his Excellency that the trophies would be again competed for from time to time in the future. A written decision covering the contest in details will be handed out by the judges.

A SAD STORY.

17-Year Courtship and Journey Across the Sea Ended by Death.

A singularly sad story was that unfolded by the inquest held by Dr. E. O. Hart on the body of Mrs. William Jones, who died recently at Victoria, B. C., after a few hours' illness.

Mrs. Jones was formerly Miss Florence Stringer of Staffordshire, England, and 17 years ago Mr. Jones and she were companions as boy and girl. Some years ago Mr. Jones went to Victoria and entered into business as an auctioneer, and during the past four years had corresponded faithfully with his old-time sweetheart with a view to matrimony. At last Miss Stringer agreed, and Rev. Mr. Ard made her the wife of her childhood [illegible]

A Cough Medicine

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is a regular cough medicine, a strong medicine, a doctor's medicine. Good for easy coughs, hard coughs, desperate coughs. If your doctor fully endorses it for your case, then take it. If not, then don't take it. Never go contrary to his advice.

J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

she was dead, having succumbed to a sudden hemorrhage of the brain.

These are but a few incidents in this sad ending romance, which seems to have been replete with misfortunes almost from the time Miss Stringer left England. In crossing the continent she lost her purse containing her ticket, baggage, checks, money, and other belongings, and for a week was placed in the Home of the Friendless in St. Paul. It was while in the waiting-room of the big railway depot in that city that the bag disappeared. She had to wait there three hours to connect with the Great Northern train coming west and an hour of this time had elapsed when the loss was discovered. Miss Stringer then fell into the hands of the matron, by whom she was removed to the institution. In the meanwhile a telegram had been sent on to Mr. Jones, but the latter having gone to Seattle to meet his fiancee, was there patiently awaiting her coming while the telegram was lying uncalled for in Victoria. Mr. Jones remained in Seattle five days, and then returning home found the message with its distracting note. Then the wires were again put in motion, and it was not for two days that his bride-to-be could be located. She had telegraphed to her brothers in Philadelphia, whom she had visited before undertaking the overland journey, but by the same singular misfortune which pursued her during the trip they could not be reached.

All these troubles weighed heavily on the young woman, who was totally ignorant of the conditions of travel on this continent, and it is believed greatly affected her health. To add to her miseries on arrival her baggage had not arrived, and so far has not been traced, although the Great Northern Railway Co. is doing all in its power to locate this, as also the handbag stolen at the station in St. Paul.

Handwriting Expert Dead.

After only a week's illness, Mr. Eldridge Stanton, the well-known Toronto handwriting expert, and for twenty years a prominent city photographer, died the other day. Deceased was 72 years of age. He was born at Cobourg. For over 30 years he was a resident of Toronto and latterly was known in connection with notable cases in court, where the services of a handwriting expert were required.

Mrs. Langtry Is Lady De Bathe.

The death occurred at Wood End, near Chichester, on Jan. 5 of Sir Henry Percival de Bathe, Bart, in his 84th year. Sir Henry, who was the fourth baronet, had a distinguished career in the army, which he entered before he was 16 years old. He went through the Crimea with the Scots Guards, being second in command of his battalion at the taking of Sevastopol. Later he was colonel of the Scots Guards, and was made general in 1879, retiring from active service four years later. He is succeeded by his son, Hugo Gerald de Bathe, who was born in 1871, and married in 1899 Mrs. Langtry, the well-known actress, who, therefore, now becomes Lady De Bathe.

KENNEDY COBALT, Ltd.

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. 32. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 15 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 30 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 30 acres of J. B. 32 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 5 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 30 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 50 feet, and in it shows 6 inch nicolite, 12 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 672-1283-492-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

WEDDING STATIONERY

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENTS are always in order. The season for the final result of being a disciple of Cupid finds expression in the Hymeneal ceremony at the altar—that occasion when "two hearts that beat as one" are joined together—pronounced one.

For this auspicious occasion the printing must be chastely dignified—must be appropriate in appearance to this one time of life when everything "best" is donned—when happiness reigns supremely.

Marriage Announcements
Marriage Invitations
Marriage Reception Cards
Post Nuptial Reception Cards

All of these we are able to supply in a proper form and printed artistically. Our work is conducted under the supervision of skilled typographical mechanics and may be unhesitatingly presented to the most fastidious critic.

Our charges for such work are moderate—yet good printing is ever valuable. However, we give quality for our figures, and an order entrusted to our care will be speedily, carefully and satisfactorily executed.

No work can be well done which has to be done hurriedly. Time is necessary for the accomplishment of faultless printing. We will fulfil all expectations if given ample time for completion.

on a four-poster, counting for the thousandth time the number of tassels fringing the roof of it. In bold contradiction of the medical opinion, the nurse was, however, hopeful. Whether this comforting condition of mind arose from long experience of the ways of doctors or from an acquired philosophy it is not our place to inquire. But that her opinion was sincere is not to be doubted. She had, as a matter of fact, gone to the pantomime, leaving the patient under the immediate eye of his son, Guy Oscard.

During the last forty-eight hours Guy Oscard had made the decision that life without Millicent Chyne would not be worth having, and in the hush of the great house he was pondering over this new feature in his existence. Like all deliberate men, he was placidly sanguine. Something in the life of a savage sport that he had led had no doubt taught him to rely upon his own nerve and capacity more than most men do. It is the indoor atmosphere that contains the germ of pessimism.

His thoughts cannot have been disturbing, for presently his eyes closed and he appeared to be slumbering. If it was sleep, it was the light unconsciousness of the traveler; for a sound so small that waking ears could scarce have heard it caused him to lift his lashes cautiously. It was the sound of bare feet on carpet.

Through his lashes Guy Oscard saw his father standing on the hearth rug within two yards of him. There was something strange, something unnatural and disturbing, about the movements of the man that made Guy keep quite still—watching him.

Upon the mantelpiece the medicine bottles were arranged in a row, and the "eccentric Oscard" was studying the labels with a feverish haste. One bottle—a blue one—bore two labels; the smaller one, of brilliant orange color, with the word "Poison" in startling simplicity. He took this up and slowly drew the cork. It was a liniment for neuralgic pains in an overwrought head—belladonna. He poured some into a medicine glass, carefully measuring two tablespoonfuls.

Then Guy Oscard sprang up and wrenched the glass away from him, throwing the contents into the fire, which flared up. Quick as thought, the bottle was at the sick man's lips. He was a heavily built man, with powerful limbs. Guy seized his arm, closed with him, and for a moment there was a deadly struggle, while the pungent odor of the poison filled the atmosphere. At last Guy fell back on art; he tripped his father cleverly, and they both rolled on the floor.

The sick man still gripped the bottle, but he could not get it to his lips. He poured some of the stuff over his son's face, but fortunately missed his eyes. They struggled on the floor in the dim light, panting and gasping, but speaking no word. The strength of the elder man was unnatural—it frightened the younger and stronger combatant.

At last Guy Oscard got his knee on his father's neck, and bent his wrist back until he was forced to let go his hold on the bottle.

"Get back to bed!" said the son breathlessly. "Get back to bed!"

Thomas Oscard suddenly changed his tactics. He whined and cringed to his own offspring, and begged him to give him the bottle. He dragged across the floor on his knees—£3,000 a year on its knees to Guy Oscard, who wanted that money because he knew that he would never get Millicent Chyne without it.

"Get back to bed!" repeated Guy sternly, and at last the man crept sullenly between the rumpled sheets.

Guy put things straight in a simple, manlike way. The doctor's instructions were quite clear. If any sign of excitement or mental unrest manifested itself the sleeping draft contained in a small bottle on the mantelpiece was to be administered at once, or the consequences would be fatal. But Thomas Oscard refused to take it. He seemed determined to kill himself. The son stood over him and tried threats, persuasion, prayers, and all the while there was in his heart the knowledge that unless his father could be made to sleep the reputed three thousand a year would be his before the morning.

It was worse than the actual physical struggle on the floor. The temptation was almost too strong.

After awhile the sick man became quieter, but he still refused to take the opiate. He closed his eyes and made no answer to Guy's repeated supplication. Finally he ceased shaking his head in negation and at last breathed regularly, like a child asleep.

For a moment there was a deadly struggle.

Afterward Guy Oscard reproached himself for suspecting nothing, but he knew nothing of brain diseases—those strange maladies that kill the human in the human being. He knew, however, why his father had tried to kill himself. It was not the first time. It was panic. He was afraid of going mad, of dying mad like his father before him. People called him eccentric. Some said that he was mad, but it was not so; it was only fear of madness. He was still asleep when the nurse came back from the pantomime in a cab, and Guy crept softly downstairs to let her in.

They stood in the hall for some time while Guy told her in whispers about the belladonna liniment. Then they went upstairs together and found Thomas Oscard, the great historian, dead on the floor. The liniment bottle, which Guy had left on the mantelpiece, was in his hand—empty. He had feigned sleep in order to carry out his purpose.

They picked him up and laid him reverently on the bed, and then Guy went for the doctor.

"I could," said the attendant of death, when he had heard the whole story, "I could give you a certificate. I could reconcile it, I mean, with my professional conscience and my—other conscience. He could not have lived thirty hours. There was an abscess on his brain. But I should advise you to face the inquest. It might be"—he paused, looking keenly into the young fellow's face—"it might be that at some future date, when you are quite an old man, you may feel inclined to tell this story."

Again the doctor paused, glancing with a vague smile toward the woman who stood beside them. "Or even nurse," he added, not troubling to finish his sentence. "We all have our moments of expansiveness. And it is a story that might easily be discredited."

Canada's Own Railway

London, March 17.—W. T. R. Preston giving evidence before the royal commission at Cape Town, as to the way the government railway is managed in Canada, said, on the whole, he was sure it was managed on proper business principles, and that politics cut a very small figure, if any, in the management. He was emphatic that the government lines in Canada were among the best equipped on the North American Continent, and the number of employees on the lines were less per mile than on any other of the Canadian railways.

GOLD BY THE BUSHEL

THE SEARCH FOR GOLD has ever been man's strongest passion. No obstacles have deterred him. Heat and cold, famine and thirst, hardship and exposure alike have failed to conquer the insatiable desire. From the dawn of history, when King Solomon opened up the famous wealth of the mines of Ophir, to the present day, men have sought the yellow metal. Countless lives have been sacrificed, and yet the search goes on.

In the winter of 1900-1901 four miners tottered into the city of Nome, Alaska; their feet and hands black with frostbite; their bodies emaciated almost to skeletons; their eyes sunken. Their dogs had died of starvation and cold; they had abandoned their sleds and provisions; but they staggered under the weight of forty pounds of pure GOLD!

The city buzzed at once with excitement. Where had they found it? To all questions the strangers were dumb. There was one man in Nome, however, who thought he knew a way to locate the new discovery. He had been a friend of the Esquimaux to the North; he spoke their language well; he had relieved their want; and he had spent nearly four years among them. He could talk the "true talk" of these simple natives. That man was ANDREW S. NELSON. Within twelve hours he was speeding North, with a team of six tried dogs and a supply of provisions.

It is needless to recite the hardships he endured in this lonely journey, facing the fierce north wind. Suffice it to say he found an old Esquimau who showed him where the strangers had made their find.

Under the Northern Stars he drove the stakes which now mark the boundaries of NELSON GULCH MINING CLAIMS.

Three Hundred Dollars in Two Hours

Connected with Mr. Andrew S. Nelson were his father, Major William Nelson, U. S. Army, retired, and Dr. G. M. Morris, an English surgeon. When spring opened up these three men began to test their ground. They found it exceedingly rich, but they were troubled to get water. They tried various schemes, but as their money had nearly run out they could work only on a small scale. Once they were lucky in saving some water with a dam after a rain, and Mr. Nelson and Dr. Morris washed out $300.00 in gold in less than two hours. Numerous tests made over the ground showed the top gravel to run a dollar a cubic yard.

At other times and places from $18.00 to $56.00 were secured from single yards of gravel. Nuggets ranging in value from $1.00 to $47.00 each were found. This is an ancient river bed into which, for ages, the waters have been washing and disintegrating the rock which held the gold.

More than $1,000,000 have been taken by other parties from the gravel which was washed from this Company's ground into the stream below, and they have only just begun work. They expect millions more, and their tests justify their expectation. $150,000 were taken from Old Glory Creek, which is one of its bends swung into the edge of our old river.

Favorable Government Report

In the summer of 1903 the United States Geological Survey sent out an exploring party to cover this ground, under Mr. Fred. H. Moffit. This is a part of his report:

"This small gulch (Nelson Gulch), barely three-fourths of a mile long, leads down from a broad, low saddle in the divide between Old Glory and Inmachuck, and is of interest since it is probably an important factor in the origin of the rich ground just below its mouth on Old Glory."

What is Placer Gold?

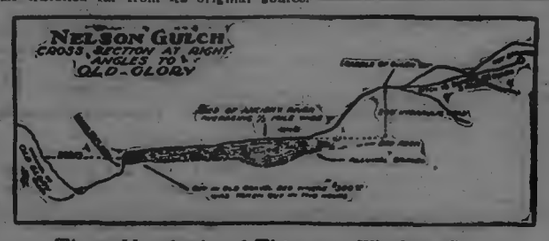
Nowhere on earth have the elements and glaciers worn away the mountains as in Alaska. All the gold in their veins has been carried into river beds, the heavier pieces being deposited nearby, the lighter ones going farther.

Now, it does not take much thought to realize that, as Nelson Gulch is the source of all the gold on the Inmachuck River, the heaviest particles and the greatest amount must be on the Company's ground.

This is further shown by the fact that the gold found there is sharp-cornered and angular. Now, pure gold is very soft and as it travels down stream it is rubbed against the sand and gravel and the sharp corners worn off. When you find the particles of gold in a river bed are worn and the corners rounded, then you may be sure they have travelled some distance.

The gold in Nelson Gulch is angular and sharp-cornered. Notice what the United States Government Report says on this subject:

"The gold from Nelson Gulch is brighter than that of Old Glory, is rough and angular, and contains considerable quartz, and evidently has not travelled far from its original source."



Three Hundred and Thirty-six Working Days

Although the season for hydaulicing in Alaska is but 140 days, every hour of that 140 days is daylight. For a full month the sun never sets, and during two other months it does not get dark. Therefore, by keeping on three shifts of men, eight hours each, the work does not stop, and we get 336 working days of ten hours each. This is a larger number of hours than the great placer mines of Colorado, Montana or Idaho can work in any one year.

Mr. Andrew S. Nelson is now on the property with a force of men getting everything in readiness for the spring work. We fully expect to have the gold running down our sluice-ways by June.

Gravel Richer as it Goes Down

Everybody knows that in old river beds carrying gold the gravel gets richer as it goes down next to bed rock.

In several places on bed rock this Company's gravel, washed at the rate of $50.00 a yard. Of course, it is not all that rich; but suppose we average it at $10.00 a yard; this would make an acre worth $200,000.00!

Railroad, Telegraph and Telephone Lines to the Mines

A railroad is now in operation part way from Nome to Deering, and will be finished through next season. All the above lines will pass very close to this property, and will give us perfect transportation and communication facilities.

During the open season three regular steamers per week between Seattle and Deering, together with the many irregular ones, give us freight rates no greater than those in effect from Kansas City to points in Arizona.

Letter from Major William Nelson, U. S. Army, retired, under date of February 18, 1907:

"Could the public be made to see the property as I know it there would be no trouble in selling stock, for it will prove the best investment anyone could make. Every $100.00 will return at least $5,000.00 to the investor if you can only get it opened up. I feel sure that with thirty days' work you can declare a dividend on the capital."

Our Property

The Company owns fourteen claims of twenty acres each, free and clear of all encumbrances, on the gravel terrace of Nelson Gulch, near the head of the Inmachuck River, Seward Peninsula, Alaska, nearly due north of Nome. Since January 1st three hundred acres more have been added to the Company's holdings.

Mr. J. W. Pickard, a mining engineer of high standing, has been engaged since the spring of 1900 in making tests of the gold-bearing gravels of Seward Peninsula. He represents there a New York Syndicate, which has, through him, secured large holdings. He says of these deposits: "If I were to tell you the values that exist under the tundra (species of heavy bunch grass), you would hardly believe what I tell you. The values are almost beyond computation. I found gravel averaging $4.87 to the cubic yard in one place; in another hole it averaged $7.64; in another $6.10; another showed an average value of $5.00; still another $12.41. To figure out the values in an acre of such gravel produces figures so prodigious as to literally stagger one."

"Mr. W. H. Bond, Paul Denhart and P. T. Nixon have a claim whose pay streak yielded all the way from 20 cents to $3.80 per pan, or $675.00 per yard. A single shift has taken out as much as $95,000.00, and $12,000.00 have been secured in one day's sluicing. Without exaggeration gold by the bushel is being washed from these gravels. The stream of gold constantly pouring into Nome attests this fact, and justifies the prediction of those best informed regarding the conditions existing there, which is that these gravel benches with their wealth of golden deposits will continue to be found on Seward Peninsula after the present generation of miners has been gathered to their fathers; a golden stream will still be pouring from the creeks, hills and tundra fifty years hence, if the promise of the future be but half fulfilled."

Mr. Rex Beach, in The Saturday Evening Post of January 5th, 1907, gives numerous instances of enormous strikes on Seward Peninsula—$13,000.00 in one day! $2,000,000.00 taken from Little Creek in one winter. Two men, in a few weeks, working under difficulties with the crudest machinery, took out $410,000.00.

Mr. Beach is entirely disinterested, being merely a writer and correspondent of The Post.

Inexhaustable Water Supply and only 3 miles of ditch

NEARBY PROPERTIES AMAZINGLY RICH.

Eighty per cent. of the world's gold has been taken from beds of old streams.

One company is building a ditch 63 miles long to bring water from a lake with which to wash the gravel that has been carried from Nelson Gulch down the Inmachuck River. If these washings justify the enormous expense of this ditch, and if $1,000,000.00 have already been secured from them with the crudest methods, how many millions will this property yield?

OUR WATER FACILITIES PERFECT.

An enormous, unfailing hot spring, three miles away, will furnish this Company water enough to handle 3,000 cubic yards of gravel per 24 hours at a cost of less than one cent per yard. Its claims lie close up to the contact between the lime and schist, where all of this gold originates. It is at the fountain-head, and others get only what is washed further on. Its nuggets have sharp points and edges; those found further beyond are worn smooth by the friction of their journey.

Placer Mining the Cheapest

Placer mining is the cheapest and oldest way to mine for gold. We estimate that it will cost us only half of one cent to wash a cubic yard.

Why We Sell Stock

Money is needed to bring water from the hot springs and to provide hydraulic apparatus.

The Board of Directors of Nelson Gulch Mining Company have allotted 500,000 shares of the Treasury stock to be sold at ten cents per share. When this allotment shall have been sold the price of the stock will positively be advanced to 25 cents per share; or, what is more likely, will be withdrawn from the market.

Our gravel beds average 18 feet in thickness. At a dollar a cubic yard this would make $90,000.00 per acre, or over $8,000,000.00 for the entire property. This is certainly an underestimate, because bed-rock gravel will run far higher. We are capitalized at $2,000,000.00, but with ten-cent stock this means a valuation of only $200,000.00 on a property which must certainly run away up in the millions. This is another way of looking at the great value of this investment to you.

Reserve Before the Advance

Write today and reserve your shares at ten cents a share. The next advance will be to 25 cents.

Better still, wire your reservation. There is only a certain allotment for sale; when that is gone the stock is off the market. It is first come, first served.

SINKING SENSATIONS IN THE STOMACH.

Do They Affect You?

These unpleasant feelings of weakness and collapse indicate that the sympathetic nervous System is out of order.

The cause is impairment of nerve tone, arising from failure of the stomach to perform its work.

Acute indigestion follows and the natural result is mental depression, and a feeling of collapse and extreme weakness.

It acts at once upon the digestive and assimilative organs— it fortifies the stomach—makes the blood nourishing, gives it a rich, red color, the best evidence of health.

"For ten years I suffered acutely from stomach trouble," writes Mr. Maxwell Thompson, of Toledo. "I always had a headache and full feeling after meals. My appetite was poor, and I didn't relish food. It was all due to a weak, defective stomach. I read about Ferrozone and ordered six boxes from my druggist. It was no time at all before I felt much better, and when all the Ferrozone was used I really took a new lease of life. I am stronger, brighter, and feel more like work than before trying Ferrozone. It is a splendid tonic, the best I ever used."

Ferrozone is unrivalled in curing stomach ailments, try it and be convinced. Sold by all druggists in 50c. boxes

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Gathered From the Local Police Station.

A boy named Joseph Shearer, fourteen years old, was charged with breaking into Jas. Edgcumbe's grocery store. Mr. Gordon, for the boy, pleaded guilty and made a strong plea for clemency, saying he had gotten beyond his parent's control. The Magistrate noted that the boy had been in the court several times, and is incorrigible. His father is away most of the time and his mother spoils him. The Chief noted that the boy had been in the court at least half a dozen times. Mr. Wood noted that the plea of "one more chance" had been made several times before. The Magistrate thought it would be no use to send him home or to the Children's Shelter, so sent him to the St. John's Industrial School, East Toronto, for an indefinite period, not to exceed four years.

Will There be a Dead Indian

On Saturday afternoon a well known Smithtown farmer went to a local veterinary surgeon, and, after telling the symptoms of trouble affecting a sick horse of his, obtained a bottle of lotion, for outward application only. The lotion was placed in a bottle that originally contained a well known brand of whisky.

The farmer brought the bottle to his rig, which was located temporarily in a certain Hunter street hotel yard. On arrival at the yard the farmer shoved the bottle into the back of his rig. An Indian, whose rig was in the same yard, was seen, at the time the bottle was placed, to be in that vicinity. The hotel hoster saw the Indian circling about the farmer's sleigh, but was suddenly called to another part of the yard to attend a customer. When the Smithtown farmer got home he felt for the bottle of lotion and, although it had been placed in his rig so that it could not either be broken or fall out, the bottle was missing.

A Times representative, learning of the facts, went to the "Vet" in question and asked what the result would be, supposing the Indian drank the lotion. The "Vet" replied that one teaspoonfull of the lotion would sicken a man if he took the mixture internally, whilst a dessert-spoonfull would mean certain death. If there is a sudden death in one of our several surrounding Indian villages, of an Indian who was in Peterborough on the day in question, there will not only be a true temperance story, but a direct warning to those who search hotel yard rigs for plunder.

Work Progressing at Drummond

Mr. Geo. Allen, foreman of the men employed at Drummond Station, was in the city yesterday. Mr. Allen informed a Times representative that the huge dredge placed there for digging out clay for the Lakefield Cement Co., is now complete and that steam, for experimental purposes, was turned on yesterday afternoon. The next work to be done is the laying of a railroad siding from the main G. T. R. track to the dredge. This will begin as soon as the frost is out of the ground and will be completed by May 1st. One cut on this siding will involve the removal of at least one thousand cubic yards of gravel and sand.

Mr. Harry Evans is After City Interests

Yesterday the annual spring preparations for getting the city's streets into order began. Street Commissioner Harry Evans being in charge of the city housecleaning, or rather, street scraping.

Mr. Evans realized that if the winter covering of our local streets, were not taken off now, the ice underneath would never melt, and in case a shower of rain fell, the roads would within a week of so be almost unusable. Mr. Evans deserves great credit for his wide-awake and prompt action in the city's interests.

Forty Cords of Wood Sawed in 40 Hours

Lindsay Post says, in part;

Mr. William Curtin, owner of a wood sawing outfit in Emsimmore, and an expert therein, has since early spring been moving westward, leaving a trail of wood piles behind him in every farm yard, where they happened to be short of fuel. He reserved his best effort for the occasion of his visit to Mr. Cecil Sheets, near Maple Leaf cheese factory, when he raced through forty cords of cedar in five hours. If anyone can approach this feat, Mr. Curtin is prepared to buckle to his work, and go a cord or two better.

The Modesty of Women

Naturally makes them shrink from the indelicate questions, the obnoxious examinations, and unpleasant local treatments, which some physicians consider essential in the treatment of diseases of women. Yet, if help can be had, it is better to submit to this ordeal than let the disease grow and spread. The trouble is that so often the woman undergoes all the annoyance and shame for nothing. Thousands of women who have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription write in appreciation of the cure which dispenses with the examinations and local treatments. There is no other medicine so sure and safe for delicate women as "Favorite Prescription." It cures debilitating drains, irregularity and female weakness. It always helps. It almost always cures. It is strictly non-alcoholic, non-secret, all its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper; contains no deleterious or habit-forming drugs, and every native medicinal root entering into its composition has the full endorsement of those most eminent in the several schools of medical practice. Some of these numerous and strongest of professional endorsements of its ingredients, will be found in a pamphlet wrapped around the bottle, also in a booklet mailed free on request, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. These professional endorsements should have far more weight than any amount of the ordinary lay, or non-professional testimonials.

MAJOR DENNISTOUN IS BANQUETTED.

57th Regiment Officers Present a Solid Silver Charger to Their Ex-paymaster Who is Leaving for Winnipeg.

Last night at the Oriental Hotel, Mine Host Geo. Graham, by his efficient staff in the culinary department, demonstrated that this city can and does put up as well served and prepared a banquet and can be had in any of the larger cities.

A few minutes before nine the officers of the regiment gathered in the hotel rotunda with their invited guests, and shortly before the clock struck nine, the hosts and their guests entered the dining room of the Oriental.

Dr. Halliday, mess president of the regiment, very ably filled the chair, while Mr. L. M. Hayes vice-president held up the other end, with great judgment.

The dinner which was given in honor of Major R. M. Dennistoun, late paymaster of the Peterborough Rangers, was well served, and well dispensed. The guest of the evening, Mr. Dennistoun preserved his usual calm manner in the midst of the festive offerings presented.

The menu was as follows:

Oyster Cocktails.
Turtle Soup.
Celery Olives
Fillet of Salmon.
Pommes Duchesnoun.
Creamed Sweetbreads.
Ris a la Orede Glace Kirsch.
Roman Punch.
Spring Turkey.
Pomeranian Bain.
Mashed Potatoes.
Sweet Corn.
Waldorfnut Salad.
Scotch Plum Pudding.
Hot mince pie. Nogeau Jelly.
Frozen Pudding.
Macaroons, cakes, salted almonds, nuts, raisins, Roquefort cheese.
Cafe noir.

After the viands had been dealt with in a manner that should delight the soul of an accomplished chef, the toast list was reached as follows; "The King."—Proposed by Lt.-Col. Halliday.

"Our Guest," and presentation of plate.—Proposed by Lt.-Colonel Miller. Responded to by Major R. M. Dennistoun. Responded to by Lt.-Col. Halliday.

The plate presented consisted of a handsome silver charger, inscribed with the coat of arms, beautifully engraved, of the 57th Regiment, and the words, "Presented to Major R. M. Dennistoun, by the officers of the 57th Regiment, December, 1906."

It might be explained that the seeming discrepancy in the dates of this handsome piece of plate and that of the presentation is due to the fact that the charger was ordered by the officers at the time Major Dennistoun resigned the paymastership. It was decided, however, that it was better to reserve the presentation until Mr. Dennistoun was about to leave the city.

The remainder of the toast list and songs were as follows;

Song—"Drill Ye Tarriers, Drill"—Major Dennistoun.

"Sister Corps.—Proposed by Major Clegg. Responded to by Major Young and Lieut. Medd.

Recitation—The Colonel.

Song—Captain Claxton.

"Our Financial Institutions" — Proposed by Major Stevenson. Responded to by Mr. D. Hughes-Charles and Mr. Vincent Eastwood.

Song—Mr. D. Hughes-Charles.

"The Press"—Proposed by Major Hayes. Responded to by Mr. Dobbin and Mr. Yokome.

Song—Mr. Watt.

"The Regimental Babies" —Proposed by Captain Walker (Adjutant). Responded to by Major Cameron and Mr. R. N. Merritt.

"The Ladies"—Proposed by Captain Claxton. Responded to by Mr. F. D. Kerr.

Major Dennistoun's response to the presentation was typical of the honored man and contained a sincere regret at his severance from his beloved regiment and a hope that the 57th would have a fortunate future. The banquet wound up about midnight when the familiar and patriotic strains of "God save the King," might be heard, not only by the half hundred guests, but by those passing along Hunter street.

Large Deputation for the Capital

Places Along the T. V. Canal Route Will Interview the Government.

Yesterday a large number of Peterborough citizens, including the mayor and other civic officials and most of the council, as well as representatives of the local press, joined the big deputation that left for Ottawa to wait on the Government in connection with the Trent Valley canal. The special train pulled out at one o'clock. There were about twenty in the civic deputation from Peterborough, several from the county council, ten from Lindsay, eight from Omemee and about twenty-five from Campbellford. A number were also taken on at Norwood and Havelock. In addition to the deputation a large number of private citizens of Peterborough, also took advantage of the cheap rates to visit the capital. In all there were nearly 150 on board the train.

Important to Folk Interested in Coal

Washington, March 20.—An important conference which is likely to have far-reaching results was held Friday between members of the inter-state commerce commission and representatives of coal operators and coal miners' organizations in Indiana and Illinois.

In addition to a complaint as to the result of the conference which is soon to be filed formally with the commission it is probable that Attorney-General Bonaparte will be authorized to begin prosecutions against officials of the coal-carrying railroads in Indiana and Illinois for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

TRY THIS FOR YOUR COUGH

Mix half an ounce of the pure Virgin Oil of Pine with two ounces of Glycerine and half pint of Whisky. Use in teaspoonful does. A famous throat and lung specialist, whose camp for consumptives in the pine woods of Maine has attracted great attention, declares the above formula will break up a cold in twenty-four hours, heal the lungs and cure any cough that is curable. The ingredients can be secured from ary drug store at small cost.

Care should be exercised in securing the best quality of Glycerine and Whisky, while the Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) should be purchased only in the original half-ounce vials, which are securely sealed in a round wooden case, with engraved wrapper, with the name—Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Windsor, Ont.—plainly printed thereon. Cheap or adulterated Oils, which are sold in bulk, always create nausea, and never effect the desired results.

Letter of Condolence to Mrs. R. Foster

The officers and members of Court Stanley, No. 7680, A.O.F., last night sent the following letter of condolence to Mrs. R. Foster and family on the death of their husband and father, the late Richard Foster;

To Mrs. R. Foster and family;

We, the officers and members of Court Stanley, No. 7680, A.O.F., desire to express to yourself and family, our sincere sympathy in this your hour of sorrow. Your late husband was very highly esteemed by us as a friend and brother; we shall not soon forget him, but shall mourn his departure from our midst. We can but offer our consolation to you by pointing out that we believe that he has gone to a better home, prepared by our elder brother, our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, in whom the weary heart and sorrow-worn soul shall find eternal rest, and we know that your loss, and ours is his gain, and although family and fraternal ties are broken here, our prayer is that we all shall meet in the heavenly home where there is no more parting for in heaven we meet to part no more.

Signed in behalf of Court Stanley, A.O.F.

SETH ADLAM, Treasurer.

COURT SCANDAL

Sensational Developments Likely to Result in Old Madrid.

London, March 20.—Reynolds' Newspaper gives prominence to a story of a court scandal in Madrid which, after having been successfully hushed for years, threatens developments involving sensational disclosures. The paper proceeds to relate a story of Alfonso XII., showing how late in life he became enamored of a beautiful and famous singer named Helen Sanz, for whom and her offspring the King fully provided by will. Difficulties are now reported to have risen between the executors of the royal will and the heirs of Helen Sanz, her son being credited with the intention of having his claim established legally at any cost.

Senor Nongues, a well known Republican deputy and lawyer, has been retained in behalf of young Sanz, but no date has yet been assigned for a hearing of the case in the civil court of Madrid. The crown lawyers are making desperate efforts to secure delay in the hope of making a settlement. It is doubtful if they will succeed, and if the action is fought some remarkable details of the King's last paramour will be disclosed.

BIG HAUL OF DIAMONDS

New York, March 20.—Arthur Preston Green and Charles Ronrer, passengers on the North German-Lloyd steamer Amerika, were arrested when the vessels arrived from Hamburg and Southampton, charged with attempting smuggling. Diamonds and jewellery to the appraised value of nearly $25,000, which the customs officials allege the prisoners had failed to declare, was taken from them. The valuables were confiscated and the men were held for extradition.

Though only the charge of smuggling was preferred against the prisoners here they are wanted abroad in connection with a theft of some $95,600 worth of jewellery and precious stones in London, and the London authorities have been notified. The local police received a cablegram from Scotland Yard asking that they be detained upon their arrival.

Cheap Groceries for Sale Today

In order to obtain permanent premises, China Hall has purchased the large and well assorted stock of groceries, etc., of Mr. A. Rountree, No. 394 George street. This stock, which is one of the finest grocery stocks in Peterborough, will, together with the balance of the China Hall stock, be thrown on the market at cost price, commencing March 2 and continuing until both stocks are entirely disposed of, but no longer than the 15th of April, after which date the store will be re-fitted, and opened about May 1, with an entirely new stock of crockery, china, glassware, cut-glass, plated ware, fine china ornaments, etc. China Hall, after that date, will be beyond a doubt one of the finest and most complete china stores in Canada. The China Hall Company.

HILL READY TO SELL OUT

Minneapolis, Minn., March 19.—President James J. Hill, of the Great Northern Railway, told the Legislative committee that he would be only too willing to have the United States government take over his road. He stated further, however, that if the government should go into railroad business the country would have a "white elephant" on its hands.

"Then," said Mr. Hill, "the government would be obliged to engage in another lottery to get rid of the 'white elephant.'

"If the government had charge of railroads, congress would be kept busy making appropriations; districts with a poor representation and sparse population would be left in the lurch, and railroads would become less valuable."

Steamers Have Not Been Ordered

Montreal, March 20.—The persistent rumors to the effect that the Canadian Pacific Railway intend to remove the present Atlantic line steamers to the Pacific and to replace them by new steamers already ordered, were referred to by Sir Thomas Shaughnessy yesterday. He said:

"The Canadian Pacific is at all times considering how best to improve its service upon both land and sea, and so there is no doubt that the time is coming when we shall add to our fleet of steamships and better the service in every respect.

"I can tell you one thing positive: We have not yet ordered the new steamers so much talked about in the press throughout the country. That will come in due course, but not at present."

Mule Caused the War

Washington, March 19.—Senor Ireneo Salgado of the Honduran frontier town of Los Manos, owned an only mule. One day about the first of the year a party of Nicaraguan cavalrymen rode by and took it with them the mule. The Honduran Minister of Foreign Affairs protested to the Foreign Office of the neighboring republic, and after a lengthy and warm controversy diplomatic relations were broken off and war actually began. This is the story of the beginning of the present conflict, according to documents which have been received at Washington.

HEALTHY CHILDREN

Made so by the Right Kind of Food

A family doctor was shocked when he found a mother had fed a three weeks old baby on Grape-Nuts. But let her tell her own way:

"When my second baby was three weeks old it became necessary to feed it by means of a bottle. At first we used cow's milk, but it did not agree with the baby at all, although we tried a number of different formulas.

"We afterwards went from one food to another without finding any that would agree. The child was not only weak and thin but would cry pitifully almost the whole day.

"One day when giving my eldest child a dish of Grape-Nuts I thought I would see if the baby would take some.

"I prepared it by pouring hot milk over it and allowing it to cool. The child ate all I had prepared and went to sleep looking more satisfied than it had ever done before.

"I told one physician about it and he was horrified—said a child so young could digest only milk, that I must not do it again.

"So back we went to the bottle. Some weeks the child would gain an ounce, other weeks there would be no gain; twice she lost weight.

"Finally, without letting anyone know it, I began giving her a little Grape-Nuts at bedtime. I noticed she would sleep longer; then I added a breakfast of Grape-Nuts to her diet.

"It was not long before everyone remarked how much better the baby was getting. I knew that Grape-Nuts was agreeing with her for she was steadily increasing in weight and her color became better.

"Now she is 15 months old, weighs 27 lbs., and still has two meals a day of Grape-Nuts. My oldest child, now five years old, weighs 48 lbs. When a baby she would not take any of the soft cereals but took to Grape-Nuts at once. I encourage the use of it with the children because it does them good, and because it is so convenient—always ready." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

SPORTING TOPICS

THE TURF.

Local horsemen yesterday were sore, in fact it was hardly safe to ask one of those in the front rank, "How about the races for next summer." One leading race horse owner in Peterborough yesterday (whether in good faith or not, your deponent sayeth not) said to a Times representative, "I am going to sell out my horses, if I only get 30 cents each for them. Racing is dead in this Province under such fool regulations.

These remarks were instigated by a report that the Supreme Court has decided that open betting on races is illegal, which means the wiping out of the old system of betting from booths where receipts are given for the money handed over.

It will thus affect Toronto, Hamilton, Fort Erie, Windsor and Montreal—the racing centers of Canada. The case came before the court in the shape of an appeal by Jake Saunders, a Toronto bookmaker, who was fined in the police court there for taking bets at the Woodbine last spring. This case was appealed, and yesterday's decision not only sustains the police court fine, but also strikes a severe blow at racing. Justices Girouard and Davies dissented from the judgment.

The above decision will mean a loss to, say, the Woodbine track, Toronto, of from $2000 to $3000 a day. Consequently the turf clubs of Ontario will not be able to rang up sufficient purses to attract the owners of good horses. Such owners will probably take their horses to the United States where Blue Laws are not rigidly enforced. This will directly mean that the "Willies" who used to put their roses change on the ponies will now have to play poker or some such game to get the excitement that betting on the ponies heretofore absorbed the money their oddities made.

GOLF.

A meeting of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club will be held on Saturday night next at eight o'clock in the chambers of the Bank of Montreal (Ontario branch) to elect a captain for the year and transact other business.

Killed Friend in Self-Defence

New York, March 19.—Some unscrupulous boys were unnecessarily responsible for the arrest early today of David Stanhoff, 40, of Brooklyn, on a charge of having murdered his friend and next door neighbor, John Hoffman.

According to Stanhoff's story he was returning home just after midnight when he came upon Hoffman beating two boys in front of his house. Hoffman was in a fearful rage, he said, when Stanhoff remonstrated, the other man turned upon him. Stanhoff declares that he was forced to fight to defend himself. One of his blows knocked Hoffman down and as he fell he had struck the stone curb, fracturing his skull. He died soon after being taken to an hospital. Stanhoff was immediately arrested.

It is said that a crowd of boys have been annoying Hoffman for some time, and it is supposed the two he was beating when Stanhoff interfered, were members of the gang whom he had caught.

Will Not Pay Lawyer's Fee

New York, March 19.—Mme. Anna Gould has refused to pay a divorce bill of $175,000, the price of getting rid of Count Boni de Castellane, report says, and has been backed up by her brother, George Gould. The bill, it was said, is the charge made by Edmond Kelly, a former New York lawyer, now a Parisian advocate. The countess turned the bill over to George Gould, who is trustee of her estate, and he is said to have declared in forcible English that he would not pay any such sum.

For Boiling Human Body

Oklahoma City, March 20.—Clifton K. Timmons, a student in the Medical Department of the Epworth University, has been arrested here following the discovery that he was boiling the flesh off the bones of a human body.

Timmons was under instruction from the medical department of the university to prepare the skeleton for further use in the study of anatomy. Bond in the sum of $2,000 was furnished him by the faculty of the medical department, and his hearing will be had immediately.

Neighbors of Timmons objected to the unusual spectacle of the work he was doing, and also claimed that the fumes arising from the boiling human flesh were offensive.

Nurse Seriously Injured

New York, March 20.—William C. J. Savidge, an actor, and a son of the late William Savidge, the old-time actor, was locked up in Brooklyn last night, charged with having shot Miss Roselyn D. Wilbert, a trained nurse. The latter is believed to have been fatally wounded. Miss Wilbert is 21 years old, and lives in Brooklyn. According to her story, she received a message asking her to go to a nearby drug store and telephone a physician with whom she had a professional acquaintance. She went to the store and learned that the physician had not summoned her. Returning to the house, she encountered Savidge, whom she had known for some time. Savidge said he had come to invite her to take a walk. Miss Wilbert declined. There was further conversation, when suddenly, Miss Wilbert alleges, Savidge drew a revolver and, aiming at her heart, fired.

Dynamite Found Under Hellcon Hall

Upton Sinclair Says There Was Enough There to Blow Place to Bits.

New York, March 20.—Upton Sinclair, whose co-operative colony house, Helicon Hall, near Englewood, N.J., was destroyed by fire early Saturday morning, admitted yesterday that there was enough dynamite found in the cellar of the building to have blown it to atoms.

This statement, with the finding Saturday afternoon of a stick of the explosive near the wreck of the boilers, has spurred the authorities to more vigorous efforts upon the theory of incendiarism.

The police are working on the supposition that the place was set on fire, and will question several persons who are known to have had disagreements with Mr. Sinclair.

Professor William Noyes of Columbia University, president of the Board of Directors of Helicon Hall, denied the report that Upton Sinclair resigned from the Board of Directors because of friction with other members. He stated when he resigned two weeks ago that it was because of his work on his new books according to Mr. Noyes.

That Coroner Lees has joined hands with the public prosecutor to investigate the fire was evidenced in the following statement made by him to a reporter;

"We are aware of the fact that Helicon Hall was insured for $40,000," said Dr. Lees. "The colonists paid $65,000 for it. The land, as it stands today, is worth nearly $40,000. The fact that the premises were so fully covered by insurance is held by some as suspicious. That in itself is not wrong.

"It is generally rumored that the colony was hard pressed for debt by some of Englewood's business men, and that three days ago Constable Myers served papers on Mr. Sinclair in a suit to recover $1,000 for painting in the hall.

"While none of this is real evidence unless we can corroborate it for the jury, the facts are enough to compel me to make a thorough investigation. I shall subpoena every one who is known to be in possession of any information."

Upton Sinclair yesterday said the fate of the Helicon Hall movement hung in the balance. No action, of course, will be taken until a directors' meeting is held.

THAW LOOKED LIKE A DRUNKEN MAN

When He Spent the First Night in the Cells According to the Policemen---Admissions Made to Mr. Jerome.

New York, March 20.—Immediately after Mr. Jerome had announced that the case for the People was closed, Mr. Delmas offered in evidence the record of the trial of Abraham Hummel on the charge of conspiracy. The district attorney did not object, and the defendant's lawyer proceeded to read the indictment against Hummel charging him with the Dodge-Morse divorce tangle. Passing from the indictment, Mr. Delmas read the record of the trial in full.

The luncheon recess was ordered while Mr. Delmas was still engaged in reading the record.

JEROME'S VIEWS OF HUMMEL.

After the luncheon recess Mr. Jerome having agreed to allow the Hummel trial record to go in evidence without the necessity of reading it through, Mr. Delmas had the printed record marked in evidence, saying he would refer to the district attorney's remarks regarding Hummel in making his summing up speech to the Thaw jury.

THAW WAS IRRATIONAL.

Mr. Delmas then directed that policeman John P. Anthony be called as a witness. Anthony was serving as doorman at the Tenderloin Police station the night Thaw was brought in after the tragedy.

"Did you see the defendant in his cell that night?" asked Mr. Delmas.

"Yes, sir," replied the officer.

"Was he rational or irrational?" asked Mr. Delmas.

"Irrational," replied the witness.

Mr. Jerome took up the cross-examination of Anthony, and got him to admit that he had previously told a different story.

OR ELSE HE WAS "DOPEY."

"Did you say in my office that Thaw looked 'dopey,' and that you said so to the man who relieved you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you not say that Thaw did nothing irrational that you had seen many insane people, but that Thaw did nothing insane while you were with him?"

"Yes, sir."

HEARD LITTLE GIRL SCREAM.

Officer Barrett, another door man, had seen Thaw about 20 times that night, and had considered him irrational.

"Did you hear him refer to hearing the voices of girls?"

"He spoke twice about that to me. He said, 'Where are these little girls I hear?' I said, 'There are no little girls here. All there are is some women who were picked up on Sixth avenue for soliciting.' He said, 'No, they are little girls, some one is beating them, I can hear them screaming.' Then after a while he went to sleep and slept two and a half hours. I asked him, 'How did you sleep?' He said, 'I could not sleep at all because of those little girls screaming upstairs.'"

"Were there any little girls up stairs?" asked Mr. Delmas.

"I'm pretty sure there were not anyway, I could not hear a sound."

Barrett said he was sure Thaw could hear no voices from upstairs in his cell.

When Mr. Jerome took the witness in hand for cross-examination he admitted making a statement to Mr. Garvan that "Thaw seemed to be all right at this time except that he had apparently been drinking a variety of stuff or using dope."

Barrett admitted also that there were a number of women upstairs that night.

"And one of them cursed and swore, and said she would not sleep there or let any one else sleep there, did she not?"

"I don't know anything about the women," replied the witness.

"Well, did you tell Mr. Garvan that when you were with Thaw you heard that?"

"No, I did not. I said I heard it when I was upstairs."

Returning to his question regarding Thaw's appearance, Mr. Jerome asked; "Well, didn't he look like a man who had been drinking hard?"

"Yes."

Policeman Thomas F. Lynch followed. He had Thaw in charge the morning after the tragedy. In his opinion Thaw at that time was irrational. Thaw had also complained to him about hearing the voices of little girls in the station house.

"I told him there were no little girls in the station. He said he had heard them crying and they sounded as if they were not more than 12 years of age. I walked over to the air shaft and listened. I heard nothing. But I said to him, 'Do you hear them now?' He said 'Yes,' and then I said, 'Well, you must be dopey.'"

FOUR MORE ALIENISTS.

Dr. Graeme Hammond, Dr. S. E. Jelliffe, Dr. Pilgrim, Dr. Gregory and Dr. White, alienists for the defence, were all sworn together. They testified on the same hypothetical question that Mr. Jerome prepared, that Thaw did not know the nature of his act, and did not know it was wrong when he killed White. Mr. Jerome did not make a long examination of any of them.

Versailles Woman Was Buried Alive

Lived for Eighteen Months in the Ground.

Paris, March 19.—An old woman has been found practically buried alive in a wood on the outskirts of Versailles. She is the wife of a rag-picker who lived in a hut on the border of the wood. Nobody had seen his wife for the last two years, but a few days ago a couple of forest guards, while walking through the woods, were startled by hearing a mourning sound, apparently from some dry brushwood almost under their feet.

Pushing aside the brushwood, they saw looking out of a hole in the ground the face of an old woman. They found that she was buried in the hole, the entrance to which was less than two feet square. With some difficulty they dug her out.

She was in a terribly emaciated condition, and had been dying on a pass of filth in her prison, which was four feet wide, six feet long, and two feet deep.

The woman, who is sixty years old, had lived buried in this hole for the last eighteen months. Her husband brought her food occasionally, and when he left for his day's work covered over the entrance to the hole.

Look For Blood Humors

They Crop Out Constantly, Showing the System Needs Purifying.

You're not satisfied with your looks. How can you be with such disfiguring pimples, such rough uneven skin?

Blood is full of humors, and it's no wonder you look and feel poorly.

You are languid,
Appetite is miserable,
Sleep is hard to get,
Snap and vim are lacking.

High time to improve matters—but what's the proper remedy?

Experience proves that Dr. Hamilton's give instant effect. They tone the entire system, fortify the blood, and impart a feeling of new life in a few days.

Unlike strong purgatives, Dr. Hamilton's Pills are exceedingly mild. They are made from concentrated vegetable extracts such as Mandrake and Butternut, and can be taken by young or old, with absolute safety.

"I learnt something very valuable after using Dr. Hamilton's Pills," writes Miss Effie Thomson of Meriden. "I used to have ugly pimples that much embarrassed me. The tonic and purifying effect of Dr. Hamilton's Pills completely restored me. My health is splendid and my complexion a great credit to this marvelous medicine."

Let your medicine be Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They do cure so thoroughly. Sold by all dealers, 25c per box, or five boxes for $1. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

PITFALLS FOR YOUTHS

Ald. Emil Seidel, of Milwaukee, has taken the initiative step in a movement which, if it proves successful, will make that city much more famous to the male and barley product has made it. The alderman's scheme is to save the children by removing the pitfalls to which they are exposed after they leave the public school and before they find out what they are going to do in life, for, as he rightly says, the great mass of children do not reach the high school. In the old times the boy, after leaving school, had to serve his apprenticeship and learn his trade; then he might have his "wanderer years" and look for his opportunities. Conditions have changed. Limitations have been set upon the apprenticeship system, but the boy's restless energy cannot be limited, and it must find chances for exercise. If they cannot be found in work they will be found elsewhere.

Ald. Seidel's idea is the one that "Satan finds work for idle hands to do." He would have the municipal government, the board of education, the churches, and good citizens generally find useful work for idle hands. He believes that the problem can be solved, or, at least, that an important reform can be started by some educational system, whose details remain to be worked out. As one feature of the system he would have the schools open nights and teachers employed who know how to handle young people, and clubs organized and maintained in connection with those schools. He does not profess to have mastered the details of this plan. He simply submits it to all good citizens for consideration. That it has commended itself to the Milwaukee council is shown by the unanimous passage of his resolution calling for an investigation of the whole subject and a report with recommendations for the correction of existing evils.

SOCIALISM AND SLAVERY

Dr. Mallock, the English political economist, in his last lecture on socialism at the University of Chicago, said: "Socialism is but another name for slavery. Witness the slaves who built the walls of Babylon and the pyramids of Egypt and picked cotton on Southern plantations before the war." He made no more luminous and compendious remark than this in any of his four exceedingly able and brilliant lectures.

The thing constantly overlooked by socialists is that socialism is a reversion to the primitive type. It was the first shape that human society ever took. It would have lasted until now if society had not outgrown it. That is, if human activities and interests had not multiplied to such an extent that paternalism broke down and individualism gradually took its place.

Socialism was not only the primitive condition of mankind but was, as Dr. Mallock, says, a condition of slavery. History does not afford an instance in which the entire activity of society was directed by government and in which any sort of freedom existed. Human rights have never been so completely trampled out of sight as when government directed all the labor and parceled out all the fruits.

Socialism dreams of correcting all the inequalities among men by a new system of laws. It fancies that if everything was duly systematized the system would administer itself and that human greed, cunning, selfishness and cruelty would disappear. The truth is that state socialism would be the paradise of criminals. Under such a system there would be nothing but swindling and tyranny. The human race would sink into the same condition that was occupied by the slaves who built the pyramids.

For this reason socialism is never sincere. No socialist really desires to realize socialism. If the rest of the world were to resemble the socialists and say to them, "Take the world and do as you please with it," they would decline the responsibility. They know that socialism is but a name and that practical socialism not only cannot be realized but is unthinkable.

Foreign Goods Enter by Fraud

Ottawa, March 19.—Mr. J. B. Jackson Canadian trade agent at Leeds, in a report just received, again expresses the belief that a considerable portion of the goods imported by Canada under the British preference are foreign goods shipped into England, re-packed and shipped to Montreal as English goods. Mr. Jackson particularly mentions cutlery and felts as lines of German goods which enter Canada under the advantage of the British preference. Much of the cutlery stamped "Made from Sheffield Steel," never saw that city. German felts are sold in Canada at prices which make it evident that they must enter under the preference. In some instances the felts are sold for less than they can be purchased for in Germany.

Two Men Buried In One Rough Case

Medicine Hat, March 19.—When Ernest R. Minns, of Toronto Junction, employed on the "Seven Persons" ranch died on the 8th inst, a telegram was sent to the owner, Mr. H. H. Foster. On account of the distance, however, Mr. Foster was unable to get into the city until an hour after the body had been interred. He immediately arranged with the undertaker to raise the body and place it in a better class of coffin than provided for in the hospital contract. It afterwards developed that J. J. Moore, the undertaker who has the contract for burying the pauper dead, interred the body of Minns with that of Dane, who committed suicide Sunday last, both in one rough case. The identical coffin Mr. Foster had purchased was found in Moore's store. The latter has been arrested on two charges, disrespect to the dead, and obtaining money under false pretences.

ATLANTIC EXPRESS WRECKED

Durand, Mich., March 17.—The Atlantic express, on the Grand Trunk Railway, due here at 5.55 a.m., from Chicago, en route to Port Huron and the east, and running late, ran into an open switch at Bancroft, five miles from here, yesterday, and struck a freight train.

Five persons were severely injured, two of them perhaps fatally. Engineer A. B. Schram and Fireman Frank Cowan, both of Battle Creek, Mich., suffered broken limbs and severe scalds, and may die. I. E. Smith of Donaghue and Mrs. D. Shook and Miss Ruth Shook of Lansing, her daughter, were severely scalded, but are not thought to be seriously hurt. A number of other passengers received minor injuries, but were able to proceed east on a later train.

LACROSSE.

At the annual meeting of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club held in the National Hotel, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Patrons and Patronesses—Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. O. Neill, Mr. and Mrs. H. LeBrun, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Morrow, Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., and Mrs. Hall, Major and Mrs. McWilliams, Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P.

Hon. President—J. J. McCabe.
President—W. S. Davidson.
First Vice-Pres.—Dr. Wightman.
Second Vice-Pres.—Fred A. Clarke.
Sec.-Treas.—A. M. Regan.
Executive Committee—Harry Morgan, R. M. Glover, Fred McGrath, Geo. Lynch, W. F. Crowley and J. J. McCabe.

The club decided to nominate the secretary-treasurer for a position on the O.L.A. Council. Mr. Regan is a very well known lacrosse man and is very popular with those interested in the pastime.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like gravelas wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence, recommend

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. 32. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 15 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 30 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the Diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 30 acres of J. B. 32 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 5 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 20 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 50 feet, and in it shows 5 inch nicolitte, 18 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 672-1283-492-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

The need for a Canadian smelter for Cobalt ores has been manifested from the time when the first great discoveries were made in the Cobalt district. Present smelting facilities in the United States are inadequate, and freight rates and charges are so high that only the highest grade ore can be shipped with profit.

The above strong Canadian company has been formed for the exclusive purpose of smelting and refining Cobalt ores. Under the Ontario Mining Act it also enjoys the right to acquire and operate mines.

The company has closed a very advantageous lease of the Smelting and Refining Plant of The Lake Superior Corporation at Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, which carries with it a service of 1000 horse-power twenty-four service electric energy per annum. They have also contracted for the exclusive use of the famous and world-renowned Schneeburg process for smelting cobalt and nickel ores, which reduces ores with a loss of only one per cent. The Schneeburg process is a secret one, controlled by the German Government, and has been in use in Saxony over three hundred years, and is in fact the only known process which smelts Cobalt ores successfully and at the same time retains all of the bye-products. Ores in Saxony average only 3 1-2 per cent. None of the ore mined in Cobalt runs as low grade as this, and the establishment of this smelter will make valuable thousands of tons of ore now lying on the dump.

The Sault Smelter now in the possession of the company, and which has been leased by the company, will rapidly be adapted to the new process, has a capacity of 125 tons per day, and this will, in all probability, be shortly increased. The large tonnage of cobalt and nickel mines of Sudbury district will crowd present capacity to the limit.

Of the capital stock 250,000 shares have been allotted to the German syndicate in consideration of the exclusive right to the Schneeburg process, 220,000 shares are retained in the treasury, and will be sold only for expansion of the company's business, and with first right of purchase to present shareholders. The balance, 500,000 shares of treasury stock is to be offered to the public.

20 PER CENT. TO ACCOMPANY SUBSCRIPTION AND THE BALANCE ON CALL AFTER 15 DAYS.

Remember, this company did not have to spend anything for plant or building. It has the exclusive use of the famous Schneeburg process, which quadruples the earning power of the ordinary smelter. It is capitalized at a reasonable amount, thus safeguarding the interests of its shareholders. The plant should be ready for operation in ninety days.

With Edged Tools

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN

Copyright, 1894, by HARPER & BROTHERS

So the eccentric Oscard finished his earthly career in the intellectual atmosphere of a coroner's jury. And the world rather liked it than otherwise. The world, one finds, does like novelty, even in death. Some day an American will invent a new funeral, and, if he can only get the patent, will make a fortune.

The world was, moreover, pleased to pity Guy Oscard with that pure and simple sympathy which is ever accorded to the wealthy in affliction. Every one knew that Thomas Oscard had enjoyed affluence during his lifetime, and there was no reason to suppose that Guy would not step into very comfortably lined shoes. It was unfortunate that he should lose his father in such a tragic way, and the keen eye of the world saw the weak point in his story at once. But the coroner's jury was respectful, and the rest of society never so much as hinted at the possibility that Guy had not tried his best to keep his father alive.

Among the letters of sympathy the young fellow received a note from Lady Cantourne, whose acquaintance he had successfully renewed, and in due course he called at her house in Vere Gardens to express somewhat lamely his gratitude.

Her ladyship was at home, and in due course Guy Oscard was ushered into her presence. He looked round the room with a half suppressed gleam of searching which was not overlooked by Millicent Chyne's aunt.

"It is very good of you to call," she said, "so soon after your poor father's death. You must have had a great deal of trouble and worry. Millicent and I have often talked of you and sympathized with you. She is out at the moment, but I expect her back almost at once. Will you sit down?"

CHAPTER V.

"AND what do you intend to do with yourself?" asked Lady Cantourne when she had poured out tea. "You surely do not intend to mope in that dismal house in Russell square?"

"No, I shall let that if I can."

"Oh, you will have no difficulty in doing that. People live in Russell square again now, and try to make one believe that it is a fashionable quarter. Your father stayed on there because the carpets fitted the rooms and on account of other ancestral conveniences. He did not live there. He knew nothing of his immediate environments. He lived in Phoenicia."

"Then," continued Guy Oscard, "I shall go abroad!"

"Ah! Will you have a second cup? Why will you go abroad?"

Guy Oscard paused for a moment. "I know an old hippopotamus in a certain African river who has twice upset me. I want to go back and shoot him."

"Don't go at once; that would be running away from it—not from the hippopotamus—from the inquest. It does not matter being upset in an African river; but you must not be upset in London by—an inquest."

"I did not propose going at once," replied Guy Oscard, with a peculiar smile which Lady Cantourne thought she understood. "It will take me some time to set my affairs in order—the will and all that."

Lady Cantourne waited with perfectly suppressed curiosity, and while she was waiting Millicent Chyne came into the room. The girl was dressed with her habitual perfect taste and success, and she came forward with a smile of genuine pleasure, holding out a small hand neatly gloved in suede. Her ladyship was looking, not at Millicent, but at Guy Oscard.

"Ah!" said Miss Chyne. "It is very good of you to take pity upon two lone females. I was afraid that you had gone off to the wilds of America or somewhere in search of big game. Do you know, Mr. Oscard, you are quite a celebrity? I heard you called the 'big game man' the other day; also the 'traveling fellow.'"

The specimen smiled happily under this delicate handling.

"Mr. Oscard has just been telling me," interposed Lady Cantourne conversationally, "that he is thinking of going off to the wilds again."

"Then it is very disappointing of him," said Millicent, with a little droop of the eyelids which went home. "It seems to be only the uninteresting people who stay at home and live humdrum lives of enormous duration."

"He seems to think that his friends are going to cast him off because his poor father died without the assistance of a medical man," continued the old lady meaningly.

At this moment another visitor was announced and presently made his appearance. He was an old gentleman of no personality whatever, who was nevertheless welcomed effusively because two people in the room had a distinct use for him. Lady Cantourne was exceedingly gracious. She remembered instantly that horticulture was among his somewhat antiquated accomplishments, and she was immediately consumed with a desire to show him the conservatory which she had had built outside the drawing room window. She took a genuine interest in this abode of flowers and watered the plants herself with much enthusiasm—when she remembered.

Added to a number of positive virtues the old gentleman possessed that of abstaining from tea, which enabled the two horticulturists to repair to the conservatory at once, leaving the young people alone at the other end of the drawing room.

Millicent smoothed her gloves with downcast eyes and that demure air by which the talented fair imply the consciousness of being alone and out of others' earshot with an interesting member of the stronger sex.

Guy sat and watched the suede gloves with a certain sense of placid enjoyment. Then suddenly he spoke, continuing his remarks where they had been broken off by the advent of the useful old gentleman.

"You see," he said, "it is only natural that a great many people should give me the cold shoulder. My story was a little lame. There is no reason why they should believe in me."

"I believe in you," she answered.

"It was a very unpleasant business," he said in a jerky, self conscious voice. "I didn't know that I was that sort of fellow. The temptation was very great. I nearly gave in and let him do it. He was a stronger man than I. You know—we did not get on well together. He always hoped that I would turn out a literary sort of fellow, and I suppose he was disappointed. I tried at one time, but I found it was no good. From indifference it turned almost to hatred. He disliked me intensely, and I am afraid I did not care for him very much."

Millicent was listening gravely without interrupting—like a man. She had the gift of adapting herself to her environments in a marked degree.

"And," he added curtly, "no one knows how much I wanted that three thousand a year."

The girl moved uneasily and glanced toward the conservatory.

"It was not the money that tempted me," said Guy, very deliberately; "it was you."

She rose from her chair as if to join her aunt and the horticultural old gentleman.

"You must not say that," she said in little more than a whisper, and without looking round she went toward Lady Cantourne. Her eyes were gleaming with a singular suppressed excitement, such as one sees in the eyes of a man fresh from a mad run across country.

Guy Oscard rose also and followed more deliberately. There was nothing for him to do but take his leave.

"But," said Lady Cantourne graciously, "if you are determined to go away, you must at least come and say goodby before you leave."

FOOLISH GIRLS.

These Who Deliberately Walk Into Matrimonial Failure.

It is enough to make one's heart ache the way foolish girls will pass by splendid, hardworking men and choose insignificant little nobodies for their life's partners, and all because they won't take the trouble to look below the veneer of fine dress.

The man who has an aim in life can't spend all his time in running after girls and going to dances.

He has something better to do. He has to make a name and place for himself in the world.

The young men who are lounging around street corners and saloons will never be anything better than they are now. The chances are they will be much worse.

Look around at the married women of your acquaintance. Some of them married honest, hardworking men. Others married loafers. Some of them are happy wives, others miserable wrecks.

Look forward a few years and imagine yourself in the place of either and then marry a good for nothing loafer if you dare.

Marry the worker and help him build up a successful career. Let him come home at night and find a cheerful home and a happy, smiling wife who is proud of his successes and sympathetic in his reverses.

But don't deliberately walk into a life where failure is bound to come. Don't tie yourself to a man for whom as time goes on you will be able to feel neither love nor respect.—St. Louis Republic.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

GOLD BY THE BUSHEL

THE SEARCH FOR GOLD has ever been man's strongest passion. No obstacles have deterred him. Heat and cold, famine and thirst, hardship and exposure alike have failed to conquer the insatiable desire. From the dawn of history, when King Solomon opened up the famous wealth of the mines of Ophir, to the present day, men have sought the yellow metal. Countless lives have been sacrificed, and yet the search goes on.

In the winter of 1900-1901 four miners tottered into the city of Nome, Alaska; their feet and hands black with frostbite; their bodies emaciated almost to skeletons; their eyes sunken. Their dogs had died of starvation and cold; they had abandoned their sleds and provisions; but they staggered under the weight of forty pounds of pure GOLD!

The city buzzed at once with excitement. Where had they found it? To all questions the strangers were dumb. There was one man in Nome, however, who thought he knew a way to locate the new discovery. He had been a friend of the Esquimaux to the North; he spoke their language well; he had relieved their want; and he had spent nearly four years among them. He could talk the "true talk" of these simple natives. That man was ANDREW S. NELSON. Within twelve hours he was speeding North, with a team of six tried dogs and a supply of provisions.

It is needless to recite the hardships he endured in this lonely journey, facing the fierce north wind. Suffice it to say he found an old Esquimau who showed him where the strangers had made their find.

Under the Northern Stars he drove the stakes which now mark the boundaries of NELSON GULCH MINING CLAIMS.

Three Hundred Dollars in Two Hours

Connected with Mr. Andrew S. Nelson were his father, Major William Nelson, U. S. Army, retired, and Dr. G. M. Morris, an English surgeon. When spring opened up these three men began to test their ground. They found it exceedingly rich, but they were troubled to get water. They tried various schemes, but as their money had nearly run out they could work only on a small scale. Once they were lucky in saving some water with a dam after a rain, and Mr. Nelson and Dr. Morris washed out $500.00 in gold in less than two hours. Numerous tests made over the ground showed the top gravel to run a dollar a cubic yard.

At other times and places from $10.00 to $50.00 were secured from single yards of gravel. Nuggets ranging in value from $1.00 to $47.00 each were found. This is an ancient river bed into which, for ages, the waters have been washing and disintegrating the rock which held the gold.

More than $1,000,000 have been taken by other parties from the gravel which was washed from this Company's ground into the stream below, and they have only just begun work. They expect millions more, and their tests justify their expectation. $150,000 were taken from Old Glory Creek, which is one of its bends swung into the edge of our old river.

Favorable Government Report

In the summer of 1903 the United States Geological Survey sent out an exploring party to cover this ground, under Mr. Fred. H. Moffit. This is a part of his report:

"This small gulch (Nelson Gulch), barely three-fourths of a mile long, leads down from a broad, low saddle in the divide between Old Glory and Inmachuck, and is of interest since it is probably an important factor in the origin of the rich ground just below its mouth on Old Glory."

What is Placer Gold?

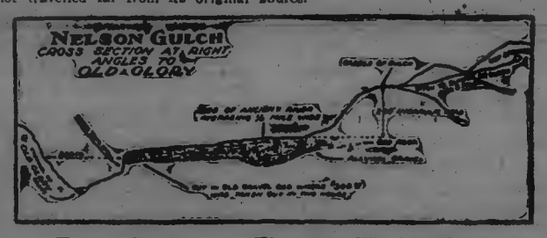
Nowhere on earth have the elements and glaciers worn away the mountains as in Alaska. All the gold in their veins has been carried into river beds, the heavier pieces being deposited nearby, the lighter ones going farther.

Now, it does not take much thought to realize that, as Nelson Gulch is the source of all the gold on the Inmachuck River, the heaviest particles and the greatest amount must be on the Company's ground.

This is further shown by the fact that the gold found there is sharp-cornered and angular. Now, pure gold is very soft, and as it travels down stream it is rubbed against the sand and gravel and the sharp corners worn off. When you find the particles of gold in a river bed are worn and the corners rounded, then you may be sure they have travelled some distance.

The gold in Nelson Gulch is angular and sharp-cornered. Notice what the United States Government Report says on this subject:

"The gold from Nelson Gulch is brighter than that of Old Glory, is rough and angular, and contains considerable quartz, and evidently has not travelled far from its original source."



Three Hundred and Thirty-six Working Days

Although the season for hydaulicing in Alaska is but 140 days, every hour of that 140 days is daylight. For a full month the sun never sets, and during two other months it does not get dark. Therefore, by keeping on three shifts of men, eight hours each, the work does not stop, and we get 336 working days of ten hours each. This is a larger number of hours than the great placer mines of Colorado, Montana or Idaho can work in any one year.

Mr. Andrew S. Nelson is now on the property with a force of men getting everything in readiness for the spring work. We fully expect to have the gold running down our sluice-ways by June.

Gravel Richer as it Goes Down

Everybody knows that in old river beds carrying gold the gravel gets richer as it goes down next to bed rock.

In several places on bed rock this Company's gravel washed at the rate of $50.00 a yard. Of course, it is not all that rich; but suppose we average it at $10.00 a yard; this would make an acre worth $320,000.00!

Railroad, Telegraph and Telephone Lines to the Mines

A railroad is now in operation part way from Nome to Deering, and will be finished through next season. All the above lines will pass very close to this property, and will give us perfect transportation and communication facilities.

During the open season three regular steamers per week between Seattle and Deering, together with the many irregular ones, give us freight rates no greater than those in effect from Kansas City to points in Arizona.

Letter from Major William Nelson, U. S. Army, retired, under date of February 18, 1907:

"Could the public be made to see the property as I know it there would be no trouble in selling stock, for it will prove the best investment anyone could make. Every $100.00 will return at least $5,000.00 to the investor if you can only get it opened up. I feel sure that with thirty days' work you can declare a dividend on the capital."

Our Property

The Company owns fourteen claims of twenty acres each, free and clear of all encumbrances, on the gravel terrace of Nelson Gulch, near the head of the Inmachuck River, Seward Peninsula, Alaska, nearly due north of Nome. Since January 1st three hundred acres more have been added to the Company's holdings.

Mr. J. W. Pickard, a mining engineer of high standing, has been engaged since the spring of 1900 in making tests of the gold-bearing gravels of Seward Peninsula. He represents there a New York Syndicate, which has, through him, secured large holdings. He says of these deposits: "If I were to tell you the values that exist under the tundra (species of heavy bunch grass), you would hardly believe what I tell you. The values are almost beyond computation. I found gravel averaging $4.67 to the cubic yard in one place; in another hole it averaged $3.64; in another $6.10; another showed an average value of $5.00; still another $12.41. To figure out the values in an acre of such gravel produces figures so prodigious as to literally stagger one."

"Mr. W. H. Bond, Paul Denhart and P. T. Nixon have a claim whose pay streak yielded all the way from 30 cents to $3.50 per pan, or $875.00 per yard. A single shift has taken out as much as $35,000.00, and $42,000.00 have been secured in one day's sluicing. Without exaggeration gold by the bushel is being washed from these gravels. The stream of gold constantly pouring into Nome attests this fact, and justifies the prediction of those best informed regarding the conditions existing there, which is that 'These gravel benches with their wealth of golden deposits will continue to be found on Seward Peninsula after the present generation of miners has been gathered to their fathers; a golden stream will still be pouring from the creeks, hills and tundra fifty years hence, if the promise of the future be but half fulfilled.'"

Mr. Rex Beach, in The Saturday Evening Post of January 6th, 1907, gives numerous instances of enormous strikes on Seward Peninsula—$23,000.00 in one day! $2,000,000.00 taken from Little Creek in one winter. Two men, in a few weeks, working under difficulties with the crudest machinery, took out $410,000.00.

Mr. Beach is entirely disinterested, being merely a writer and correspondent of The Post.

Inexhaustable Water Supply and only 3 miles of ditch

NEARBY PROPERTIES AMAZINGLY RICH.

Eighty per cent. of the world's gold has been taken from beds of old streams.

One company is building a ditch 52 miles long to bring water from a lake with which to wash the gravel that has been carried from Nelson Gulch down the Inmachuck River. If these washings justify the enormous expense of this ditch, and if $1,000,000.00 have already been secured from them with the crudest methods, how many millions will this property yield?

OUR WATER FACILITIES PERFECT.

An enormous, unfailing hot spring, three miles away, will furnish this Company water enough to handle 3,000 cubic yards of gravel per 24 hours at a cost of less than one cent per yard; its claims lie close up to the contact between the lime and schist, where all of this gold originates. It is at the fountain-head, and others get only what is washed further on, its nuggets have sharp points and edges; those found further beyond are worn smooth by the friction of their journey.

Placer Mining the Cheapest

Placer mining is the cheapest and oldest way to mine for gold. We estimate that it will cost us only half of one cent to wash a cubic yard.

Why We Sell Stock

Money is needed to bring water from the hot springs and to provide hydraulic apparatus.

The Board of Directors of Nelson Gulch Mining Company have allotted 200,000 shares of the Treasury stock to be sold at ten cents per share. When this allotment shall have been sold the price of the stock will positively be advanced to 25 cents per share; or, what is more likely, will be withdrawn from the market.

Our gravel beds average 18 feet in thickness. At a dollar a cubic yard this would make $50,000.00 per acre, or over $8,000,000.00 for the entire property. This is certainly an underestimate, because bed-rock gravel will run far higher. We are capitalized at $5,000,000.00, but with ten-cent stock this means a valuation of only $800,000.00 on a property which must certainly run away up in the millions. This is another way of looking at the great value of this investment to you.

Stock Now 10 Cents a Share

Reserve Before the Advance

Write today and reserve your shares at ten cents a share. The next advance will be to 25 cents.

Better still, wire your reservation. There is only a certain allotment for sale; when that is gone the stock is off the market. It is first come, first served.

Sleepless?

Nerves Are Racked.
Vitality is Lowered.
Brain is Congested.
Health Undermined.

Opiates, Sedatives, Narcotics, Worse Than Useless. Produce No Permanent Good

Worry, over-work, over-study and indigestion cause insomnia.

Healthy, natural sleep can't be produced by drugs.

First, the blood circulation must be improved:

Congestion of blood in the head must be removed.

Irritation in the brain must be relieved.

It's because Ferrozone equalizes circulation, because it soothes the irritation, because it removes congestion that it does cure insomnia.

For building food and nerve, for instilling force and life into overworked organs, for establishing strength and vitality, where can you find anything so sure as Ferrozone.

Remember, sleep is just as important as food.

You must sleep, or break down.

You can if you'll use Ferrozone and thereby remove the conditions which now keep you from sleep.

Ferrozone is not a narcotic, not a dope; it is a health-giving tonic that any child or delicate woman can use.

Absolutely safe is Ferrozone.

Take it for a month, take it for a year—no harm, but immeasurable good will result.

To sleep well, look well, feel well, to be free from depression, nervousness or blues—use Ferrozone. It's a food tonic, a healer to the weak and wretched, a boon to the sleepless—sold everywhere in 50c. boxes.

Former Peterboro Parson is Noted

The Toronto Star, speaking of a clergyman well known in Peterborough, has the following:

"Some time ago we announced the appointment of Rev. C. E. Manning to the position of Field Secretary of Home Missions, Methodist Church in Canada. Mr. Manning will move from Kingston, where he is completing his second year as pastor of Sydenham street church, to Toronto, his new headquarters. Mr. Manning belongs to a "ministerial" family. Two of his brothers are Methodist pastors—Thomas in Windsor, and H. M., in Peterborough.

"The new field secretary entered the ministry in 1883. He has been pastor at Sault Ste. Marie, Bathurst and Clinton street churches, Toronto, and Dominion Square church, Montreal."

An Angler's Elysium

According to advertisements all summer resorts are alike. They are the best ever—but if fishing is better anywhere else than it is in "Georgian Bay" we do not know where it is. There is a greater variety of fish in this water than anywhere else, and they are always hungry. No one ever counted the fish in Georgian Bay, but those that have been caught there have been counted and eaten, and if you read the Government reports on fisheries, you know that Georgian Bay supplies more fish than any other equal body of water in the world. The only place you can afford to fish is where the fish are numerous, big and delicious in flavor, and that place is Georgian Bay—so the fishermen say. Suppose you send for booklet, issued by Grand Trunk Railway System, free, telling about the home of the bass, pickerel, pike and the noble trout family. Address J. D. Stop the Disorders

St. Petersburg, March 19.—With the opening of Parliament, March 5th, peasant disorders recommenced in several provinces, apparently the result of organized agitation. Premier Stolypin has sent a circular to the governors enjoining them to arrest all agitators, even members of parliament, and to take the strictest measures to stop the disorders and protect the rights of property.

Mr. C. A. Humber is Dead

Mr. Chas. A. Humber, who some years ago taught school at Keene and other points in this county, and who was a brother of Mr. Orlando Humber, of this city, and paid a visit to Peterborough recently, is dead. It seems that Mr. Humber who has recently lived in Goderich, fell down a flight of stairs, whilst carrying a burden, and had concussion of the brain. The deceased stood high in Masonic circles, filling high offices in Midland Lodge, No. 33, Huron Chapter No. 30, St. Elmo Preceptory No. 22, and with several degrees in the Scottish Rite.

Our Climate Not so Bad

Mr. L. J. Martin, of Douro, who has been two years in British Columbia, and who returned home from the west this week was warmly greeted by his many friends in the city and district. Mr. Martin says there are nearly two feet of snow on the western prairies yet and he encountered a blizzard on the way home. Last Thursday a blizzard was raging in Winnipeg.

C.G.E. Stock Advances

A Toronto despatch of yesterday says that the recovery in Canadian General Electric was the feature of the local market this morning. The stock, which closed at 122 3-4 last week, advanced to 127 this morning on purchases of a little over one hundred shares. The declaration of the regular dividend has helped the stock, which is also probably discounting a good annual statement.

Irish Concert at Ennismore

The concert held in Ennismore under auspices of St. Martin's T.A.S. was a great success last night. The program was most appropriate. Rev. Father Fitzpatrick occupied the chair and the program was contributed principally by talent from St. Martin's T.A.S. Irish music naturally predominated. Mr. and Mrs. Kyle of Peterborough, gave two clever sketches. Mr. T. J. Begley and Mrs. Quinlan of Peterborough, contributed to the program.

The Badge of Honesty

Is on every wrapper of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery because a full list of the ingredients composing it is printed there in plain English. Forty years of experience has proven its superior worth as a blood purifier and invigorating tonic for the cure of stomach disorders and all liver ills. It builds up the run-down system as no other tonic can in which alcohol is used. The active medicinal principles of native roots such as Golden Seal and Queen's root, Stone and Mandrake root, Bloodroot and Black Cherrybark are extracted and preserved by the use of chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce at Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet which quotes extracts from well-recognized medical authorities such as Drs. Bartholow, King, Scudder, Coe, Ellingwood and a host of others, showing that these roots can be depended upon for their curative action in all weak states of the stomach, accompanied by indigestion or dyspepsia as well as in all bilious or liver complaints and in all "wasting diseases" where there is loss of flesh and gradual running down of the strength and system.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes rich, pure blood and so invigorates and regulates the stomach, liver and bowels, and, through them, the whole system. Thus all skin affections, blotches, pimples and eruptions as well as scrofulous swellings and old open running sores or ulcers are cured and healed. In treating old running sores, or ulcers, it is well to insure their healing to apply to them Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve. If your druggist don't happen to have this Salve in stock, send fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and a large box of the "All-Healing Salve" will reach you by return post.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

Miss Edna Rogers is Ill

The many friends in this city and county of Miss Edna Rogers, daughter of Mr. R. B. Rogers, now of Campbellford, will regret to learn that the young lady, who has been taking a course in the Normal school, Toronto, in the kindergarten department, is now at her father's residence afflicted with erysipelas.

THE TRENT CANAL WILL BE FINISHED

Local Deputation to Ottawa Given Assurance That the Money Will be Granted by Parliament.

A telegram received last night by The Times from Ottawa reads as follows:

"I have asked my colleagues and Parliament to grant sufficient money to push forward this work with all possible rapidity, and I think when the country learns the decision of Parliament they will realize that all the work that can possibly be prosecuted will have been placed under contract, and that there has been and will be no delay concerning this project on the part of the present Government, who are in earnest as to the construction of the Trent Valley Canal, and before a week has elapsed, copies of the supplementary estimates for this scheme will be laid on the table showing just what action has been taken."

The above statements were the pleasing assurances given by the Hon. H. R. Emmerson, minister of railways and canals, to the deputation of 135 representative men from Peterborough and vicinity in the House of Commons yesterday morning.

IN THE CANAL BUSINESS.

He further impressed the delegation that the present Government was in the canal business, and hoped to complete the Trent Valley waterway as thoroughly and promptly as possible.

The hon. gentleman proposed to remove the Trent Valley canal project from the football arena of politics, and take the project up as a thoroughly business proposition.

"The deputation was introduced by Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., member for West Peterborough, and the speakers were Mayor McWilliams, of Peterborough; Mr. A. A. Mumford and Mayor Doxsee, of Campbellford; Warden McNulty, of Peterborough County, and Dr. Jacques, of Trenton.

Hon. R. W. Scott, secretary of state, paid a glowing tribute to the general executive ability of the hon. minister of railways and canals, and his exemplified an unprecedented interest in the Trent Valley Canal.

Hon. Wm. Patterson, minister of customs, also said that if the minister of railways and canals can have his own way, the Trent Canal will be completed at an early date.

The deputation was entirely satisfied with the result of their visit to the capital.

Local Regiment Matters Discussed

As is generally known, Major Donnistoun, paymaster of the 57th Regiment, is about to leave permanently for Winnipeg, with his family. This popular officer's severance of connection with our valiant local corps has made reason for changes in the personnel of the regimental officers. Three new second lieutenants have been added to the corps, and have been sworn in, viz., Messrs. R. N. Merritt, A. G. Carruthers and Dr. Cameron.

Arrangements are now being made for the opening of the drill season early in April. A meeting of the officers will be held shortly to arrange for the regiment's annual outing.

Papists Barred in Grimthorpe Will

Twenty-five Codicils to Document and Each Contradictory to the Other.

London, March 20.—Details of the remarkable will of Lord Grimthorpe, the gross value of whose estate was $10,000,000, were announced today.

There were no fewer than twenty-five codicils to the will, each contradictory of the other and of the will, but, by an arrangement with seventy-persons interested, a settlement was arrived at by which the estate is to be distributed as nearly as possible in accordance with what may be supposed to have been the testator's wishes.

The residuary estate will go to a number of nephews and nieces, and those who have two or more children are to have larger shares.

No property is to go to a foreigner or to a Papist, or to any one married to a Papist, or to the St. Alban's Blaphoric Fund, or to the endowment of a dean or chapter anywhere.

Nothing is to be given to any charity which is, or will be, entitled to as much as $50,000 under the will of the late Samuel Lewis, except distinct sums expressly decreed by the testator's will.

Another curious feature of the will was the fact that Lord Grimthorpe made requests and afterwards revoked or reduced them. He left $5,000 to the York Minister Restoration Fund, and revoked it. He left $100,000 to the Victoria Clergy Fund, and reduced it to $10,000 and he reduced a legacy of $25,000 to Trinity College, Cambridge, to $2,500 for a new clock to be placed in the great court.

He also desired that no brass plate should be put on his coffin, which was to be made of elm.

Sentenced to Twenty Year s Imprisonment

Brandon, March 20.—A severe sentence was pronounced on Jas. Perriman, an English farm laborer, convicted of a serious offence against an eleven-year-old girl. In pronouncing sentence Judge Richards said: "Considering the horrible circumstances, I may say I seriously thought of ordering you to be hinged, and though I am not glad to I may tell you that murder is not more deserving of hanging than that heinous crime with which you are charged. Unfortunately I cannot emphasize your sentence by flogging. Why the Legislature has not made such a provision under this court I cannot say, but I greatly regret I cannot order you to be flogged three times during the term of imprisonment. I order you to be imprisoned in Manitoba penitentiary for twenty years."

Clever Boxing Here on March 27th

It seems that Billy Breen, trainer of the Peterborough Hockey team, is making great headway with the athletic tournament to be held in the old opera house on Wednesday night, March 27th. There promises to be a large attendance. Some good and fast sport is assured as some exceedingly clever boxers have been matched. Among those who will mix up are the following:—Eugene Barbuise, of Peterborough, against Jack Thompson, of Hamilton; Pete Barry, of Toronto, against Fred Brown, "the broncho," of Lindsay; and Paper Wallace of Peterborough, against Jack Broom of Lindsay. There will be several other bouts between clever local men.

TELL OF THE FAMED QUEEN

LETTERS OF VICTORIA TO BE PUBLISHED.

King Edward Consents to Publication of Photogravures of His Paintings.

London, March 20.—That important chapter of history covered by the "letters of Queen Victoria" is at last to become accessible to the public, for Mr. Murray today definitely announces that the three volumes will be issued next autumn. The first volume covers the correspondence of the queen until she was nearly 25. Here she will be seen as the girl princess, later as the young queen under the guidance of a courtly and chivalrous premier. Next the reader finds her called upon to select a husband after her own heart. All through there is held up the mirror of public events as they appear from the throne.

The second volume covers the period dealing with the repeal of the corn laws and following revolutions, of which the most sensational incident will perhaps be found to be the story of the flight of Louis Philippe to New Haven.

LETTERS TELL OF WARS.

The correspondence in the third volume bears on the eastern question, the Crimean war, the Indian mutiny, China and the struggle for United Italy. This volume closes with the end of the prince consort's life. Thus the whole work covers just a quarter of a century—that is to say, from 1837 to 1861. Queen Victoria was a woman of strong individuality, of decided preferences and even prejudices. The object throughout the book has been to show the personality of the queen, her method of approaching and deciding questions, her outlook, her sympathies, her shrewdness, perseverance and diligence. The book will appear at the price of 4 guineas net.

King Edward lately consented to the publication of photogravures from the chief pictures in the royal collection, and this admirable practice seems once more to be becoming general with the owners of famous picture galleries.

The latest owner to fall in with the custom is the Earl of Pembroke. Seventy-five pictures from his collection at Wilton House are to be reproduced in photogravure in two volumes, entitled "Wilton House Pictures," and costing 12 guineas, which the Chiswick Press is now printing.

SOLDIER WRITES THE TEXT.

Captain Neville R. Wilkinson, of the Coldstream Guards, has written the text, and the Earl of Pembroke supplies the preface.

No catalogue of the pictures has been published since the eighteenth century and none has been illustrated. The portrait of Richard II., probably by a French artist, and Van Dyeks "Herbert

Family" are the best known pictures in the collection.

Lord Burghclere, who seems to have followed Lord Rosebery into political retirement, is turning his leisure to scholarly activity, following Sir Theodore Martin's example, with a new English version of the poems of Catullus. Lady Burghclere, not to be outdone, has in preparation a biography of the great Duke Ormonde. Endowed with a picturesque pen and a genius for taking pains, Lady Burghclere has also written a notable historical memoir, The Life of George Villiers, Second Duke of Buckingham.

This same duke gives his name to five old streets and alleys in one of London's most interesting quarters, a district crammed full of history and legend, regarding which Anthony Treherne is publishing a book next Monday. Just in time for the visitation of American tourists who may want to know all they can about the most interesting parts of old London. This is Austin Brereton's long expected "Literary History of Adelphi and Its Neighborhood."

Adventures of a Young Immigrant

Montreal, March 20.—Montreal as the gateway of Canada has all sorts of immigrants passing through. About a month ago a mother and five children from Scotland were on their way west to join the husband and father, who had preceded them, when the youngest, a girl three, took seriously ill with pneumonia. To have taken him on to Winnipeg would have been certain death. With hospital treatment he might possibly recover, so the medical officer who examined him. Without hesitation the management had him sent to the Royal Victoria Hospital, where, under the best of treatment, he recovered rapidly. Being a bright little fellow he won his way into the favor of those with whom he came in contact, and before he left the institution he was provided with a new outfit of clothes, and also with comforts of various kinds. At the station his story created much interest, and he was not even allowed over to the special attention of the conductor, but a Winnipeg lady, who was on the train, became interested in him and volunteered to look after him specially until he was given over to his parents. The mother, who had parted with the child in grief, believing that she would never see him again, will be at the station to receive him when the train arrives at Winnipeg.

Revival Services at Park St. Church

Revival services at Park street Baptist church, are progressing most successfully. Evangelist Torrie is drawing large crowds every night, and at each service many seek salvation. The Torry & Alexander hymns are proving very helpful, and are becoming most popular, and go with a great swing. Tomorrow night, Friday, will be the last service. There will be a service for boys and girls at 4.30, to which all children are admitted. Song service at 7.45; Gospel meeting at eight o'clock.

Many Horses Eaten in Paris in a Year

Paris, March 20.—According to official statistics, 60,000 horses were eaten in Paris last year. This represents about 11,000,000 kilogrammes of horseflesh, as compared with the earlier figures of 1899, when a total of only 5,000 was eaten. This branch of the butcher's business in Paris seems to be growing rapidly in favor, so that the horse butcher is assuming the position of quite a respectable competitor with the beef butcher.

Horse butchers signs, with a gilded horsehead above the door, are numerous in certain quarters of the city, and horse butchers are rapidly pre-empting spaces in the market halls. This is particularly the case in well-to-do sections, and in fact almost prompts the suggestion that the doctors are in league with the horse butchers.

Doctors are more and more recommending for certain patients who are in need of building up their shattered systems a bit of horseflesh, and for persons whose constitutions are thoroughly run down with weakened stomachs they prescribe the juice of horseflesh, prepared under certain simple conditions, instead of the fresh meat itself.

At the markets during the early morning hours each day men and women stand in line waiting their turn to be served by the horse butcher. They call for a nice steak of filet, and, being well versed on the matter of quality, are very particular in their selections. Some butchers make a specialty of mule meat, which contains more fatty matter than horse meat.

Duma Ignored Stolypin's Words

St. Petersburg, March 21. — The Duma met yesterday in the hall of the College of the Nobility, which is usually devoted to musical concerts and occasionally to meetings of the Council of the Empire. The proceedings resulted in victory for both the Government and the Duma.

Prime Minister Stolypin recited amid silence a program of moderate legislation. He was succeeded on the tribune by Prince Zeretelli, member for the Caucasus, who declared amid cheers from the majority that the executive power must give place to the elected legislators. He spoke on behalf of the intransigeant section of the Social Democrats and the declaration in his peroration that Carthage must be destroyed, gave the keynote of all the utterances of the opposition.

The Center, composed largely of Constitutional Democrats, maintained complete reserve throughout the debate. M. Stolypin made an occasion to return to the tribune, when he said the Czar was the ruler, and the ministers were his servants, and that they refused to be terrorized by threats of a bloody revolution.

A proposal by the Constitutional Democrats to proceed with the order of the day without regard to M. Stolypin's declarations was carried.

German Attack on English Women

Berlin, March 21.—The Berliner Zeitung Tageblatt sent a special correspondent to England to study the manners and morals of the upper ranks of society there, prints as investigator's views on the position held by English women. He says: "Seriously, it is appalling. Anybody who observes England acutely superficially and sees sweet, dainty women in gorgeous frocks and then notices how chivalrously men treat them may erroneously conclude that this display is genuine. Nevertheless this outward chivalry is nothing but a sham. The Englishman refuses on principle to take woman seriously. For him she is nothing more than a beautiful doll to amuse the male part of humanity during its hours not occupied by business. These beautiful, brainless dolls take up all sorts of eccentric extravagances, whereupon their husbands grow tired of them and entirely neglect them. There is no real community of interests between English husbands and wives. The wife is frequently ignorant of what profession her husband follows. She can become in character just what Burne-Jones represents her to be in his pictures, lifeless, soulless and brainless. The Englishman himself is to blame for this. He has made the English woman what she is. She is not treated as a human being, but as a thing in man's possession. She is an object of sale. It is sad, but truth compels me to record the fact that woman occupies a degraded position in England."

FEAR A RISING IN THE SOUTH SEA ISLANDS

Victoria, B.C., March 21.—Despite the vigorous policy of British, France and Germany to keep the cannibalistically inclined South Sea Islanders in control by terrorization, letters from the New Hebrides and Solomon Islands by the just arrived Australasian liner declare that the situation was never so serious as now. A spirit of disquietude and defiance seemed to pervade the entire archipelago, and the whites are either hastily setting their affairs and having or making preparations for self-defence in the event of a widespread aboriginal uprising.

The storm center seems to be in Papua, where a prematurely launched cannibal raid occurred a few weeks ago, followed by the customary punitive expedition, which somewhat lost its moral effect by frequent repetition. On this occasion, while the men and women of the village of Sibi were working in outlying gardens a number of Kuku Kuku tribesmen entered and captured two children—a boy and a girl. These were killed, despoiled and disemboweled. The bodies were then carried a few miles inland, where they were cooked and eaten.

STOCKADE CAPTURED.

This cannibal tribe, according to Capt. Barton, who was interviewed at Sydney, has on several occasions made raids upon Cape Cupola villages, and an officer, who has since been put in charge of the gulf division, has been instructed to put a stop to the evil. A punitive expedition was organized, and the armed native constabulary, headed by the assistant resident magistrate, met with determined resistance. The natives advanced to the attack in warpaint and plumes, and when driven back took refuge in their stockaded village on the peak of a steep hill of bare granite.

From this vantage-point they slung stones with such precision and in such quantities that the Government party were unable to rush the stockade. Some police were struck by stones, and the magistrate was thrown several feet backward from the rock to which he had gained access by a large space, which hit his rifle while he was taking aim.

Finally the village was taken by a flanking movement, the natives losing three men.

Only One Deer to Each Hunter

Toronto, March 21.—One of the most important changes in the game laws that which may be expected in the regulating the shooting of deer, the change is such being the limiting of the number to one that any person may kill is only one.

The close season will apply to doe and fawn as can be seen, but the amendments, as adopted, will allow only the killing of either a doe or buck. This regards the change was favored by most of the members was the fact that people shot the deer for the purpose of making money out of the hide or the venison. The latter, however, was left to stand over for further consideration. Mr. Tudhope was one of the strongest supporters in the proposed change.

One of the most contentious clauses was that referring to the automatic guns, in which the recoil is used to reload the gun. The president of the North American Game Trials Association, who was present at the meeting, strongly contended in favor of eliminating the clause, although Mr. Pratt, of Norfolk, claimed that he has seen ducks slaughtered by hundreds with the automatic gun.

The breaking of the law relating to muskrats by the Indians along the St. Clair Lake was brought to the chairman's attention. They were being trapped by thousands out of season, and the game wardens paid no attention whatever. Dr. Beaume informed the committee that he would look into the matter.

Treaty Obligations Will be Discussed

London, March 21.—Sir J. Ward, Premier of New Zealand, has arrived in London. He says the two most important questions to be brought before the Colonial Conference will be trade preference within the empire and the establishment of an imperial council.

With respect to the Australian preference bill, the operation of which was postponed by the Home Government, because it was thought it would interfere with foreign treaties, Winston Churchill states that the whole question of treaty obligations as affecting the colonies is under consideration, with a view to discussion at the forthcoming conference.

Licensed Evils in Dawson City

Ottawa, March 21.—In the Senate yesterday Senator Ferguson was told by Hon. Mr. Scott that the government is not aware that the Yukon Council, half of which is appointed by the Government, passed two local liquor stores in Dawson. Such immoral entertainments and practices are openly commented.

Senator Ferguson said he had information that such places were authorized, and he referred to a letter by Rev. Mr. Pringle on the subject.

Hon. Mr. Scott said the minister of the interior was having an inquiry made into the report.

Revolt in Roumania

Bucharest, Roumania, March 21.—The agrarian movement in North Moldavia, where the peasants are in revolt against the tyranny of the farmers and the new taxes recently voted by the Government, has caused both Houses of Parliament to pass an urgent bill authorizing the calling to the colors for a fortnight if necessary of the army reserves.

The town of Botoshani was raided Sunday, by two thousand peasants, who plundered the Jewish quarter and maltreated the Jewish storekeepers.

Further reports from Botoshani say that during rioting there on Sunday four peasants were killed and two soldiers mortally wounded.

To Encourage New Immigrants

Halifax, N.S., March 21.—The Nova Scotia Government's immigration bill received its second reading yesterday. It provides merely for the appointment of an officer to collect and arrange statistics and disseminate the same. This officer, who will be attached to the Provincial Secretary's Department, will be known as secretary of industry and immigration.

In moving the second reading of the bill the premier referred briefly to the past efforts of the Government for the encouragement of immigration, which he explained had been confined to inducing the Salvation Army to send a portion of their immigrants to this province. He observed that it would be impracticable to induce immigrants to come here from the Old Country and to make a success of the abandoned farms of the province without some financial encouragement from the province, and that it was not unlikely that arrangements would be finally made for the Government to expend annually ten or twelve thousand dollars towards encouraging new settlers.

The Death Record

St. Petersburg, March 20.—Statistics published today regarding the drumhead courts-martial show that up to March 6, when their activity was suspended by Premier Stolypin on account of the opening of Parliament, 26 persons were executed, an average of almost five daily.

The majority of the executions occurred in Poland and the Baltic Provinces.

Grant's Son for President

New York, March 21.—The latest feature in Democratic national politics is the work which is being put in to boom for the nomination for President next year Jesse P. Grant. Grant has had a number of conferences with Roger C. Sullivan, Democratic national committeeman for Illinois, and Charles A. Walsh. Mr. Walsh is from Iowa, and is a strong Hearst man. Mr. Grant is a Californian and was a republican up to 1900.

THE HEALTHY STOMACH

'We Never Know We Have a Stomach Unless Something is Wrong With It."

When you begin to realize that you have a stomach, it means that this organ is not in good condition, and it is reminding you of the fact.

Do not feel discouraged and miserable because of the presence of indigestion. It is the best thing in the world for you if you can only see it and give the stomach proper treatment.

Change the weak stomach to a healthy one by using Mi-o-na stomach tablets. This remedy is not a mere digestive giving only temporary relief, but a combination of remedies that actually strengthen the stomach, excite the secretion of gastric juices and enable the digestive organs to care for food you eat in a natural, normal way.

By taking a Mi-o-na tablet before each meal you can enjoy a good dinner without distress and suffering, and you will never know that you have a stomach.

Our druggists sold a good many 50c. boxes of Mi-o-na stomach tablets, and the more the remedy is used, the more friends it has, for every box gives satisfaction.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50c box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50c.

Write today for a free sample package, and also give us your symptoms, and one of the best known stomach specialists will give your case his careful and personal attention without charge. Booth's Mi-ona Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Cheap Groceries for Sale Today

In order to obtain permanent premises, China Hall has purchased the large and well assorted stock of groceries, etc., of Mr. A. Rountree, No. 384 George street. This stock, which is one of the finest grocery stocks in Peterborough, will, together with the balance of the China Hall stock, be thrown on the market at cost price, commencing March 2 and continuing until both stocks are entirely disposed of, but no longer than the 15th of April, after which date the store will be re-fitted, and opened about May 1, with an entirely new stock of crockery, china, glassware, cut-glass, plated ware, fine china ornaments, etc. China Hall, after that date, will be beyond a doubt one of the finest and most complete china stores in Canada. The China Hall Company.

Furniture Factory for Peterborough

Yesterday The Times was advised that certain property fronting on Hunter street, just west of the Maple Leaf Hotel, in the east ward, has been sold by Mr. Richard Dawson to a Cobourg capitalist, and that the intention of this gentleman is to establish a furniture factory here.

On enquiry The Times was assured that the Cobourg man in question means strict business and will establish a factory.

Leoture Before the Looal Astronomers

The inaugural lecture to be given before the local branch of the Royal Astronomical Society will take place on Friday evening at eight o'clock in the Y.M.C.A. lecture hall. The lecturer will be Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, and his subject "The Planet Neptune." Everyone is heartily invited to attend this lecture.

Justice as She is in the United States

Money seems to talk. Whether Thaw shot White or not why does his trial linger over all these weeks after weeks? If a poor devil had stolen a loaf of bread for a starving family he would have been safely stowed away in Sing Sing or Blackwell's Island weeks ago. It seems that in Uncle Sam's great republic the man with unlimited coin can commit about every crime forbidden by the ten Commandments or the criminal code and get off or have a trial that will continue until judge and jury die a natural death, and after their demise meet with impunity a judge and jury (possibly bribed) who have forgotten or got sick and tired of the original charge, and who will dismiss the case. Oh! the U.S. is a great country, for the rich man.

Your Summer Outing

Has Local Dentist Committed Suicide?

Peterboro Man, Who Has Threatened to Suicide, Absent Since Sunday Noon.

It seems that either a "tempest in a teapot" or a tragedy exists in this city. Without mentioning names a certain gentleman employed by a local dentist has a wife whose actions, it is alleged are not as circumspect as they might be. In fact she has taken a trip at more than one time with a commercial traveller. Last week it seems the lady left with a commercial man for parts unknown. The husband, who as noted, works in a local dentistry office, knowing of these actions of his better half, has repeatedly threatened to commit suicide.

At the latter part of last week, his wife having gone on the trip aforesaid, the dentist's assistant, after sending this week's wages to his wife, went to his employer and asked for $2, as the employer was leaving next day to attend to patients in a nearby village. The employer cheerfully handed over the $2. The employe was known to have gone to his deserted hearth Saturday night, and to have taken breakfast and dinner there Sunday, but his whereabouts since are a complete mystery.

It is now to be learned whether he has carried out his oft repeated threats of foul-play, or whether he has gone after the absent wife.

Isabella Stewart Has Passed Away

Early yesterday morning Isabella Stewart, passed away at the residence of her sister, Mrs. James Tighe, Rogers street, after an illness of some weeks from cancer. The deceased was 64 years of ages and was born in the County of Donegal, Ireland. She was the daughter of the late Matthew Stewart. The deceased was a member of St. Luke's church.

Two sisters and two brothers are left to mourn her loss. The sisters are Mrs. Jas. Tighe and Mrs. Wm. Tighe of east ward, and the brothers are Mr. Jas. Stewart of east ward, and Mr. Hugh Stewart of Marinetta, Wis.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock from the residence of Mr. Jas. Tighe, Rogers street, to St. Luke's church and thence to the Little Lake cemetery.

Preventics, as the name implies, prevent all Colds and Grippe when "taken at the sneeze stage." Preventics are toothsome candy tablets. Preventics dissipate all colds quickly, and taken early, when you first feel that a cold is coming, they check and prevent them. Preventics are thoroughly safe for children, and as effectual for adults. Sold and recommended in 5 cent and 25 cent boxes by J. D. Tully.

England Still Opposed to Home Rule Bill

London, March 20.—The Unionist campaign against the legislation which the Government proposes to introduce after Easter, giving partial home rule to Ireland, was formally opened today. A strong deputation of residents of Ulster, including about fifty leading anti-home rulers headed by the Duke of Abercorn and Lord Lansdowne, had a conference with A. J. Balfour, the opposition leader, and urged the necessity for an active propaganda to combat the Government's Irish policy.

Mr. Balfour declared himself enthusiastic to pledge every member of the Unionist party to fight everything in the nature of home rule. He added that he believed the sentiment of the country had not varied on the subject since the defeat of the late Mr. Gladstone's home rule measure.

Sin Against Health

Why the Usefulness of All Organs is Destroyed by Costiveness.

Most important to health and comfort is the proper action of the bowels.

By nature these organs are intended for the removal of the waste particles of matter which accumulate in the system.

Retain these wastes and you poison the blood, ruin digestion, bring on nervousness and anaemia.

Habitual costiveness is best overcome by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which establish regularity that is exactly consistent with nature.

Not a drastic purgative—not even a pain or sensation of grip, because Dr. Hamilton's Pills are vegetable and free from irritating widely advertised remedies.

In every case Dr. Hamilton's Pills do cure and bring sure relief from headache, billiousness and other manifestations of constipation.

Jas. McConnell, of Walkerton, writes; "Since I was comparatively a young man I have not enjoyed real good health.

"My appetite was good and strength kept up, yet I knew something was wrong.

"Frequently I took billous attacks and violent headaches. My stomach was disordered, skin was murky, under my eyes were heavy dark rings.

"Last winter I read through the Polson's almanac and decided my trouble was constipation. I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and can hardly tell the help they have been. I am now as fresh, strong and well as a boy."

Just try the wonderful magic of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Sold by all dealers. 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn, U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

IS NEW ZEALAND CONVINCING

Two large islands, with one much smaller nearby, come closer than any other part of the world, just now, to fulfilling the dreams of the socialists. They are the object lesson held up for the edification of the world when experiments in paternalistic government are under discussion.

New Zealand is the place where apostles of socialism go for the best illustration they can find of the effects of swift approaches toward their goal. There, they boast, strikes and lockouts have been done away with and no one works excessively long hours or for disgracefully low wages. In New Zealand the government enforces a complete half-holiday every week. There the child labor evil does not exist. In that country women work only under careful restrictions and surrounded with all due safeguards for health and life.

Admirers of New Zealand claim that the country has no slums. They say it contains no palaces of great wealth. The government owns all that belongs to the public service corporations in the United States. It runs the railroads and the telegraph lines, the telephones, the street cars and the lighting plants. The government also owns a large share of the land, much of it bought from private owners, and the state so regulates taxation that the building up or holding of vast private estates is effectually discouraged.

So, it is asserted by advocates of socialism New Zealand has freed itself from the curses of poverty and excessive concentrated wealth. It has abolished labor troubles and freed workers from the fear of want in old age. It has come near reaching an ideal state of general happiness and contentment.

New Zealand is undeniably forging ahead at a good pace in commerce and industries—in the large tests of business and efficiency which bring the islands into competition and comparison with the rest of the world. The island colony far surpasses the United States, for instance, in the extent of its exports and imports, in proportion to the population. It is much richer than this country in sheep, cattle and horses, also measured by the number of inhabitants.

But is all this convincing? Why should New Zealand fail to be prosperous? Why shouldn't its people be comfortable, happy and free from many of the ills of older and more crowded lands?

The islands are nearly equal in area to Italy. They fall only a little short of Great Britain and Ireland. The climate is one of the best in the world. The soil is fertile and there are forests rich in valuable timber. Minerals are abundant. Every part of the islands is within a short haul of an ocean harbor. The wide spaces which pioneers used to find in this country are united there with the resources and advantages of modern science, mechanics and finance. And the total population of New Zealand is less than 1,000,000.

Would not such a country, in such a stage of development, flourish under any rational system of government? How could it fail to be comfortable and prosperous?

Yet New Zealand gets no great inflow of immigration. More New Zealanders come to the United States than there are Americans who go to New Zealand. Why? Is the antipodean state too much regulated? Does human nature rebel? What is the use of all that New Zealand's government has done if it does not satisfy the people governed as well as other systems do in older lands?

Affairs of York Loan and Savings Company

Toronto, March 20.—An application is to be made by the National Trust Company before the Federal Government for certain amendments to the winding-up act to permit, it is claimed, of more expeditious treatment of the affairs of the York Loan and Savings Company. A statement in respect to the proposed steps was made yesterday by the Trust Company, which is liquidator of the York Loan. It reads:

"As stated in our former reports, the shareholders have been grouped in about thirty different classes in order that the court may define the rights of the parties and pass upon the claim for preferential payment which has been advanced on behalf of certain shareholders. On going into the matter we have, however, been impressed by the fact that in following the ordinary procedure prescribed by the winding-up act and the ordinary practice in the Master's office, the proceedings would be very complicated and tedious and exceedingly costly.

"We have, therefore, upon the advice of counsel, thought it advisable to apply for certain amendments to the winding up act in order that each class of claimants may be represented before the court by counsel and the matter dealt with expeditiously and at the least possible cost. We have met with every possible consideration at the hands of the Minister of Justice, and he has taken charge of the matter with every assurance that if at all possible the necessary amendments will be passed this session."

Afrioan Naturalist Reports New Animals

London, March 20.—Are there other "new" animals in Africa besides the okapi, whose existence has been definitely established, and the white rhinoceroes, which no European has ever seen, though native rumor asserts it is not a mythical creature?

Curious reports have been brought back from Portuguese East Africa by Mr. J. E. Speares, who has been spending a year trapping and shooting big game in the regions mostly near Lake Nangadi and the Bovuma River.

"One day returning to camp near Naugadi I saw," says Mr. Speares, "some zebra standing about 200 yards off in long grass. I fired, but the bullet must have passed over them. As they galloped up the slope on the other side of the shrub I noticed that some of them were very differently marked from others. Their heads and necks were brown, while in the hinder part of the body they were striped like zebra. The natives told me they were a variety of zebra, but that they were very scarce. I followed them for miles, hoping to get another shot, but did not again come up with them.

"A little later," says Mr. Speares, "while on the track of elephants I saw some of the peculiarly marked zebra I had seen at Nangadi, and this time there could be no mistake about the color. In shape it was to all appearances the same as the zebra, but the head, neck, forelegs and fore half of the body were of a dark brown color, while the hinder half of the body, the hind quarters and legs were striped as in the ordinary zebra."

Tupper's Scheme

London, March 20.—Sir Chas. Tupper writes to the Morning Post on the subject of Imperial organization. He says he is unable to concur in the views of Sir Frederick Pollock, as a parliamentary federation is impracticable as a corporation, and can only be secured by diplomatic communication of a secret and confidential nature. The continuity of the proceedings of the colonial conference could be secured by the high commissioners of the colonies being sworn in of the Privy Council, and thus brought into the most confidential communication with this Imperial Government on all questions affecting the outlying portions of the Empire. Their usefulness would be increased by their being present at meetings of the Imperial Conference. He suggested that additional weight would be given to the high commissioners if that office were made a department of the cabinet.

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. 32. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 16 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 30 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 30 acres of J. B. 32 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 5 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 20 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 50 feet, and in it shows 6 inch nicolite, 18 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 672-1283-492-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

The need for a Canadian smelter for Cobalt ores has been manifested from the time when the first great discoveries were made in the Cobalt district. Present smelting facilities in the United States are inadequate, and freight rates and charges are so high that only the highest grade ore can be shipped with profit.

The above strong Canadian company has been formed for the exclusive purpose of smelting and refining Cobalt ores. Under the Ontario Mining Act it also enjoys the right to acquire and operate mines.

The company has closed a very advantageous lease of the Smelting and Refining Plant of The Lake Superior Corporation at Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, which carries with it a service of 1000 horse-power twenty-four service electric energy per annum. They have also contracted for the exclusive use of the famous and world-renowned Schneeburg process for smelting cobalt and nickel ores, which reduces ores with a loss of only one per cent. The Schneeburg process is a secret ore, controlled by the German Government, and has been in use in Saxony over three hundred years, and is in fact the only known process which smelts Cobalt ores successfully and at the same time retains all of the bye-products. Ores in Saxony average only 3½ per cent. None of the ore mined in Cobalt runs as low grade as this, and the establishment of this smelter will make valuable thousands of tons of ore now lying on the dump.

The Sault Smeltar now in the possession of the company, and which has been leased by the company, will rapidly be adapted to the new process, has a capacity of 125 tons per day, and this will, in all probability, be shortly increased. The large tonnage of cobalt and nickel mines of Sudbury district will crowd present capacity to the limit.

Of the capital stock 280,000 shares have been allotted to the German syndicate in consideration of the exclusive right to the Schneeburg process, 220,000 shares are retained in the treasury, and will be sold only for expansion of the company's business, and with first right of purchase to present shareholders. The balance, 500,000 shares of treasury stock is to be offered to the public.

20 PER CENT. TO ACCOMPANY SUBSCRIPTION AND THE BALANCE ON CALL AFTER 15 DAYS.

Remember, this company did not have to spend anything for plant or building. It has the exclusive use of the famous Schneeburg process, which quadruples the earning power of the ordinary smelter. It is capitalized at a reasonable amount, thus safeguarding the interests of its shareholders. The plant should be ready for operation in ninety days.

"Thanks; I should like to do so, if I may."

"We shall be deeply disappointed if you forget," said Millicent, holding out her hand, with a smile full of light heartedness and innocent girlish friendship.

CHAPTER VI.

"CURSE this country! Curse it! Curse it!" The man spoke aloud, but there was no one near to hear. He shook his skinny yellow fist out over the broad river that crept greasily down to the equatorial sea.

All around him the vegetable kingdom had asserted its sovereignty. At his back loomed a dense forest, impenetrable to the foot of man, defying his puny hand armed with ax or saw. The trees were not high, few of them being above twenty feet, but from their branches creepers and parasites hung in tangled profusion, interlaced, joining tree to tree for acres—nay, for miles.

As far as the eye could reach either bank of the slow river was thus covered with rank vegetation—mile after mile without variety, without hope. The glassy surface of the water was broken here and there by certain black forms floating like logs half hidden beneath the wave. These were crocodiles. The river was the Ogowe, and the man who cursed it was Victor Durnovo, employee of the Loango Trading association, whose business it was at that season to travel into the interior of Africa to buy, barter or steal ivory for his masters.

He was a small faced man, with a squarely aquiline nose and a black mustache which hung like a valance over his mouth. From the growth of that curtain-like mustache Victor Durnovo's worldly prosperity might have been said to date. No one seeing his mouth had before that time been prevailed upon to trust him. Nature has a way of hanging out signs and then covering them up so that the casual fail to see. He was a man of medium height, with abnormally long arms and a somewhat truculent way of walking, as if his foot was ever ready to kick anything or any person who might come in his way.

Victor Durnovo had sent his boatmen into the forest to find a few dates, a few handfuls of firewood, and while they were absent he gave vent to that wild unreasoning passion which is inhaled into the white man's lungs with the air of equatorial Africa.

"Curse this country!" he shouted. "Curse it, curse it—river and tree, man and beast!"

Presently a peacefulness seemed to come over him, for his eyes lost their glitter and his heavy lids drooped. His arms were crossed behind his head. Before him lay the river.

Suddenly he sat upright, all eagerness and attention. Not a leaf stirred. It was about 5 o'clock in the evening, the stillest hour of the twenty-four. In such a silence the least sound would travel almost any distance, and there was a sound traveling over the water to him. It was nothing but a thud repeated with singular regularity, but to his practiced ears it conveyed much. He knew that a boat was approaching, as yet hidden by some distant curve in the river. The thud was caused by the contact of six paddles with the gunwale of the canoe as the paddlers withdrew them from the water.

Victor Durnovo rose again and brought from the boat a second rifle, which he laid beside the double barreled Reilly which was never more than a yard away from him, waking or sleeping. Then he waited. He knew that no boat could reach the bank without his full permission, for all the powers could be killed before they got within a hundred yards of his rifle. He was probably the best rifle shot but one in that country, and the other, the very best, happened to be in the approaching canoe.

After the space of ten minutes the boat came in sight—a long, black form on the still waters. It was too far away for him to distinguish anything beyond the fact that it was a native boat.

"Eight hundred yards," muttered Durnovo over the sight of his rifle.

He looked upon this river as his own, and he knew the native of equatorial Africa. Therefore he dropped a bullet into the water, under the bow of the canoe, at 800 yards.

A moment later there was a sound which can only be written "P-ttt" between his legs, and he had to wipe a shower of dust from his eyes. A puff of blue smoke rose slowly over the boat and a sharp report broke the silence a second time.

Then Victor Durnovo leaped to his feet and waved his hat in the air. From the canoe there was an answering greeting, and the man on the bank went to the water's edge, still carrying the rifle from which he was never parted.

Durnovo was the first to speak when the boat came within hail.

"Very sorry," he shouted. "Thought you were a native boat. Must establish a funk—get in the first shot, you know."

"All right," replied one of the Europeans in the approaching craft, with a courteous wave of the hand, "no harm done."

There were two white men and six blacks in the long and clumsy boat. One of the Europeans lay in the bow while the other was stretched at his ease in the stern, reclining on the canvas of a neatly folded tent. The last named was evidently the leader of the little expedition, while the manner and attitude of the man in the bow suggested the servitude of a disciplined soldier slightly relaxed by abnormal circumstances.

"Who fired that shot?" inquired Durnovo, when there was no longer any necessity to shout.

"Joseph," replied the man in the stern of the boat, indicating his companion. "Was it a near thing?"

"About as near as I care about. It threw up the dust between my legs."

The man called Joseph grinned. Nature had given him liberally of the wherewithal for indulgence in that

The National Law now requires that if any poisons enter into a cough mixture, it must be printed on the label or package. For this reason mothers and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and see. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Simply refuse to accept any other. Sold by J. D. Tully.

BIG HAUL OF DIAMONDS

New York, March 26.—Arthur Preston Green and Charles Bonrer, passengers on the North German-Lloyd steamer Amerika, were arrested when the vessels arrived from Hamburg and Southampton, charged with attempting smuggling. Diamonds and jewellery to the appraised value of nearly $25,000, which the customs officials allege the prisoners had failed to declare, was taken from them. The valuables were confiscated and the men were held for extradition.

Though only the charge of smuggling was preferred against the prisoners here they are wanted abroad in connection with a theft of some $75,000 worth of jewellery and precious stones in London, and the London authorities have been notified. The local police received a cablegram from Scotland Yard asking that they be detained upon their arrival.

GOLD BY THE BUSHEL

THE SEARCH FOR GOLD has ever been man's strongest passion. No obstacles have deterred him. Heat and cold, famine and thirst, hardship and exposure alike have failed to conquer the insatiable desire. From the dawn of history, when King Solomon opened up the famous wealth of the mines of Ophir, to the present day, men have sought the yellow metal. Countless lives have been sacrificed, and yet the search goes on.

In the winter of 1900-1901 four miners tottered into the city of Nome, Alaska; their feet and hands black with frostbite; their bodies emaciated almost to skeletons; their eyes sunken. Their dogs had died of starvation and cold; they had abandoned their sleds and provisions; but they staggered under the weight of forty pounds of pure GOLD!

The city buzzed at once with excitement. Where had they found it? To all questions the strangers were dumb. There was one man in Nome, however, who thought he knew a way to locate the new discovery. He had been a friend of the Esquimaux to the North; he spoke their language well; he had relieved their want; and he had spent nearly four years among them. He could talk the "true talk" of these simple natives. That man was ANDREW S. NELSON. Within twelve hours he was speeding North, with a team of six tried dogs and a supply of provisions.

It is needless to recite the hardships he endured in this lonely journey, facing the fierce north wind. Suffice it to say he found an old Esquimau who showed him where the strangers had made their find.

Under the Northern Stars he drove the stakes which now mark the boundaries of NELSON GULCH MINING CLAIMS.

Three Hundred Dollars in Two Hours

Connected with Mr. Andrew S. Nelson were his father, Major William Nelson, U. S. Army, retired, and Dr. G. M. Morris, an English surgeon. When spring opened up these three men began to test their ground. They found it exceedingly rich, but they were troubled to get water. They tried various schemes, but as their money had nearly run out they could work only on a small scale. Once they were lucky in saving some water with a dam after a rain, and Mr. Nelson and Dr. Morris washed out $500.00 in gold in less than two hours. Numerous tests made over the ground showed the top gravel to run a dollar a cubic yard.

At other times and places from $10.00 to $50.00 were secured from single yards of gravel. Nuggets ranging in value from $1.00 to $47.00 each were found. This is an ancient river bed into which, for ages, the waters have been washing and disintegrating the rock which held the gold.

More than $1,000,000 have been taken by other parties from the gravel which was washed from this Company's ground into the stream below, and they have only just begun work. They expect millions more, and their tests justify their expectation. $150,000 were taken from Old Glory Creek, which is one of its bends swung into the edge of our old river.

Favorable Government Report

In the summer of 1903 the United States Geological Survey sent out an exploring party to cover this ground, under Mr. Fred. H. Moffit. This is a part of his report:

"This small gulch (Nelson Gulch), barely three-fourths of a mile long, leads down from a broad, low saddle in the divide between Old Glory and Inmachuck, and is of interest since it is probably an important factor in the origin of the rich ground just below its mouth on Old Glory."

What is Placer Gold?

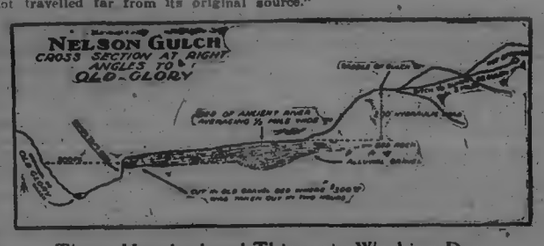
Nowhere on earth have the elements and glaciers worn away the mountains as in Alaska. All the gold in their veins has been carried into river beds, the heavier pieces being deposited nearby, the lighter ones going farther.

Now, it does not take much thought to realize that, as Nelson Gulch is the source of all the gold on the Inmachuck River, the heaviest particles and the greatest amount must be on the Company's ground.

This is further shown by the fact that the gold found there is sharp-cornered and angular. Now, pure gold is very soft, and as it travels down stream it is rubbed against the sand and gravel and the sharp corners worn off. When you find the particles of gold in a river bed are worn and the corners rounded, then you may be sure they have travelled some distance.

The gold in Nelson Gulch is angular and sharp-cornered. Notice what the United States Government Report says on this subject:

"The gold from Nelson Gulch is brighter than that of Old Glory, is rough and angular, and contains considerable quartz, and evidently has not travelled far from its original source."



Three Hundred and Thirty-six Working Days

Although the season for hydaulicing in Alaska is but 140 days, every hour of that 140 days is daylight. For a full month the sun never sets, and during two other months it does not get dark. Therefore, by keeping on three shifts of men, eight hours each, the work does—not stop, and we get 336 working days of ten hours each. This is a larger number of hours than the great placer mines of Colorado, Montana or Idaho can work in any one year.

Mr. Andrew S. Nelson is now on the property with a force of men getting everything in readiness for the spring work. We fully expect to have the gold running down our sluice-ways by June.

Gravel Richer as it Goes Down

Everybody knows that in old river beds carrying gold the gravel gets richer as it goes down next to bed rock.

In several places on bed rock this Company's gravel washed at the rate of $50.00 a yard. Of course, it is not all that rich; but suppose we average it at $10.00 a yard; this would make an acre worth $300,000.00!

Railroad, Telegraph and Telephone Lines to the Mines

A railroad is now in operation part way from Nome to Deering, and will be finished through next season. All the above lines will pass very close to this property, and will give us perfect transportation and communication facilities.

During the open season three regular steamers per week between Seattle and Deering, together with the many irregular ones, give us freight rates no greater than those in effect from Kansas City to points in Arizona.

Letter from Major William Nelson, U. S. Army, retired, under date of February 18, 1907:

"Could the public be made to see the property as I know it there would be no trouble in selling stock, for it will prove the best investment anyone could make. Every $100.00 will return at least $5,000.00 to the investor if you can only get it opened up. I feel sure that with thirty days' work you can declare a dividend on the capital."

Our Property

The Company owns fourteen claims of twenty acres each, free and clear of all encumbrances, on the gravel terrace of Nelson Gulch, near the head of the Inmachuck River, Seward Peninsula, Alaska, nearly due north of Nome. Since January 1st three hundred acres more have been added to the Company's holdings.

Mr. J. W. Pickard, a mining engineer of high standing, has been engaged since the spring of 1900 in making tests of the gold-bearing gravels of Seward Peninsula. He represents there a New York Syndicate, which has, through him, secured large holdings. He says of these deposits: "If I were to tell you the values that exist under the tundra (species of heavy bunch grass), you would hardly believe what I tell you. The values are almost beyond computation. I found gravel averaging $4.57 to the cubic yard in one place; in another hole it averaged $9.64; in another $6.10; another showed an average value of $5.00; still another $12.41. To figure out the values in an acre of such gravel produces figures so prodigious as to literally stagger one."

"Mr. W. H. Bond, Paul Denhart and P. T. Nixon have a claim whose pay streak yielded all the way from 20 cents to $9.50 per pan, or $875.00 per yard. A single shift has taken out as much as $35,000.00, and $12,000.00 have been secured in one day's sluicing. Without exaggeration gold by the bushel is being washed from these gravels. The stream of gold constantly pouring into Nome attests this fact, and justifies the prediction of those best informed regarding the conditions existing there, which is that these gravel benches with their wealth of golden deposits will continue to be found on Seward Peninsula after the present generation of miners has been gathered to their fathers; a golden stream will still be pouring from the creeks, hills and tundra fifty years hence, if the promise of the future be but half fulfilled."

Mr. Rex Beach, in The Saturday Evening Post of January 6th, 1907, gives numerous instances of enormous strikes on Seward Peninsula—$38,000.00 in one day! $2,000,000.00 taken from Little Creek in one winter. Two men, in a few weeks, working under difficulties with the crudest machinery, took out $410,000.00.

Mr. Beach is entirely disinterested, being merely a writer and correspondent of The Post.

Inexhaustable Water Supply and only 3 miles of ditch

NEARBY PROPERTIES AMAZINGLY RICH.

Eighty per cent. of the world's gold has been taken from beds of old streams.

One company is building a ditch 83 miles long to bring water from a lake with which to wash the gravel that has been carried from Nelson Gulch down the Inmachuck River. If these washings justify the enormous expense of this ditch, and if $1,000,000.00 have already been secured from them with the crudest methods, how many millions will this property yield?

OUR WATER FACILITIES PERFECT.

An enormous, unfailing hot spring, three miles away, will furnish this Company water enough to handle 3,000 cubic yards of gravel per 24 hours at a cost of less than one cent per yard. Its claims lie close up to the contact between the lime and schist, where all of this gold originates. It is at the fountain-head, and others get only what is washed further on. Its nuggets have sharp points and edges; those found further beyond are worn smooth by the friction of their journey.

Placer Mining the Cheapest

Placer mining is the cheapest and oldest way to mine for gold. We estimate that it will cost us only half of one cent to wash a cubic yard.

Why We Sell Stock

Money is needed to bring water from the hot springs and to provide hydraulic apparatus.

The Board of Directors of Nelson Gulch Mining Company have allotted 900,000 shares of the Treasury stock to be sold at ten cents per share. When this allotment shall have been sold the price of the stock will positively be advanced to 25 cents per share; or, what is more likely, will be withdrawn from the market.

Our gravel beds average 18 feet in thickness. At a dollar a cubic yard this would make $30,000.00 per acre, or over $8,000,000.00 for the entire property. This is certainly an underestimate, because bed-rock gravel will run far higher. We are capitalized at $1,000,000.00, but with ten-cent stock this means a valuation of only $900,000.00 on a property which must certainly run away up in the millions. This is another way of looking at the great value of this investment to you.

Stock Now 10 Cents a Share

Reserve Before the Advance

Write today and reserve your shares at ten cents a share. The next advance will be to 25 cents.

Better still, wire your reservation. There is only a certain allotment for sale; when that is gone the stock is off the market. It is first come, first served.

Just a postal will do if you want further details. Write me as follows: "Please send me prospectus and full details concerning Nelson Gulch Mining Co." Address:

Mrs. Jas. Murphy Has Passed Away

Late Tuesday night Mrs. Jas. Murphy of 457 Concession street passed away in St. Joseph's Hospital.

The deceased, who was thirty-four years of age, had been in ailing health for some time, died from internal hemorrhage, after being confined to the hospital only a few days.

The deceased was born in Oshawa, and was married about sixteen years ago to her husband, who survives her, together with six children — three boys and three girls, the youngest child being three and the oldest fifteen years. A brother, Mr. Henry Hirst of this city, is also left.

G. T. R. Safeguards Were Frozen Up

Yesterday the G.T.R. gatemen had to use the old flag signals instead of the gates, owing to the latter being out of business by the underground part being hampered by ice. It seems that water ran into the depression where the upright supports are sunk into the ground, and the cold of the preceding evening congealed it, thus putting the mechanism out of business.

Mrs. W. J. Herkimer Dies in Cobourg

Mr. J. H. Green has received word of the death in Cobourg of his sister, Mrs. Walter S. Herkimer, at the age of 58. The deceased, whose mother died about two weeks ago, leaves a husband and four small children. The late Mrs. Herkimer was a half sister of Mr. Arthur Ash, of Peterborough.

Kickers Over the Market Square

Complaints have reached this office from subscribers and others to the effect that the market square is not in an artistic and sanitary condition as it might be. Whilst confessing that this plot of city property is not in as an attractive condition as the aesthetic eye might demand, people must remember that after hundreds of tons of hay and countless scores of loads of hogs have added their quota to the present condition of the market square, some allowance must be made. The mess, and it cannot be denied that a mess, and a —— bad mess at that, exists, those in charge are only human and cannot take a tea kettle of hot water out to the square and melt out each whisp of hay or each ear of barley and carry the same away. It makes us think that there are some people who, when they join the "great subsequently," will kick because the pearls in the "pearly gates" are not of the right shade or size, or that the various harps are attuned to the wrong key.

Chemong Park Cottagers Meet

A meeting of the Chemong Cottagers' Association, as noted in a former issue of The Times, will be held in the Bank of Montreal chambers (Ontario Bank) on Friday night of this week, when important matters referring to the park summer residents will be brought forward and considered.

Smith Farmer Goes West

Mr. Joseph Succee, wife and family, left yesterday morning for Rosthern, Sask., where they will reside in the future. Mr. Succee, who formerly lived in Bridgenorth, took with him two carloads of stock and settlers' effects. Many friends will wish him every success and prosperity in the west.

The Killarney of America

Nestling in a frame of beautifully wooded shores lies a series of beautiful lakes, 145 miles north of the City of Toronto, Ontario, and known as the "Lake of Bays Region." A chain of seven lakes studded with lovely islands, with hotels throughout the district and a good steamboat service to all points attracts the tourist, angler and sportsman. Just the out-of-the-way sort of place to visit during the summer months. For all particulars and free illustrated publication apply to J. D. McDonald, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

Mrs. R. Dinwoodie Has Gone

Yesterday morning the (last mortal) remains of Mrs. Robert Dinwoodie, who died in St. Joseph's hospital at six o'clock Tuesday evening, were shipped to Campbellford for interment. The deceased was a life long resident of Campbellford. About three weeks ago she came to St. Joseph's hospital. She had been ill for a long time, and was 63 years of age. Her husband predeceased her a number of years ago. She was a daughter of the late Daniel Curling, of Seymour East.

LOCAL INCIDENTS

By The Times Man on the Street

—Nothing doing at the police court yesterday.

—Last night the Lenten service in St. Luke's church was addressed by Rev. W. C. Allen, of Millbrook.

—A smoking chimney over the T. A.S. rooms yesterday caused some excitement for a time.

—Rev. A. G. H. Dicker, rector of St. Luke's church, Toronto, was the speaker at the Lenten service in St. John's church last night.

—A special meeting of the Board of Education will take place at the secretary's office, tonight at eight o'clock.

—It now looks as though the 57th Regiment would be supplied by the Dominion Government with a new rifle range, probably near Milburn's Hill.

—The local market tolls will be sold at public auction tomorrow. These fees in the time of the late Mr. John Dougherty, used to bring the city about $700, but now it takes more than twice this sum.

—Last night, the annual roll call of the members of the Murray street Baptist church was held. The ladies of the congregation served tea, commencing at 6.30, and following this, the meeting was held.

—This Thaw trial is getting to be a regular and freezing "Frost." If Evelyn had only cut out those "petite soupers," what a lot of money might have been saved from several lawyers' grasp.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Rev. E. A. Langfeldt was in Millbrook yesterday.

—Mr. K. G. Loeb is in New York on business.

—Rev. W. C. Allen of Millbrook, was in the city yesterday.

—Mr. G. R. Germain, of Campbellford, was in the city yesterday.

—Lindsay Post: Miss Mary Tangney is visiting friends in Peterborough.

—Dr. R. W. Bell, of Toronto, inspector of the Provincial Board of Health, was in the city yesterday.

—Mrs. R. H. Ross, Park street, will not receive today or again until the third Thursday in April.

—Mr. John Elliott, one of the Cavan "Blazers" was in the city yesterday, a guest at the Munro House.

—Mr. J. C. Smith, the well-known local school teacher, is confined to his house with an attack of la grippe. We trust he will soon recover.

—Joe McNulty has returned home from Peterborough, where he was visiting his brother, Dr. Frank P. McNulty.—St. Catharines Star.

—Mr. James Donah is confined to bed, suffering with a severe cold. We are pleased to say that he was somewhat better yesterday.

—James Waddell of Peterborough, was in town Saturday and left for Watertown, where he will spend a week at his former home.—Kingston Whig.

—Mr. Smith, son of Mr. Wm. Smith, of this city, late of the Bank of Commerce staff, Strathroy, has taken a position in the Dominion Bank in this city.

—Rev. Mr. Vickers, rector of St. Luke's church, Toronto, last night, took the lenten service at St. John's church, and preached a strong sermon, taking his text from the Gospel of St. Matthew.

—Mr. Matt Jamison, clerk of the Cavendish Lumber Company, who has been for nearly a year in the township of Anstruther, is in the city for a week or two renewing acquaintances with old friends.

—Mr. John Carrodemon, chef at the National Hotel, leaves this morning for Toronto, and thence via New York to Cardiff, Wales, to meet his wife who resides there. He will return in about two months with Mrs. Carrodemon.

—Yesterday Mr. F. E. Darcy, proprietor of the Palace Restaurant, received a telegram that his sister Miss Maud Darcy of New York City, was on the way to make a few weeks' visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Darcy, Burleigh Falls.

Addition to South Beach Noted

Mr. W. E. Brooks, proprietor of the hotel at South Beach, Young's Point, will this spring erect a large addition to his hotel. It will have accommodation for dancing and will add greatly to the convenience of summer residents. Mr. Brooks has already received inquiries from prospective summer boarders, and the prospects are that South Beach this season will be largely patronized.

Park Street Church Notes

The Park street Baptist church revival was well attended notwithstanding the inclement weather. The evangelist expressed his appreciation of the large audience present on such a night. The Torry & Alexander hymns, have not lost losing interest. An interesting feature of the meeting, was a solo, by Master Wilton Trantion, nine years of age. The last children's service will be held on Friday at 4.30. A baptismal service is being arranged for Easter Sunday. Song service tonight at 7.45.

Presentation to Mrs. Kilgour

One of the most important features of the W.M.S. of Charlotte St. church meeting, was the presentation to Mrs. Kilgour of a life membership certificate, and a gold pin. Mrs. J. K. Moore read the address, Mrs. Switzer presented the certificate and Miss Allin the gold pin. Mrs. Kilgour made a suitable reply, in which she thanked her friends for their thoughtfulness.

Of Interest To Women.

To such women as are not seriously out of health, but who have exacting duties to perform, either in the way of household cares or in social duties and functions which seriously tax their strength, as well as to nursing mothers, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has proved a most valuable supporting tonic and invigorating nervine. By its timely use, much serious sickness and suffering may be avoided. The operating table and the surgeons' knife, would, it is believed, seldom have to be employed if this most valuable woman's remedy were resorted to in good time. The "Favorite Prescription" has proven a great boon to expectant mothers by preparing the system for the coming of baby, thereby rendering childbirth safe, easy, and almost painless.

Bear in mind, please that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is not a secret or patent medicine, against which the most intelligent people are quite naturally averse, because of the uncertainty as to their composition and harmless character, but is a MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, a full list of all its ingredients being printed, in plain English, on every bottle-wrapper. An examination of this list of ingredients will disclose the fact that it is non-alcoholic in its composition, chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine taking the place of the commonly used alcohol, in its make-up. In this connection it may not be out of place to state that the "Favorite Prescription" of Dr. Pierce is the only medicine put up for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, and sold through druggists, all the ingredients of which have the unanimous endorsement of all the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice, and that too as remedies for the ailments for which "Favorite Prescription" is recommended.

A little book of these endorsements will be sent to any address, post-paid, and absolutely free if you request same by postal card, or letter, of Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take as candy.

GOVERNMENT IN CANAL BUSINESS FOR KEEPS

Is the Assurance Given by Hon. H. R. Emmerson to Wednesday's Delegations---Prompt Completion of Trent Valley Waterway Promised.

The deputation which waited upon the Hon. H. R. Emmerson, minister of railways and canals, at Ottawa, on Wednesday, have returned home thoroughly satisfied that the present Dominion Government are in the canal business in earnest; and that there will be no further delay in prosecuting this great waterway to a speedy completion. The minister assured his interviewers that within a week copies of the supplementary estimates for the continuation of the Trent Valley waterway construction will be submitted to the House of Commons, when the country will realize that this project has been removed from the political football arena and taken up as a much needed business proposition.

The deputation consisted of 135 or more representative men from Peterborough and other places contingent to the canal's route, and they were cordially and affably received by the Hon. H. R. Emmerson in his large committee room at eleven o'clock Wednesday morning. The minister of railways and canals received the hearty support of Hon. R. W. Scott, secretary of State, and Hon. Wm. Patterson, minister of customs, both of whom are also in the canal business in fact the deputation could not have been better received, nor been given more satisfactory assurances that no undue delay will transpire in the construction of both the northern and southern outlets of this waterway.

The following ladies and gentlemen comprised the deputation;

Messrs. E. S. Clarry, Jno. Gemmell, Jas. Davidson, R. Sheehy, B. Morrow, F. J. R. MacPherson, Harry Evans, Ed Conroy, W. S. Russell, R. Mayer, W. Hayes, H. Phelan, Thos. G. Boyd, Wm. G. Wilson, Springville.

The city delegates were under the fatherly eye of Ald. Phelan, who had secured in advance very comfortable accommodation at the Windsor Hotel.

The visitors were introduced to the Hon. Mr. Emmerson by Mr. R. R. Hall, the energetic member for West Peterborough, who explained that the deputation wanted a speedy conclusion of the southern outlet of the Trent Valley waterway.

MAYOR McWILLIAMS

In his address the mayor expressed the strong desire of Peterborough for the speedy conclusion of the canal. The city wanted, he said, to strengthen the hands of the Government in making a liberal grant towards the completion of this waterway. He referred to the importance of the problem of transportation which the Government had already recognized and had reminded by wiping away most of the difficulties. Experts have stated that the Trent Canal is a link in solving this problem. He also referred to the inaction of the Government in promptly defining the southern route. The G.T.R. are proposing to double-track their line parallel to the canal and the C.P.R. also propose to construct a grain route from Victoria Harbor to Montreal. At will then be a question as to whether the goods can be taken by barge from Midland to Montreal a distance of 441 miles, or by G.T.R. a distance of 420 miles, the more cheaply. Barges can carry more than twice the load of any railway train and have also the advantages of nature in assisting in cheap transportation. He pointed out that it was not two or three localities, but a district as large as the whole of Prince Edward Island that was seeking the conclusion of this waterway.

The completion of the canal means the development of 100,000 horse power, and will go far in developing the great interior part of the Province of Ontario. He assured the honorable minister that Peterborough would back the government in any way possible with a view to the early completion of the southern terminus of the canal.

A. A. MULHOLLAND.

Of Campbellford, assured the minister that although the deputation was not as large as that of last year, it was equally as enthusiastic and representative. We are here, he said, to impress you with the necessity for an early completion in the interests of transportation and the development of water power.

WARDEN McNULTY.

Of the County of Peterborough, stated that last year the Government agreed to place a liberal appropriation in the estimates for the completion of the canal when the route was decided upon. The deputation was again present, he said, to urge that the Government place a good liberal sum in the estimates this year, and asked that, for his sake, for God's sake, and for shame's sake, the Government continue with the proposal.

MAYOR DOXSEE.

Mayor Doxsee, Campbellford, also asked that a large sum be appropriated for the completion of the southern section of the canal. If this work is gone ahead with, he explained that the water power in the vicinity of Campbellford, would be developed and would therefore have a tendency to benefit the whole district in the vicinity of the town which he represented.

DR. JACQUES.

Trenton was represented by Dr. Jacques, who stated that the district he represented had no limit to find in what had been done so far by the Government. The completion of the canal will affect 600,000 people contained in a very large district, where manufacturing is extensive. A year or two ago, Trenton had the pleasure of a visit from the Hon. Mr. Emmerson, who went over that district, and what he considered, was impressed that the best outlet would be by way of Trenton. He had desired to bring a deputation of 400 or more to the capital, but, on learning that appropriations had already been made, the delegations did not come.

HON. H. R. EMMERSON.

The deputation was responded to by Hon. H. R. Emmerson, minister of railways and canals, who, on rising, was greeted with loud cheers. He was pleased to meet the people from the Trent Valley Canal district on the subject of such an important waterway. The fact of the deputation being present demonstrated to him that the people had become imbued with the faith in the Trent Valley Canal. Once, when in Peterborough, he had occasion to remark that there was a lack of faith of the people on the Trent Canal, which they were then advocating. Had the people had more faith, he thought they might have done better, but his mind had since then been changed. He was fully convinced that the people had great faith in the prospects of the canal. He believed at the time that he had been a sort of voice crying in the wilderness in connection with the canal, but he was now impressed with the fact that there were a great many more voices encouraging the construction of the canal. He regretted the absence of the Premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who, on account of other engagements and his proposed trip to England, could not attend. The Prime Minister had stated that, in view of the decision already reached to make an appropriation for the completion of the work, he did not think anything convincing the Government in this respect was necessary.

Hon. Mr. Emmerson had faith in the completion of the canal and had made promises to previous deputations that as soon as the Government could have a complete and comprehensive survey of the canal the completion would follow soon after. He claimed he had kept his word to the letter, and the Government had backed him up in the project.

The survey had been made, reports had come in, and immediately and promptly the Government had determined the route, so far as Lake Ontario was concerned. He had also promised that, as soon as the route was decided, the Government would consider the immediate completion of the southern outlet of the canal. The Government, he explained, being trustees of the people, was not permitted to expend one dollar until that dollar was voted by Parliament, and his department could only advise Parliament of the decisions it reached. He could not mention directly what money was under consideration, as this had to be brought up before Parliament in a constitutional manner, but, before one week has sped past, he added, copies of estimates will be laid on the table of the House, showing just what action had been taken by the Government. He had said before that the Government and he had faith in the canal, in fact, they recognized its completion to be beneficial to the whole Dominion. He was certain that the people of the Eastern Provinces would also support its speedy construction. What tends to develop one section of the country, benefits all, he said.

Definite and immediate action will be taken, he declared, and thought that as other promises had been kept this one would be also. If the Government is permitted to assist the transportation problem, it cannot overlook the section of the Trent Valley Canal under consideration. He promised that he would ask of his colleagues and Parliament sufficient money to push forward the work with all possible speed, and he explained that he only asked for that amount which would enable them to carry on the work for one year.

He emphatically declared that he would like to convince at least one man who was present with last year's deputation, that the Government is "in the canal business for keeps."

In conclusion he was pleased to have met the deputation, and again referred to the unavoidable absence of the Premier. He hoped that the Government would soon be able to remove the Trent Valley Canal from the political football arena, and again stated that he would endeavor to deal with it in a business-like manner in the future, as he had always attempted to do in the past.

OTHER MINISTERS.

Hon. R. W. Scott and Hon. Wm. Patterson both agreed that the outlook for the completion of the canal was more hopeful now than at any time in its past history, and were impressed with the fact that the sooner this project was completed, the better it would be in the interests of the whole country.

Mr. W. McIlroy, the genial C.P.R. ticket agent, looked after the comfort of the delegates on the train.

OTHER PROMISES.

A new bridge at Burkhorn, is also promised, and the request of North Monaghan council for a change in the mail service has been granted.

Former Peeress Clings to Title

London, March 22.—The fashionables are laughing at the former Lady Greyegerton's declaration that she will retain her title instead of being known as "Mrs. Richard McCreery," after the name of the wealthy American she married the other day. Only a peeress who takes for her second husband a man of lower rank than her first keeps her title. Lady Grey-Egerton, daughter of the late Mapes F. Wayne Cuyler, of the United States army, married a baronet; Sir Philip Grey-Egerton, who divorced her January 21, 1906. Sir Philip declares that if she continues to wear his name he will submit evidence of the fact to the proper court and get an order restraining her from using the title.

Extensive Fund for Crusade on Vice

La Crosse, Wis., March 21.—Following the publication of the startling report of the detectives of the Pastors' Union, who for weeks has been collecting incriminating evidence regarding vice in La Crosse, the organization of a civic federation with $100,000 capital, and including as stockholders some of the leading citizens, is announced today.

The corporation will hire agents to investigate and make complaint upon violation of laws, and to force prosecution of violators. Unsatisfied with promises of reform by police officials, the ministers have taken this summary action to force a cleansing of the city's morals.

The detectives' report, made public today, bristled with lurid details. Brothels, wine rooms, gambling halls, saloons and pool rooms were visited by spies paid by the ministers.

Participants in the boisterous midnight revels were carefully noted, leading citizens and lowly. Instances of the language used, of the liquors consumed and by whom, went into the notebooks of the spies and all were turned over to the committee of ministers, of whom Rev. R. J. Clemens, president of the Humane Society, is president, to form the basis of operation of the new federation.

Circulars depicting the scenes of immorality were printed by one of the spies, and cast about the city. This circular identified prominent people and has created an uproar, even among the ministers.

Stock is being subscribed and an out of town agent, who will not be recognized, is to be hired to take charge of the prosecutions.

Will Help Cobalt

Cobalt, March 22.—During the last few days quite a surprise has been sprung upon Cobalt mining men with reference to the shipping of ore to the smelters. These shipments to United States smelters have all along proved troublesome to the miners, and in some cases men had actually to be sent with each car. In return a little over 90 per cent. of the silver values was all that was obtained. The miner had to pay freight and insurance. Now an English company has come forward with the proposition to purchase the ore practically at the mouth of the pit. The company is prepared to pay 94 per cent. of the silver value, and at the same time saving all the freight charges to the mine. This company is also willing to accept the New York assays. The ore will probably go to Swansea, Wales.

Education Board Met Last Night

Tenders for North Ward School Considered in Committee of the Whole.

Last night the Board of Education met in Mr. G. W. Morrow's offices, with Chairman Robt. Fair presiding. There were present in addition, Messrs. Hill, Dumble, Dr. Morrison, Pringle, and Robinson.

The chairman noted that at the request of the chairman of the North Ward School Building Committee, he had convened the meeting to consider tenders in that school building. The chairman suggested that the Board go into Committee of the Whole. This under existing conditions debarred the press representatives from being present, and on a Times representative making a question, the press were told they could get all available information the next morning.

Great Interest in Torrie's Services

Evangelist Services in Park Street Church Have Resulted in Many Conversions.

One more night only and Evangelist Torrie will cast the Gospel net into other waters. He has saved many souls during his present trip at Park St. church. The crowd last night was exceedingly large for a week evening service.

Miss Hamlin, of Midland, has been a great factor in the revival services. She sang in good voice a solo before the appeal was made, and also took part in a duett with Mr. Jas. Tanner.

Mr. M. Pappas in a New Business

Cheap Shows to be Opened in Peterboro Within a Short Time.

Yesterday Mr. Huylingmeyer, who represents one of the largest amusements firms in the United States, with headquarters in Philadelphia, Pa., was in the city in close conversation with Mr. M. Pappas, the local cigar dealer and pool room proprietor. Mr. Huylingmeyer made this local merchant a most attractive offer that will probably be accepted. Mr. Huylingmeyer wanted Mr. Pappas to take the local agency for a "five-cent" show for his company. This means that Mr. Pappas will acquire a suitable property and put on a "moving picture" show, with suitable music etc., and a complete change three times a week in program with all latest attachments. During the afternoon Mr. Pappas was busily engaged with several local real estate owners, and has practically completed arrangements for the rental of suitable premises for his up-to-date five-cent show. When this show opens up there is no doubt but what the public will spend many a nickle on the cheap, but good show. Mr. Pappas has got the capital and the energy to push this matter to a successful conclusion. Full particulars and adv. will appear in these columns in a few days.

Good Chance for a Good Living

Market Tolls Will be Sold by Public Auction at 11 o'clock This Morning.

This morning will be an anxious one for those wanting to handle the local market fees for the ensuing year. This matter will be settled this morning in the Council Chamber at 11 o'clock. Mr. Charles Stapleton, will be the auctioneer. It is expected that the bidding will be brisk. Last year the tolls sold for $1,030. It is expected that they will probably go 1,100 this year. This is a good easy job and should be worth all the money bidden. The city is a gainer by every extra dollar bidden, and last year it is understood that the gentleman who purchased the tolls has made a good fat living out of his purchase.

Will Ask Rev. Mr. Spurgeon to Stay

London, March 21.—A crowded meeting of the members of the Metropolitan Tabernacle yesterday considered the resignation of the Rev. Thomas Spurgeon.

The chairman announced that the elders and deacons had earnestly begged Mr. Spurgeon to withhold his resignation for at least three months, and he had reluctantly consented.

The meeting, after many prayers for Mr. Spurgeon's recovery from his illness, unanimously resolved to ask him to take a complete rest for a year if necessary.

A Storm Centre

London, March 20.—The Teheran correspondent of the Daily Mail says that Indian mounted troops have entered Persia to protect the British Consulates in the south. There is a rumors that the Afghans are moving on the frontier.

Cossacks have arrived at Teheran and at the Russian Consulates in the north. A Russian transport with troops is off Enzeli, a port on the Caspian Sea.

It is reported, but not confirmed, that a British warship is in the Gulf of Persia. There is great excitement over the situation.

Mr. Thos. Daroy in Another Business

Local Hotelman Will Open up a First-class Restaurant in Lakefield.

It is rumored that Mr. Thomas Darcy, proprietor of the Palace Restaurant and hotel, George street, in addition to his control and management of the Burnside Falls hotel, has leased the Casemont building in the village of Lakefield, and will run it as a temperance hotel and restaurant. The establishment will have sixteen bedrooms and will be furnished in good style. The restaurant will be kept open each day, from six o'clock in the morning until twelve at night. This will make the fourth temperance house in the village.

Had a Wife in England

Sherbrooke, March 21. — Stephen Liddell was committed to the Court of King's Bench yesterday by Judge Morveau, on a charge of bigamy. On December 8th last the accused married a young Montreal girl named Berth Macdonald. At that time he was bandmaster of Cookshire band. The fact later leaked out that he already had a wife and family in the Old Country.

A Brutal Mob

Stamps, Ark., March 21.—Charged with having used a razor with probable fatal effect on Mrs. Ella Ibleton a white woman, and her daughter, and kicking her son, a small child, about the road, two colored women were shot to death at McKamie near here last night by a mob. The women had been arrested and placed under guard at the school house, from which place they were removed by the mob late last night and shot to death.

Last night in All Saints' church Stainer's "Crucifixion" was presented in most admirable style under the direct control of St. John's church organist, Mr. R. J. Devey.

The sacred meditation on the passion of our Saviour, consisting of solos, duets, quartette and choruses interspersed with hymns were most ably rendered by the combined choirs of St. John's and All Saints.' Miss Bullen very acceptably presided at the organ.

R. R. Hall, M.P. Entertains the Delegates to Ottawa

The delegates to Ottawa from Peterborough and localities contingent to the Trent Valley waterway route, were entertained by R. R. Hall, M. P., in the Senate restaurant of the House of Commons, Wednesday night. The party met at eight o'clock, and spent an exceptionally pleasant couple of hours. Mine host had determined to give his guests a happy time, and he did it handsomely. A choice lunch and refreshments were served with unstinted liberality. Music, songs and speeches prevailed, and the occasion was marked by extreme cordiality and good fellowship. Mr. Hall is to be complimented for his hospitable manner in which he provided entertainment for so large a party.

Among the prominent political men present were Senators Clorin, of Montreal; Domville, of St. John, and McHugh, of Lindsay; D. Derbyshire, M.P., Brockville; John Tolmie, M.P., North Bruce; Mr. Crawford, M.P., from Manitoba, and Mr. Schell, M.P., from Glengarry. All these gentlemen, and also Mayor McWilliams, city, and Mr. W. H. Moore, of the Canadian Northern Railway, gave addresses touching upon the importance of the transportation question and of the Trent Valley Canal. The addresses illustrated the fact that the Trent Canal question was a national one, as the various speakers all upheld the Government in undertaking the matter, and they all promised to assist in every possible way to its completion.

Songs were rendered by Messrs. W. McIlroy and John Belcher, of Peterborough, and John Tolmie, of North Bruce.

In Paws of Lioness

Toronto, March 21.—When the possum at the Riverdale Zoo crept through the bars of its cage last night, and wandered into the elephant's enclosure, that huge, but timid animal raised a commotion. Then the possum crawled away again and quiet was restored. When the keeper made his rounds in the morning, where was the venturesome possum? Between the big paws of the lioness, asleep. When the possum was taken out with a rake, the lioness objected. She had lost her cubs, and he thought one had returned to her.

FIRST PARLIAMENT OF THE TRANSVAAL MEETS

Employment of Chinese to Cease at Earliest Possible Moment---Ordinance Will Be Passed.

Pretoria, Transvaal, March 22.—The by the Earl of Elgin, secretary of State for the colonies, after it had passed the late legislature, is again published in the Official Gazette here, indicating that among the first acts of the new parliament will be a re-enactment of this measure, in spite of the opposition of the Imperial Government.

DARE NOT DISALLOW IT.

London, March 22. —The "Asiatic ordinance" which the Transvaal Parliament proposes to re-enact, although at the present time aimed specially at British Indians, who are ousting the small white traders in the Transvaal, is equally intended to exclude the Japanese or other Asiatics who are immigrating to South Africa in increasing numbers.

Sir Gilbert Parker, who represents colonists in the House of Commons on this question, is quoted today in an interview as saying;

"If, as I am sure it will, the Transvaal Parliament re-enacts the Asiatic ordinance, the Imperial Government will hardly venture to disallow it again, as over 99 per cent of the whites in South Africa thoroughly approve of it."

"Crucifixion" at All Saints' Church

To attend a solemn service like that in All Saints' church last night is literally to accept the invitation of that most appealing of all Passion hymns, "O come and mourn with Me awhile," written by the Rev. F. W. Faber, in 1849. In this beautiful work Sir John Stainer uses the words of the Gospel in Recit; and air, and in each succeeding number, the story of our Christian great "Day of Atonement" unfolds itself before us, until we are constrained to take our stand beneath the cross, "So may the blood from out His side, fall gently on us drop by drop."

The chorus work was finely rendered by the fifty voices who crowded the chancel, especially "Fling wide the gates," and their tones given in perfect time and fully expressed. Mr. H. Morphet and Mr. Geo. Chandler are tenor soloists of great value. Both were in fine voice. Mr. Morphet's exceedingly dramatic number, "And they laid their hands on Him," was perfectly rendered. The most difficult dramatic passages taken with ease and effect. To Mr. Chandler fell the long heavy solo, "King ever glorious," but the singer triumphed over every difficulty and taking up the solo tenor work to the end established himself as a front rank singer. The first part of the bass solo work was well taken by Mr. Edwards, assisted by Mr. McCabe, and Mr. Allen, while Mr. Hague Sawers in the baritone recit; was thoroughly at home, his fine voice coming out specially well in the recit; "And as Moses lifted up the serpent."

A well balanced chorus sang the beautiful number "God so loved the world" without accompaniment, in fine style, and the hymns were a special feature of a notably good performance.

The opening prayers following the singing of hymn 108, were most impressively taken by the rector, Rev. Wm. Major, and Miss Burden came out well of her trying ordeal at the organ. Her accompaniments were tastefully played.

Mr. Richard J. Devey, in whose music loving soul, these services seem the breath of life, conducted in his masterly manner, the choir responding promptly to his baton. This combining of choirs for choral work is a happy thought of his and should lead to greater efforts.

Illicit Traffic in Liquors

Ottawa, March 20.—The Government will this session introduce legislation to prevent the gift of liquor to men employed upon public works. At present the law merely prohibits the sale of liquor to workmen under such conditions. Experience has proven that, especially upon railway construction this is not sufficient to stop illicit traffic in intoxicants. The bill will also extend the right of search for liquor to railway cars and contractors camps, so as to permit of complete suppression of the traffic.

Ottawa, March 21.—Trouble seems pending in Hull for a saloon-keeper, who is in the habit of setting his chubby son, aged five, on the bar as a human advertisement, and who challenges all beer-drinking the oldest topers in the city. Under encouragement from his father the boy will drink some 20 beers as an afternoon, surrounded by a crowd of delighted admirers.

Local Deputation Made Things Hum

Ottawa Hotels Crowded by the Recent T. V. Canal Contingent.

The Ottawa Journal says in part; The need for increased hotel accommodation has seldom been more conclusively evidenced than last night. The presence of the Trent waterway deputations created a demand for rooms which the hotels could not handle. As a result the usual expedient of "doubling up" had to be resorted to in all of the larger hostelries at least. At ten o'clock it was utterly impossible to get a room at the Russell, Grand Union or Windsor, and those who applied were either offered the use of cots or directed to boarding houses. The Windsor placed probably a score or more in lodging houses in the central part of the city. The Windsor also made use of cots to a large extent to accommodate their guests. They had visitors flocking in all manners of little hooks and cubby holes.

Burns Natural Gas

Chatham, March 21. — Natural gas from the Tilbury oil fields was turned into the city gas mains yesterday, and is now being used by the citizens of Chatham for light, heat and fuel.

The result of the day's experiment is highly satisfactory to the users. For cooking purposes the gas is giving especially great satisfaction. Chatham now has an abundant supply of natural gas at prices of 25 cents for cooking, and lighting and at 15 cents for manufacturers for fuel.

KILLS CATARRHAL GERMS

Breathe Hyomei's Medicated Air and You Will Soon be Well.

If you have catarrh in the nose, head or throat, with offensive breath, coughing, irritation of the throat, raising of mucous, difficulty in breathing, sneezing, husky or hoarse voice, discharge from the nose, tickling and dropping at the back of the throat, especially at night, begin the use of Hyomei at once.

Its healing medication breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, will give quick relief in all catarrhal troubles, and its continued use will kill the catarrhal germs, and drive them from the system.

By using Hyomei you get in your own home the same results as though you lived out of doors in the Adirondacks or the Colorado mountains. The germ-killing properties of Hyomei reach the most remote air cells of the respiratory organs, soothing and healing any irritation there may be in the mucous membrane, and killing all catarrhal germs.

Here in Peterborough where Hyomei has been known and sold, there are many who freely attest its wonderful powers, but the best testimony that can be offered in favor of Hyomei is the guarantee with every outfit "money back if it fails."

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, extra bottles, if needed, 50 cents, making it the most economical treatment for catarrh as well as the only one that is sold under a guarantee to refund the money if it fails to cure.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei, or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Write us today for a symptom blank, which we will send you free, together with a treatise on Catarrh and how to cure it. When you fill in and return to us the symptom blank, our consulting physician will give your case the best care and attention, and write you a letter of advice without charge. Stop That Headache

Foolish to Suffer When a Simple Remedy Will Prevent and Cure.

Ever stop to think what caused your headaches? Probably not. Then look to the bowels and stomach, and you'll find plenty of cause. Chances are you'll find constipation, liver is sluggish, stomach overburdened with half-digested food.

No wonder you are dull, tired, restless day and night.

You need the cleansing influence of Dr. Hamilton's Pills which cure your condition in short order.

Being composed of natural vegetable remedies Dr. Hamilton's Pills possess great power, yet they are harmless. They aid all organs connected with the stomach, liver and bowels. In consequence food is properly digested, the blood is pure and nourishing, the body is kept strong and resists disease.

Headaches never come to those who use Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and this fact is vouched for by Ite Assistant Manager of Ite Poultry Success Magazine, of Springfield, O., Mr. J. H. Outlender, who writes: "No better medicine than Dr. Hamilton's Pills. We use them regularly and know of marvelous cures that resisted everything else. They cleanse the whole system, act as a tonic on the blood, enliven digestion, help the stomach, and make you feel strong and well. For headaches, indigestion, and stomach disorders, I am confident that the one prescription is Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

You can rely on Dr. Hamilton's Pills with implicit confidence; their effect is wonderful. Sold by all dealers. Price 25c. per box, five boxes for $1.00, or by mail from N. C. Poison & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

UNION LABEL

SOCIALISM'S FAILURES

Prof. Goldwin Smith, in referring to New Zealand, the "land without strikes," states that the latest items of intelligence are that another strike has occurred at the Pareora Freezing Works, the men demanding higher pay; that works has ceased at the Gisborne Freezing Works, where the men began killing at the rate of two sheep instead of eight or ten per hour to force the demnad for increased wages and defeat the award of the Arbitration Court; that all the slaughtermen at the Christchurch Freezing Works have gone on strike without warning; and that strikes have also occurred at four other works. Observers consider that the present strikes are symptomatic of a deep-seated discontent among the unionists, many of whom are now advocating profit-sharing in preference to the fixing of wages by the Arbitration Court. The Arbitration Court has fined some of the strikers; we shall see whether it will be able to collect the fines.

In the Gisborne case, it will be observed, the men slackened work. How is an Arbitration Court to prevent this? Can it force the men to work up to their full measure?

So much for one of the triumphs of our Socialistic friends in New Zealand. Of their other grand experiment, state-ownership of all land, in accordance with the theory of Henry George, we are still awaiting the result. If the state-ownership is to be merely nominal, the effect apparently will be null. If on the other hand the farmer's tenure is made precarious, we fail to see what inducement he can have to improvement, or how without improvement of the soil we can expect that which after all is the test of a land tenure, abundance of bread.

THE PANAMA CANAL

The decision of the United States Government to reject the tenders submitted for the construction of the Panama Canal, seems to indicate that the authorities at Washington are somewhat perplexed as to the best method to adopt to secure the carrying out of this great enterprise. When the government first became connected with the project, it was understood to be its intention to build the canal as a government work. Subsequently, and apparently on the advice of the government's professional assistants, it was announced that the work would be done by contract and tenders were called for on the basis that the tenderer should say what percentage of profit he would be satisfied with over the estimate of cost prepared by the government's engineers. The conditions with which tenderers had to comply in regard to finding cash and other security for their ability to carry out work of this magnitude, limited the number of probable tenderers, while bids from foreigners were not sought. Still it was generally understood that one tender submitted by a well-known American contractor was considered to be satisfactory, and the announcement just made that the whole question as to how the work shall be done is to be reconsidered, has caused some surprise.

KEENE

The entertainment, supper and assembly held in the town hall on Friday night last, under the management of the Orange Lodge of Keene, was a decided success in every way. The members of the lodge extend their hearty thanks to all who cheerfully and ably assisted in the programme, and to all who in any way endeavored to make the occasion a success.

The Hockey Club of this place purpose giving a concert on Friday night next, the 22nd. We trust it will be well patronized.

Every thing at present indicates that spring is at hand. Robins are seen and heard in all directions. Crows are are numerous. Wood-chucks are out, and so is the Greystock quibbler. I wonder whose guest he was on Sunday night last. I suppose he will let us know in his items. Why did he send back the photo after so much coaxing to get it? We presume because he could not secure the original.

The doctors in this place are very busy at present, as so many are prostrated with colds.

Cows on our streets will be a thing of the past next summer. A cow constable has been appointed.

Broke Quarantine To Attend Court

St. Thomas, March 21.—The trial of Cornelius Amantone, an Indian, for assaulting Corny Johns and a squaw, Charlotte Thomas, came up yesterday at the court house before Judge Dater. About 100 red men were present, among them some who had broken smallpox quarantine, and who were exposed to the disease in shacks a few miles west of here.

The police turned out in force to clear the court room, but without avail. The Indians were here to listen to the trial and would not go.

Judge Dater at once adjourned the trial for three weeks and the officials are going around, saturated with formaldehyde.

Vegetable Sponges

London, March 21.—The Californian seedless oranges received here this season are in no way comparable with the juicy fruit received five years ago. Many of them are dry and spongy. There are distinct signs that their quality is depreciating. This seems to show that seedlessness is secured at the expense of quality and that the flesh of fruit lacking seeds loses its juiciness and bids fair in time to degenerate into a kind of vegetable sponge. It seems clear that the representative seedless race of fruit cannot long be depended upon to mature specimens of high uniform quality. It is believed here that there is a prospect that fruits of this kind will deteriorate and run out simply from their seedlessness. This is causing a great deal of concern in fruit trade circles.

To Combat Hostile Press

Rome, March 21.—The Pope yesterday received in St. Peter's the members of the Catholic Club, who presented flowers and congratulations on his name-day. His Holiness, in thanking his visitors, said he had assurance that the club's praiseworthy endeavors to combat the anti-Catholic propaganda and a hostile press would prove successful. Later the Pope reviewed the Palatine Guard and attended the swearing-in of recruits. He spent the afternoon with his sisters. There were illuminations and fireworks in the evening in the Belvedere Courtyard. Numerous congratulatory messages were received by his holiness from all parts of the world.

To Tackle House of Lords

London, March 21.—Prime Minister Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, replying to a memorial from Liberal and Radical members of Parliament for an early statement of the Government's policy regarding the House of Lords, has assured the memorialists that no time has been lost, and that the Government will not lose sight of the expectations of the party or fail to give effect to the proposition declared in the speech from the throne opening the session.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in fact, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds Strengthens: is often real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these Nerves — re-establish them as needed, with

is recommended

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. 32. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 15 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 30 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 30 acres of J. B. 32 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 5 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 20 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 80 feet, and in it shows 6 inch nicolite, 18 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 672-1233-492-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 76c. is equal to $680.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

New Liskeard, 17th November, 1906.

We offer a few more shares at Fifty Cents (50 c); par value One Dollar ($1.00). The property is being developed as fast as possible, and we cannot promise that stock will be sold at less than par for very long. Don't wait until it is $3.00 to invest, giving others big profits for what you should have bought sooner. We want you to get in on the ground floor and share in the big profits. THE GERMAN-CANADIAN SMELTING AND REFINING COMPANY, LIMITED

PRESIDENT
George W. Monk, Ex-M.P., and Director Canada Permanent Mortgage Corporation.

DIRECTORS:

Anderson Bros. & Co, Traders Bank Building, Toronto, Financial Agents.

The need for a Canadian smelter for Cobalt ores has been manifested from the time when the first great discoveries were made in the Cobalt district. Present smelting facilities in the United States are inadequate, and freight rates and charges are so high that only the highest grade ore can be shipped with profit.

The above strong Canadian company has been formed for the exclusive purpose of smelting and refining Cobalt ores. Under the Ontario Mining Act it also enjoys the right to acquire and operate mines.

The company has closed a very advantageous lease of the Smelting and Refining Plant of The Lake Superior Corporation at Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, which carries with it a service of 1000 horse-power twenty-four service electric energy per annum. They have also contracted for the exclusive use of the famous and world-renowned Schneeburg process for smelting cobalt and nickel ores, which reduces ores with a loss of only one per cent. The Schneeburg process is a secret one, controlled by the German Government, and has been in use in Saxony over three hundred years, and is in fact the only known process which smelts Cobalt ores successfully and at the same time retains all of the bye-products. Ores in Saxony average only 3 1-3 per cent. None of the ore mined in Cobalt runs as low grade as this, and the establishment of this smelter will make valuable thousands of tons of ore now lying on the dump.

The Sault Smelter now in the possession of the company, and which has been leased by the company, will rapidly be adapted to the new process, has a capacity of 225 tons per day, and this will, in all probability, be shortly increased. The large tonnage of cobalt and nickel mines of Sudbury district will crowd present capacity to the limit.

Of the capital stock 250,000 shares have been allotted to the German syndicate in consideration of the exclusive right to the Schneeburg process, 220,000 shares are retained in the treasury, and will be sold only for expansion of the company's business, and with first right of purchase to present shareholders. The balance, 500,000 shares of treasury stock is to be offered to the public.

20 PER CENT. TO ACCOMPANY SUBSCRIPTION AND THE BALANCE ON CALL AFTER 15 DAYS.

Remember, this company did not have to spend anything for plant or building. It has the exclusive use of the famous Schneeburg process, which quadruples the earning power of the ordinary smelter. It is capitalized at a reasonable amount, thus safeguarding the interests of its shareholders. The plant should be ready for operation in ninety days.

relaxation, and Durnovo smiled rather constrainedly. Joseph was grabbing at the long reedy grass, bringing the canoe to a standstill, and it was some moments before his extensive mouth submitted to control.

"I presume you are Mr. Durnovo?" said the man in the stern of the boat, rising leisurely from his recumbent position and speaking with a courteous savior faire which seemed slightly out of place in the wilds of central Africa.

He was a tall man with a small aristocratic head and a refined face, which somehow suggested an aristocrat of old France.

"Yes," answered Durnovo.

The tall man stepped ashore and held out his hand.

"I am glad we have met you," he said. "I have a letter of introduction to you from Maurice Gordon of Loango."

Victor Durnovo's dark face changed slightly. His eyes—bilious, fever shot, unhealthy—took a new light.

"Ah!" he answered. "Are you a friend of Maurice Gordon's?"

There was another question in this, an unasked one, and Victor Durnovo was watching for the answer. But the face he watched was like a delicately carved piece of brown marble, with a courteous, impenetrable smile.

"I met him again the other day at Loango. He is an old Etonian, like myself."

This conveyed nothing to Durnovo, who belonged to a different world, whose education was, like other things about him, an unknown quantity.

"My name," continued the tall man, "is Meredith—John Meredith—sometimes called Jack."

They were walking up the bank toward the dusky and uninviting tent.

"And the other fellow?" inquired Durnovo, with a backward jerk of the head.

"Oh, he is my servant."

Durnovo raised his eyebrows in somewhat contemptuous amusement and proceeded to open the letter which Meredith had handed him.

"Not many fellows," he said, "on this coast can afford to keep a European servant."

"I understand," answered Meredith, with a half suppressed yawn, "that the country gets finer farther up; more mountainous."

The proprietors of very dark eyes would do well to remember that it is dangerous to glance furtively to one side or the other. The attention of dark eyes is more easily felt than the glances of gray or blue orbs.

Jack Meredith's suspicions were aroused by the suspicious manner of Durnovo.

"There is no white man knows this river as I do, and I do not recommend it. Look at me, on the verge of jaundice; look at this wound on my arm, it began with a scratch and has never healed. All that comes from a month up this cursed river. Take my advice. Try somewhere else."

"I certainly shall," replied Meredith. "We will discuss it after dinner. My chap is a first rate cook. Have you got anything to add to the menu?"

"Not a thing. I've been living on plantains and dried elephant meat for the last fortnight."

"Doesn't sound nourishing. Well, we are pretty well provided, so perhaps you will give me the pleasure of your company to dinner? Come as you are; no ceremony. I think I will wash, though. It is as well to keep up these old customs."

CHAPTER VII.

IN that part of Africa which lies within touch of the equator life is essentially a struggle. There is hunger about, and where hunger is the emotions will be found also. Now, Jack Meredith was a past master in the concealment of these, and, as such, came to Victor Durnovo in the guise of a new creation. He had lived the latter and the larger part of his life among men who said, in action if not in words, I am hungry or I am thirsty; I want this, or I want that; and if you are not strong enough to keep it, I will take it from you.

This man was different, and Victor Durnovo did not know, could not find out, what he wanted.

He had at first been inclined to laugh at him. What struck him most forcibly was Joseph, the servant. The idea of a man swaggering up an African river with a European manservant was so preposterous that it could only be met with ridicule; but the thing seemed so natural to Jack Meredith, he accepted the servitude of Joseph so much as a matter of course that after a time Durnovo accepted him also as part and parcel of Meredith.

Joseph took off his coat, turned up his sleeves and proceeded to cook such a dinner as Durnovo had not tasted for many months. There was wine also, and afterward a cigar of such quality as appealed strongly to Durnovo's West Indian palate.

The night settled down over the land while they sat there, and before them the great yellow equatorial moon rose slowly over the trees. With the darkness came a greater silence, for the myriad insect life was still.

"So," said Durnovo, returning to the subject which had never really left his thoughts, "you have come out here for pleasure?"

"Not exactly. I came chiefly to make money, partly to dispel some of the illusions of my youth, and I am getting on very well. Picture book illusions they were. The man who drew the pictures had never seen Africa."

The evening had turned out so very differently from what he had expected that Durnovo was a little carried off his equilibrium. Things were so sociable and pleasant in comparison with the habitual loneliness of his life. The fire crackled so cheerily, the moon shone down on the river so grandly, the subdued chatter of the boatmen imparted such a feeling of safety and comfort to the scene, that he gave way to that impulse of expansiveness which ever lurks in West Indian blood.

"I say," he said, "when you told me that you wanted to make money, were you in earnest?"

"In the deadliest earnest," replied Jack Meredith in the half mocking tone which he never wholly learned to lay aside.

"Then I think I can put you in the way of it. Oh, I know it seems a bit premature; not known you long enough and all that. But in this country we don't hold much by the formalities. I like you. I liked the look of you when you got out of that boat so cool and self possessed. You're the right sort, Mr. Meredith."

"Possibly for some things. For sitting about and smoking first class cigars and thinking second class thoughts I am exactly the right sort. But for making money, for hard work and steady work, I am afraid, Mr. Durnovo, that I am distinctly the wrong sort."

There was a little pause. Durnovo looked round as if to make sure that Joseph and the boatman were out of ear shot.

"Can you keep a secret?" he asked suddenly.

Jack Meredith turned and looked at the questioner with a smile. His hat had slipped to the back of his head, the light of the great yellow moon fell full upon his clean cut sphinxlike face. The eyes alone seemed living.

"Yes! I can do that."

"I can see you're a gentleman," Durnovo said. "I'll trust you. I want a man to join me in making a fortune. I have got my hand on it at last. But I'm afraid of this country. I'm getting shaky; look at that hand. I've been looking for it too long. I take you into

Knell of the Good Fellow.

From different quarters the "good fellow" is coming in for some hard knocks, in many of which there is a good deal of truth. The Delta Pilot moralizes on him in this fashion:—"Very many men attain a wide reputation within the male circle of their acquaintance of being 'good fellows' when the men themselves know that it is undeserved, and that the term 'bad fellows' would more nearly fit their case. Of course there are knots upon hosts of men—far more than the world at large knows of—who are in truth good fellows in every sense of the word, but it is a fact, nevertheless, that in numerous instances the designation is applied to men whose only title thereto is won at the cost of disquiet and anxiety at home and among friends and possibly of broken hearts and ruined lives. Viewed from merely the selfish standpoint, a young man cannot afford to be known as a good fellow, as the term is commonly understood, much less to be one. In its proper sense of being an agreeable companion, everyone should endeavor to be such and the first place in which to show this good fellowship is the home."

Glasses For Stammering.

Cases of stammering are reported by English opticians to have been cured by fitting glasses to correct defects of the eyes.

His Gloomy Life.

"What," asked the sweet girl, "was the happiest moment of your life?"

"The happiest moment of my life," answered the old bachelor, "was when the jeweler took back an engagement ring and gave me sleeve links in exchange."

GOLD BY THE BUSHEL

THE SEARCH FOR GOLD has ever been man's strongest passion. No obstacles have deterred him. Heat and cold, famine and thirst, hardship and exposure alike have failed to conquer the insatiable desire. From the dawn of history, when King Solomon opened up the famous wealth of the mines of Ophir, to the present day, men have sought the yellow metal. Countless lives have been sacrificed, and yet the search goes on.

In the winter of 1900-1901 four miners tottered into the city of Nome, Alaska; their feet and hands black with frostbite; their bodies emaciated almost to skeletons; their eyes sunken. Their dogs had died of starvation and cold; they had abandoned their sleds and provisions; but they staggered under the weight of forty pounds of pure GOLD!

The city buzzed at once with excitement. Where had they found it? To all questions the strangers were dumb. There was one man in Nome, however, who thought he knew a way to locate the new discovery. He had been a friend of the Esquimaux to the North; he spoke their language well; he had relieved their want; and he had spent nearly four years among them. He could talk the "true talk" of these simple natives. That man was ANDREW S. NELSON. Within twelve hours he was speeding North, with a team of six tried dogs and a supply of provisions.

It is needless to recite the hardships he endured in this lonely journey, facing the fierce north wind. Suffice it to say he found an old Esquimau who showed him where the strangers had made their find.

Under the Northern Stars he drove the stakes which now mark the boundaries of NELSON GULCH MINING CLAIMS.

Three Hundred Dollars in Two Hours

Connected with Mr. Andrew S. Nelson were his father, Major William Nelson, U. S. Army, retired, and Dr. G. M. Morris, an English surgeon. When spring opened up these three men began to test their ground. They found it exceedingly rich, but they were troubled to get water. They tried various schemes, but as their money had nearly run out they could work only on a small scale. Once they were lucky in saving some water with a dam after a rain, and Mr. Nelson and Dr. Morris washed out $500.00 in gold in less than two hours. Numerous tests made over the ground showed the top gravel to run a dollar a cubic yard.

At other times and places from $10.00 to $50.00 were secured from single yards of gravel. Nuggets ranging in value from $1.00 to $47.00 each were found. This is an ancient river bed into which, for ages, the waters have been washing and disintegrating the rock which held the gold.

More than $1,000,000 have been taken by other parties from the gravel which was washed from this Company's ground into the stream below, and they have only just begun work. They expect millions more, and their tests justify their expectation. $150,000 were taken from Old Glory Creek, which is one of its bends swung into the edge of our old river.

Favorable Government Report

In the summer of 1903 the United States Geological Survey sent out an exploring party to cover this ground, under Mr. Fred. H. Moffit. This is a part of his report:

"This small gulch (Nelson Gulch), barely three-fourths of a mile long, leads down from a broad, low saddle in the divide between Old Glory and Inmachuck, and is of interest since it is probably an important factor in the origin of the rich ground just below its mouth on Old Glory."

What is Placer Gold?

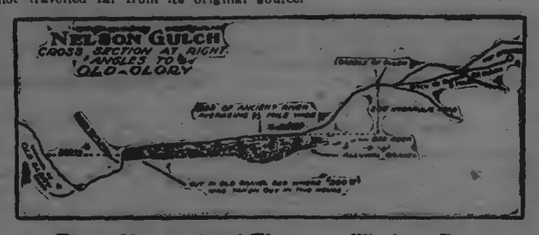
Nowhere on earth have the elements and glaciers worn away the mountains as in Alaska. All the gold in their veins has been carried into river beds, the heavier pieces being deposited nearby, the lighter ones going farther.

Now, it does not take much thought to realize that, as Nelson Gulch is the source of all the gold on the Inmachuck River, the heaviest particles and the greatest amount must be on the Company's ground.

This is further shown by the fact that the gold found there is sharp-cornered and angular. Now, pure gold is very soft, and as it travels down stream it is rubbed against the sand and gravel and the sharp corners worn off. When you find the particles of gold in a river bed are worn and the corners rounded, then you may be sure they have travelled some distance.

The gold in Nelson Gulch is angular and sharp-cornered. Notice what the United States Government Report says on this subject:

"The gold from Nelson Gulch is brighter than that of Old Glory, is rough and angular, and contains considerable quartz, and evidently has not travelled far from its original source."



Three Hundred and Thirty-six Working Days

Although the season for hydaulicing in Alaska is but 140 days, every hour of that 140 days is daylight. For a full month the sun never sets, and during two other months it does not get dark. Therefore, by keeping on three shifts of men, eight hours each, the work does not stop, and we get 336 working days of ten hours each. This is a larger number of hours than the great placer mines of Colorado, Montana or Idaho can work in any one year.

Mr. Andrew S. Nelson is now on the property with a force of men getting everything in readiness for the spring work. We fully expect to have the gold running down our sluice-ways by June.

Gravel Richer as it Goes Down

Everybody knows that in old river beds carrying gold the gravel gets richer as it goes down next to bed rock.

In several places on bed rock this Company's gravel washed at the rate of $50.00 a yard. Of course, it is not all that rich; but suppose we average it at $10.00 a yard; this would make an acre worth $900,000.00!

Railroad, Telegraph and Telephone Lines to the Mines

A railroad is now in operation part way from Nome to Deering, and will be finished through next season. All the above lines will pass very close to this property, and will give us perfect transportation and communication facilities.

During the open season three regular steamers per week between Seattle and Deering, together with the many irregular ones, give us freight rates no greater than those in effect from Kansas City to points in Arizona.

Letter from Major William Nelson, U. S. Army, retired, under date of February 18, 1907:

"Could the public be made to see the property as I know it there would be no trouble in selling stock, for it will prove the best investment anyone could make. Every $100.00 will return at least $5,000.00 to the investor if you can only get it opened up. I feel sure that with thirty days' work you can declare a dividend on the capital."

Our Property

The Company owns fourteen claims of twenty acres each, free and clear of all encumbrances, on the gravel terrace of Nelson Gulch, near the head of the Inmachuck River, Seward Peninsula, Alaska, nearly due north of Nome. Since January 1st three hundred acres more have been added to the Company's holdings.

Mr. J. W. Pickard, a mining engineer of high standing, has been engaged since the spring of 1900 in making tests of the gold-bearing gravels of Seward Peninsula. He represents there a New York Syndicate, which has, through him, secured large holdings. He says of these deposits: "If I were to tell you the values that exist under the tundra (species of heavy bunch grass), you would hardly believe what I tell you. The values are almost beyond computation. I found gravel averaging $4.87 to the cubic yard in one place; in another hole it averaged $3.64; in another $6.10; another showed an average value of $5.00; still another $12.61. To figure out the values in an acre of such gravel produces figures so prodigious as to literally stagger one."

"Mr. W. H. Bond, Paul Denhart and P. T. Nixon have a claim whose pay streak yielded all the way from 20 cents to $2.50 per pan, or $875.00 per yard. A single shift has taken out as much as $95,000.00, and $42,000.00 have been secured in one day's sluicing. Without exaggeration gold by the bushel is being washed from these gravels. The stream of gold constantly pouring into Nome attests this fact, and justifies the prediction of those best informed regarding the conditions existing there, which is that 'These gravel benches with their wealth of golden deposits will continue to be found on Seward Peninsula after the present generation of miners has been gathered to their fathers'; a golden stream will still be pouring from the creeks, hills and tundra fifty years hence, if the promise of the future be but half fulfilled."

Mr. Rex Beach, in The Saturday Evening Post of January 5th, 1907, gives numerous instances of enormous strikes on Seward Peninsula—$93,000.00 in one day! $2,000,000.00 taken from Little Creek in one winter. Two men, in a few weeks, working under difficulties with the crudest machinery, took out $410,000.00.

Mr. Beach is entirely disinterested, being merely a writer and correspondent of The Post.

Inexhaustable Water Supply and only 3 miles of ditch

NEARBY PROPERTIES AMAZINGLY RICH.

Eighty per cent. of the world's gold has been taken from beds of old streams.

One company is building a ditch 52 miles long to bring water from a lake with which to wash the gravel that has been carried from Nelson Gulch down the Inmachuck River. If these washings justify the enormous expense of this ditch, and if $1,000,000.00 have already been secured from them with the crudest methods, how many millions will this property yield?

OUR WATER FACILITIES PERFECT.

An enormous, unfailing hot spring, three miles away, will furnish this Company water enough to handle 5,000 cubic yards of gravel per 24 hours at a cost of less than one cent per yard. Its claims lie close up to the contact between the lime and schist, where all of this gold originates. It is at the fountain-head, and others get only what is washed further on. Its nuggets have sharp points and edges; those found further beyond are worn smooth by the friction of their journey.

Placer Mining the Cheapest

Placer mining is the cheapest and oldest way to mine for gold. We estimate that it will cost us only half of one cent to wash a cubic yard.

Why We Sell Stock

Money is needed to bring water from the hot springs and to provide hydraulic apparatus.

The Board of Directors of Nelson Gulch Mining Company have allotted 900,000 shares of the Treasury stock to be sold at ten cents per share. When this allotment shall have been sold the price of the stock will positively be advanced to 25 cents per share; or, what is more likely, will be withdrawn from the market.

Our gravel beds average 18 feet in thickness. At a dollar a cubic yard this would make $30,000.00 per acre, or over $8,000,000.00 for the entire property. This is certainly an underestimate, because bed-rock gravel will run far higher. We are capitalized at $3,000,000.00, but with ten-cent stock this means a valuation of only $900,000.00 on a property which must certainly run away up in the millions. This is another way of looking at the great value of this investment to you.

Stock Now 10 Cents a Share

Reserve Before the Advance

Write today and reserve your shares at ten cents a share. The next advance will be to 25 cents.

Better still, wire your reservation. There is only a certain allotment for sale; when that is gone the stock is off the market. It is first come, first served.

Just a postal will do if you want further details. Write me as follows: "Please send me prospectus and full details concerning Nelson Gulch Mining Co." Address:

Even Her Blood Turned to Water

When Dying of Pernicious Anaemia Her Life Was Saved by

..Ferrozone..

Probably very few cases are on record in which an absolute cure has been made of pernicious anaemia.

But Ferrozone did cure Miss Elaine Stanhope—cured her absolutely, and her mother Mrs. G. Stanhope of Rothsay, Ont., says the following:

"My daughter complained of feeling tired. She was very pale and listless, and kept losing strength till too weak to attend school. The doctors prescribed different bottles of medicine but Elaine kept getting worse instead of better. She had Anaemia and we were afraid for a while that she might never rally. We read of a similar case, that of Miss Descent of Stirling, Ont., being cured by Ferrozone, and this induced us to get it for Elaine. It took three boxes of Ferrozone to make any decided improvement, but when six boxes were used my daughter was beginning to be her old self again. It didn't take much longer to make a complete cure, and I am convinced that there is no better blood-maker than Ferrozone. It has made a new girl of Elaine. She has gained ten pounds in weight and looks the picture of perfect health. She is stronger and enjoys the best of spirits. The credit of her recovery is entirely due to Ferrozone."

Every young girl and young woman can make herself strong and healthy with Ferrozone.

It makes blood, nerve and tissue—makes it fast—makes it to stay.

Complexion soon becomes perfect, nerves get new strength, tiredness vanishes—perfect health is the reward for using Ferrozone, which is sold by all druggists—price 50c. per box; don't fail to try it.

Fish Sold Illegally Here

It seems that the fishery inspectors of this district are not omniscient or omnipresent as maskinonge are alleged to have been sold in this city within the past few days. It is currently reported that a man living near Chemong Lake within the past three days has disposed of some 500 pounds of maskinonge, which were caught illegally. This man, with strange disregard for the existing fishery laws, openly tried to sell his fish at private houses, at from seven to eight cents per pound.

Objection to Local Doctor's Appointment

Lieut.-Col. J. Earl Halliwell, Grand Master, presided at the annual meeting of the Orange Lodge of Eastern Ontario, which opened here yesterday. Civic and fraternal greetings were extended to the grand body, after which the grand master delivered his address, in which he attacked the Whitney Government on the appointment of Dr. Coughlin, of Peterborough, a Roman Catholic, to be the head of the deaf and dumb institute at Belleville. He said in part;

"This is a very unpleasant subject for me to deal with, and I do not wish to say one word more than is necessary to place myself and the Orange Association, which I represent, in a fair and honorable position. The subject is unpleasant, because it borders on personality toward a man against whom I have no ill will.

"I have no feud with Dr. Coughlin; neither has the Orange Association, but I consider that his appointment to that particular position was a great injustice to him as well as an undeserved offence to us. I think we have a serious ground of complaint against the premier, first, for not consulting his colleagues of the Orange Association before making an appointment of this nature; and, secondly, having learned from them the strong objection on principle that we must have to the appointment, for not satisfying himself by some information that we had no reasonable grounds for our objections before making the appointment.

Salvation Army Man's Appeal

Last night the Salvation Army held an open-air meeting at the corner of George and Simcoe streets. Mr. A. P. Chrage, a comparatively recent convert, in an accent most evidently English, made a most manly appeal for salvation. Whilst his address was not perhaps as polished as a Lord Chesterfield might have made, his words conveyed what in many terms might be called "A straight deal," and carried a strong appeal to those amid on the crooked paths, that lead ultimately to damnation. This young man whilst out soaring to the lofty realms of theme spoke right from the heart and was listened to by the large crowd present with strict attention.

COFFEE INVALIDS

Cause of Trouble Often Unsuspected.

A confirmed coffee-drinker who found herself rapidly becoming a chronic invalid and was puzzled as to the cause, consulted her physician, and under his advice was cured without the use of drugs. She writes:

"After 20 years of coffee drinking I suddenly found that I was beginning to have trouble with my heart, palpitations and a smothering sensation, and my occasional sick headaches were becoming an almost daily occurrence.

"I did not suspect that coffee had anything to do with it, and began to take medicines, but kept on drinking coffee.

"Finally my heart trouble and headaches grew so much worse and my nerves became so shattered that any unusual noise would make me jump and shake all over as if I had the ague. Medicines did not help me and I could not do my housework satisfactorily, so I asked my physician if coffee was good for me.

"He at once replied—'No, I would not advise you to use it.' 'Will Postum hurt me?' I asked. 'Not at all!' was his quick response. 'In fact Postum will be beneficial.'

"The doctor was so emphatic, I bought some, and had it carefully prepared according to directions on the box. I found the new beverage delicious and refreshing, and the craving for the old kind of coffee disappeared, and I grew very fond of Postum.

"It was but a short time till all my ailments were gone. The heart trouble has vanished and with it has gone the headaches, my nerves have grown steady and my head clear. I can do my work without distress or fatigue. I hope this will encourage some sick one to take a step in the right direction, and reach 'The Road to Wellville' by giving up the old kind of coffee and using Postum Food Coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. "There's a reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville" in pkgs.

A hearty welcome is extended to every person in the city, and the earnest prayer of all Christian people are asked for the service that it may be a help and a blessing to all who attend it.

A Most Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts from native medicinal roots and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic and antiferment. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherry-bark, Bloodroot, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities.

In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherrybark in promoting digestion and building up the flesh and strength, controlling the cough and bringing about a healthy condition of the whole system. Of course, it must not be expected to work miracles. It will not cure consumption except in its earlier stages. It will cure very severe, obstinate, hang-on chronic coughs, bronchial and laryngeal troubles, and chronic sore throat with hoarseness. In acute coughs it is not so effective. It is in the lingering hang-on coughs, or those of long standing, even when accompanied by bleeding from lungs, that it has performed its most marvelous cures.

Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago, says of glycerine:—

"In dyspepsia it serves an excellent purpose. Holding a fixed quantity of the peroxide of hydrogen in solution, it is one of the best manufactured products of the present time in its action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs, especially if there is ulceration or catarrhal gastritis (catarrhal inflammation of stomach). It is a most efficient preparation. Glycerine will relieve many cases of pyrosis (heartburn) and excessive gastric (stomach) acidity."

"Golden Medical Discovery" enriches and purifies the blood curing blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings and old sores, or ulcers.

Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N.Y., for free booklet telling all about the native medicinal roots composing this wonderful medicine. There is no alcohol in it.

A Funny Game of Hockey

Don't give it away, but it was said yesterday, that in the Bartenders' versus Barbers hockey teams that B.T.'s goal keeper had to cling to one of the goal posts, not from any even insinuated lack of sobriety, but from lack of acquaintance with the use of skates. Another of the B.T.'s, it was maliciously reported, when seeing the puck coming his way had to get a shove from the bench, keep his hair parted in the center, and keep right on to wherever his propulsive power sent him. If in luck he met the puck, if not why! ! One would think that constant observation of men with a "skate" on would have had some influence on manipulation of the ringing blades! One of the barbers was heard to remark, "Good L——, if these blooming skates only get beyond me, I don't know where I will land." Fortunately he suddenly sat down amid an aura of stars and several constellations of meteors that arose from the ice, at the junction of contact. As the wielders of brush and razor only won out by 10—1, the wise clerks only lost all but honor.

MONEY OF LITTLE USE TO THAW IN ASYLUM

If He Is Sent to Matteawan He Will Have to Share the Common Fare and Perform Manual Labor if He Is Able.

New York, March 23.—While much has been said as to the agitation of Harry K. Thaw, when Jerome made the startling declaration that he believed him insane, the fact remains that this agitation is continually, not momentarily, manifested, and that the exhibition on the occasion mentioned was not unusual.

Evidence as to Thaw's mental state is found in the verses which the prisoner has read almost every day in the court room during the long weeks of the trial was pointed out. They are from "St. George and the Dragon," in the second volume of Percy's "Reliques of Ancient English Poetry," and are of supreme interest as shedding light upon the young Pittsburg millionaire's opinion of himself. He marked the passages himself in the volume, and every day he has had it on the table in front of him, referring to it frequently, and always reading the same three stanzas. They tell of the dragon who, devouring many maidens, was at last slain by the heroic St. George.

The long poem tells in detail of the slaying of the dragon by St. George, but the paragraphs which Thaw marked, and which he continually perusses, are the three cited.

HIMSELF THE HERO.

Evidently he pictures himself as St. George, with Stanford White as the slain dragon, and Evelyn Nesbit Thaw in the role of the rescued maiden. In his own mind he is not the murderer, but the hero, fit for the acclaim of the world, rather than the death chair or the madhouse. It is not at all impossible that the stanzas will figure in the determination of the condition of the young man's mind at the present time.

Thaw was not in court for the hearing of argument as to his sanity on Thursday. He was visited yesterday by his wife, who wore a new brown suit. It is the only time she has worn a dress different from the simple frock in which she has appeared since the trial began.

One of the features of this new brown dress is that it is tight fitting, and sets her girlish figure off in bold relief. It is of two pieces, a jacket and skirt. The jacket is cut rather mannish, with stiff lapels, and a hint of moe ruching. The skirt, which is tight fitting at the top, flares into numerous pleats at the bottom.

COUNTESS WITH EVELYN.

Young Mrs. Thaw was accompanied by her sister-in-law, the Countess of Yarmouth, and both were driven to the Tombs in the automobile cab Mrs. Thaw uses every day.

Lawyers O'Reilly and Peabody met Mrs. William Thaw, the Countess of Yarmouth, and Evelyn Nesbit Thaw in front of the prisoner's cell, and shortly afterward all five went downstairs to the corridor, where they entered into a long conference. The elder Mrs. Thaw was very much excited, and talked vehemently. She seemed to be protesting about some action about to be taken, and was with difficulty quieted by O'Reilly.

ALL MUCH PERTURBED.

Evelyn Thaw and the Countess of Yarmouth, also seemed very much perturbed, and at the conclusion of the conference hurried from the Tombs. Acab was called, and the three women, fighting their way through the enormous crowd which had collected, entered and were driven home.

"Harry is feeling all right," said Lawyer O'Reilly, after their departure. He understands thoroughly this new move, and realizes its importance to him. He has the utmost faith in his counsel, and knows that his interests will be well taken care of."

It is apparent, however, that Thaw has wits enough to realize the fate awaiting him should he be committed to the Asylum for the Criminally Insane at Matteawan.

HARD FATE AT ASYLUM.

If he should be sent to the institution he would virtually leave all his millions behind him. There are no private rooms at Matteawan. The nearest approach to private rooms are several little compartments in which irritable patients are placed. These are six feet long by nine feet wide. They are furnished with an iron cot and a chair.

Thaw would not be permitted to have his food sent to him from the outside. He would be obliged to take the plain asylum fare—bread, butter, oatmeal, hash and coffee for breakfast; roast or boiled beef, vegetables and bread for dinner, and bread, butter, fruit sauce, and tea for supper.

Being strong physically, Thaw would have to do manual labor. His work would be either indoors or on the farm. Only on visiting days would he be permitted to see his relatives and friends.

The defence will, of course, object to the prosecution's "missing witness" if the trial is ever resumed. When informed of the report that Craig Wadsworth, the second secretary of the American Embassy in London, was in New York, Daniel O'Reilly merely laughed and said;

"Oh, it won't make any difference. Even if he is in town, he won't be permitted to testify."

Wadsworth came into prominence through a letter sent to Jerome, in which he told of Thaw's alleged elope ment with his present wife, and in which he alleged Mrs. Holman, Evelyn Thaw's mother, was deserted in London.

Prosperous Year by Prosperous Company

Federal Life Assurance Co. Completes a Quarter Century.

Prominent among the leading insurance companies of the Dominion, and in fact, of the world, stands the Federal Life Assurance Company, which on March 19th, held its twenty-fifth annual shareholders' meeting, in their handsome new new building, at the corner of Main and James streets, Hamilton.

During the past year the business of the company was, as heretofore, characterized by strenuous progress in the matter of new business and a conservative regard for their policy holders' security. The policy holders in the Federal have, including the guaranteed capital, the enormous sum of $3,580,702.62 as security and the liabilities for reserves and all outstanding claims, $2,486,129.30, showing a surplus of $1,094,573.32. Exclusive of uncalled guarantee capital the surplus to policy holders was $224,573.32.

During the year including cash dividends and dividends applied to the reduction of premiums, with annuities, the total payments to policy holders amounted to $247,695.51.

One leading feature of the Federal's general policy is the unquestionable quality of the company's investments, which are all of the highest and most conservative nature, being in first-class bonds, mortgages and loans on their policies amply secured by reserves.

Out of applications made for $3,049,877 in policies, two thousand and fourteen applications were accepted for $2,868,624.33.

A general resume of the company's business as presented in another part of this issue, will demonstrate that the Federal Life Assurance Co., is one of the safest, soundest and most progressive in the Dominion.

Cheap Groceries for Sale Today

In order to obtain permanent premises, China Hall has purchased the large and well assorted stock of groceries, etc., of Mr. A. Rountree, No. 394 George street. This stock, which is one of the finest grocery stocks in Peterborough, will, together with the balance of the China Hall stock, be thrown on the market at cost price, commencing March 2 and continuing until both stocks are entirely disposed of, but no longer than the 15th of April, after which date the store will be re-fitted, and opened about May 1, with an entirely new stock of crockery, china, glassware, cut-glass, plated ware, fine china ornaments, etc. China Hall, after that date, will be beyond a doubt one of the finest and most complete china stores in Canada. The China Hall Company.

Market Tolls Sold Yesterday for $1,060

Mr. W. A. McIlmoyle Will be in Charge of the Public Scales.

Yesterday morning as the clock struck eleven, Mr. Charles Stapleton, the veteran local auctioneer, began the battle of bids for the market tolls of Peterborough, for the year 1908. The five gentlemen who intended to bid, came within the railing and each put up a marked cheque for $200, as required by regulations of the sale.

Mr. Thos. Lee, who had the tolls during the past year opened the bull with a bid of $600, this was at once raised $100. Mr. McIlmoyle then made it $700, Mr. Brown then added $100 to the price. Mr. John Craig, from the audience, said, "I will give you $900." However, as he had not put up the necessary deposit his bid could not be accepted.

After a $50 raise had been made the bids dropped to $10 a bid, the least allowed by terms of the sale. Mr. John Riddle put the price up to $900. Messrs. Brown and Riddle then saw-saw the bidding until Mr. Brown made it the even $1000. Mr. W. A. McIlmoyle got the tolls for $1060, or $30 more than they sold for last year.

New Tenders for North Ward School

Tenders Will be Received Until April 1st Proximo.

Yesterday for the first time in years, except on Sundays and days otherwise prohibited for the sale of liquor, the City Hotel, owned by Mr. Martin Connors, was closed to business.

The many friends of Mr. Connors will extend their sincere sympathy to that gentleman over the death of his wife, who passed away suddenly yesterday morning at 11 o'clock.

The deceased had many friends, and the news of her death will come as a great shock to them. The late Mrs. Connors had been ill for a long time. Her two brothers died last November within a week of each other. Mrs. Connor's maiden name was Margaret Ritchie. She was 54 years of age and was born in Port Hope. She was married to Martin Connors in 1878. They have resided in this city, for the past 29 years.

A husband and two sons, Messrs. Thomas and John, and one daughter, Miss Clara, all of this city are left to mourn her loss.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, from the City Hotel, to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery for interment.

Mrs. Martin Connors Has Passed Away

Popular Local Lady Dies Suddenly After a Long Illness.

As noted in yesterday's issue the Board of Education met on Thursday night and after convening went into committee of the whole, thus debarring the press from reporting their deliberations.

It was however ascertained yesterday that new tenders for the erection of the six-roomed addition, to the North Ward school, will be received by the secretary of the board up to Monday noon, April 1st. Plans and specifications may be seen at the office of Mr. J. E. Belcher, architect.

Separate tenders will be received for the plumbing, heating and electric wiring of the building. It will be remembered that tenders were submitted a couple of months ago, but the contract was not awarded then. When the city council recently granted the board the $25,000 required, it was found that the contractors, who had put in tenders would not allow them to stand as the price of building material and labor has greatly increased.

NINE-TENTHS OF THE DEATHS FROM CONSUMPTION COULD HAVE BEEN AVOIDED

Dr. W. A. Evans, an eminent practitioner of Chicago, in a recent address, emphasized the importance of physicians recognizing the symptoms of tuberculosis in its early stages. Dr. Evans says that nine-tenths of the deaths attributed to consumption could have been prevented if the patients' symptoms had been accurately interpreted when first made manifest.

The only safe method is to assume from the very first that consumption really is present in all cases where there is the slightest reason for suspecting its presence, and to prescribe in accordance with that theory.

Coughs and colds, soreness in the chest or difficulty in breathing should have prompt treatment, as the lungs are then in a peculiarly receptive condition for the tubercular germ.

A noted specialist, whose camp for consumptives in the Pine Woods of Maine has attracted great attention, because of his remarkable cures there, advises the use of the following simple formula, which is said to break up a cold in twenty-four hours, and cure any cough that is curable; Take one-half ounce Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), two ounces of Glycerine and eight ounces of good Whisky. Shake well and take in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

The ingredients can be secured from any good prescription druggist at small cost, and are easily prepared. The patient should be careful to secure the Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) in the original half-ounce vials, put expressly for druggists to dispense. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case, with engraved wrapper, with the name—Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Windsor, Ontario,—plainly printed thereon. It is always well to remember that the object of an imitator is to deceive. There is no known substitute for Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure).

JAPAN AWAKENING FROM WAR TORPOR

Governor of Bank of Japan Reviews the Financial Condition.

TRADE SHOWS INCREASE

Heavy Burden of War Debt Will be Easily Carried.

Tokio, March 22.—The speech of the governor of the Bank of Japan, delivered at the general meeting of that institution, contains a most careful review of the business of the bank during the year 1906.

He calls it a year of transition, "during which financial conditions were awakening from the state of torpor induced by the war."

After dealing with local conditions, the governor said: "After the close of the belligerent situation a need for business capital arose from time to time on the part of companies and corporations, but in spite of the easy state of the domestic money market, there was a disposition to seek advantage in recourse to foreign capital, a route for its importation having been opened, and this tendency extended even to small sums. Of course there is nothing wrong in using foreign capital, but the development of such a prevalent disposition must be regarded as an evil. There were many reasons for it, but that a proximate one was the high rate of interest in Japan cannot be questioned."

"We find that exports totalled over 423,750,000 yen, and imports over 418,780,000 yen, the whole trade thus bulking 842,530,000 yen. These figures, compared with those for the preceding year, show an increase of 102,220,000 yen in exports, and a diminution of 69,750,000 yen in imports, but an increase of more than 32,480,000 yen over the whole trade. Our foreign trade has, in fact, a strong progressive trend year by year, nor did it lose this trend ever during the two years of the war.

"Nevertheless the increment that took place during the war was mainly due to an increase of imports in the shape of war material, and cannot therefore be regarded as a purely natural development. Now, however, the result of last year's trade shows that, although simultaneously with the diminution of demand for war material a marked reduction was shown in the bulk of imports, nevertheless a very large increase took place in exports and thus the net result was excellent.

OCCIDENT TRADE CONDITIONS PROSPEROUS.

"There are many reasons for this growth of our exports. The principal of them doubtless was the prosperous condition of trade in the countries of the Occident, which caused an augmented demand for goods, and the gradual development of commercial marts in China and Korea. Moreover, another factor that must not be lost sight of the activity of our producing centres.

"To mention the chief of these, namely, sericulture. It is noticeable that although the mulberry trees suffered from frost in the spring so that a serious diminution was anticipated for a time, sericulturists throughout the country so greatly increased the grains mise en incubation, by way of a post-bellum enterprise, that in the end there was no falling off compared with an average year. The quality of the silk was exceptionally good. Similarly earnest endeavor was shown in the fields of cotton spinning, habutae weaving, copper and coal production and sugar refining.

MUST LOOK TO FUTURE.

"It is indeed a matter of satisfaction that during the year under review the financial condition of our country was, on the whole, so tranquil, and that our foreign trade made such a good showing. Nevertheless, when it comes to looking forward, we have to recognize that there are some things which do not warrant entire peace of mind.

"As a consequence of the war our country has been burdened with a heavy weight of foreign debt. It is true that as a means of defraying the interest and paying off the principal the government has framed a special law for consolidating the public debts and has made due provision for their redemption. Hence, so far as the discharge of this debt is concerned, no cause of uneasiness exists.

"But an inevitable result is that an addition has had to be made to our countrymen's load of taxation, and in order to carry that load easily as well as to promote the further development of the country's fortunes, it is essential that the nation's producing capacity should be increased and its stock of capital supplemented. The way to increase production is to encourage the growth of profitable undertakings."

Lieut.-Col. Stevenson Will Take Command

Lieut.-Col. Miller Will Retire by Usual Process on Sept. 1st.

Without the regimental official changes always wrought by death at the front in war, the 57th will next September, see quite a shuffle in its officers.

Lt.-Col. Miller, who has been commanding officer of the 57th Regiment, for some five years, will retire from command in September of this year, as his tenure of office expires then. He will be succeeded by Major Arthur Stevenson, who is now senior major of the regiment.

Major Clegg will become senior major; Captain Bennet, now senior captain, will become junior major, and will be succeeded in the senior captaincy by Capt. Mills. There will be other changes all down the line.

A Correction

Mr. W. F. Nelson Local Agent of the Mutual Life Assurance Co.

In an issue of the 16th, The Times in noting the great progress and satisfactory condition of the Mutual Life Assurance Co., of Waterloo, Ont., inadvertently made the mistake, in describing the annual meeting of this progressive company, of calling "policyholders," "shareholders." This mistake whilst, of course obviously an error, might be misleading to our readers.

The Mutual Life Co., has no shareholders to share its profits; all profits made by the successful management of the Mutual Life Co. are shared by the policy holders.

Mr. W. F. Nelson, the general agent of the Mutual Life Assurance Co., for this city, is one of the best known insurance men of this district, and is always ready and willing to give all information to those wanting good safe insurance at lowest prices compatible with results attained.

Joseph Phillip's Trial to Start This Morning

Toronto, March 23.—The case of Joseph Phillips, re the York Loan Company, will come up for trial in the Criminal Sessions before Judge Winchester this morning at eleven o'clock. Phillips has to stand trial on two charges; one of theft and the other of conspiracy to defraud.

The indictment for conspiracy reads as follows;

"That Joseph Phillips in the years 901, 1902, 1903, 1904, and 1905 did conspire, combine, confederate, and agree with Lillian Hudson, Georgiana Hudson, Eleazer John Burt, and G. Robert Burt, and with others whose names are unknown, by deceit and falsehood, to defraud the shareholders of the York Loan and Savings Company, and did thereby commit an indictable offence contrary to the provisions of the criminal code."

On this charge the grand jury brought in a true bill on Oct. 5th, 1906, and on the 31st of the same month Phillips pleaded not guilty. The case came up for trial at the December sessions and was traversed.

The charge of theft is "that Joseph Phillips, on or about the 30th day of December, in the year 1904, unlawfully did steal the sum of $2,500 of the moneys of the York County Loan and Savings Company."

On this charge, also, the grand jury returned a true bill on Oct. 5, 1906. Phillips pleaded not guilty on the following day, and the case was traversed from the December to the present sessions.

It is not expected that the case will take up very much time in the hearing, and it is stated that it would be completed by Monday at the latest.

What stand Phillips intends to take is not known. He can either be tried by his Honor without a jury, or with one. This is the first case on the list, and if a jury is empaneled the others will be dismissed.

Crown Attorney Drayton will conduct the case against Phillips.

TENDERS WANTED

SEALED TENDERS will be received by the undersigned up to Noon on Monday, April 1st, for the erection of a six room addition to the North Ward School.

HIGH PRICE OF LUMBER IS HARD ON SETTLERS

Regina Alderman Advocates Export Duty and Putting All Manufactured Lumber on the Free List.

Ottawa, March 23.—Ald. Wilkinson, of Regina, was again on the stand before the Lumber Inquiry Committee yesterday. He mentioned the names of several men who he knew who were prevented from going into the lumber business by the Retailers' Association. He had been shown a document from which it appeared that the dealers threatened to blacklist any of the mills furnishing lumber to the Regina Supply Company.

The witness could not say that the price of lumber was retarding settlement, but undoubtedly it was increasing the hardships of the settlers. Smith Brothers and Mr. Wilson of Regina, were refused supplies of lumber on the ground that they did not belong to the Retailers' Association.

He submitted a resolution from the Regina Board of Trade thanking Mr. Herron for moving in connection with this enquiry. He had no doubts of the existence of a great combine restraining the lumber trade. A great deal of suffering and hardships had been caused to settlers who had been able only to provide the merest shelter for themselves and their stock.

SUGGESTS A REMEDY.

He suggested as a remedy, that an export duty should be put on all lumber and logs and that the import duty should be removed on all grades of manufactured lumber. If an arrangement could be made between the Federal and Provincial Governments whereby the latter could acquire timber lands, the Provincial Government would be in a position to deal with the question. He suggested further that a commissioner be appointed at the various commercial centers, such as Winnipeg, Brandon, Regina, Moose Jaw, Calgary, and Edmonton, whose duty it would be to hear complaints and make inspections as to the grades of lumber being sold by the dealers, and that the consumer be allowed to buy, through him, at a price in excess of the wholesale price, of, say, $2 per thousand, one dollar of which was to go into the Public Treasury, and the other dollar to the dealer, through whom the order came. This would enable the consumer to get his lumber very near the wholesale price, and also give the local dealer a margin of profit.

LACK OF ORGANIZATION.

Mr. Theodore Ludgate, of Arrow Head, B.C., said he had been operating at that point for the past five years. He declared that during 1905 he ran his mill at a loss, and gave the committee the data upon which he arrived at this conclusion. Mr. Lancaster figured out on this basis that Mr. Ludgate's loss in that year would be $35,000.

The witness attributed the loss to lack of organization amongst the manufacturers and competition from the American lumbermen. Last year with the organization and no American lumber to compete against, he figured out that he had made a profit of 70 cents a thousand, on the average, without allowing for anything for depreciation. The proceedings of the committee were cut short by adjournment in the House.

To Talk Without Wires

Berlin, March 23.—Count Arco, in his wireless telephone experiments, has succeeded in obtaining distinct exchanges of words in a tolerably natural voice at a distance of two miles by using poles thirty feet high. Rear-Admiral Mahney, who was a delegate of the United States to the International Conference on Wireless Telegraphy at Berlin, and Lieut.-Commander Howard, U.S.N., the American naval attache here, have been present at a series of private exhibitions of the wireless telephone apparatus, and have been able to talk with each other at a distance somewhat less than three miles. But the best practical results are attained at two miles or under, with thirty feet poles.

Count Arco does not regard his discoveries as commercially practicable at present, though he hopes to eventually construct an apparatus which will take the place of wired in cities and perhaps in suburban districts.

Proper Medicine For The Blood

Drives Away That Tired Feeling; Makes You Feel Brisk.

To every one is sure to come that tired, exhausted feeling.

When the blood is weak, thin and debilitated, circulation is slow, and in consequence the system is congested with poisons and wastes that should be driven off.

The sensible person acts on the teachings of experience and cleanses his system with a course of Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

No medicine can be more certain to quickly cure. Convenient to take, just one pill at bedtime; safe, because entirely vegetable; unfailing, because proved by thousands that Dr. Hamilton's Pills set you up in a few days.

From Chebogue Pt., N. S., comes the following from Mrs. W. A. Reynolds; "A year ago my health began to fail, I lost appetite, became nervous and sleepless. My weight ran down, I became thin, hollow-cheeked, and had black rings under my eyes. I really felt as if the charm of life had left me and when springtime arrived I was in the "Blues." I read of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and got five boxes at once.

"Within a month my appetite and color were good. I gained strength and felt like a new woman. New life and vigor returned, and my friends scarcely knew me. A medicine that will do this should be in every home."

Good health means much to you. Success and happiness depend upon it. The maintenance and source of health is found in Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, at all dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson and Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

HOURS OF RAILWAY EMPPOYES

In the dying hours of the session of the United States Congress a bill was passed to limit the hours of the railway employes' day. In brief the provisions are that railroad employes shall not be obliged to work more than sixteen hours in any twenty-four; that they shall have eight or ten hours' rest in every twenty-four; that train despatchers shall not work more than nine hours in any twenty-four; that in day and night offices telegraph operators shall not work more than nine hours in any twenty-four, and in day offices only not more than thirteen; that every violation of the law shall be punishable by a fine not exceeding $500. The law will take effect March 4, 1908. The railway companies must keep records of the times of employment, names of employes and movements of trains, and are to be made at all times subject to provision for the examination of their books and records.

The obvious purpose of the measure is to provide new means for the accurate determination of responsibility in accidents by the removal of at least one of the causes most frequently assigned. So many railway catastrophes in recent years have been attributed to the fact that employes have been working too long at a stretch, that the Congress in providing against this form of overwork, not only takes measures for the safer handling of traffic, but clears the field of enquiry as to the identity of the real culprits.

IRISH HOME RULE

The Government plan for Ireland appears to be, as was expected, Home Rule by instalments, says Goldwin Smith. A national assembly of some sort is to be conceded at once, and will form the nucleus of the agitation, while the vista of Home Rule is not to be closed, and, being kept open, will ensure the continuance of the struggle for complete independence. The Irish delegation in the House of Commons will be always playing, as it has hitherto, for its own object on the balance of British parties. It is surely strange and miserable to see a kingdom which aspires to extending its Imperial sway over communities in all quarters of the globe thus unable to defend its own unity against a domestic agitation, and one which has never really had any force behind it. The Irish people have never panted for political revolution. What they have all ways wanted has been the land. The agitation for the repeal of the Union by itself has never had serious force. It failed in the hands of O'Connell, though he had the full power of the Church behind him. It failed still more ignominiously in the hands of Smith-O'Brien. Had the Parliament of the United Kingdom been faithful to its trust, Home Rule would again have expired. But what will not party do?

Say Canadians Slaughter Fish

St. Albans, Vt., March 21.—Word has been received here that Canadians have been seen engaged in seining at Philipsburg, on the shore of Lake Champlain, despite the earnest protests against this practice by officials of this State to the Canadian Government. American fishermen are not allowed to use seines in the lake, and they claim that the use of these large nets by the rivals across the border gives an unfair advantage to the Canadian fishermen, besides menacing the source of supply by too great a slaughter. Henry G. Thomas, of Shoys, commissioner of fisheries and Game, is in receipt of letters, it is said, from the Minister of the Canadian Fisheries Department to the effect that seining on the Canadian side of the lake would not be permitted this spring. Despite these assurances it is claimed that fifty men with 12 seines have been seen at work near Philipsburg, on the Canadian side.

Former Peeress Clings to Title

London, March 22.—The fashionables are laughing at the former Lady Grey-Egerton's declaration that she will retain her title instead of being known as "Mrs. Richard McCreery," after the name of the wealthy American she married the other day. Only a peeress who takes for her second husband a man of lower rank than her first keeps her title. Lady Grey-Egerton, daughter of the late Mapes F. Wayne Cuyler, of the United States army, married a baronet, Sir Philip Grey-Egerton, who divorced her January 21, 1906. Sir Philip declares that if she continues to wear his name he will submit evidence of the fact to the proper court and get an order restraining her from using the title.

The News—No Pure Drug Cough Cure Laws would be needed, if all Cough Cures were like Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure is—and has been for 25 years. The National Law now requires that if any poisons enter into a cough mixture, it must be printed on the label or package. For this reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and see. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Simply refuse to accept any other. Sold by J. D. Tully.

Will Help Cobalt

Cobalt, March 22.—During the last few days quite a surprise has been sprung upon Cobalt mining men with reference to the shipping of ore to the smelters. These shipments to United States smelters have all along proved troublesome to the miners, and in some cases men had actually to be sent with each car. In return a little over 90 per cent. of the silver values was all that was obtained. The miner had to pay freight and insurance. Now an English company has come forward with the proposition to purchase the ore practically at the mouth of the pit. The company is prepared to pay 94 per cent. of the silver value, and at the same time saving all the freight charges to the mine. This company is also willing to accept the New York assays. The ore will probably go to Swansea, Wales.

Shadow Etiquette.

"I saluted the Kaffir chief respectfully and hearty," said the sailor. "Can you imagine my surprise when he give me a kick?

"'Get off my shadder,' he says.

"'Wot?'

"'Get off my shadder.'

"I was standing, by accident, on his shadder, the shadder of his stomach. I skipped from there to the face. He grunted. When I got on to his ground again he says to me:

"'Didn't you never have no bringin' up? Look at you now, lengthenin' out your shadow leagers mine. Cough, consarn you, or I'll warm your hide with this here club.'"

The sailor gave a loud laugh and emptied his glass of milk.

"Them Kaffirs," he said, "regards their shadders as part of themselves. A polite Kaffir would no more walk on another's shadder than a polite American would hit a lady. They have a regular shadder etiquette. You accept an ill account let your shadder be longer than a superior's. You must endeavor to make it smaller, and that there accounts for the pumpers of midnight. The shadder is thought by the Kaffirs—philosophers—I don't say I think so, myself—to be the origin of the bowl."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Much Law, Poor Cake.

Among lawyers there is a saying that in the trial of a cookies attorney if Kitchen facts must be kept from jury. The question an attorney may be forced to answer in his office building is whether he will go to the courthouse to try a case. From the shelves of his library he had taken many large law books containing decisions and opinions of higher courts. An interlude a boy went in and out of the door, and each time he bore in his arms a stack of the books, which he carried to an express wagon that stood in the street below. The attorney was to use the books in the courtroom. Another lawyer, who is of southern birth and who always addresses his friends with some army title, watched the boy as he went in and out carrying the law books. Then he dug his hands deep into his trousers pockets and said to the lawyer:

"Well, Ah'll sweah, kunnel, you must have no case at all."—Kansas City Times.

ONE MEAL A DAY.

Two Women Who Solved the Problem of No Dishwashing.

One meal a day is enough for a woman. At least, that is what Miss Williamina Burnett and Miss Ginevra Falkenburg assert, and, having practiced this self denying ordinance for something over a decade, they have a right to an opinion. Williamina is forty, Ginevra forty-three, but neither is said to look a day over twenty-five, and the two, though not related, have lived together like sisters for twenty years. These singular persons walk five miles to work every morning, work eight hours at some manual labor in the city of Pasadena and then walk five miles back, to dine on whole grains, fruits, raw vegetables (skins and all) and nuts. Bread they consider a curse to humanity. Eggs they look on with acute suspicion. Potatoes are dropsical, diseased growths. Meat is a crime. Salt, pepper, sugar and spices? Never! There are no plates or dishes or glasses on their table. The fruits, nuts and grains, which are all they have to eat anyway, are served in baskets and eaten—probably—with the fingers, while not even water is drunk except between meals. The repast finished, Ginevra and Williamina go to bed at once, for they regard exercise after a hearty meal as a most baneful practice, and from dark to daylight they sleep on cots near open windows. In their quest after nature these "girls" have discarded many superfluities of feminine apparel and have built for themselves a charming one room bungalow at a cost of $350. People laugh at them, but they laugh back, and from all appearances Williamina and Ginevra have the best of it, in spite of their names.—New York Tribune.

BOOKS IN THE HOME.

The Way Children Should Be Taught to Use Them.

Children should early be taught the proper way to open and hold a book. All heavy books require especial care. When too heavy for the hand, they should rest on a table or a stand.

No one ever should be allowed to lean upon an open book. The books that can be handled without effort should be allowed to rest with their backs in the palm of the hand while one is reading. This, of course, applies to books with fine bindings.

It is taken for granted that every house, as a matter of course, will have at least one Bible and one copy of Shakespeare as indispensable furnishings. Next come an unabridged dictionary and a complete atlas of the world. The next book is a classical dictionary.

Any standard book of prose and poetical quotations comes next in importance in the family library. A book of English synonyms follows in order of desirability.

Popular nature books are delightful, particularly where there are children to enjoy the information about stars and plants and animals.

The children should be taught how to use reference books, to look up meanings, spellings, places, and so on. The habit of looking up whatever needs greater elucidation augurs well for good culture and education. The child that has acquired it requires but little going to school in order to surpass those who have expensive schooling, but no training in the use of reference books.—Exchange.

STAIN REMOVERS.

Medicine can be removed by soaking in alcohol.

Stove polish, if washed while fresh in cold water and soap, may easily be removed.

Mucus is removed by soaking in ammonia water and then washing in cold water and soap.

Milk or cream can be removed readily by washing first in cold water, followed by a thorough soaping.

Scorch marks may be removed by hanging in sunlight. This is most effective for only slight scorch.

Paint stains are removed by the use of benzine or turpentine. Rub well with the benzine or turpentine. For delicate colors chloroform in naphtha is best.

Perspiration discolorations are taken out by either soap solution and sunshine or by javelle water. Place in sunshine after washing with soapsuds. Javelle water is excellent for white goods.

Papering Whitewashed Walls.

Rooms whose walls have been whitewashed or calcimined present a difficult problem when one wishes to paper them. The usual method is to "size" the walls with a sticky preparation of molasses, vinegar, milk or glue to "kill" the lime so that the paper will stick. Here is a much better way that has proved perfectly satisfactory. Simply wet up the usual paste with vinegar instead of water and add 5 cents' worth of glue for each ordinary sized room. Brush the walls well with a dry broom to remove any dust or loose particles, put on the paper in the usual way and be assured that it will stay there.

Dainty China.

Delicate pieces of bric-a-brac are often broken by upsetting them with a dust cloth or by accidentally touching them when reaching for something else on the same shelf. To prevent this weight down every vase or jar that is not quite heavy in itself with sand or small shot. It will not require a great deal in each piece and will often save a valued possession. This is especially useful where there are small children.

Prevention, as the name implies, wards off Colds and Grippe when "taken at the sneeze stage." Preventics are tasteless candy tablets. Preventics dissipate all colds quickly, and taken early, when you first feel that a cold is coming, they check and prevent them. Preventics are thoroughly safe for children, and as effectual for adults. Sold and recommended in 5 cent and 25 cent boxes by J. D. Tully.

HALF OUR ILLS ARE CATARRH.

"Every family should know the important fact that catarrhal diseases claim many thousands of victims in Canada each year. In spring and summer, catarrh of the stomach, bowels, liver, kidneys and pelvic organs is most common."

Federal Life Assurance Co.

Twenty-Fifth Annual Statement

Directors' Report

The twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Shareholders of the Federal Life Assurance Company of Canada was held at the Company's new Head Office Building in Hamilton, Tuesday, 19th March, 1907, at 2 p.m., Mr. David Dexter in the chair, Mr. W. H. Davis acting Secretary.

The annual report, as follows, was read and adopted, on motion of Mr. Dexter, seconded by Lieut.-Col. Kerns:

Your Directors have the honor to present the Report and Financial Statement of the Company for the year which closed on the 31st December, 1906, duly vouched for by the Auditors.

The new business of the year consisted of two thousand one hundred applications for insurance, aggregating $3,019,877.00, of which two thousand and fourteen applications, for $2,958,624.33, were accepted.

As in previous years, the income of the Company shows a gratifying increase, and the assets of the Company have been increased by $279,264.55, and have now reached $2,710,702.62, exclusive of guarantee capital.

The security for Policy-holders, including guarantee capital, amounted at the close of the year to $5,580,702.62, and the liabilities for reserves and all outstanding claims, $2,486,129.30, showing a surplus of $1,094,573.32. Exclusive of uncalled guarantee capital, the surplus to Policy-holders was $224,573.32.

Policies on seventy-four lives became claims through death, to the amount of $131,110.96.

Including cash dividends and dividends applied to the reduction of premiums, with annuities, the total payment to Policy-holders amounted to $247,496.31.

Careful attention has been given to the investment of the Company's funds in first-class bonds, mortgage securities and loans on the Company's policies amply secured by reserves. Our investments have yielded a very satisfactory rate of interest.

Expenses have been confined to a reasonable limit, consistent with due efforts for new business.

The ratio of expenses to premium income show a decrease of nearly three per cent. compared with the previous year. The unrest caused by the investigation of the affairs and methods of Life Insurance Companies tended to lessen the amount of new insurance obtainable at a reasonable cost, and to increase the number of lapses and surrenders; however, in other respects the results of the year indicate a most gratifying progress. Compared with the preceding year, the figures submitted by the Directors for your approval show an advance of nearly ten and a half per cent. in assets.

The Directors have pleasure in announcing the completion of the very substantial and imposing new Head Office Building of the Company, at Hamilton, and feel quite sure it will prove a most judicious investment.

The assurances carried by the Company now amount to $17,884,073.61, upon which the Company holds reserves to the full amount required by law, and, in addition thereto, a considerable surplus.

The field officers and agents of the Company are intelligent and loyal, and are entitled to much credit for their able representation of the Company's interests. The members of the office staff have also proved faithful to the Company's service.

Your Directors are pleased to be able to state that the business of the Company for the past two months of the current year has been of a most satisfactory character, and that the outlook for the future is most encouraging.

DAVID DEXTER, President and Managing Director.

Auditors' Report

To the President and Directors of the Federal Life Assurance Company:

Gentlemen—We have carefully audited the books and records of your Company for the year ending 31st December last, and have certified to their accuracy.

The Cash and Journal Vouchers have been closely examined and agree with the entries recorded.

The Debentures, Bonds, etc., in the possession of the Company have been inspected, whilst those deposited with the Government or Banks have been verified by certificate, the total agreeing with the amount as shown in the Statement of Assets.

The accompanying Statements, viz., Revenue and Assets and Liabilities, show the result of the year's operations and also the financial position of the Company.

Respectfully submitted,

H. S. STEPHENS,
CHARLES STIFF, Auditors.

With Edged Tools

Copyright, 1894, by HARPER & BROTHERS

my conndence, the first comer, you'll think. But there are not many men like you in this country, and I'm beastly afraid of dying. I want to get out of this for a bit, but I dare not leave until I set things going."

"Take your time," said Meredith, quietly and soothingly. "Light that cigar again and lie down. There is no harry."

Durnovo obeyed him meekly.

"Tell me," he said, "have you ever heard of simiacine?"

"I cannot say that I have," replied Jack. "What is it for, brown boots or spasms?"

"It is a drug, the most expensive drug in the market. And they must have it, they cannot do without it, and they cannot find a substitute. It is the leaf of a shrub, and your hatful is worth a thousand pounds."

"Where is it to be found?" asked Jack Meredith. "I should like some in a sack."

"Ah, you may laugh now, but you won't when you hear all about it. The scientific chaps called it simiacine, because of an old African legend which, like all those things, has a grain of truth in it. The legend is that the monkeys first found out the properties of the leaf, and it is because they live on it that they are so strong. Do you know that a gorilla's arm is not half so thick as yours, and yet he would take you and snap your backbone across his knee? He would bend a gun barrel as you would bend a cane, merely by the turn of his wrist. That is simiacine. He can hang on to a tree with one leg and tackle a leopard with his bare hands—that's simiacine. At home they are only just beginning to find out its properties. It seems that it can bring a man back to life when he is more than half dead. There is no knowing what children that are brought up on it may turn out to be. It may double the power of the human brain; some think it will."

Jack Meredith was leaning forward, watching with a certain sense of fascination the wild, disease stricken face, listening to the man's breathless periods. It seemed that the fear of death, which had got hold of him, gave Victor Durnovo no time to pause for breath.

"Yes," said the Englishman, "yes, go on."

"There is practically no limit to the demand that there is for it. At present the only way of obtaining it is through the natives, and you know their manner of trading. They send a little packet down from the interior, and it very often takes two months and more to reach the buyer's hands. The money is sent back the same way and each man who fingers it keeps a little. The natives find the leaf in the forests by the aid of trained monkeys and only in very small quantities. Do you follow me?"

"Yes, I follow you."

Victor Durnovo leaned forward until his face was within three inches of Meredith's, and the dark, wild eyes flashed and glared into the Englishman's steady glance.

"What," he hissed—"what if I know where simiacine grows like a weed? What if I could supply the world with simiacine at my own price? Eh-h-h! What of that, Mr. Meredith?"

He threw himself suddenly back and wiped his dripping face. There was a silence, the great African silence that drives educated men mad and fills the imagination of the poor heathen with wild tales of devils and spirits.

Then Jack Meredith spoke without moving.

"I'm your man," he said, "with a few more details."

Victor Durnovo was lying back at full length on the hard, dry mud, his arms beneath his head. Without altering his position, he gave the details, speaking slowly and much more quietly. It seemed as if he spoke the result of long pent up thought.

"We shall want," he said, "at least £2,000 to start it, for we must have an armed force of our own. We have to penetrate a cannibal country of the fiercest devils in Africa. It is a plateau, a little plateau of two square miles, and the niggers think that it is haunted by an evil spirit. When we get there we shall have to hold it by force of arms, and when we send the stuff down to the coast we must have an escort of picked men. The bushes grow up there as thick as gooseberry bushes in a garden at home. With a little cultivation they will yield twice as much as they do now. We shall want another partner. I know a man, a soldierly fellow, full of fight, who knows the natives and the country. I will undertake to lead you there, but you will have to take great care of me.

"Yes," said the Englishman, "yes, go on."

You will have to have me carried most of the way. I am weak, devilish weak, and I am afraid of dying, but I know the way there, and no other man can say as much. It is in my head here; it is not written down. It is only in my head, and no one can get it out of there."

"No," said Meredith in his quiet, refined voice—"no, no one can get it out. Come, let us turn in. Tomorrow I will go down the river with you. I will turn back, and we can talk it over as we go downstream."

CHAPTER VIII.

WHAT Meredith proposed to do was to enter into a partnership with Victor Durnovo, and when the purpose of it was accomplished to let each man go his way. A month later Victor Durnovo was in London. He left behind him in Africa Jack Meredith, whose capacities for organization were developing very quickly.

There was plenty of work for each to do. In Africa Meredith had undertaken to get together men and boats, while Durnovo went home to Europe for a threefold purpose. First, a visit to Europe was absolutely necessary for his health, shattered as it was by too long a sojourn in the fever ridden river beds of the west coast. Secondly, there were rifles, ammunition and stores to be purchased and packed in suitable cases. And, lastly, he was to find and enlist the third man, "the soldierly fellow, full of fight," who knew the natives and the country.

This, indeed, was his first care on reaching London, and before his eyes and brain were accustomed to the roar of the street life he took a cab to Russell square, giving the number affixed to the door of a gloomy house in the least frequented corner of the stately quadrangle.

"Is Mr. Guy Oscard at home?" he inquired of the grave manservant.

"He is, sir," replied the butler, stepping aside.

Oscard came forward and shook hands. His manner was not exactly effusive. The truth was that their acquaintanceship in Africa had been of the slightest, dating from some trivial services which Durnovo had been able and very eager to render to the sportsman.

"I'm all right, thanks," replied Durnovo. "I only landed at Liverpool yesterday. I'm home on business. I'm buying rifles and stores."

Guy Oscard's honest face lighted up at once—the curse of Ishmael was on him in its full force. He was destined to be a wanderer on God's earth, and all things appertaining to the wild life of the forests were music in his ears.

Durnovo was no mean diplomatist. He had learned to know man within a white or colored skin. The effect of his words was patent to him.

"You remember the simiacine?" he said abruptly.

"Yes."

"I've found it."

"The deuce you have! Sit down."

Durnovo took the chair indicated.

KENNEDY COBALT, Ltd.

is recommended

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. M. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 16 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 30 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 80 acres of J. B. 32 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 9 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 20 chains making it plainly seep that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 50 feet, and in it shows 5 inch nicolilite, 18 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 672-1233-492-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

We offer a few more shares at Fifty Cents (50 c); par value One Dollar ($1.00). The property is being developed as fast as possible, and we cannot promise that stock will be sold at less than par for very long. Don't wait until it is $3.00 to invest, giving others big profits for what you should have bought sooner. We want you to get in on the ground floor and share in the big profits. For a limited time only we will accept subscriptions at 50 cents—the stock is slated for a sharp advance very soon. Send marked cheque or money order.

Extensive Fund for Crusade on Vice

La Crosse, Wis., March 21.—Following the publication of the startling report of the detectives of the Pastors' Union, who for weeks has been collecting incriminating evidence regarding vice in La Crosse, the organization of a civic federation with $100,000 capital, and including as stockholders some of the leading citizens, is announced today.

The corporation will hire agents to investigate and make complaint upon violation of laws, and to forse prosecution of violators. Unsatisfied with promises of reform by police officials, the ministers have taken this summary action to force a cleansing of the city's morals.

The detectives' report, made public today, bristled with lurid details. Brothels, wine rooms, gambling halls, saloons and pool rooms were visited by spies paid by the ministers.

Participants in the boisterous midnight revels were carefully noted, leading citizens and lowly. Instances of the language used, of the liquors consumed and by whom, went into the notebooks of the spies and all were turned over to the committee of ministers, of whom Rev. K. J. Clemens, president of the Humane Society, is president, to form the basis of operation of the new federation.

Circulars depicting the scenes of immortality were printed by one of the spies, and cast about the city. This circular identified prominent people and has created an uproar, even among the ministers.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

DARK BROWN TASTE

Your Head Aches
Tongue is Coated
Mouth is Coated
Stomach is Sick

The Gastric Juices Are Not Doing Their Duty and You're in the Grip of Nervous Dyspepsia.

A hot bitter fluid, and sour indigested food rise in your mouth.

Your vision is crossed with specks that float before the eyes.

Very shortly you'll have nausea, rank breath, and sleepless nights.

What you need is Ferrozone.

It regulates the gastric juices, puts new life into the stomach, braces digestive powers, gives the aid that's so badly required.

Ferrozone is the best treatment because it goes to the root of the trouble, remedies the conditions that cause dyspepsia and thereby cures permanently.

If you want proof, read the experience of Mr. E. P. Davison, a well known resident of Portland, who writes. "Ferrozone is beyond doubt a most powerful cure for indigestion and weak stomach. Food so badly disagreed with me that I was almost afraid to eat. Pastry and starchy foods fermented, caused sour risings and gave me headaches, brown taste, offensive breath. I grew weak, my weight ran down fifteen pounds and my looks fully indicated all that was wrong. Ferrozone put me on my feet again. It braced me up, renewed my digestion and made me a well man."

Doctor and patients alike speak of the merit of Ferrozone; it is different from other remedies, different because it cures so you stay cured. Try it; sold everywhere in 50c. boxes.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Gathered From the Local Police Station.

Yesterday morning a lady from Driscoll Terrace appeared, apparently as a proxy for her husband, who had been summonsed to appear on a charge of not sending his boy to school as required by law.

The lady was nothing if not defiant, when asked by the magistrate are you guilty or not guilty? She started off to give her views as to police courts, tru ant officers, magistrates and throw in authority, in general, at a rate that would take the best stop watch and the most patient time-keeper in seven counties to keep track.

By the time his worship got tired of the lady's verbosity he remarked "Well, this is simply a matter of lack of proper authority at the boy's home and to make an example I will impose a fine of $5 to be paid in five days or 15 days in jail."

The lady, possibly not knowing that the fine was against the partner of his joys and woes, replied, "Well, I don't intend to go to jail. I'll pay the $5 within five minutes after the bank opens."

Sunday Service In Opera House

A mass meeting will be held in the Grand Opera house on Palm Sunday afternoon at four o'clock, when Mr. W. P. Cleal, late of Chicago, and now of Toronto, will be the chief speaker, supported by Canon Davidson, Rev. (E. A. Langfeldt and Rev. Wm. Major. Mr. Cleal has been here to speak once before, and is a fluent and striking speaker. He has worked his way up from an ordinary employe, to the position of manager of the National Cash Register Co. He is sure of a hearty welcome to Peterborough.

A large choir with orchestra will lead the singing, conducted by Mr. B. J. Dewey, and Miss Helen Davies and Mr. George Chandler will sing selections. The orchestra will play while the audience assembles.

The arrangements for this service have been made by the local assembly of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, and a hearty invitation is extended to all to come to this service on Sunday.

Arrested for the Selling of Soap

Notwithstanding the balmy air and bright sunshine of yesterday morning, the Corner Combine Club, was well represented at the police court.

The first case tried was that of James Wilson, known among his associates as "Sunny Jim." Now this article must not be taken as literally correct under the heading above.

James was arrested and charged with being a "vag." To this he pleaded "not guilty." The chief asked that James be remanded for a week as another charge, viz., that of stealing twelve bars of Sunlight soap from Mr. Geo. Stevens, the east ward junk dealer and rag peddler. Now, as the prosecution's case was not then complete, the case was enlarged.

In conversation with the police officers after the trial it was suggested that any officer arresting "Sunny Jim," for getting to appear ently a necessity to his present condition, as soap for Sunny Jim, was guilty of cruelty to suffering humanity.

The officers, with a wink, replied that possibly the arrest was made to assist the washing in getting the soap into persons so evidently craved for.

Miss Mary Smith Dies in Pittsburg

The many friends of Mr. Thos. Smith, who lives at the Cavanagh House will sympathize with him over the death of his sister Miss Mary, who passed away in the city of Pittsburg, Pa., on Thursday.

The deceased was a daughter of the late John Smith, who resided here for many years. She was born in Peterborough and lived here until some ten years ago when she moved to Pittsburg.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

Division Court Session Postponed

Owing to an error in fixing the date for the March sitting of the first Division Court, the court would have to sit on Friday next, which is Good Friday, and a holiday. His Honor Judge Weller has therefore adjourned the sitting for one week, until Friday, April 5th.

Bad Symptoms.

The woman who has periodical headaches, backache, sees imaginary dark spots or specks floating or dancing before her eyes, has gnawing distress or heavy full feeling in stomach, faint spells, dragging-down feeling in lower abdominal or pelvic region, easily startled or excited, irregular or painful periods, with or without pelvic catarrh, is suffering from weaknesses and derangements that should have early attention. Not all of above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

Neglected or badly treated and such cases often run into maladies which demand the surgeon's knife if they do not result fatally.

No medicine extant has such a long and numerous record of cures in such cases as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. No medicine has such a strong professional endorsement, each of its several ingredients—worth more than any number of ordinary non-professional testimonials. The very best ingredients known to medical science for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments enter into its composition. No alcohol, harmful, or habit-forming drug is to be found in the list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath.

In any condition of the female system, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can do only good—never harm. Its whole effect is to strengthen, invigorate and regulate the whole female system and especially the pelvic organs. When these are deranged in function or affected by disease, the stomach and other organs of digestion become sympathetically deranged, the nerves are weakened, and a long list of bad, unpleasant symptoms follow. Too much must not be expected of this "Favorite Prescription." It will not perform miracles; will not cure tumors—no medicine will. It will often prevent them, if taken in time, and thus the operating table and the surgeon's knife may be avoided.

Women suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Doctor Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser (1000 pages) is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 50 stamps for cloth-bound copy. Address as above.

A Satisfying Food

Appetite is Nature's signal for fuel and repairs.

Healthy appetite calls for simple food elements that supply the natural requirements.

Healthy appetite is satisfied when the proper kind and amount of food is taken into the body at stated intervals. But the wiles of the modern chef and caterer have created in most of us a false and often unnatural appetite which leads into all the different degrees of indigestion, dyspepsia, etc.—food insanity!

GRAPE-NUTS is a satisfying food—it is composed of the natural elements to satisfy the natural appetite and restore order in the digestive machinery which may have been thrown out of gear by improper though often "fashionable" foods.

The crisp, firm, "nutty" granules of Grape-Nuts make honest mastication necessary; its wholesome flavor makes it appetizing, and the albumens, carbohydates and phosphrate of potash from the whole wheat and barley, make it a satisfying food—both to the sense of taste and to the body needs.

BUSINESS REFORM ROUSES ENGLAND

Old-Time Methods Are Discarded for New Ideas.

SEEK MORE TRADE ABROAD

Merchants, Government Departments and Colleges Join in the Great Movement.

London, March 25.—"Wake up, England!" The now historic and oft-quoted phrase with which the Prince of Wales startled and thrilled his hearers at the Guild Hall banquet on his return from his great tour through the British colonies, which caused even the immobile sphinxlike face of Joseph Chamberlain to light up with enthusiasm, and which is said to have been the beginning of the inspiration of his "tariff reform" scheme, is now having its effect. A wave of reform in business methods is sweeping over the country.

New ideas are being introduced every day in the leading commercial houses and industrial concerns of London. Even the government departments and some of the higher educational authorities are bestirring themselves to foster the commerce of the country and equip the newer generation of business men with a scientific knowledge of business.

In the midst of the new movement the country turns constantly to America for inspirations and ideas.

FOREIGN OFFICE TO AID.

For instance, the foreign office will institute at the end of this month a new diplomatic order of "commercial attaches." They will be stationed in the capitals of the world to seek new avenues for British trade and keep the commercial office of the board of trade in close and constant touch with business needs everywhere.

A progressive step also has been taken by the council of the University of Birmingham, which has formed an advisory board of business men to cooperate with the professors of the faculty of commerce in the university. The university now boasts a professor of commerce, a professor of finance and a professor of accounting, as well as a lecturer in commercial law, and there are now many students seeking the "bachelor of commerce" degrees which the university first granted last year.

An instance of the scientific spirit among London business men is to be seen in the recent formation of a "system club," which consists of the leading members of various trades, and meets to discuss business problems and new solutions of them. Advertisements, catalogues and letters to probable purchasers are all co-ordinated in a system which is calculated to lead the purchaser up to the particular counter where the salesman is waiting with the particular article which the customer requires, in a manner undreamed of a few years ago.

DEMAND PLACE IN CABINET.

In view of this waking up of the commercial world, it is held by many business men that the time is more than ripe for the establishment of a minister of commerce. The associated chambers of commerce of the United Kingdom, which held their annual conference in London last week, passed a resolution that this had become imperative and called upon the government to consider without delay such an appointment.

THE STEAMER "OTONABEE"

NAME SELECTED FOR THE NEW PALATIAL BOAT.

Vernon R. Craig, Son of Mr. J. D. Craig, Wins the Prize.

As is well known not only to readers of The Times, but to all who read the other local papers, a well contested and exciting competition has been in progress for the past few weeks to determine by what name the Otonabee Navigation Company's new palatial, twin-screw [illegible] called.

This contest was open to the whole Dominion of Canada, all being eligible to enter, whether man, woman or child. As an instance of the interest aroused, it might be noted that about 600 names were sent in from all parts of the country, several coming from Montreal, Kingston, Toronto, Lindsay, Port Hope, etc., for the dual privilege of naming the boat and also of getting a season family pass, good over all steamers of the company.

The directors, after duly considering the long list of names submitted, finally erased all names, until the ultimate choice lay between Otonabee, Hiawatha, Chippewa, Hepburn, Trentonia, Kenora and Canada.

After due consideration, deciding by both euphony and historical association, the choice centered upon "Otonabee." This is a particularly happy choice, Otonabee being not only a euphonious word but also connected with the past history of Peterborough's inception, and with the river that forms so important a link in one of Canada's future great highways of transportation, the Trent Valley canal. It was up the Otonabee that the sturdy voyageurs made their adventurous trip whilst seeking a location for the then unborn City of Peterborough.

The Times has been asked to add that by the terms of the contest in case more than one competitor hand-ed in the name ultimately selected, the prize would be awarded to the contestant whose letter was first recorded. In this case there were four persons who submitted "Otonabee," but the one entitled to the prize is Mr. V. R. Craig, son of Mr. J. D. Craig, the well-known furniture merchant of Peterborough. The Times congratulates Mr. Craig on his good fortune.

New Railway for City of Spokane

Electric Road to Open up Rich Section of Country.

As some of our local capitalists have heavy investments in the Big Bend district of the State of Washington, it will be of interest to learn that the Spokane and Big Bend Railway Company are about to build and operate a new and most modern electric road from the flourishing city of Spokane to the Big Bend country.

This is one of the richest sections of the prolific State of Washington, as it passes through a splendid fruit and timber country which is fast filling up with settlers.

The railway company are now offering their bonds, of $500 each for sale. These bonds pay five per cent. and are absolutely secured by a first mortgage on $2,500,000 worth of property. These bonds are each accompanied gratis with 100 per cent. of stock as a bonus; the stock will pay 20 per cent. per annum. This seems one of the best investments for capital now on the market. For full particulars see adv. in this issue.

Cheap Groceries for Sale Today

In order to obtain permanent premises, China Hall has purchased the large and well assorted stock of groceries, etc., of Mr. A. Rountree, No. 394 George street. This stock, which is one of the finest grocery stocks in Peterborough, will, together with the balance of the China Hall stock, be thrown on the market at cost price, commencing March 2 and continuing until both stocks are entirely disposed of, but no longer than the 15th of April, after which date the store will be re-fitted, and opened about May 1, with an entirely new stock of crockery, china, glassware, cut-glass, plated ware, fine china ornaments, etc. China Hall, after that date, will be beyond a doubt one of the finest and most complete china stores in Canada. The China Hall Company.

Game License Are Raised Again

Non-Residents Will Have After This to Pay $50.

It seems that the Ontario Government has decided to give further protection to the deer and ducks, that have for years been too generally slaughtered to the threatening point of partial extinction until in many cases, by American citizens.

The Fish and Game Committee have decided to tax non-residents of Ontario $25 for wild duck shooting licenses and $50 for a deer license per annum. Formerly a $25 license covered all game, including deer.

The committee also has under advisement an amendment whereby fishing leases will be let for the fishing privileges on Crown Lands covered by water, each of said licenses not to cover more than two square miles, and not to cover lands nearer than twenty miles from any other leased land. These licenses, should the Government adopt the amendment, will contain a clause prohibiting the free passage of fish from the property covered by a lease, to adjacent waters.

WEAK STOMACH CAUSES SICKNESS

If you have ever suffered with a weak stomach you must realize that the digestive system is to the body what the foundation is to the house—the base of support and strength.

Whatever hurts your stomach or lessens its power, hurts all other parts of the body and impairs their powers. If the stomach is weak and distressed, one organ after another will be involved until the heart, kidneys and liver are all distressed.

Get the stomach right and health will naturally come to the other organs. This explains why a good many people who have doctored for years for diseases of the heart, kidneys or liver, have at last been cured by Mi-o-na stomach tablets. They found to their astonishment and happiness that, when the weak stomach was strengthened, their health returned, the heart became regular, the torpid liver active and the kidneys healthy.

Do not think we claim Mi-o-na is a "cure-all." It is not. It is a specific for all distresses of the stomach, and when it strengthens the stomach and cures indigestion, you will soon be well all over without further medicine.

Mi-o-na is sold only in 50c. boxes, never in bulk. It is sold under an absolute guarantee to refund money unless it cures.

Write today for a free sample package, and also give us your symptoms, and one of the best known stomach specialists will give your case his careful and personal attention without charge. Booth's Mi-ona Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

JOSEPH PHILLIPS SENT TO KINGSTON PENITENTIARY FOR FIVE YEARS

"It is Terrible" He Said, "I Never Stole a Dollar"—Sudden Termination to the York Loan Case Reached Saturday Afternoon---Counsel Made Plea for Leniency.

Toronto, March 23.—Five years in Kingston Penitentiary on a charge of signing a false return to the government was the sentence imposed on Joseph Phillips of the defunct York Loan & Savings Co., by Judge Winchester today. Phillips pleaded guilty.

Although to all outward appearance, before a small crowd in Judge Winchester's court room, Phillips, who, for over a year, has been under indictment in connection with the collapse of the company, seemed in no way perturbed by the sentence imposed on him—five years at Kingston—He admitted that the severity of the sentence was terrible, and his punishment was heavier than he could bear.

Immediately after sentence had been passed, the prisoner nervously followed his solicitor from the courtroom to the lawyers room down the corridor. For a half a minute a hurried consultation took place, in which the prisoner seemed to regain his self-possession. When the detectives arrived Joe Phillips smiled faintly when they asked him to accompany them.

LOCKED UP.

"Are we going right away? I want to speak with my solicitor."

"Oh, that's all right," said Mr. Jones, "I shall see you later."

Joe Phillips followed the detectives up to the photographing department, where he was photographed for the first time. He seemed interested in the Bertillon system and again appeared to be taking this imprisonment and the outlook ahead with perfect calm. The operation lasted for 35 minutes.

In the meantime County Constable John Clark telephoned for a hack. Joe Phillips was then taken downstairs to the convict's cell by Detective Muckle and handed over to County Constables Clark and McMillan.

The cell door closed. With a superficial smile, the prisoner bade the detective good-bye and sat down on a chair in the corner of his cell.

"Have you any message or anything you wish done?" asked a reporter.

The prisoner broke down and talked right ahead.

"I pleaded guilty of making a false return to the government, and I do not deserve such a sentence. Oh! it's no use now. I did not get a fair deal in this thing and they know it. Anyone who knows me or has had any dealings with me knows that I never stole a dollar in my life."

At just 2.45, when Big Ben was tolling the quarter, the famous Joe Phillips was led to a carriage waiting to convey him away from home, from the city, from the family, away to disgrace and punishment.

Phillips was arraigned in the sessions this morning, and his words, "I plead guilty on the charge of having published a false statement for the year ending Dec. 31, 1904," came in the nature of a surprise to the court. A direct appeal to the leniency of Judge Winchester doing away with the lengthy argument that had been expected.

His honor began by referring to the charge as a most serious one, and declining to give credence to the claim that the false returns were unintentionally made. He believed that the prisoner had created subsidiary companies after the City Realty Co., to conceal the true position of the York Loan. Phillips knew the statement of mortgages was to deceive the government, to deplete the assets, so that the prisoner could safely do anything but plead guilty.

The facts were clear that all the charges paid to canvassers, etc., were of shown as a liability, they should have been.

The evidence shows that Phillips stermined to make ventures on his own account with the money of the York County Loan Company. Many were not aware that Phillips was getting large blocks of stock in the Toronto Life, Lisgar Piano Company, etc., and depleting the assets of the York Loan.

The judge understood the company had secured about $58,000 in shares of the Toronto Life, and Mr. Jones claimed credit should be given for this. The judge thought the Crown had done so by withdrawing the theft and conspiracy charges.

"It was not until long after police court proceedings were taken against you that you made restitution," commented his honor.

"If a person who has ill-gotten gains and has to hand it over, if that makes the case better, it is a serious thing for the community, and any honest lawyer would at once use his talents to hand over any ill-gotten gains," he added.

"There were about 120,000 poor people, servant girls, widows and others, who put their savings into this company and had been disappointed. Had Phillips taken them into his confidence and asked them to wind up the company when the government took away the legacy, he would have escaped these charges.

"The evidence shows you were using the funds of the company for the shareholders could not have reached them if you had succeeded. All these frauds must be punished if the public is to be protected.

"The charge is a most serious one. Our business institutions must be carried on with all honor and honesty. In this you have failed.

"I will only pass sentence on the false statement to which you have pleaded guilty, but I have considered all the others and the fullest penalty of the law should be inflicted. You will be imprisoned in the penitentiary for five years," concluded the judge.

J. E. Jones, counsel for the prisoner, said, in defence of Phillips, that it was amply evident that the government returns did not call for statements of shares in a manner which was possibly the wisest for the shareholder. Items of expense chargeable against holdings were not called for. The attention of the auditor, Mr. Cross, had been called, to this condition of things.

As to the liabilities of the company, no one, not even the liquidator, had an accurate idea. The latter, in order to be safe, had recognized every claim, no matter how ridiculous, as a liability.

The conduct of Phillips was worthy of consideration. His behavior in the matter was known to all, and to the crown in detail.

Mr. Jones asked Crown Attorney Drayton to state to the court the crown's dealings with Phillips.

Judge Winchester interjected that there were two other charges, but Mr. Drayton replied that, in view of the action taken by the prisoner he would not take up the time of the court in pressing the other charges.

Mr. Drayton added that he had a letter from the attorney-general commending Phillips' act of restitution, and that in any case where the prisoner had made restitution to any extent he always considered it his duty to call attention to any favorable circumstances.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"My Wife's Family"

Stephens and Linton's merry musical farce comedy success, "My Wife's Family" was presented at the Grand Opera House, Saturday night, to a big audience. The piece is an uproariously funny musical mix-up, the irresistibly funny situations of which hinge upon side-splitting misunderstandings concerning a "baby," and a "piano." It is repete with sparkling song and dance, satire and catchy jokes. The whole house is kept in an uproar of laughter from start to finish of the presentation. The cast is a very acceptable one, including a number of good vaudeville specialties.

John G. McDowell and Harry Ellsworth make a splendid combination of musical dialogue and histrionic comedy; their automobiling turn brought down the house. The family trio—Willie, Dollie and Sally—are charming in vocal selections, their voices blending in beautiful harmony. One of the best numbers is that by John and Alice McDowell, a vocal duet, "Maybe You Will," in combination with a clean running dialogue of wit and humor, which calls for continued and demonstrative applause. This number is one of the funniest of funny offerings in a two hours and a half entertainment that makes one laugh whether they want to or not.

Football Officers Elected for Year

Annual Meeting of the Midland Football League.

On Saturday afternoon, in the Y. M.C.A., with President W. Mellroy in the chair, the annual meeting of the Midland Football League was held. Those present were Messrs. W. Mellroy, president; J. Sullivan, of this city, who represents Oshawa; B. T. Huston, Roy Best, representing the Quakers; Mr. Sperin, Omemee; H. Tribe and W. Butters, of Cobourg, and Dr. Morgan and T. J. Wallace.

Mr. J. Sullivan, the secretary, presented the annual report. There were two teams in the league last year, three intermediate and seven junior. The Quakers were the winners of both series. The finances are in a satisfactory condition, there being a small balance on hand. Mr. B. T. Huston was appointed auditor.

It was moved by Mr. B. T. Huston seconded by Mr. R. P. Best, that the Midland League form a senior and intermediate series. This motion was unanimously carried.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Hon. President—Mr. J. R. Stratton
Hon. President—Dr. Burnham.
President—Mr. W. Mellroy.
1st Vice-President—Mr. Butters, Cobourg.
2nd Vice-President—Dr. Devitt.

Mr. Jack Sullivan was appointed delegate to the annual meeting of the Ontario Football Association, which meets in Toronto on Easter Monday.

Roller Skating Rink Will Open Friday

It now looks as though the Charlotte street roller rink, which did a flourishing business and attaiedn such popularity last summer, will open once more on Good Friday, when the merry rattle of the little flying wheels and the merry laughter of bright-faced girls and boys and their elders will resound throughout that large building. On Friday last a gang of men commenced removing the ice from the rink, and had practically cleared the floor on Saturday. The floor has not been injured by the ice and will be in shape for skating in a couple of days. Some improvements have to be made before the rink can be opened for skating, so that it is not expected that everything will be in perfect condition on Friday.

First Game for the Stanley Cup

Wanderers Defeat Kenora Thistles by a Score of 7-2.

As Whitcroft, formerly one of Peterborough's star hockey players, has joined and is playing with the Kenora team, much interest has been taken in the game played Saturday night between the Kenoras and the Wanderers of Montreal.

This game which was the first of a series for the Stanley Cup, was played on the Winnipeg ice before a large audience. The Montrealers won out by a score of 7—2.

The rush for tickets on Saturday was so great the rink authorities put up the price of admission to $1 a ticket. Both the Kenoras and the Wanderers were so indignant over this hold-up on the public, they brought two policemen to the rink and stopped the sale of tickets which were then reduced to $1 and $2 each. Five hundred rooters were present from Kenora; Brandon and Portage la Prairie also sent strong delegations. The ice was fairly good notwithstanding the mild weather. The final possession will be settled tonight, when the combined scores of the two nights' play will establish who gets the silverware.

Rector's Daughter Climbed Steeple

London, March 23. — Miss Penny, daughter of the rector of the Collegiate church of St. Peter's Wolverhampton, has achieved the steeple jack feat of climbing to the top of the tower of her father's church.

The building is a historic one, dating back to the eleventh century, and during the last few weeks, restoration work has been proceeding on the tower. On several occasions Miss Penny has accompanied the architect up the scaffolding as far as the roof in order to inspect some quaint gargoyles, and on Saturday she undertook a more perilous adventure.

In the presence of a large crowd of anxious onlookers she climbed by means of a rope ladder to the top of the tower, a distance of 250 feet. On reaching the top rung, she placed one arm round the supporting pillar of the weathercock, and after turning round and obtaining a bird's-eye view of the surrounding district, commenced her descent.

Miss Penny afterwards stated that the object of her climb was to inspect the sculptural work at close quarters. She also expressed regret that owing to the shortness of the top ladder she had failed in her ambition to touch the weather vane itself.

Good Shooting Saturday Night

Much interest was taken in the shooting match held Saturday night in Messrs. Yeates' Brothers' gallery, George street. This match covered three classes of shooting, viz., with rest, off hand and shooting on the fly. The prize in each contest was a fine turkey. The result was as follows; Rest won by Mr. Bycott, who made 24, off-hand and fly shooting, each of which were won by J. Simmons, who made 24 in each case.

Murder Caused by Criticism

Carmi, Ill., March 24.—Rehearsal of closing exercises at a country school house near here yesterday ended in a tragedy and the arrest of a farmer for the murder of a man who had been his friend and neighbor for years.

George Nicholson and John Kurd were seated together, listening to and criticizing the recitations given by the children. Both had little daughters taking part in the program, and there was no hint of trouble until Nicholson's little girl started to say her piece.

Kurd made a remark on her nervousness, which Nicholson resented, and in a moment both men were quarrelling. Nicholson drew a revolver, and, pressing it against Kurd's side, fired. Kurd died instantly.

Heat From Ashes

Altoona, Pa., March 24.—John Ellmore, a shoemaker of this place, claims to have made a discovery that will revolutionize the whole problem of producing heat, namely, a method of burning ashes. A practical demonstration has convinced skeptics and shown that he can actually make ashes burn.

Ellmore is carefully guarding his secret, and has applied for patent rights. His process is very simple. He takes ten parts of ashes to one part of coal and over this sprinkled a small quantity of a compound which causes the combustion. He says that for 25 cents sufficient of this compound can be prepared to last an ordinary family one winter. He says his discovery was not an accident. His father before him had conceived the possibility of obtaining heat from ashes, but had not lived to demonstrate it.

O'Brien Buries Hatchet

London, March 24.—William O'Brien, Nationalist member of the house of commons for Cork, has announced his intention of resenting himself from the present session of parliament, in order to avoid further friction with the Irish party, which has now virtually accepted the government's proposals for Irish legislation. Thus there is no longer any serious divergence. Mr. O'Brien explains, between himself and the party. It is understood further that Mr. O'Brien and his friends have decided to drop all pending litigation with the followers of John E. Redmond.

Mass Meeting in Opera House a Huge Success

The mass meeting in the Opera house on Sunday afternoon under the uspices of the local assembly of Brotherhood of St. Andrew, was a success in every way and demonstrated that the three city Anglican churches are drawing together in closer unity in their work for the Master. The Grand was crowded and the gallery had to be opened up to accommodate the overflow, which was not anticipated. Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, of St. Luke's, presided, supported by Captain Davidson, of St. John's, and Rev. Wm. Major, of All Saints. The united choirs and church wardens of the Anglican churches, occupied the stage, together with the speakers. The opera house orchestra and the choirs were directed by Mr. Richard J. Devey, choirmaster of St. John's in a very efficient manner. The hymns sung were those of a well-known character, and the big building resounded with sacred melody. "The Palms," by R. A. Mesux, was very beautifully rendered by Miss Helen Davies. Mr. Geo. Chandler, of St. John's choir, was in splendid tenor voice, as evidenced by his highly commendable rendition of "Ye People Rend Your Hearts," from "Elijah."

Mr. Jos. P. Cleal, of Toronto, gave a very interesting and appropriate address, in the course of which he pointed that a true patriot could not consistently ignore Christianity, the foundation upon which the phenomenal civilizing success of the Anglo-Saxon race rests. He urged his hearers to see to it that they presented the true ring of manhood, which is only attained by an exemplification of the precepts of religion and the church.

Rev. Wm. Major read the lesson and prayers, while Rev. Canon Davidson and Rev. E. A. Langfeldt both gave addresses fitting to the occasion.

The meeting was one of the biggest and most successful of its kind ever attempted, and considerable credit is due the Brotherhood of St. Andrew for their efforts in this direction.

A collection was taken at the door to defray the expenses connected with this mass meeting, which are somewhat heavy, and which rest upon the shoulders of the Brotherhood, an organization enjoying no revenue whatever excepting the voluntary offerings of its members.

NAVAL DISASTERS OF THE CENTURY

Accidents Cause Immense Loss of Life.

BRITAIN SUFFERS MOST

The Battleship Victoria Was Probably Greatest Loss.

London, March 25.—Among the great naval disasters recorded during the past century were: The Queen Charlotte, a frigate of 110 guns, was destroyed by fire off Leghorn, on March 17, 1800, and of the crew of 859, 673 were lost.

The invincible, a frigate of 74 guns, was wrecked off the coast near Yarmouth on March 15, 1801, and of the crew of 590 more than 400 perished.

The Venerable, another 74-gun frigate, was wrecked at Boundem Head, on November 24, 1804.

The Maria was one of a large number of the 10-gun brigs that were lost from time to time, not a soul being saved. She foundered at sea in 1807, and no one survived. These 10-gun brigs were built during the war between England and France, much after the manner of the 90-day gunboats of the American navy, and were almost all unfit for sea. A large number of them foundered in ordinary stormy weather, involving a terrible loss of life. From their tendency to turn bottom upward they were called turtles, hence the term "turning turtle" in the marine vocabulary.

The Martin seems to have been an unlucky name for Britain's navy, for three of them—of 16, 18, and 20 guns, respectively—foundered; one in 1799, another in 1846, and the third in 1858, not a soul being saved. The fatality which followed the 10-gun brigs also seems to have attended the 16 and 18-gun sloops, judging from the fatality list of England.

The 64-gun frigate Athenean was wrecked near Cape Bon on October 20, 1806, and 260 lives were lost.

The Java, a 32-gun vessel, foundered off the Island of Rodriguez, Indian Ocean, in February, 1807, and not a soul was saved.

The Magicienne, a 36-gun vessel, was wrecked in an engagement with the French off Mauritius on August 23, 1810.

The 74-gun frigate Minotaur was wrecked off the mouth of the Texel, December 27, 1810, and of a crew of 640 more than 480 were lost.

On the coast of Jutland, on December 24, 1811, the 98-gun frigate St. George and two 74-gun frigates—the Defence and the Hero—foundered in a tempest. Of the total number of people on the three ships (about 1,800), not twenty were saved.

The frigate Atalanta was wrecked on Sambro Island on November 10, 1813.

The Delight, a 16-gun brig, foundered in a hurricane near Mauritius on February 23, 1824, and not a soul of the crew of seventy-five was saved.

The frigate Aveuger was wrecked in the Mediterranean on December 20, 1817, and only four of the crew of nearly 300 escaped drowning.

The Raleigh, a 50-gun ship, was wrecked on the south-east coast of Macao on April 14, 1857.

One of the most mysterious disasters of the British navy was the loss of the turreted ironclad Captain. She was capsized and foundered off Cape Finisterre, Spain, on September 7, 1870, and only seventeen escaped of nearly 500 on board.

On September 1, 1875, the cruiser Vanguard was run into and sunk by the ironclad Iron Duke.

Less than a year afterward, on July 14, 1876, one of the boilers of the battleship Thunderer exploded, when forty-five of the crew were killed outright, and about fifty were more or less injured. The same vessel exploded one of her 38-ton guns on February 12, 1880, when ten of the crew were killed and forty or more wounded.

On March 24, 1878, the training ship Eurydice foundered in a gale off the Isle of Wight, when 300 lives were lost.

On March 6, 1889, the ironclad Sultan was wrecked by running ashore on the Malteve group.

One of the most remarkable and almost unaccountable disasters in the British navy was that of the battleship Victoria, which was sunk by collision with the battleship Camperdown on June 22, 1893. Of the people on board there were nearly 400 lost, including Admiral Tryor.

Bull Pups on Guard.

New York, March 23. — Two bull pups in possession of a meter put a flight all the employes of the Consolidated Gas Company, who ventured into the cellar of the building at No. 8 West Third street yesterday. The court ordered the owner to let the inspector see the meter. Leaving the room the man said to the inspector; "I'll obey the court. Let us know when you will call and I'll have the dogs ready to receive you politely."

SOCIALISM AS A PRACTICAL FORCE

Two series of lectures on socialism recently delivered by W. H. Mallock in New York has served to revive the study of sociological problems. Gaylord Wilshire, as the leading theological socialist of the metropolis, undertook the task of replying to Mr. Mallock's lectures in detail, so that between the two the public is enabled to get a very fair idea of the rival doctrines of the individualist and the collectivists.

Mr. Mallock contends that capitalism is necessary to organize industry and that human efforts can be stimulated to do its best only by varying rewards for individual service. Hence the equalising of conditions would result in laziness and stagnation.

To this Mr. Wilshire replies, in effect, that if the sordin incentive were removed and if all men could be relieved of the haunting fear of want, the higher motives would have freer play, and that patriotism, duty, honor, love of approbation, benevolence and the joy of service would supply a sufficient motive power.

These are the practical contentions. The question of abstract justice—as to whether it is fair that superior ability should receive a higher reward or wage; whether the capitalist is fairly entitled to any unearned increment, could easily be adjusted by the moral preceptions of the community if they were satisfied as to which system affords the best working basis for civilised society.

We know that individualism and the competitive system enables us to live—after a fashion, not perfectly, not without much dissatisfaction, suffering and injustice; but with some progress. It is generally admitted that, on the whole, the world is growing better.

Would the betterment be more rapid under the new system? That is the puzzling question. There are doubts. These doubts stand like an adamantine wall athwart the universal adoption of socialism in government. The majority of people feel that it is better to endure the ills we have than fly to others that we know not of. The more especially as we know that the ills that afflict our governmental structure are in process of gradual amendment.

Socialism as a political force has not made any effective progress for many years. Its doctrines have filled much space in the newspapers; but on the whole it has gained no seats in legislatures, congresses, parliaments or reichstags. It is no nearer the control of any civilized state than it was half a century ago.

Socialistic theories are fascinating to people of vivid imaginations and benevolent dispositions, but to the plain and practical they are rather terrifying. When one looks back and perceives that the whole world has been licked into shape by attrition; that human development has been largely the product of competition and strife; that the elemental forces of nature are still at war, he is led to wonder if it ever has designed that man should be perfectly at rest in his mind any more than in his body.

To remove all of the anxiety of the struggle for existence would bring peace, but would it be the peace of contentment or stagnation? The instinctive answer to this question accounts in large measure for the survival of individualism as the practical force in government, industry and sociology.

Bought Seal Coat U. S. Customs Seized

Port Huron, Mich., March 23.—A romance of a year ago, in which a pretty Canadian actress and a prominent physician from Brantford, Ont., were the principals, and in which the United States Government played an active part, has come to light. The woman, who gave her name as Mrs. Hamilton, and her home as Brantford, was crossing over the border with her fiance of the same place. She had a sealskin coat, valued at nearly $400, and refused to pay the duty on it, whereupon it was seized by the officials. Nothing more was heard of the matter until yesterday, when the Government held a sale of smuggled goods, when a Sarnia young man appeared on behalf of the Brantford lady, now married, and outbid all competitors, until he secured the coat for $200. Although the coat thus cost her nearly $800 now she believes she has got satisfaction out of the United States Customs for once.

Plain Words.

Freeman, the historian, it was said, was apt to grow irritable over matters of intellectual difference. One day he was at the Macmillans' when the conversation turned upon the subject of Ireland. Mr. Macmillan said that, for his part, he was in favor of granting autonomy.

Whereupon Freeman began to growl at the use of a Greek word.

"Why can't you speak English," demanded he, "and say home rule instead of speaking Greek, which you don't know?"

One of the guests flushed with anger and ventured to reprove Freeman, calling his attention to the respect due their host and at the same time paying tribute to Mr. Macmillan's remarkable abilities. But, although Freeman did not apologize in so many words, he smoothed the matter over by a humorous repetition of his criticism. Later some one mentioned gout. "There you go again!" exclaimed Freeman. "Why can't we call it toe woe?"

The Wings of Time.

Mathematics was walking in the garden.

"My goodness," he exclaimed suddenly, "there's another flower on that century plant! Why, it seems but yesterday since I plucked a blossom from it."

He walked slowly toward an oak tree 200 years old which he had tenderly raised from an acorn.

"Ah, me," he mused, "how time flies!"—Harper's Weekly.

The Larger Class.

"Of course," said the speaker after knowledge, "we seldom hear 'thee' and 'thee' nowadays. They're used mostly by poets, aren't they?"

"No," replied the editor; "they're used mostly by people who think they're poets."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Prudence.

Dentist—I've filled all your teeth that have cavities, sir. Mahoney—Well, thin, fill th' rist av thim too. Thin whin th' cavities come they'll be already filled, b'gobs!—Puck.

Don't judge a man by his failures in life, for many a man fails because he is too honest to succeed.—Arkadelphia (Ark.) Southern Standard.

18 British Ships Lost During Winter

Boston, Mass., March 23.—A total of 199 lives and 54 ships have been sacrificed to the storms and treacherous coasts of New England and the Maritime Provinces for the winter just ended, according to the statistics compiled by the Associated Press. The long list of dead is swollen out of all proportion to those of many previous years by the sinking of the steamer Larchmont, with an estimated loss of 150 lives.

As usual the Nova Scotia coast has proved the most disastrous to shipping this year, claiming 16 vessels, but Newfoundland was not far behind, with 14 craft. The American coastwise fleet was the heaviest loser, with 35 ships and 175 lives, while the British loss was 18 ships and 24 lives.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

Not a drop of Alcohol

Doctors prescribe very little, if any, alcohol these days. They prefer strong tonics and alteratives. This is all in keeping with modern medical science. It explains why Ayer's Sarsaparilla is now made entirely free from alcohol. Ask your doctor.

We have no secrets! We publish the formulas of all our preparations. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

CROMWELL'S HORSES.

An Accident That Befell the Protector in Hyde Park.

"As Cromwell rose in power and rank his love of horses began to be more conspicuous," says a writer in Blackwood's. "When he started from London in 1649 to reconquer Ireland he went forth in that state and equipage as the like hath hardly been seen, himself in a coach with six gallant Flanders mares, reddish gray." In 1655, when the Spanish ambassador took his leave of the lord protector, Cromwell sent him "his own coach of six white horses" to convey him to and from Whitehall. "Certain it is," adds the narrator, "that none of the English kings had ever any such."

The protector was not much of a whip, however. In 1654 the Count of Oldenburg sent Cromwell a present of six horses, and the protector's anxiety to make trial of their quality led to his well known adventure in Hyde park. On Friday, Sept. 29, he went with Secretary Thurloe and some of his gentlemen to take air in the park, ordered the six horses to be harnessed to his coach, put Thurloe inside of it and undertook to drive himself. "His highness," said a letter from the Dutch ambassador, "drove pretty handsomely for some time, but at last, provoking those horses too much with the whip, they grew unruly, whereby his highness was flung out of the coach box upon the ground. His foot getting hold in the tackling, he was carried away a good while in that posture, but at last he got his foot clear and so came to escape. He was presently brought home and let blood and after some rest taken is now well again. The secretary, being hurt on his ankle with leaping out of the coach, hath been forced to keep his chamber hitherto and been unfit for any business."

The royalist Scroggs, afterward chief justice, writing of this incident, hoped that the next fall would be from a cart—hinting at the gallows. As to Cromwell's views on the burning question of horse racing it is difficult to arrive at a positive conclusion. His constant aim was to possess as many good horses as he could afford. Whether he entered his horses for races or had the satisfaction of owning a winner history does not say.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

The only thing some people always have ready is an excuse.

Almost any one can be induced to lie if you ask enough questions.

The better you behave the better you get along. It's old, but it's true.

A man nobody can quarrel with has the life problem reasonably well solved.

Lack of opportunity has to stand as an excuse for a lot of general shiftlessness.

The trouble with some people lies in the fact that they consider their faults their misfortunes.

Are you among those who treat their new acquaintances better than they treat their old friends?

If a man has plenty of money to back up a lot of fool notions, people call him eccentric, but if he only has the notions he is a crank.

Tamed the Box Office Man.

A theater box office man whose seats were all sold days ahead was turning away disappointed patrons more than grumly when a man who had watched the process with glowing ire reached the window. "Selling any more seats this season?" he began. The ticket seller answered with a stare. The question, quietly but firmly repeated, finally received an affirmative answer. "Give me two." "When?" growled the seller, recovering. "Any time," said the man. The seller was almost too crushed to ask. "Where?" "Anywhere," replied the man. "How much?" whispered the seller, his voice deserting him. "Any price," said the man. The tickets were transferred in an overwhelmings, and the line of purchasers that had overheard smiling benignantly at the noticeably tamed man in the cage.

Antiquity of Proverbs.

Proverbs existed long before books. In the earliest times they served as the unwritten language of morality and have been passed down through the generations. In Africa there are numerous quaint proverbs. Among them are: "He who dives on dry land will scarcely his face." "Two people cannot sit down upon the point of the same thorn at the same time." In the Transvaal the proverb, "Beware of a silent man; he has a brass head in his mouth," is often heard.

Holmes on Shelley.

Shelley vapeurized everything in his glowing crucible, but there was gold at the bottom of it. When I look at him spreading the starry wings of his fancy over his chaotic philosophy he seems like a seraph hovering over the unfathomable chasm, whose blackness is the abode of demons.—"Autocrat of the Breakfast Table."

Her Reasoning.

Wife (at the costumer's)—Which shall I have—this coat at 40 marks or that one at 70? Husband—I have only 40 marks with me. Wife—Oh, well, then, we'll buy the seventy mark coat on credit, and then you can buy me a hat with the 40 marks.

Crushed.

"If I could only die and leave you well off," he said after they had had their first quarrel, "I would be glad to go."

"Now," she cruelly asked, "could you die and leave me otherwise than well off?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Snow and Rain.

The first man to whom it ever occurred to find out how much rain was represented by a given fall of snow was Alexander Brice of Kirkwynton, who in March, 1783, made a simple experiment with the contents of a stone jug driven face downward into over six inches of snow. What he learned was that a greater or less degree of cold or of wind when the snow falls and its "lying a longer or shorter time on the ground" will occasion a difference in the weight and in the quantity of water produced, "but if," he added, "I may trust to the above trials, which I endeavored to perform with care, snow newly fallen, with a moderate gale of wind, freezing cold, will produce a quantity of water equal to one-tenth part of its bulk." So that a fall of snow of ten inches represents a rainfall of one inch.—London Chronicle.

The Adder.

A full grown adder may measure two feet in length and about six inches around the thickest part of its body. Its movements are sluggish, and of course the idea that it is capable of transferring its head from one extremity to the other every six months is due simply to superstition. The fact is that the tail of this snake does not terminate in a point, as with ophidians generally, but is stumpy and resembles the head so much that it is difficult for an observer situated at a distance of a few yards to distinguish one from the other; hence the story of its being two headed, the falsity of which no intelligent observer would fail to detect.—Pioneer.

Courtesy.

The parvenu stood it till he could stand it no longer.

"James," he cried out piteously, "tell me the worst! You find my table manners execrable?"

But his new butler, bowing first with stately condescension, only replied:

"As a matter of professional courtesy Hi cannot entertain, much less hexpress, hany hopinion which might seem in hanyway to reflect on my predecessor 'ere."

And he bowed again and was silent.—Puck.

Some Notes on "Origins."

"Humpty Dumpty Sat on a Wall," etc., has come down to us from the days of King John. "The Babes In the Wood" dates from the fifteenth century, being founded upon facts, an old house near Wayland Wood, Norfolk, having the whole story in carvings on a mantelpiece. "Little Jack Horner," "Little Miss Muffett," "Old Mother Hubbard," "Mother Goose" and "Goosey, Goosey Gander," are each traceable to the sixteenth century. "Pussy Cat, Pussy Cat, Where Have You Been?" belongs to the reign of Queen Elizabeth. "Three Blind Mice" first appeared in a music book dated 1609. "A Froggie Would a-Wooing Go" was licensed to be sung as far back as 1650. "Boys and Girls Come Out to Play" and "Lucy Locket Lost Her Pocket" both hail from the period of Charles II. And last of all, "Cinderella," "Jack the Giant Killer," "Bluebeard" and "Tom Thumb" were published by their author, Charles Perrault, in the year 1697.—London Notes and Queries.

An Impression.

"Did that lawyer get a clear view of the case?" inquired the litigant's friend.

"No. I'm afraid he didn't. I told him at first he was about money, and then I tried to keep him preceding on the theory that by believing me of my money he would cause the trouble to disappear."

With Edged Tools

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN
Author of "The Sowers," "Roden's Corner," "From One Generation to Another," Etc.

Copyright, 1896, by HARPER & BROTHERS

"Yes, sir," he said, "I've got it. I've laid my hand on it at last. I've always been on its track. That has been my little game all the time. I did not tell you when we met out there, because I was afraid I should never find it and because I wanted to keep quiet about it."

Guy Oscard was looking out of the window across to the dull houses and chimneys that formed his horizon, and in his eyes there was the longing for a vaster horizon, a larger life.

"I have got a partner," continued Durnovo, "a good man, Jack Meredith, son of Sir John Meredith. You have, perhaps, met him."

"No," answered Oscard, "but I have heard his name, and I have met Sir John, the father, once or twice."

"He is out there," went on Durnovo, "getting things together quietly. I have come home to buy rifles, ammunition and stores."

He paused, watching the eager, simple face.

"We want to know," he said quietly, "if you will organize and lead the fighting men."

Guy Oscard drew a deep breath.

"Then there is to be fighting?"

"Yes," said Durnovo; "there will be fighting. We must fight our way there and we must hold it when we get there. But so far as the world is concerned, we are only a private expedition exploring the source of the Ogowe."

"The Ogowe?" and again Guy Oscard's eyes lighted up.

"Yes. I do not mind telling you that much. To begin with, I trust you. Secondly, no one could get there without me to lead the way."

"How long will it take?" asked Guy.

Durnovo tugged at his strange, curtain-like mustache. His mouth was hidden. It was quite impossible to divine his thoughts.

"Three months to get there," he answered at length, "one month to pick the leaf, and then you can bring the first crop down to the coast and home, while Meredith and I stay on at the plateau."

"I could be home again in eight months?"

"Certainly. We thought that you might work the sale of the stuff in London, and in a couple of years or so, when the thing is in swing, Meredith will come home. We can safely leave the cultivation in native hands when once we have established ourselves up there and made ourselves respected among the tribes."

"I suppose," Guy said after a pause, "that there is the question of money?"

"Yes; Meredith and I have talked that over. The plan we fixed upon was that you and he each put a thousand pounds into it; I put five hundred. For the first two years we share the profits equally. After that we must come to some fresh arrangement should you or Meredith wish to give up an active part in the affair. I presume you would not object to coming up at the end of the year with a handy squad of men to bring down the crop under escort?"

"No," responded Oscard after a moment's reflection. "I should be able to do that."

"I reckon," continued the other, "that the journey down could be accomplished in two months, and each time you do the trip you will reduce your time."

"Yes."

"Of course," Durnovo went on, with the details which he knew were music in Oscard's ears—"of course we shall be a clumsy party going up. We shall have heavy loads of provisions, ammunition and seeds for cultivating the land up there."

"Yes," replied Guy Oscard absently. In his ears there rang already the steady plash of the paddle, the weird melancholy song of the boatman, the music of the wind amid the forest trees.

Durnovo rose briskly.

"Then," he said, "you will join us? I may telegraph out to Meredith that you will join us?"

"Yes," replied Oscard simply. "You may do that."

"There is no time to be lost," Durnovo went on. "Every moment wasted adds to the risk of our being superseded. I sail for Loango in a fortnight Will you come with me?"

"Yes."

When Durnovo had gone Guy sat down and wrote to Lady Cantourne accepting her invitation to spend a few days at Cantourne Place, on the Solent. He explained that his visit would be in the nature of a farewell, as he was about to leave for Africa for a little big game hunting.

* * * * * * *

Miss Millicent Chyne was walking on the sea wall at the end of the garden with Guy Oscard. One of the necessary acquirements of a modern educational outfit is the power of looking perfectly at home in a score of different costumes during the year, and, needless to say, Miss Chyne was perfectly finished in this art. The manner in which she wore her sailor hat, her blue serge and her neat brown shoes conveyed to the onlooker, and especially the male of that species (we cannot in conscience call them observers), the impression that she was a yachtswoman born and bred. Her delicate complexion was enhanced by the faintest suspicion of sunburn and a few exceedingly becoming freckles. There was a freedom in her movements which had not been observed in London drawing rooms. This was Diana-like and in perfect keeping with the dainty sailor outfit; moreover, nine men out of ten would fail to attribute the difference to sundry cunning strings within the (London) skirt.

"It is sad," Millicent was saying, "to think that we shall have no more chances of sailing. The wind has quite dropped, that horrid tide is running, and this is your last day."

She ended with a little laugh, knowing full well that there was little sentiment in the big man by her side.

"Really," she went on, "I think I should be able to manage a boat in time, don't you think so? Please encourage me. I am sure I have tried to learn."

"I do not know if you have learned much," he answered; "but I have."

"What have you learned?" she asked in a low voice, half fascinated by the danger into which she knew that she was running.

"That I love you," he answered, standing squarely in front of her and announcing the fact with a deliberate honesty which was rather startling. "I was not sure of it before, so I stayed away from you for three weeks; but now I know for certain."

"Oh, you mustn't say that!"

Feats Performed by Chinese and East Indian Magicians.

"During a trip through the far east I was much impressed with the wonderful feats performed by some of the Chinese and Indian jugglers and sleight of hand artists," said a Chicago man the other day. "In American theaters we see some skillful work along these lines, but the performer is usually at a considerable distance from the spectators and could employ many aids that the orientals do not use.

"I have seen Chinese and Indian magicians come on board a ship and in the center of a circle of passengers perform tricks that are little short of marvelous. For instance, one of the Chinese would ask a spectator to place a coin in the latter's hand. The Chinaman would close the fingers one after another over the piece of money and then, by passing his hands over the closed fist of his "subject," would in some mysterious manner extract the coin. I have had this trick worked on me a number of times, and I am no nearer to knowing how it is done than I was the first time.

"Then I have seen an Indian magician come out on deck, place a small seed on the planks, pour a little water over it, cover with a small cloth for a moment and then remove the cloth to disclose a living plant a foot or more high. These fellows do not wear long, baggy sleeves in which a piano might almost be concealed, but have bare arms. There is said to be a clan of jugglers, among whom the secrets of the craft are jealously preserved and handed down from father to son."—Detroit Free Press.

DRESSED SEALSKIN.

The Way This Beautiful Fur Is Brought to Perfection.

If a lady's sealskin jacket be compared with the coarse, hard or dry-salted sealskin as imported, or, still better, with the coat of the living fur seals, one is struck with the vast difference between them.

Passing our fingers among the hairs of the cat or dog, we may notice fine short hairs at the roots of the longer, coarser general covering of the animal. This is so called under fur. But in the greater number of these animals the short hairs are so few and often so fine as to be, comparatively speaking, lost sight of among what to our eyes constitutes the coat.

The operation which the skin undergoes to bring out, so to say, the fur, may be briefly described as follows:

The skin, after being washed to rid it of grease and so forth, is laid flat on the stretch, flesh side up. A flat knife is then passed across the flesh substance, thinning it to a very considerable extent. In doing this, the blade severs the roots of the long strong hairs, which penetrate the skin deeper than do the soft, delicate ones under the fur. The rough hairs are then got rid of while the fur retains its hold.

A variety of subsidiary manipulations, in which the pelt is softened and preserved, are next gone through, and then the fur undergoes a process of dyeing which produces that deep uniform tint so well known and admired.

Von Bulow's Rebuke.

It so happened that two ladies were making their way to their seats at the very moment Von Bulow finished his introduction of the first movement of Beethoven's "Sonata Pathetic." This so irritated him that he purposely commenced the allegro at such an absurdly slow pace as to make the quavers in the bass correspond exactly to the time of the ladies' footsteps. As may be imagined, they felt on thorns and hurried on as fast as they could, while Von Bulow accelerated his tempo in sympathy with their increasing pace.—Barnett's Musical Reminiscences.

Debt Owed to Antiquity.

Are we indebted to antiquity? Yes, immensely. It is the labor, the experience, even the failures of ancestors, that have placed us where we are. We still repeat many of their mistaken experiments which they thought wise. It was tentative effort with them, though mistaken, and they did the best they knew. But, on the whole, the world is doing well. Its chief debt to antiquity is in the lessons it has learned through which it avoids or may avoid repetition of old errors and absurdities.—Portland Oregonian.

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. 33. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 15 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 20 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 80 acres of J. B. 32 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 5 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 20 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 50 feet, and in it shows 5 inch nicollite, 12 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 672-1233-492-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

Vulgar Fractions.

Everything that Bobby learned at school he endeavored to apply in his daily life and walk. When his mother asked him if one of his new friends was an only child Bobby looked wise and triumphant.

"He's got just one sister," said Bobby. "He tried to catch me when he told me he had two half sisters, but I guess I know enough fractions for that!".

The Reason For It.

"No," said the embittered person, "when I want financial assistance I go to strangers. I do not ask friends or relatives."

"Well," answered the logical man, "maybe that's the best way. Friends and relatives are in a position to keep posted on a man's record."

Severe Pains in the Groin

Trying Experience of a Well Known Citizen in St. John, N.B.

The case of Mr. Chas F. Olive, for years foreman in the "Gazette" of St. John, N. B., is a striking evidence of the power of Ferrozone.

No remedy has such a record for restoring sufferers from acute stomach and kidney trouble; it invariably does cure.

"For several years" writes Mr. Olive, "I have had kidney trouble and until quite recently I suffered torture. A few months ago my condition assumed a very serious form. I consulted several city doctors, used different pills, but without the slightest benefit. I suffered from an intense pain in the groin, and the increasing seriousness of my trouble prompted me to try Ferrozone. It gave me quick relief, and a half-a-dozen boxes cured. Ferrozone I can recommend as a specific for disordered kidneys."

Won't you try Ferrozone too, 50c. per box at all dealers in medicine.

Dr. Frederick Buys an Automobile

Mr. McPherson the Pioneer Auto Car Owner Makes This Sale.

On Saturday Mr. F. R. J. MacPherson concluded the sale of a new four-cylinder auto-car, with 18-horse power motor, and a speed capacity up to 40 miles an hour, to Dr. Frederick. The car will be delivered in about two weeks.

Mr. McPherson it will be remembered, was the pioneer of Peterborough auto-mobiling (if such a word may be allowed) having brought the first auto here, and has now been the first local agent to sell an auto.

Indian Run Amuok in Cobourg Jail

The Cobourg World says:—There was an exciting time at the new jail on Sunday evening. An Indian, named Rathburn, was lodged in jail on Saturday charged with stealing an overcoat and pair of gloves. He was committed to stand trial. It is supposed that the prisoner had been drinking heavily before his committal. He remained quiet until Sunday night when he seemed transformed into a raving maniac and began tearing the interior of the cell. He is a man of splendid physique, standing six feet high. His terrific warhoops could be heard a long way. Governor Snelgrove first ordered him to hand out the broken pieces which he had wrenched from the cell, and then to come out into the airing space, where he was securely locked until the padded cell could be got ready for him.

Big Lumber Cut by a Local Firm

The Bobcaygeon Independent says: The lumber camps are breaking up after a very fine winter's work, the weather having been most favorable for work in the woods. Mr. Jas. Powers was in the village this week, having closed his operations of jobbing for the Cavendish Co.

Local Agricultural Society Affected

The Agricultural Societies Act is to be amended in some particulars. Hon. Mr. Monteith, minister of agriculture has introduced an amendment which gives legal status to the agricultural societies at Mount Forest, Chesley, Peterbough, McKellar township and Forest. The clauses prohibiting horses racing at fairs is to be amended by providing that action can only be taken against the offending societies by the members of the then current year and the previous year.

Poor Fort Dodge Bachelors!

The city fathers of Fort Dodge, Ia., are determined to make the young men of that city commit matrimony. They even place more stringent penalties on men not married but who should be benedicts than the proposed tax on bachelors here. Any able bodied unmarried man, between 25 and 45 years, who is physically and mentally able to marry, must either hunt up a license issuer, jeweller and parson, not to omit a bride, or pay a fine of from $10 to $100. If Fort Dodge ladies have the voting privilege, the mover and seconder of their marriage bylaw, are certain of election.

C.G.E. Co. Installs Huge Plant

The Canadian General Electric Co. has completed a large order for the electrical apparatus used for conveying electrical power from Lac du Bonnet to the City of Winnipeg, a distance of some 65 miles, for the Winnipeg Electric Railway Company. This is one of the largest most modern, and best equipped water power installations in the Dominion, and enables the vast power generated by the Winnipeg River to turn thousands of wheels in the Prairie City. The complete cost of this great plant will amount to about $4,000,000, and will enable many new industries to operate there; that the high price of coal would otherwise embargo it prohibit.

Runaway at Central Park

What might have proved a serious accident occurred about noon Saturday when a team of horses attached to a light wagon, becoming startled by a passing street car at the Central Park turnout, ran away. Turning on to the pavement, their headlong flight was arrested by a telephone pole. One of the animals was somewhat injured, but the driver escaped unhurt.

COMMON SENSE

Leads most intelligent people to use only medicines of known composition. Therefore it is that Dr. Pierce's medicines, the makers of which print every ingredient entering into them upon the bottle wrappers and attest its correctness under oath, are daily growing in favor. The composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open to everybody, Dr. Pierce being desirous of having the search light of investigation turned fully upon his formulæ, being confident that the better the composition of these medicines is known the more will their great curative merits be recognized. Being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native forest roots, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used instead in extracting and preserving the curative virtues residing in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing harm by creating an appetite for either alcoholic beverages or habit-forming drugs. Examine the formula on their bottle wrappers—the same as sworn to by Dr. Pierce, and you will find that his "Golden Medical Discovery," the great, blood-purifier, stomach tonic and bowel regulator—the medicine which, while not recommended to cure consumption in its advanced stages (no medicine will do that) yet does cure all those catarrhal conditions of head and throat, weak stomach, torpid liver and bronchial troubles, weak lungs and hang-on-coughs, which, if neglected or badly treated lead up to and finally terminate in consumption.

Take the "Golden Medical Discovery" in time and it is not likely to disappoint you if only you give it a thorough and fair trial. Don't expect miracles. It won't do supernatural things. You must exercise your patience and persevere in its use for a reasonable length of time to get its full benefits. The ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed have the unqualified endorsement of scores of medical leaders—better than any amount of lay, or non-professional, testimonials. They are not given away to be experimented with but are sold by all dealers in medicines at reasonable prices.

ONTARIO HOSPITALS.

Annual Report of Dr. Smith, Inspector —Refers to Spread of Insanity and Our Psychopathic Needs.

Hon. W. J. Hanna laid before the Legislature the other day the annual report of Dr. Bruce Smith, inspector of hospitals and prisons. In the province, according to the report, there are 61 hospitals, 87 refuges, 30 orphanages, 3 homes for incurables, 2 convalescent homes, a Magdalen asylum, 25 county houses of refuge.

The number of patients in hospitals, Oct. 1, 1906, was 2,549; admitted during the year, 37,537; births, 1,764; total under treatment, 41,764; deaths, 2,429; percentage of deaths 5.79; provincial grant to hospitals, $110,000; from all sources, $1,001,089.13; subscriptions, donations, etc., $150,620.56; total expenditures (including capital account, $54,070.35) $1,238,289; average cost of patients, $1.08; percentage of provincial grant to total maintenance expenditure, 12 3-4 cents.

Dr. Smith notes that there has been considerable improvement in Toronto hospitals, but there is yet need of increased accommodation. The new general hospital will not be completed for four or five years, and by that time the population will be greatly increased.

The inspector hopes that every large hospital will soon have wards for psychopathic cases.

"The importance of the mission of the psychopathic hospital cannot be too highly extolled," he says. "We cannot shut our eyes to the fact that insanity is on the increase, and if we are to combat that advance success must be sought by adopting psychopathic measures. Toronto should have a large modern psychopathic hospital, separate and distinct, for the care and treatment of these acute cases, and where greatly needed clinical advantages might be afforded."

He speaks of the necessity for special hospitals or sanatoria for tuberculosis patients. Instances of cruel and heartless treatment may well suggest considering the advisability of statutory enactments compelling each county to take advantage of the act relating to the establishment of municipal sanatoria. The National Sanatorium Association deserves the greatest credit for the splendid work already accomplished, but it has blazed a path which must be followed and extended until every county in Ontario has established at some point within the county a sanatorium where its own cases may be cared for.

It is also suggested that an institution for the care of feeble-minded women would be a valued addition to the public charities of the province. There are in Ontario at least 600 feeble-minded women without proper custodial care.

Regarding houses of refuge, the report says:

"In several houses the beds were found unclean and not free from vermin. In many the bathing facilities were quite inadequate, and the inmates left altogether too much to themselves to see that their persons were kept clean. All these conditions could be remedied if sufficient help was employed."

"Orphanages, of which there are 30, with a population of 4,940 children, were not found to be so crowded."

Canadian Parents' Great Son.

Sixty years ago Feb. 11, 1907, Thos. Alva Edison, the "electrical wizard," was born in the little town of Milan, Ohio, of Canadian parents. At this time electricity was known, but known rather as a thing to fear than as a thing to use. At the age of 12 young Edison became a railroad newsboy, and began in his spare moments to experiment in chemistry. Gaining the exclusive right of selling newspapers on his line, and coming into possession of some old type, he began editing and publishing a paper of his own, The Grand Trunk Herald, the first newspaper to be printed on a train. A station-master became interested in the boy, and taught him telegraphy. It was Edison's initiation into the mysteries of electricity. He experimented with the machine and with the wonderful fluid, and soon succeeded in producing an automatic repeater by which messages could be sent from one wire to another without the intervention of the operator. His next invention, perfected while he was an operator at Boston, was his system of duplex telegraphy. The quadruplex and sextuplex systems followed later. In 1871 he invented the printing telegraph, or the broker's "ticker," and established a workshop at Newark for the manufacture of these instruments. His inventive faculties now got full play, and he turned out one invention after another in quick succession. His list of patents includes the megaphone, the phonograph, the carbon telephone transmitter, the incandescent light, the kinetoscope, various metallurgic methods and a number of improvements to steal railway motors. His inventions total over five hundred, and of these about a quarter refer to telegraphy.

Rich Verdure in October.

By Messrs. T. J. Potter, representing Ontario, and J. H. Sullivan, representing Quebec, the commissioners appointed to locate the boundary between the two provinces, the survey of that line has been completed to the 140th mile north of the head of Lake Temiskaming. The season's work of the party commenced at the 98th mile, and the 52 miles' progress was made by the beginning of last October. For the first 21 miles they found the land in the vicinity of the scene of their work suitable for agriculture. From the 101st to the 118th mile the hills forming the height of land prevailed, the territory was rolling, the soil not very promising. From the 131st mile the country was level, with a good clay soil, and the last nine miles of their journey was through a level, marshy area.

On Oct. 6th, on their return, when they arrived at the Hudson Bay post at Lake Abitibi, potatoes and garden flowers were quite green. Mr. Moberley, one of the engineers in charge of the Transcontinental Railway survey, gave them some samples of wheat, oats, and barley which he grew at White Fish River, a river flowing into the Abitibi Lake at the northeast corner.

WEDDING STATIONERY

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENTS are always in order. The season for the final result of being a disciple of Cupid finds expression in the Hymeneal ceremony at the altar—that occasion when "two hearts that beat as one" are joined together—pronounced one.

For this auspicious occasion the printing must be chastely dignified—must be appropriate in appearance to this one time of life when everything "best" is deaned—when happiness reigns supreme.

Marriage Announcements
Marriage Invitations
Marriage Reception Cards
Post Nuptial Reception Cards

All of these we are able to supply in a proper form and printed artistically. Our work is conducted under the supervision of skilled typographical mechanics and may be unhesitatingly presented to the most fastidious critic.

Our charges for such work are moderate—yet good printing is ever valuable. However, we give quality for our figures, and an order entrusted to our care will be speedily, carefully and satisfactorily executed.

No work can be well done which has to be done hurriedly. Time is necessary for the accomplishment of faultless printing. We will fulfil all expectations if given ample time for completion.

IS BRYCE BRINGING AUDACIOUS PROGRAM?

Seems Incredible that He Can be on His Way to Ottawa With Proposals Outlined in New York Paper.

Ottawa, March 26.—The correspondence published by the New York Evening Post as embodying the proposals of U.S. Secretary of State Root on matters now outstanding between the U.S. and Canada may, indeed, embody the views of the American Cabinet upon these questions, but Canadian public men of both political parties will be very sorry to think that they represent also the judgment of Hon. James Bryce, the British Ambassador, upon these issues, for with very few exceptions they embody proposals far from acceptable to this country.

The statement, however, that Mr. Bryce and Mr. Root are in substantial agreement upon them, lends even added interest to the proposed visit of the former to the Canadian capital this week. One thing is certain, if any such understanding has been reached, the views and the wishes of the Canadian Premier and Cabinet have not yet been sought upon the subject.

VIOLATES A TREATY.

The Root suggestion that the two countries accord to Atlantic fishermen the same treatment as is given to other lines of business, ignores the plain treaty rights by which Canadians are granted to the sole use of their own coasts as bases for prosecuting the valuable fisheries adjacent thereto.

The proposal that the Dominion should discriminate in her customs rates in favor of the United States against Great Britain, and the modified proposal for the free entry of American manufacturers into our markets, are alike absurd. There has been no evidence that our neighbors are yet prepared to negotiate trade matters on what Canadians would regard as anything like reasonable terms, and no other Canadian public man would be willing to throw away time and money on the discussion of the subject on any such basis as Mr. Root now proposes.

ANOTHER ABSURD IDEA.

As to the remark in the New York Post correspondence, that the deepening of the St. Lawrence canal system would enable us to bring British gunboats to the great lakes. It must be qualified to this extent, that there is no vessel in the effective list of the British navy today capable of passing through these canals that could not be knocked to pieces by gunfire from the shore, for the largest arms that any vessel of this type mount is the 4.7 gun. If our neighbors desire a modification of the Convention of 1817, so as to permit their building war vessels on the great lakes, to be transported through the canals to the seaboard, Canada will have no objection to offer. In fact, we have already lent the use of our canals under these circumstances.

The cessation of pelagic sealing, too might be accomplished if our neighbors are willing to pay the price.

ANNOYS CANADIANS.

Some of the other proposals attributed to Mr. Root in this New York Post correspondence are of comparatively little consequence, but what will annoy Canadians is that Mr. Bryce should make himself the bearer of a programme of such preposterous character, and if the statement of his doing so had come from less reliable quarters than the New York Evening Post, Canadians would not be inclined to treat the matter even seriously. But as it is, they cannot shut their eyes to the fact that the Post is very likely to have been well informed in these matters, and that the proposals therein suggested have been actually presented.

DOOMED TO FAILURE.

In any case, if this published forecast of Mr. Bryce's mission to Ottawa is correct, it is foredoomed to failure.

The Ottawa Free Press, in commenting on the matter, observes that "If the Imperial Government is willing to be the bearer of such terms as those ascribed to Mr. Root, the Canadian Premier might postpone his visit to the Colonial Conference, to take better care of interests committed to his care than in discussing Imperial proposals in London, where, apparently, Canadian interests are altogether secondary. If this statement of the proposals of the United States be correct, Mr. Root must have taken back to Washington quite a different idea of the ideals of the Canadian people than was generally expected. The very first of his propositions, that respecting the tariff, is twenty years behind the times. There was a period in this country when our people would have gone far to secure tariff concessions from the United States, but that time has gone. The twentieth century is Canada's century, and the Dominion is not now ready to sacrifice her national future for the sake of tariff concessions from Washington. The same may be said of others of the proposals outlined in the New York Post. That Mr. Root should have had the audacity to present such proposals to an ambassador of Great Britain would seem to confirm the view that Great Britain is ready to listen to any proposals which will secure the amity of the United States."

WILLIAM O'BRIEN DEAD

Death of One of Douro's Best Known Citizens.

Mr. William O'Brien, of Douro, passed away yesterday afternoon at five o'clock, at his home in that township. The deceased had been ill about two years, but it was only during the past ten or twelve months that serious symptoms of a cancerous nature developed.

Mr. O'Brien was for thirty-one years clerk of the township, and was recognized as an authority on municipal law and procedure. He leaves a wife and four grown up children.

The funeral arrangements will be announced in tomorrow's issue.

The Times joins in extending its hearty sympathy to Mrs. O'Brien and family in their irreparable loss.

GOOD NATURED AGAIN

Good Humor Returns with Change to Proper Food.

"For many years I was a constant sufferer from indigestion, and nervousness amounting almost to prostration," writes a Montana man.

"My blood was impoverished, the vision was blurred and weak, with moving spots before my eyes. This was a steady daily condition. I grew ill-tempered, and eventually got so nervous I could not keep my books posted, nor handle accounts satisfactorily. I can't describe my sufferings.

"Nothing I ate agreed with me, till one day, I happened to notice Grape-Nuts in a grocery store, and bought a package, out of curiosity to know what it was.

"I liked the food from the very first, eating it with cream, and now I buy it by the case and use it daily. I soon found that Grape-Nuts food was supplying brain and nerve force as nothing in the drug line ever had done or could do.

"It wasn't long before I was restored to health, comfort and happiness. Through the use of Grape-Nuts food my digestion has been restored, my nerves are steady once more, my eyesight is good again, my mental faculties are clear and acute, and I have become so good-natured that my friends are truly astonished at the change. I feel younger and better than I have for 20 years. No amount of money would induce me to surrender what I have gained through the use of Grape-Nuts food." Chicago's Holocaust in Minature

Cow Kicks Over a Lantern and Burns Down Farmer's Barn.

The Fenelon Falls Gazette of last issue has an article that, in miniature recalls the cause of Chicago's great fire some years ago, whereby Mrs. Murphy's cow kicking over a lamp, that city was practically wiped off the face of the prairie of Illinois. The article in question says;

On Monday evening last a fire occurred on Mr. Henry Sproule's farm near Red Rock in Verulam. Mrs. Sproule had gone with her children, to visit her father, Mr. Lancelot Junkin, two or three miles distant; and about seven o'clock, Mr. Sproule went to the barn to attend the live stock, before going to fetch his family home. Unfortunately he placed the lantern on the floor a little too close to one of the cows, which kicked it over, and some hay or straw caught fire. After stamping it all out, as he imagined, he hitched up his team, and started for his father-in-law's, but the fire was not out, and the barn was in flames a short time after Mr. Sproule left. Some neighbors assembled as quickly as possible; but not quickly enough to do any good.

The building which contained the vehicles and implements, stood near the house and escaped destruction, but the barn and some sheds were burned, together with the whole of their contents, which included nine cows, two calves and a quantity of hay and grain. We regret to learn that but little of the loss is covered by insurance.

Spring is Not Yet to be Depended on Reasons Why it is Not Right to Let Your Furnace go Out.

Any one wanting an outing and seeking the bucolic delights of a trip down the river can now take out one's canoe or skiff and get down the river as far as Crawford's Grove, as the ice is rapidly going into "innocuous desuetude." No guarantee however is given with this notice. That humming birds will be seen sipping honey from the still frozen jalk weeds, nor will swallows be flitting through the lambient air chasing stray mosquitoes in mistake for gnats or mosquitos. The lowing kine are still huddling round the moribund straw stacks, quietly cussing the citizens of Peterborough because they don't like turnip butter, and the good old farm yard dog "Shep" instead of, with ears erect and tail in air, chasing the elusive ground hog is trying to slip by the cook and crawl behind the kitchen stove. The farmer's boy, who for months has prayed for the time when he shall be able to walk under the tender verdure of the new-born spring foliage, beneath the Venus shot rays of the new moon with his Samantha June, is still busy patching up the barn and splitting rails for fencing in the north pasture field. No d—— this early spring business, it is a fraud and a delusion. Just because a few hibernating crows and a few misguided robins, show up a little early, this is no excuse for letting the furnace go out, and thereby piling dollars upon the doctors' counters for curing grippe acquired by trusting this freaking up of the ice and the early presence of fool birds.

New Dairy to Start in Peterborough

It seems that another industry is to be added to Peterborough's rapidly increasing family of such, and at an early date. As noted in a former issue of The Times, Sexsmith Bros. have recently purchased part of the Kincaid farm, situated some two miles south of the city, in North Monaghan, and they are about to start a 30-cow dairy. They have already secured a large number of customers and as soon as they can get their affairs straightened around they will put several wagons on the road and deliver milk to the citizens of Peterborough.

Body of Victim of the "Resolute" Found

Toronto, March 24.—What is supposed to be the body of Thomas Topping, of Deseronto, the second engineer of the ill-fated barge Resolute which went down at the eastern gap last November, was picked up in Toronto bay by Capt. Kingston of the tug Roy Mack, yesterday afternoon. The Roy Mack was breaking ice in the bay at the foot of John street, when the captain noticed the corpse imbedded in the ice. He put for the foot of John street and telephoned for the ambulance. The corpse was taken to the morgue.

Although the features are scarcely discernable, Michael Haney, the mate of the Resolute, is satisfied that the corpse is that of Topping, as is also Thomas Barratt of Toronto Junction.

Board of Health Met Yesterday

Sewer for the Dickson Company's Property Considered.

Yesterday morning, with Chairman William Eynes presiding, the local Board of Health held a somewhat important meeting.

Those present were Mayor McWilliams and Messrs. Hall, Schneider, Inspector Ball, and Medical Health Officer Dr. Bingham.

The first matter considered was a report from the city engineer re draining two sections of the city, as follows;

As requested, I have examined into the possibility of draining that part of Harvey street between Antrim and Smith streets, and find that by keeping the sewer close to the surface—not more than four feet deep—on Antrim street, it will be practicable to drain this section, and a part of Smith street, east and west of Harvey street.

T. A. S. HAY,
City Engineer.

Inspector Ball reported that the sewer of one of the houses in the neighborhood was connected with the river, which was very wrong.

It was moved that the Board recommend the council to construct a sewer on Harvey street.—Carried.

City Engineer T. A. S. Hay reported on the Dickson Co. property sewer as follows;

"The nearest approach to the sewer system by the road mentioned is on McDonnel street near Waterford, and on London street, 165 feet east of Harvey street, and on Water street at the intersection of Dublin and Water streets.

"The company's land on the north side of London street and west of Waterford, can be connected to London street sewer only at the west side of the lot, as London street falls rapidly from the east end of the sewer. The land on the east side of Waterford street, both north and south of London, is too low to allow of any connection with that part of the system.

"The same difficulty exists with the property on Harvey street between London and Dublin streets, and on Dublin east of the center of block between Water and Harvey streets.

"Other property owners in this locality have long been desirous of having sewer connection. Prior to the construction of the sewer on Dublin streets between George and Aylmer streets, levels were taken to ascertain the possibility of laying that sewer low enough to allow of draining the lots on Harvey St. north of London, but it was found that it would necessitate a depth of excavation of 20 feet for the greater part of the distance and the cost would be excessive, the fall very slight, and the area served so small that it was not considered practicable and would not relieve Waterford street, which is lower still than Harvey street. This section of the city will require a separate outlet and entail additional expense for septic tank.

"At some future time it may be joined to the 42-inch sewer laid in 1901 by the American Cereal Co. on Quaker street, by extending that sewer to London street. At present that sewer receives the elevator and discharges through a septic tank into the river, a little above the bridge.

"The extension of this sewer to London street, will depend upon the filling in of the north end of the way, as otherwise it would be difficult and costly to pass through or under the head gates at London street.

T. A. S. HAY,
City Engineer.

A committee of the chairman, Mr. Harker and Mr. Ireland was appointed to co-operate with a committee from the council and look into this matter and see what can be done.

Sanitary Inspector Ball reported on the sanitary condition of the district in which connection with the sewer system will be made compulsory. The area reported on is as follows;

On Water street, both sides from Charlotte to Brock; on Brock from Water to Aylmer, south side; Aylmer east side to Charlotte; Charlotte, north side, to George.

Skating Rink is Closed

The Brock street rink has been closed for the season and the management request that all persons who have skates there will call for them at once. Mr. Jack Thornbeck will be there a few days longer to deliver skates, etc.

Cobourg Shows the Yellow Color

This Sleepy Old Town Jealous Over Port Hope's Manufactories

The Cobourg Sentinel-Star says;

It seems strange that Port Hope have been adding to their factories right along, and have still applications for more, and Cobourg, even with all its advantages, has not an applicant. Why don't our manufacturing committee do something. Why don't they act? They cannot wait until people come to them. They must make our town, and its resources, its advantages and its decidedly better chances than even our Port Hope friends know. We believe that Coun. Kerr and Maher are on this committee, then why don't they act. They are not there for figure-heads, they must do something or else resign from the honorable position that they hold. We say, gentlemen, move on, you cannot occupy a corner and keep others away. Then do something, or else acknowledge that you are incompetent.

Holy Week Services in the Cathedral

Special services will be held this (Holy) week in St. Peter's cathedral as follows,—On Thursday; at eight o'clock a.m., his lordship, Bishop O'Connor will celebrate mass and bless the oils to be used at the services during the year. Afterwards the blessed sacrament will be conveyed to the repository in the sacristy, where it will remain until Good Friday. There will be a service, Thursday evening at eight o'clock.

On Friday morning at nine o'clock, mass of the pre-sanctified will be celebrated, three o'clock in the afternoon, stations of the cross, and at 7.30 o'clock, the sermon on the passion, will be preached.

On Saturday morning, mass will be celebrated at seven o'clock, during which the paschal candle in the baptismal and the Easter waters will be blessed.

Moroccans Stoned to Death a French Doctor

Tangier, Morocco, March 24.—A courier who arrived here today from Morocco City reported that Dr. Mauchamp, a French subject, has been assassinated by natives, who are extremely agitated in consequence of the operations of the Geodetic Mission, commanded by Prof. Gentil, and for which signal posts were fixed on the roof of the doctor's house.

The Moorish authorities, it is added, make no attempt to maintain order, and anxiety is felt relative to the fate of Prof. Gentil and his wife.

The report of Dr. Mauchamp's assassination was confirmed later by the French minister.

STONED TO DEATH.

Washington, March 24.—The American minister at Tangier, Morocco, reported to the state department that at a meeting of the diplomatic corps with the Moorish delegates today the French minister announced the stoning to death of a French doctor at Morocco City by natives. The meeting adjourned at once as a mark of sympathy.

Dominion Bank Building Now Seen

The outside protecting wooden shell that enabled workmen to complete the stone work of the new handsome new Dominion Bank premises at the south-east corner of George and Simcoe streets, was yesterday removed. The Dominion Bank's new premises are now nearing completion and the contractor fully expects to be through by April first, the time called for. From outward appearances the Dominion Bank will have one of the most handsome pieces of business in the city.

Little Ina May Morrison is Gone

Yesterday morning, Ina May, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Morrison, of Springville, passed away, at the residence of her aunt, Mrs. George Hanlon, 275 Dalhousie street. The child had been suffering for several weeks from eczema, and was for some time in Nicholls' hospital, for treatment. The funeral will take place this afternoon at two o'clock from 275 Dalhousie street to Little Lake cemetery.

LONDON SINKS MILLIONS IN PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Noted Economist Says They Have Produced Great Deficits and Immense Taxes---Grand Rapids to Sell Electric Light Station.

Chicago, March 27.—Robert P. Porter, editor of the engineering supplement of the London Times, a world authority on political economy and municipal government, and former director of the U.S. census, told of the failure of municipal ownership in London while in the city yesterday on his way home to England. He condemned the tramway service as inferior to the privately owned lines, and said the municipal ownership ventures had swelled the taxes to such an extent that in some parts of London a person had to pay 50 per cent. of his rental in taxes. Thus, if he paid $200 a year rental, he would have to pay $100 in taxes.

"Altogether," continued Mr. Porter, "London has sunk $97,106,830 in municipal ownership schemes. The biggest failure, of course, and the one that everybody knows so much about, is that of the penny steamers on the Thames. The city council paid $1,520,000 for the line of steamboats, and last year there was a deficit of $200,000. For every $5 earned $10 was spent. Yet some of the strongest advocates of municipal ownership figured that the line would yield profits of $450,000 a year.

"The accumulation of indebtedness growing out of municipal ownership in London repeatedly has made the taxpayers bankrupt. Furthermore, the advocates of municipal ownership propose by statutory power to make every municipality a competitive manufacturer, offering higher wages and fewer hours to laborers able to secure municipal employment. This is the bait offered by candidates to trade unionists.

"Another great danger in municipal ownership is in destruction of individuality. In this many see national and industrial destruction. Independent endeavor is forcibly robbed of the fruits of its labor and the state or municipality takes charge of all common needs and ascertained processes. Deprived of what is rightfully its own, private enterprise is to be bidden to invent new processes, initiate new methods, create fresh wants and found new industries, so that in due course of time the state or local governments, with their enlarged powers, may seize for appropriate them."

Mr. Porter said municipalities were unable to sell their goods at par since the municipal ownership craze has struck Great Britain and cities were obliged to pay 4 1-2 per cent. interest when money could formerly be secured for 2 1-2 per cent. So many persons put their money into municipal bonds at this rate of interest that there was little money available for legitimate private investment.

CHEAPER TO BUY LIGHT.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 26.—General Manager Sweeney of the Board of Public Works recommended that the municipal ownership lighting plant be abandoned. In a report he declares he has made a careful comparison of the cost of operation by the city and that offer of the Muskegon Power Co. is now costing the city over $21,000 annual to do the work and the private concern will do it for $16,000, at the same time entertaining the service and keep the lights going all night.

Travels Continent Over to Confess

New York, March 26.—A tall, emaciated man walked into the office of United States Commissioner Shields yesterday and explained that he had come all the way from West Berkeley, Cal., to clear his conscience before his death, which he knew must not be far off. It soon appeared that he swore falsely years ago to obtain citizenship papers.

He said his name was John Nelson and he was a Norwegian by birth. In 1881 he went before the commissioner and, on the advice of a friend sworn that he came to this country when less than 18 years of age, which was untrue, so as to be able to obtain full papers at once. The papers were granted him, but he had not voted upon them as a long time. Doctors lately told him he had not long to live, and he resolved to confess to Commissioner Shields rather than die a perjured man.

Commissioner Shields' clerks verified Nelson's statements by the records and accepted the return of the man's papers. Nelson then said that he was ready to be arrested on a charge of perjury, but Commissioner Shields explained that the statute of limitations made him free. Nelson expressed to the commissioner his profound relief that he had cleared his conscience.

Troops for Morocco

Paris, March 26.—As a result of a Cabinet meeting yesterday it was decided to send French troops to occupy Oudja, a frontier town in Morocco, until the Moorish Government gives full satisfaction to France for the assassination of Dr. Zeuchamp. The French demands for reparation will be forwarded to Fez immediately.

Dover, Eng., March 26.—The Ostend mail steamers, Princess Harriette and Lord Warden, collided outside the harbor yesterday, both boats being badly damaged.

The sixty passengers of the Lord Warden were landed without any of them being injured.

To Get After the Ontario Bank Directors

Toronto, March 26.—The feasibility of taking action against the old directors of the Ontario Bank is under consideration, and it is said that J. G. Langton, chief clerk under former Manager Medcalf, has been examined within the last few days.

A Toronto shareholder says he is willing to contribute $1,000 toward a civil suit, if the money is needed. A bank official said that, so far as he could see, it might be three years before the Ontario Bank's affairs were finally settled.

NOVEL CURE FOR COLDS

Healing Medication that is Breathed, giving quick relief.

It seems just as ridiculous to put medicine into the stomach to cure a cold in the head or lungs as it does to go out in the rain if we want to keep dry.

The fact that many people right in Peterborough cough and hawk and sniffle for days and weeks after they treat a cold with the usual stomach dosing, shows how valueless are the ordinary cough and cold cures.

The right way to cure a cold in the head or a cough and irritation in the throat and lungs, is by breathing Hyomei's medicated air. Put a few drops of Hyomei in the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit and breathe this healing air for a few times and immediate relief will be noted. The medication goes right to the spot where the disease germs are located and renders them harmless in the future.

At the same time the soothing and healing effects of Hyomei on the irritated mucous membrance give quick relief, and the cough or cold is broken up.

A complete Hyomei outfit, consisting of a bottle of Hyomei, the inhaler and a medicine dropper, costs but $1, while extra bottles of Hyomei, if needed, can be obtained for only 50c.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei, or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Write us today for a symptom blank, which we will send you free, together with a treatise on Catarrh and how to cure it. When you fill in and return to us the symptom blank, our consulting physician will give your case the best care and attention, and write you a letter of advice without charge. Beware of Mercury

You May be Using this Harmful Drug and Not Know it.

A favorite method of administering this deleterious drug is in cathartic pills. Beware of "quick-result" articles, they may do more harm than good.

Drastic cathartics will weaken the strongest. With old people they are a positive menace to life.

Merely to restore normal bowel action and gently stimulate the liver is all that the wise physician recommends.

To keep the system pure and clean, nothing is so efficacious, as the vegetable pills of Dr. Hamilton, which are composed of such herbs as mandrake, butternut and dandelion; they contain not an atom of any substance that could injure even an infant.

By their certain action on the Liver Dr. Hamilton's Pills cause bile to be secreted which forms the stimulus that moves the bowels; this is nature's own method and the best one.

Mr. R. Hambly, of French River, Ont., writes as follows; "I was inclined to bilious attacks and frequently was too ill to work. Most remedies purged and weakened my bowels, but Dr. Hamilton's Pills gently stimulated my liver, and by strengthening the stomach made a perfect cure. My health has been just splendid since I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills from your druggist or storekeeper, 25c per box or five boxes for $1. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co. Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

THE QUEST FOR THE SOUL

Some time ago, a man photographed the soul of a rat leaving its body. It was a sort of a shiny thing and was probably going where the good rats go. Now a number of Boston doctors have weighed the souls of men. The newspapers speak of them as scientists; doctors are known to differ, but everything a scientist does must be so. By some brutal process of experimentation, they have come to the conclusion that a man's body weighs half an ounce or so less immediately after death than it does immediately before. Ergo, the soul weighs half an ounce. After more careful experiment, we shall learn whether fat men have fat souls and little men little souls, according to the rhyme that D'Arcy McGee made in parliament, beginning "There was a little man and he had a little soul." One thing the doctors would seem to have settled to their satisfaction, namely, that a lazy man has a lazy soul, for, in one such case, the soul was quite a few seconds in getting gone after the man was dead. The method of these scientists is not altogether new. It is said that the Royal Rockty, the very Olympus of science, spent one of its earliest sessions, in the days of King James the First, in discussing why a dead fish should be heavier than a living fish, till the dispute was ended by a Scotchman, who, with more of the philosophy of his contemporary Bacon than of logical expression, remarked, "A doot the fac'," whereupon the scientists of those days betook themselves to experiment, resulting in the conclusion that a dead fish did not weigh more than a living one. They seem to have taken no account of the fish's soul. Possibly then scales were not precise enough to weigh a fish's soul.

The search for the soul is one of the most ancient of scientific quests. Dr. Ebers, the German Egyptologist, in his "Uarda," makes his hero a physician, whose one passion was to find the soul, or the life, of man. He found it not, or at least did not communicate his knowledge to us. The general belief among Christian peoples has long been that the soul is "an entity that in each person lives, feels, thinks and wills." Primitive people identify the soul with the breath or something contained in the blood. It has been pictured in the past as supposed to have some imperfect existence and to retain the form of the body as a ghost. Thus Hamlet's father appears to him, and Shakespeare's contemporary, Chapman, in his Iliad translation, writes:

Then of his wretched friend
The Soul appear'd; at every part the form did comprehend
His likeness: His fair eyes, his voice, his stature, ev'ry weed
His person wore, it fantasied.

Aristole makes the soul still more than a faculty or attribute of the body, and he compares it to the "axness" of an ax. The scholastics combined this idea with that of the separability and immortality of the soul, thus forming a highly metaphysical doctrine. Pythagoras held that the souls of animals infuse themselves into the trunks of men. Descartes originated distinct metaphysical dualism, and pronounced: "Although the human body is united to the whole body, it has, nevertheless, its principal seat in the brain, where alone it not only understands and imagines, but also perceives." There is no subject on which there has been such wide speculation since the dawn of intelligence, yet none on which the mind of man has less defined conceptions today. Tennyson sings nobly, if vaguely, in "In Memoriam," "O sacred essence, other form, O solemn ghost, O crowned soul," and that is as closely as most people care for definition. One thing is certain, that the Boston doctors have not found the soul. What is ponderable is material, and is therefore not the soul. We must range ourselves for the present with the Scotsman, and "doot the fac'."

An Impresario's Advice.

Some years ago after the regular Italian opera season had ended at the Academy of Music, New York, that building became a sort of trying on arena for would be prima donnas and tenors. One day during the open and shut interim between the seasons Max Maretzek met the tenor Adams and Mme. Pappenheim.

When the tenor said, "Congratulate us, Max; we have just leased the academy for classic operas—no candy rot for us," the impresario replied:

"I wish you great success. But tell me your proposed repertory."

To this Adams responded, "'Antigone,' 'Orfeo,' 'Iphigenia,' 'Sapho,' 'Alceste,' etc."

Maretzek suavely said: "That is magnificent. But do me a favor as an old and experienced friend. Give the 'Trovatore' once each week in order to pay salaries."

This advice was not followed, and very soon the academy was again for rent.—New York Tribune.

Preventics, as the name implies, prevent all Colds and Grippe when "taken at the sneeze stage." Preventics are toothsome candy tablets. Preventics dissipate all colds quickly, and taken early, when you first feel that a cold is coming, they check and prevent them. Preventics are thoroughly safe for children, and as effectual for adults. Sold and recommended in 5 cent and 25 cent boxes by J. D. Tully.

The American Magazine for April

Ray Stannard Baker, "the great reporter," begins his series on the negro in the April American Magazine. "Upon the ocean of antagonism between the white and negro races in this country there arises occasionally a wave, stormy in its appearance. Such a wave was the Atlanta riot," says Mr. Baker, who then proceeds to describe that spectacular disturbance and the disaster incident to its fury. Great full-page portraits of negro types—and a wonderful black mammy on the cover—illustrate the first article.

The first authoritative and complete story of the Wright brothers, who after years of experimenting have made flying practicable, is told by Herbert N. Casson. Photographs of the Wright brothers in flight are reproduced. Miss Tarbell continues her story of the tariff with an account of the commission of 1882 and of events in the time of Hayes and Garfield. Josephine Daskam Bacon writes on the servant problem. "The Interpreter" pictures E. H. Harriman graphically. George Fitch describes the Missouri River with extraordinary humor.

F. Marion Crawford's serial continues and another of David Grayson's "Adventures in Contentment" is included. There are stories by Jeanette Cooper, John G. Neihardt, E. Nesbit and Carter Hamilton.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

With Edged Tools

Author of "The Sowers," "Roden's Corner," "From One Generation to Another," Etc.

Copyright, 1894, by HARPER & BROTHERS

She rose hastily and turned away from him. There was in her heart a sudden feeling of regret. It was the feeling that the keenest sportsman sometimes has when some majestic monarch of the forest falls before his merciless rifle—a sudden passing desire that it might be undone.

"Why not?" he asked. He was desperately in earnest, and that which made him a good sportsman—an unmatched big game hunter, calm and self possessed in any strait—gave him a strange deliberation now, which Millicent Clyne could not understand. "Why not?"

"I do not know — because you mustn't."

And in her heart she wanted him to say it again.

"I am not ashamed of it," he said, "and I do not see why I should not say it to you—or to any one else, so far as that goes."

"No, never!" she cried, really frightened. "To me it does not matter so much. But to no one else—no, never! Aunt Marian must not know it—nor Sir John."

"I cannot see that it is any business of Sir John's. Of course, Lady Cantourne would have liked you to marry a title; but if you cared for me she would be ready to listen to reason."

In which judgment of the good lady he was no doubt right, especially if reason spoke with the voice of £8,000 per annum.

"Do you care for me?" he asked, coming a little closer.

There was a whole world of gratified vanity and ungratified curiosity for her in the presence of this strong man at her elbow. It was one of the supreme triumphs of her life, because he was different from the rest. He was for her what his first tiger had been for him. The danger that he might come still nearer had for her a sense of keen pleasure. She was thoroughly enjoying herself, and the nearest approach that men can experience to the joy that was hers is the joy of battle.

"I cannot answer that—not now."

And the little half shrinking glance over her shoulder was a low minded, unmaidenly invitation. But he was in earnest, and he was, above all, a gentleman. He stood his ground a yard away from her.

"Then when," he asked, "when will you answer me?"

She stood with her back turned toward him, looking out over the smooth waters of the Solent, where one or two yachts and a heavy black schooner were creeping up on the tide before the morning breeze. She drummed reflectively with her fingers on the low stone wall. Beneath them a few gulls whirled and screamed over a shoal of little fish. One of the birds had a singular cry, as if it were laughing to itself.

"You said just now," Millicent answered at length, "that you were not sure yourself—not at first—and therefore you cannot expect me to know all at once."

"You should know at once," he argued gravely, "if it were going to be 'no.' If you do not say 'no' now, I can only think that it may be 'yes' some day. And"—he came closer; he took the hand that hung at her side, conveniently near—"and I don't want you to say 'no' now. Don't say 'no!' I will wait as long as you like for 'yes.' Millicent, I would rather go on waiting and thinking that it is going to be 'yes,' even if it is 'no' after all."

She said nothing, but she left her hand in his.

"May I go on thinking that it will be 'yes' until I come back?"

"I cannot prevent your thinking, can I?" she whispered, with a tender look in her eyes.

"May I write to you?"

She shook her head.

"Well—I—I— Now and then," he pleaded. "Not often. Just to remind you of my existence."

She gave a little laugh, which he liked exceedingly and remembered afterward.

"If you like," she answered.

At this moment Lady Cantourne's voice was heard in the distance calling them.

"There!" exclaimed Millicent. "We must go at once. And no one—no one, mind—must know of this."

"No one shall know of it," he answered.

CHAPTER IX.

THOSE who for their sins have been to Loango will scarcely care to have its beauties recalled to memory. And to such as have not visited the spot one can only earnestly recommend a careful avoidance.

Suffice it to say, therefore, that there is such a place, and the curious may find it marked in larger type than it deserves on the map of Africa, on the west coast of that country and within an inch or so of the equator.

"This is not cheery," Jack Meredith observed to his servant as they found themselves deposited on the beach within a stone's throw of the French factory.

"No, sir, not cheery, sir," replied Joseph. He was very busy attending to the landing of their personal effects and had only time to be respectful. It was Joseph's way to do only one thing at a time, on the principle no doubt that enough for the moment is the evil thereof. His manner implied that when those colored gentlemen had got the baggage safely conveyed out of the boats on to the beach it would be time enough to think about Loango.

It had been arranged by letter that Jack Meredith should put up, as his host expressed it, at the small bungalow occupied by Maurice Gordon and his sister. Gordon was the local head of a large trading association somewhat after the style of the old East India company, and his duties partook more of the glory of a governor than of the routine of a trader.

Of Maurice Gordon's past Meredith knew nothing beyond the fact that they were schoolfellows strangely brought together again on the deck of a coasting steamer. Maurice Gordon was not a reserved person, and it was rather from a lack of opportunity than from an excess of caution that he allowed his new found friend to go up the Ogowe river knowing so little of himself—Maurice Gordon of Loango.

On reaching the bungalow Meredith was pleasantly surprised. It was pretty and homelike, surrounded by a garden wherein grew a strange profusion of homely English vegetables and tropical flowers.

Joseph happened to be in front, and as he neared the veranda he suddenly stopped at the salute; moreover, he began to wonder in which trunk he had packed his master's dress clothes.

The News—No Pure Drug Cough Cure Laws would be needed, if all Cough Cures were like Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure is—and has been for 20 years. The National Law now requires that if any poisons enter into a cough mixture, it must be printed on the label or package. For this reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison-marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and see. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Simply refuse to accept any other. THE WILD BALSAM APPLE.

Its Seed Holders Are Suggestive of Lace Purses.

In the brooks of autumn in certain places many little lacelike bags may be seen drifting along with the current or stranded by the shore. They are the inner coats or bodies of the wild balsam apples (Echinocystis lobata) which have dropped from the vines overhanging the stream and now float lightly away with their large seeds.

The green prickly bag of the balsam apple itself begun to form in late summer, and by autumn it has withered and faded to a pale straw color. We may see the trailing vines with their shrunken pods decorating the brookside bushes far into the winter. The outer coat of the pod gradually rots away, and the inner bag or seed carrier is now released and exposed as a delicate, webby network of tough fibers. A thin skin or membrane fills up the space between these meshes, but that also falls away through the action of water and the winter storms until only the ball-like tissue of the "purse" is left. These little purses, being extremely light and buoyant, float far and wide over the submerged swamp lands in late autumn, carrying the seeds with them and so planting the vine in new situations. If, however, we take these seeds home with us and plant them there, Mother Earth will suitably reward us in the following year with vines of our own. They will spring up and spread rapidly until all the stone walls and garden fences are decorated with the tracery of their stems and star shaped leaves.

GOLD AND THE SEA.

Why the Metal Is Shipped In Bars Rather Than In Coin.

"When the banks ship gold across the Atlantic," said a banker, "they prefer to ship it in bars rather than in coin. It loses less that way."

"It loses less?"

"Yes, sir. If $1,000,000 in gold coins is shipped across the sea it is only $999,800 on its arrival. It loses from twelve to fifteen ounces, about $200, through abrasion, through knocking about with the motion of the waves. The sea makes gold lose weight, you see, the same as it does human beings. Gold bars lose less. In fine weather they will only lose about $100 to each million. In the ugliest weather they don't lose over $150, whereas in like conditions gold coins have been known to lose $300. As gold shipments of $10,000,000 often occur, to make these shipments in gold bars instead of gold coin is a saving of $1,000 or more. It is odd to think when you cross in one of those gold laden ships that every wave that hits the boat clips off 10 to 15 cents from its golden cargo."

Cruel, but Necessary.

The Eskimos dread the winter and take early precautions to provide against famine. As the season approaches the great herds of reindeer migrate southward, and the walrus or the seal are all that remain for food. When an in wind is blowing the walrus is easily found on the outer edge of the ice packs. When it is blowing off the shore, however, the ice packs sail out to sea with the walruses on them. The natives then class their numbers in a list from the strongest to the weakest. The food that is in store is divided up, the weakest having the smallest quantity, the strongest the largest. Thus the mightiest hunters have strength to provide for the others. It is a cruel system, but nevertheless a necessary one. If all were weak, all would die; if some are strong, they will save many of the weak.

KENNEDY COBALT, Ltd.

is recommended

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. 32. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 15 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 30 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 80 acres of J. B. 32 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 5 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 30 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 50 feet, and in it shows 8 inch nicolite, 12 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 673-1283-492-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

The Largest Pipe.

What is described as the largest pipe in the world is valued at £8,000 and is counted as one of the most remarkable pieces of carving in existence. The pipe is made of one solid piece of meerschaum and represents the landing of Columbus. There are twenty-four figures in the scene, each one four inches high. The carver who executed this masterpiece is dead, and, as the demand for this sort of work has nearly died out, it is practically impossible to find a man to duplicate it.—London Telegraph.

Mouth Ulcers.

Little ulcers that appear in the mouth from time to time are exceedingly annoying and painful. An old fashioned household remedy is alum, the powder or crystals being applied to the yellow center. But this is a bitter, nasty dose. A physician has prescribed the use of a saturated solution of potassium chlorate, applied every two hours. "Saturated solution" means as much potassium chlorate as can be dissolved in a certain amount of water.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

Mr. Rountree Makes Changes

Yesterday morning a considerable change was noticeable in the premises on Water street, occupied at the north by Mr. Arthur Rountree as a private residence, and formerly, to the south of the building by the Big Dipper Mining Co. The window of the latter part, formerly used to display samples of gold and other ores, and lighted by comparitively small panes of glass, was yesterday, with surrounding mouldings, etc., completely torn out, and a large French plate glass light inserted. Other improvements and alterations will also be made and when completed the store will be of most modern construction. Mr. Rountree expects to move in about the first of the month.

Flood in the East Ward

At the corner of Mark and Hunter streets in the east ward, the lot on which is situated Weir & McIntyre's wood yard, is completely covered with water and Mr. Weir has been busily employed preventing his wood being carried down the stream. The creek is not so high however this year as previously.

Two Rooms Engaged in Lindsay

Lindsay our western suburbs has secured a retail fire industry in the Tower Canadian Oiled Clothing Company of Toronto. his factory will at first occupy two rooms and will probably employ as many as sixty young women. The Post of that burg seems quite enthusiastic over this addition to Lindsay's factories. If any more such want accommodation they can easily rent, if the price is forthcoming, a couple of rooms somewhere in the outskirts of this city, to some residence when rents have been raised or landlords refuse to put in gold plated plumbing for present occupants.

"Queen Zephra"

The two repeat performances of this beautiful spectacle on April 3rd and 4th, are to be given as a benefit for those participating in "Queen Zephra." It is the intention of the committee to engage a suitable hall and tender a reception and dance to all those who assisted in making Zephra the great success it was. Mr. H. J. Booth will arrange the entire program, and will act as master of ceremonies on that occasion. The smaller children will be entertained in the afternoon, and adults in the evening. A full rehearsal will be held on Tuesday, April 2nd in Y. M.C.A.

SEA-ROVER'S REMEDY

Postum Coffee and its Power to Rebuild.

The young daughter of a government officer whose duties keep him almost constantly on board ship between this country and Europe, tells an interesting tale of the use her father made of Nature's food remedy to cure an attack of malarial fever:

"Father recently returned from a long sea-trip, bed-ridden and emaciated from an attack of malarial chills and fever," she writes. "In such cases people usually dose themselves with medicines, and we were surprised when he, instead of employing drugs, proceeded to devote himself exclusively to Postum Food Coffee, of which he has long been fond. He used two or more cups at each meal, drinking it very hot, and between meals quenched his fever-engendered thirst at all hours of the day and night from a supply we kept ready in the water-cooler. For several days his only drink and sometimes his only food was Postum Coffee, hot or cold, according to the moment's fancy.

"Within a day or two his improvement was noticeable, and within a week he was a well man again, able to resume his arduous occupation.

"He first began to drink Postum Food Coffee several years ago, as a remedy for insomnia, for which he found it invaluable, and likes it so much and finds it so beneficial that he always uses it when he is at home where he can get it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. While this man uses Postum as a remedy, it is no sense a medicine but only food in liquid form. But this is nature's way and "There's a reason." LOCAL INCIDENTS

By The Times Man on the Street

—Curling at Lindsay ended last Thursday.

—Annual meeting of the Board of Trade tonight.

—There are 47 inmates in the Lindsay House of Refuge.

—The Property Committee met last night to consider the Building Permit bylaw.

—The regular meeting of the Central Charity Board was held yesterday evening.

—Very fancy Easter greeting booklets at two for twenty-five cents at Times Bookstore.

—The W.A.A. Reading Club met yesterday evening, at the residence of Mrs. (Dr.) Neal, King street.

—Rev. S. A. Langfeldt would like to see Good Friday celebrated not as a holiday in the usual sense of this word but as a holy day.

—The schools of the city will close for the Easter holidays on Thursday at noon and will not reopen until a week from the following Monday.

—Yesterday Mr. W. Collins, the very efficient master of the locks had to remove several stop logs to allow the rapidly rising river to pour its waters southwards.

—Why does not Peterborough copy the example of Owen Sound? This burg has expended $500 in advertising the advantages of the place to prospective manufacturers and settlers.

—This morning one of the local railroads, as represented by a conductor and engine driver, will answer to a charge in the police court of stopping traffic on a local street for eight minutes.

—Mr. Martin Connors and family, take this means of returning their sincere thanks to their many friends and acquaintances for the highly appreciated sympathy and kindness extended them in their recent bereavement.

—A Lindsay despatch says that the ice on Sturgeon Lake is still as thick and firm as at any time during the winter. Only two days ago Mr. John Hayes brought a heavy load of logs over the ice. The ice at Sturgeon Point is still three feet thick.

—The prizes for Saturday's competition in the shooting gallery of Messrs. Yeates Bros., will be three twenty-pound turkeys for three events, viz., Rest, off-hand and fly shooting. Here is a chance for any good marksman to get a turkey for Easter Sunday dinner cheap.

—Mr. James McKenzie, of the Little Lake Cemetery Company staff, who went to Scotland several weeks ago, has returned to the city, and resumed his former position with Superintendent Frank Wise.

—Mr. Alex. Elliott, the well-known local wholesale liquor dealer left last night for Myrtle to call on his old friend Mr. Geo. Beatle. Mr. Birnie is an old Peterborough boy, with a host of friends in this city.

Mr. Lancaster Succeeds Mr. Lockhart.

Mr. T. Lancaster, of Hastings has been engaged by Mr. R. A. Dutton to take charge of the grocery department of his business in place of A. W. Lockhart, the late manager who has entered into business on his own account with Messrs. Porter Bros.' Delicatessen on George street.

Motor-boat Being Made Here

The Peterborough Canoe Co., is building a motor boat, 31x7 feet in size for Mr. Oliver Milburn of W. A. Sanderson & Co. The boat will have a 15 horse-power, four cylinder cycle Buffalo gasoline engine, and will make about twelve miles an hour. Excepting the engines, which will come from Toronto, every part of this fine new boat will be made in this city. The boat complete will cost about $2,000.

Good Friday Should be Observed

Rev. Father McCool has advised members of his flock that they should attend no public performances on Good Friday, this being a holy day of special significance. Not only to the clergy of the Roman Catholic faith but those of several of the Protestant denominations are strongly adverse to the secular pleasures enjoyed by a sometimes unthinking public on one of the most touching and sacred reminders at one of the Christendom's holiest events.

Words of Praise

For the several ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed, as given by leaders in all the several schools of medicine, should have far more weight than any amount of non-professional testimonials. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has THE BADGE OF HONESTY on every bottle-wrapper, in a full list of all its ingredients printed in plain English.

If you are an invalid woman and suffer from frequent headache, backache, gnawing distress in stomach, periodical pains, disagreeable, catarrhal, pelvic drain, dragging-down distress in lower abdomen or pelvis, perhaps dark spots or specks dancing before the eyes, faint spells and kindred symptoms caused by female weakness, or other derangement of the feminine organs, you can not do better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

The hospital, surgeon's knife and operating table may be avoided by the timely use of "Favorite Prescription" in such cases. Thereby the obnoxious examinations and local treatments of the family physician can be avoided and a thorough course of successful treatment carried out in the privacy of the home. "Favorite Prescription" is composed of the very best native medicinal roots known to medical science for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments, contains no alcohol and no harmful or habit-forming drugs.

Do not expect too much from "Favorite Prescription;" it will not perform miracles; it will not dissolve or cure tumors. No medicine will. It will do as much to establish vigorous health in most weaknesses and ailments peculiarly incident to women as any medicine can. It must be given a fair chance by perseverance in its use for a reasonable length of time.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this remedy of known composition.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is guarded as sacredly secret and womanly confidences are protected by professional privacy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets the best laxative and regulator of the bowels. They invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. One a laxative; two or three a cathartic. Easy to take as candy.

Artificial Teeth at $5.00 Per Set

In view of the latest and best methods and thoroughly up-to-date appliances, a full set of teeth can be supplied in three hours. Changes, additions or repairs to old plates executed in one hour. Ill-fitting dentures relined, perfect adaptation secured. Robertson's retainer holds rocking, dropping plates in correct position, supplying comfort and usefulness. All fully guaranteed. When necessary, teeth extracted absolutely without pain by a most simple method. A specialist in each department. 408 George street, Peterborough.

The Eye of the Needle.

When Christ says in his sermon "that it is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than it is for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven" he does not mean a sewing needle, but a hole through which a camel had to pass through in getting into a fortress. It was the custom in old times, and in parts of Arabia still is, for the people of a village to build a fortress against the robbers of the desert, into which they carried an underground passage in a zigzag form barely large enough for a camel lying down on its side to work itself through into the courtyard of the fort, and the Saviour beautifully compares the struggles of the animal to what the rich man must suffer in order to gain paradise. The hole was called "the eye of the needle."

In the old stone cahirs, or walled cities, in Ireland specimens of these eyeholes may be seen. Most of them have been partially destroyed, but there is one almost perfect at Grianan Elleach, in Donegal, and so like the eastern eyeholes that one would think they were made by the same workmen. The Irish annals relate that Elleach was erected by a Tuaoh de Daanan chief 1,900 years before Christ.—Exchange.

The Magic Flat.

"This is our library," said the New York woman, leading her visitor into the front room. "And that cosy little room back of it is the music room. The 'den' is the big, bright room on your left. Come over and see it. Yes, we have just five rooms in all. The small back hallroom we use as a packing and storage closet. Isn't it cosy?"

"Y-e-s," agreed her visitor doubtfully, "but where do you sleep and eat, and all that?"

"Oh," said the New Yorker indifferently, "my husband and I sleep in the 'den' on the oriental couch, and mother sleeps in the music room on another couch that pulls out at night. We eat on that funny little table in the library. You've no idea how big it can be made when the leaves are in. And we dress in the bathroom and keep our clothes in the packing room. So, you see, it's all very convenient."

"What do you do in the kitchen?" inquired the other laconically.

"Oh, we keep the dogs in there at night, and in the daytime we sometimes use it—to cook in."—New York Press.

Her Share.

"Snigsby has a new scheme that he purposes substituting for the ordinary swear off idea. He is going to carry a little savings bank around with him, and every time he buys liquid refreshments he will drop the cash equivalent in the bank for his wife."

"Whose idea is it?"

"Snigsby's wife. She thinks there'll be a little something in it for her."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FIRE, WATER AND LIGHT COMMITTEE IN SESSION

Fire Escape Bylaw Passes the Committee---Applications for Foreman of Fire Department and New Driver.

The City Board of Works met in business session last night, when there were present, Chairman Ald. Johnston, Mayor McWilliams, and Aldermen Morgan, Duncan and Leary.

Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan,—That the water commissioners be authorized to place a hydrant at the corner of Concession and Dufferin streets.—Carried.

Ald. Duncan moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan,—That approaches be built in front of the new fire hall as soon as possible, and that the street commissioner be instructed to do the work.—Carried.

For the past quarter 13 electric street lamps were reported to have been not burning during schedule hours, or an average of one lamp per night; and two lamps had not the necessary shades. The agreement between the city and the Peterborough Light and Power Co. provides that a pro rata of 16 2-3c. per lamp a night shall be charged against the company for each light not performing its functions according to contract; also that the company shall be subject to a fine of 25c. per lamp a night for each night not burning. The company reported that they had found it impossible to procure from the manufacturer shades for the two lamps wanting shades until after several days had elapsed.

Mayor McWilliams moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan,—That the city deduct from their account with the Peterborough Light and Power Co., for street lighting the past quarter, $3.32 for lamps not burning.—Carried.

The above allows the Light and Power Co. the benefit of the doubt in the case of three lamps.

In revising the rules and regulations governing the new fire hall, it was decided that the foreman shall have full control of the hall, and that no women shall be employed on the premises for any purpose whatever.

The furnishing of the new fire hall was left in the hands of Chairman Ald. Johnston and Ald. Duncan, with power to act.

FIRE ESCAPES.

The committee went into the fire escape bylaw, which provides that any building not of a private nature with a third or higher story, with not more than one exit exclusive of elevator, and occupied by ten or more persons, shall be furnished with one permanent outside roped stairway to the first floor, within one month of passage of said bylaw. All such fire escapes shall be kept by the owner of building in good repair, and free from snow and ice and any incumbrance whatever. All exits to fire escapes shall be readily accessable to at all times.

The Mayor moved, seconded by Ald. Leary,—That the council be recommended to approve of this bylaw.

The Mayor moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan,—That the committee recommend the appointment of a foreman of the fire department, with full control of the new hall, the drivers, engineer and all equipment.—Carried.

This man's duties will also include care of fire alarm system and inspection of street wiring.

APPLICATIONS FOR POSITIONS.

The following applications for positions in the fire department were received;—

For electrician, decided by committee to act as foreman of the new fire hall, and look after the fire alarm system and wiring in the city;—A. E. Hutchinson, J. E. Grear, G. E. Thomas, B. Ford, Walter Buckingham, Penn, Alexander, Wallace, Maddil, N. E. Bell, and Jos. Deneo.

Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Johnston—That the committee recommend that Walter Buckingham receive the appointment of foreman of the fire hall at a salary of $900 a year, his duties to commence April 15th.—Carried.

For Driver—Jno. Blodgett, Fred Le Barge, J. C. Mitchell, Geo. E. Hawes, Jos. H. Morris, Jno. Irwin, J. McCarthy, Geo. Parker.

This appointment will be a new one, the driver to take charge of the additional team purchased for the fire department. The Board of Works will use this team and driver as much as practicable, and pay the Fire, Water and Light Department a proportionate sum for such service.

The Board of Works and Fire, Water and Light Committee will meet jointly this evening to consider this appointment.

The committee adjourned at 11.15.

CHEESE BUYERS MEET

IMPORTANT SPEECH BY INSTRUCTOR PUBLOW.

Farmers Were Warned Not to Use Turnips.

Yesterday morning the annual meeting of the cheesemen and dairymen of this section opened in the county council chamber. About 25 were present and after the election of officers a number of excellent addresses were delivered. The annual meeting of the cheesemen will hereafter be held on or about the middle of April. This action was taken on account of the few cheese men who attend in March on account of the roads' condition.

After the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, President Campbell made a few remarks stating that from the financial report it appeared that the Peterborough cheese and butter makers was a poor organization. There were only three dollars in the treasury and he sincerely hoped that all the cheese and butter makers would contribute at least 50c for the general good of the society.

The next matter taken up was the election of officers which resulted as follows;

President—A. H. Campbell.

Secretary—H. J. Crowe.

This concluded the business of the meeting and Mr. Ward, instructor for Peterborough district, was called upon to address the members. He expressed his pleasure at being present, but was sorry to see so small a attendance. He considered that there had been a most satisfactory improvement in the cheese and butter industry. The past year was especially a prosperous year.

In reply to a question by Mr. Publow, Mr. Ward said that the milk producers were now realizing the necessity of having the raw material right. Cool curing establishments were very necessary to the success of the dairy industry.

Mr. Ward stated that he was sorry to say that some of the farmers did use turnips. But on the whole Peterborough was pretty free.

Mr. J. A. Kerr, of Belleville, said he was greatly interested in Peterborough cheese and was sorry to say that last fall the farmers did use turnips.

Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie said that most of the cheese factories at their annual meetings had condemned the feeding of turnips and the thought that there would be a big improvement.

Mr. Cameron, of Campbellcroft, instructor for part of Peterborough, also condemned turnips being fed to cows whose milk went to the cheese factories.

Mr. Irvine said there were only half a dozen cheese factories in Campbellford district which feed turnips and they went to Peterborough Cheese Board.

Mr. G. G. Publow, of Kingston, chief dairy instructor for eastern Ontario, strongly condemned the use of these roots.

It was a very serious mistake to feed turnips for either cheese or butter. A few factories in a section goes a long way to condemning the whole section. It is only the few factories which suffered it would be all right. Peterborough has had a spotless reputation for fancy cheese.

It was also duty of the instructor to give the makers the most modern information. This year there will be 24 instructors for eastern Ontario, starting from Toronto to Quebec. These men will have charge of certain districts and will also act as sanitary inspectors. They will visit every factory and give instruction, and inspect the quality of the milk.

Travels Thousands of Miles to Kill Man

Goldfield, Nev., March 21.—The most sensational murder this camp has ever known occurred when J. C. Hines, a miner from Nome, shot Count Constantine Podhorski, a Russian Pole, as he sat with Hines' wife at a table in the Aja restaurant last night. Walking directly up to the count, Hines drew a large revolver and fired five shots into his body. The count fell over lifeless, and pandemonium reigned in the restaurant.

Calmly, as if he were about to reply to a toast at a banquet table, Hines laid his smoking weapon on the table, and, mounting a chair, said:

"Listen, friends. I have been tracing this man for months. I have come 7,000 miles to kill him. He is dead at your feet. This woman, with him is my wife. This man seduced her and ruined my life. I have vengeance and am willing to take my medicine like a gentleman!"

Hines was taken to jail. Podhorski was the son of a former governor of Siberia and Princess Radziwill.

Federation of Employers Urged

Boston, Mass., March 27.—Plans for a great federation of all the employing interests of the United States, built on the lines of the American Federation of Labor, were advanced in Boston yesterday after a speech by James W. Van Cleave, of St. Louis, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, at the closing session of the National Metal Trades Association's annual convention.

The interests Mr. Van Cleave would consolidate for the advancement of industrial peace and commercial supremacy represent a capitalization of more than $2,000,000,000. More than a billion dollars of this is represented in Mr. Van Cleave's organization, to which he would weld the National Metal Trades, the National Typothetae, the National Founders, the National Wholesale Merchant Tailors' Association, and other bodies of magnitude.

Flood at Belleville.

Belleville, March 26.—The ice for a considerable distance up the Moira River broke up yesterday afternoon, and came down through the city at a rapid rate, jamming all the mouth of the river, the ice there being solid. In a few minutes the water rose to an unusual height and overflowed the banks, flooding yards and stables along the eastern side of the river, and causing some damage to property.

Tailors Strike in Ottawa

Ottawa, March 26.—Over forty journeyman tailors, employed in several local establishments, went on strike this morning because their demands for a 14 per cent. increase in pay have not been granted. The present scale of wages is 30 cents per hour. Some of the master tailors were willing to grant a ten per cent. increase which the men were disposed to accept, but the union stood out for the full demands. About half the tailors are now on strike and the rest will probably go out.

EMPLOYERS BENEFITTED THROUGH THE EFFORT TO ERADICATE CONSUMPTION

A determined effort is being made in Providence, R.I., to stamp out tuberculosis, particularly among the mill hands and factory employes. The Brown & Sharp Mfg. Co., which employs upwards of 4,000 men is actively co-operating in this movement.

The first step was to put a notice in the works explaining the nature of the disease, the great danger of neglecting the early symptoms and advising the most effective treatment. A physician who has made a specialty of tubercular disease was provided, free of expense to the employe, to examine and advise upon each case.

Some employes took advantage of the privilege on their own account, others were given the benefit of suggestion and willingly followed the well meant advise, while still others had to be induced with more effort.

A number of cases were discovered among the men. Some were sent to the State Sanatorium for modern open air treatment. Others were urged to take up open-air work, and wherever possible the company found such work for them. No tubercular person was allowed to remain in the works, for his own sake as well as for that of his fellow workmen. Sanitary precautions were taken to prevent the spread of the disease. Many of the men have already returned to work robust and generally in fine condition.

Few, if any, large manufacturing establishments are free from consumption among the employes. It is a well known fact that pulmonary tuberculosis is so insidious in its workings that the victim seldom realizes the danger until the disease has taken a strong hold. It is stopping the apparently superficial colds and coughs that the incipient cases are found, and a suggestion from the employer is the one thing needed to stimulate the desire for treatment. Doubtless the future will see very strict regulations governing tuberculosis, and the progressive men who are doing this work of their own volition are only anticipating what will probably be made compulsory.

Colds often lead to serious consequences, and should not be neglected. There is no more effective remedy for colds and coughs than the simple formula, prescribed by the authority on lung trouble, that calls for a half pint of Whiskey, two ounces of Glycerine and a half ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure). These ingredients cost little and can be purchased of any good prescription druggist and mixed at home. Mix well and use in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) is put up for dispensing only, in half-ounce vials, each vial securely sealed in a round wooden case with an engraved wrapper, showing the name—Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), prepared only by Leeds Chemical Co., Windsor, Ontario—plainly printed thereon. The oils sold in bulk and the many "just as good" imitations of Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) put up under similar name and style of package are not only ineffective, but often dangerous. It is always well to remember that the object of an imitator is to deceive. There is no known substitute for Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure).

CITY BOARD OF TRADE IN ANNUAL SESSION

Reports of President and Secretary---Officers to be Elected at the Next Meeting---Communications.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Board of Trade was held last night in the council chamber. Among those present were; Mr. D. Hughes-Charles, president; Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine, secretary; and Messrs. W. H. Bradburn, H. LeBrun, Geo. A. Gillespie, P. Downham, F. D. Kerr, W. S. Dodds, R. E. Wood, Wm. Rudkins, T. A. S. Hay, W. Stocker, J. Coyle Brown, G. B. VanBlaricom, R. M. Glover and Adam Dawson.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read by the secretary.

The following communications were received;

From the Orillia Board of Trade, re petitioning the Senate, Dominion and local houses for the placing of the civil service on an entirely non-partizan basis.

From H. J. Mucklem, honorary secretary of the Toronto Branch of the Army and Navy League.

From the secretary of the Board of Trade, Smith's Falls, re copy of bylaws.

From the secretary of the Board of Trade, Hastings, re copy of bylaws.

From B. F. Ackerman, vice-president of the Ingal Board of Trade, re resolution in favor of bonusing the Canadian Northern Railway.

From E. J. Zemaire, private secretary to Sir Wilfrid Laurier; Horace Walker, secretary to Hon. J. P. Whitney; R. R. Hall, M.P., and T. S. Bradburn, M.P.P., acknowledging receipt of resolution re bonusing Canadian Northern advocated by the local Board.

Mr. W. H. Bradburn moved, seconded by Mr. H. LeBrun, that the communication from the Orillia Board of Trade, regarding the placing of the civil service on a non-partizan basis be received and that no action be taken in the matter.—Carried.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

The President, Mr. D. Hughes-Charles, then read his annual report as follows;

To the Members of the Peterborough Board of Trade;

Gentlemen,—The past year has been a record one for our city. The manufacturers have all been very busy and large additions have been made to several of our largest concerns, and several new industries have been added to our already large list. The population of the city shows a fairly good increase and a large number of dwelling houses, about five hundred, have been erected, so that there is not any danger of the housing problem troubling us as it seems to do in other cities.

Labor, owing to the building operations and a considerable amount of permanent work being done by the corporation in the way of sidewalks and sewers, was well employed and at a high rate of wages.

As the farmers have had a bumper year and this city is in the centre of a large farming district, our merchants have had a very prosperous year and at the present time, I do not think there is one store vacant in the city. This in itself speaks volumes for the prosperity of the city.

In our secretary's report you will notice that we have had only four meetings in the year, and the reason of this is that the city council seemed to think that they could do everything necessary for the welfare of our city themselves and therefore asked only for the assistance of our Board only once and that was to help them to get up a deputation to go to Ottawa to press for the early completion of the Trent Valley Canal. This is not as it should be, because there should exist a cordial co-operation between the council and the Board of Trade in order that the best results to the community can be obtained. That is what is helping on all the western towns.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine, secretary, then read his annual report as follows;

Mr. President and Gentlemen,—I have the honor of presenting to you, as secretary, the 18th annual report of this board.

Meetings.—Since the last annual meeting, we have held four meetings of the board, viz., 27th November, 1906; 18th December, 1906; 22nd January, 1907, and 29th January, 1907.

Subjects Under Discussion.—The following subjects have been duly discussed at the above meetings;—"Early Completion of the Trent Waterway," "Filtration of City Water," "Municipal Ownership," "Dairy Show" and "Cheap Power."

Membership.—The number of members on the roll was 81, an increase of three on that of last year.

Attendance.—The average attendance of members was 15, a decrease of three on that of the previous year.

Deputations.—On Thursday, March 29th, 1906, a large deputation waited on the Hon. H. R. Emmerson, minister of railways and canals, to impress on him and his colleagues the vital necessity to the Dominion of the rapid completion of the Trent waterway, and also the necessity of placing such a sum in the estimates as would complete this most important and long desired means of transportation. A circular letter was sent out by this board to the secretaries of boards of trade, mayors, reeves of all cities, towns and villages as would derive direct and immediate benefit by its completion, and also to the newspapers at these places, from Brandon in the west to Montreal in the east. I am informed that this was the largest deputation which has ever waited on a cabinet minister in the history of the Dominion.

On Wednesday, March 13, a deputation composed of members of the City Council, County Council and Board of Trade waited on the Hon. Mr. Monteith, minister of agriculture, re locating a dairy show in this city. Unfortunately the western men, who were unanimously stronger, utterly refused to come east of Toronto, and we lost the show for this year at least. Messrs. D. Hughes-Charles, F. D. Kerr, W. C. Switzer and P. Downham, were to have represented our board, but the president was unfortunately unable to attend on account of his recent illness. The other three gentlemen joined the deputation.

City Council Chamber.—The thanks of this board are due to ex-Mayor Best, his Worship Mayor McWilliams, the past and present board of aldermen and City Clerk Armstrong, for the use of the city council chamber during the past year.

Local Press.—The thanks of the board are also due the reporters of the three local newspapers for the able manner in which the business of the board has been reported for the last year.

RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. J. Coyle Brown moved, seconded by Mr. T. A. S. Hay, a cordial vote of thanks to the president, Mr. Hughes Charles, for the capable manner in which he has presided and the deep interest he has taken in the Board during the past four years.—Carried unanimously.

On motion of Mr. R. E. Wood, seconded by Mr. W. S. Dodds a resolution of thanks was tendered to ex-Mayor Best, Mayor McWilliams and the aldermen for the use of the council chamber for meeting purposes.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. R. E. Wood, seconded by Mr. W. S. Dodds, that the names of Messrs. Eardley-Wilmot, R. M. Denniston and E. B. Edwards, be placed upon the minute book, with a record of their valuable services to the board, and that the secretary notify the three gentlemen to that effect.—Carried unanimously.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The board decided to adjourn till two weeks hence, when the election of officers will be held. Mr. D. Hughes Charles has decided not to serve any longer as president of the board.

This City's Milk Combine Discussed

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—It is fresh in the memory of a long suffering and too frequently swindled public, to dilate upon the exorbitant charges made in a country town like Peterborough for milk, and also that when milk was a few months ago put up to sixcents per quart that the milk combine promised with the advent of spring, to put the price back to the fair price of five cents per quart.

Now I am a family man and consequently use a good deal of milk. The man who brings this very necessary commodity to my house, plainly intimates that he is averse to the methods of the combine, and is ready and willing to take five cents per quart for milk which is superior to that sold by many of the local milk combine. If these Peterborough milk men are bound to soak the public and demand a little more than their "pound of flesh," (see Merchant of Venice), it is up to the citizens of Peterborough, to form a trust of their own and make arrangements to get their milk supply from outside sources so long as the local combine bleeds them.

One cent a quart is not much to the individual, but think of what it means to some 15,000 people of Peterborough.

Yours truly,

JACK SLAY.

A PASTOR HAS RESIGNED

REV. DR. TORRANCE RESIGNS ST. PAUL'S CHURCH,

His Resignation Was Not Accepted by the Presbytery.

Yesterday morning one of the most important matters considered in years by the local Presbytery, was the resignation of Rev. Dr. Torrance, who for many years has been the pastor of St. Paul's church. The meeting was held in private. The resignation was not accepted by the Presbytery and was laid on the table to await a special meeting of the Presbytery on April 11, when the congregation of St. Paul's will be summoned to appear.

Those present were; Reverends J. G. Potter, Peterborough; G. A. McClennan, Norwood; J. F. MacFarlane, Warkworth; Dr. Torrance, Peterborough; Jas. Ross, Peterborough; Wm. Johnston, Millbrook; H. Peckover, Omemee; S. S. Burns, Lakefield; H. C. Reeves, Chippewa; J. G. Wright, Peterborough; D. A. Thompson and Elder Wm. Cuthbertson, Norwood; and Elders Wm. Fowler, G. M. Roger, Wm. Shea, Robt. Harrison, Wm. Madill, Sheriff Hall and J. Coyle Brown, Peterborough.

The chair was occupied by Rev. E. A. Camp, moderator, of Havelock.

On motion, it was decided to hold the meeting behind closed doors.

Rev. J. F. MacFarlane reported on behalf of the committee appointed to confer with the officials of St. Paul's church, Peterborough, anent the relations existing between pastor and people. The report was received, fully discussed, and its recommendations considered seriatim. It was finally agreed that it be laid on the table for further reference.

Rev. Dr. Torrance tendered his resignation as pastor of St. Paul's church, and, on motion of Rev. McClennan, the doctor's resignation was laid on the table as above noted.

UNION CZARS OUT OF EMPLOYMENT

City Where Labor Unions Have no Foothold.

STRIKES ARE UNKNOWN

Peace and Harmony Between Employers and Employes.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 26.—So completely have the totemites in Los Angeles been routed by the employers that for the first time in the last ten years not one of the building-trades unions has presented a wage scale to the contractors for the present year. This fact has been noticed and commented upon generally.

At the same time it was shown that artisans in Los Angeles are the most favored in the United States, for in many trades the wages paid here are higher than in any other city, and in every instance they are equal, at least, to those paid elsewhere. In addition to this extremely favorable showing is the fact that building operations and all other industries have progressed and increased without interruption from month to month, while, to cap the climax, the climatic conditions in this favored land are such that those engaged in the building trades may work every day in the year, without the idleness of several months that prevails each year in Eastern States.

The Builders' Exchange was organized in 1892 and since that time has been opposing the attempts of the walking delegates and others of the same stripe to run the respective businesses of the members.

As the years passed the desertions from the unions became larger and their strength, never great here, waned like an unhealthy weed and finally has disappeared.

It remained, however, for this present year to show the complete destruction of the false fabric upon which the totemites and their dupes loaned.

It has been the custom for the gang to get together in their respective trades and to send to the employers a formal "demand," which they called a wage scale, in which they insisted upon all sorts of privileges and wages.

For years work was pressing and as long as the totemites did not become absolutely irrational, they were permitted to have their unions and the contractors paid them little attention.

The life of the self-appointed bosses might have been longer in Los Angeles had they shown even the slightest trace of sanity in their scales, agreements and demands.

The fact that the contractors paid little attention to them, being too deeply engrossed in their building projects, reacted upon the unionites and they cherished the fond delusion that they had at last "unionized Los Angeles." Then they became arrogant.

The fate of the Tinners' Union is well remembered. At one time this trade was in the grasp of a lot of harpies who ran amuck with it and were their own undoing. So unreasonable were the walking delegates in their fancied power that the employers formed an association to combat them and the union soon went glimmering.

Another historic incident in this connection is the time the Plasters' Union asked for an advance of $1 a day over the existing scale and wanted it within twenty-four hours. The advance was impossible on notice so short. The employers got together and the plasterers' totem was abolished.

The case of the bricklayers, who are getting $6 a day, is an illustration of the excellent conditions that prevail here. These men work the year around owing to the mildness of the climate while in the East they consider themselves fortunate if they get eight months' work.

The wages in the East, where they get but eight months' work each year are $1 a day less than here. Plasterers are paid $5 a day here, which is equal to and in many cases higher than is received in union-ridden cities. Carpenters are paid $3.50 a day as a minimum, and the better class of mechanics are paid more.

The majority of workmen in Los Angeles are engaged in securing comfortable homes in the outskirts, a condition to which the contractors ascribe the final disappearance of the unions as a factor here.

These men are unwilling to strike every few months like their brethren in the East, where a strike simply means a change in job. They are working for their homes, and pay little attention to the hireling yawpers who fatten upon the dues paid by dupes to unions.

These things were discussed at great length at the meeting of the exchange yesterday and the pipe of peace was smoked by the contractors. Through the blue haze they talked of big contracts already awarded for buildings in this city, and the greatest hinge in the building line to be expected during the coming year.

About Female Ailments

Not Hard to Cure if Properly and Promptly Treated.

Ask any intelligent physician what causes nine-tenths of all female disease, even including anaemia, nervousness and consumption.

Back comes the answer quick and sharp "Constipated Bowels."

There is scarcely a single female ailment that had not in its earlier stages symptoms of constipation.

How much better off the system is without the poisonous accumulations caused by constipation. How much clearer the complexion, how much fresher one feels when the system is pure and clean.

Think it over yourself.

Isn't it apparent that a bowel regulator and liver stimulant like Dr. Hamilton's Pills is sure to do good?

Gay spirits, good looks and happy health have returned to many a sick woman through Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Better get a few boxes today; purely vegetable, free from injurious ingredients, healthful and antiseptic. Dr. Hamilton's Pills will assist you in a thousand ways.

As delay is always dangerous, your plain duty is to follow the example of Mrs. F. Rowe, who sends the following letter from Gravels, Port Au Port, Newfoundland: "Four years ago I got kidney and bladder trouble. I thought it was 'female trouble' and treated it accordingly. Even my doctor in St. John said it was so.

"In reading about Dr. Hamilton's Pills I noticed symptoms like mine and I bought six boxes. These pills went right to work on my sick condition and helped me from the first. My supposed female trouble, which was bladder disease, was cured. My weight increased eight pounds and never before was I as well as today. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., or Kingston, Ont.

A NOTE OF WARNING

Archbishop Ireland made a speech the other day in St. Paul, Minn., and expressed some sensible thoughts. His remarks will apply to Canada as forcibly as they do to the citizens of the United States. The speaker pointed out that it was the intention of the fathers of the Republic that political liberty should be the guardian of civil liberty. As the people themselves were designed to be the lawmakers, no laws should be enacted that would go beyond necessity in the restriction of civil liberty.

"And yet is there not some peril to civil liberty from political liberty—at least from which I may be allowed to call the exuberance, the riotousness of political liberty?" asks the archbishop. "As a matter of fact," he continues, "we have too many laws. Our legislatures are too anxious to increase the bulk of the statute books. As things are tending we shall soon have so many laws that, wrapped around, as it were, by serried mail, we shall become prisoners, forbidden to stir or to walk. It certainly were so if the bills coming year by year before the sessions of Congress or the legislatures of States were to be turned into binding enactments."

Four Men Killed in a Snow-Slide

Vancouver, March 26.—Three white men and one Jap perished on Saturday morning in a snow slide at the logging camp of the Britannia copper syndicate's mines on Howe Sound.

Heavy snowfalls for several days had stopped work. The foremen decided Saturday morning that no work could be done on that day, and most of the men went back to their boarding houses. A few men remained in the donkey-engine house, however, and the snow-slide, coming without warning, buried eight men. Four men were rescued but were in a serious condition, there being a depth of eleven feet of snow and debris.

The three dead white men are: McBride, MacPherson and James Wilson.

Reprieve for Gilbert

Ottawa, March 26.—An order-in-council has been passed and approved by Lord Grey yesterday, changing the death sentence passed upon Jos. Gilbert, of Regina, sentenced to be hanged on April 5 for the murder of R. Henderson, a farmer, to imprisonment for life.

Gilbert was said should be hanged in November, but has had three respites to permit his case being taken to the Supreme Court. The last respite was to April 5th.

Roumanian Peasants Are Up in Arms

Czernowitz, March 28.—For six days Jassy has been besieged by thousands of raiders, who will not budge until forced to do so by the arrival of additional troops.

Banks in the Pokshann district have been pillaged. Numbers of Jews have fled to Marmaresie, but have again been driven out from there.

King Charles of Roumania has refused to listen to the suggestion of the students of Jassy University that he support the revolted peasantry in their movement.

The troops at Mealeni have been unable to drive back the peasants.

At Podulneli fighting lasted four hours, and 350 buildings were destroyed. Not a Jewish building was left standing.

The Austrian Government is becoming embarrassed by the number of Moldavian fugitives who are taking refuge in Austrian territory.

What is "All Wool?"

I have met a county magnate, a wealthy man who would not be put off with anything but the best, if he knew it, clad in a handsome "homespun" suit, the delicate blue gray mixture of which I happened to know was produced by the judicious blending of old blue stockings, such as navvies wear with old white stockings. I have seen a "society" lady in a stylish "blanket tweed" motor coat, the composition of which I knew to be of such a nature that it might very easily owe its existence in part to the cast-off hosiery of her own scullery maid, collected from the ash bin. Even the judge trying a case of "misrepresentation of goods" may, as likely as not, be unconsciously sitting in somebody else's thrown away rags that he has bought as "all wool."—A Woolen Manufacturer in Grand Magazine.

His Modest Claim.

A claim for damages against a railroad company is so often a license for exaggerated charges that a simple bill, such as was received by an American railroad company many years ago, even apart from its humorous aspect, is refreshing. It ran as follows:

The —— and —— Railroad company to John Smith Dr.

July 12, 1871.—To running your locomotive into my wife; as per Doctor's bill for curing her $1250

To smashing ban box and spilling her hat 5 00

To hurting me 5 00

He started for the door; but, looking around, he said in a most thunderous tone, "By heavens, you are the coldest woman I ever saw!"

The young woman looked up and answered sweetly:

"Oh, no, doctor; you have seen three colder than I!"—Boston Herald.

A Curious Notice.

This curious official notice was once published in Germany: "At the request of Herr Wilhelm Leigson of Innsbruck the seaman, Johan Leigson, who was drowned in May, 1869, on a journey from Stockholm to Hamburg in the Kaiser Friedrich, is hereby called upon by the courts to appear and report himself on or before April 1, 1881, under pain of being declared dead."

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—coaxes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.

If it's painful periods with women, same cause.

If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Press your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain lives. It's simply Common Sense.

We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

FIGHTING THE STORM.

The few straggling ducks that tempt the strenuous Canadian climate had a distressing time in the storm that swept the lake on a recent Sunday morning, writes S. T. Woods in The Globe. The great, white-crested waves chased and crowded one another down the lake, rearing up in angry impatience, struggling forward in the crush, or turning to dash against the rising barriers of white ice that protect the shore with their endless line of distorted peaks and fantastic embrasures. They struggled against the cross currents off the eastern lighthouse, and beat up the great irregular masses of ice formed by the breaking spray. The cannonading gale from the west caught and rattled up every open space in the disturbed lee of the bay, and even in the gap the contrary winds rocked the broken and grinding blocks of loose ice, moving them here and there in uncertain formations. There was no rest on the deep water, and every straggler seeking shelter in the bay was driven off in distress by the insatiable wind. A blackbill moving against the wind along the ice barrier of the shore with outstretched neck and swift, quivering wings, rose with indistinct caution to avoid the suspicious manhandling of the lighthouse and storm signal appliances. Rising against the full and sudden rush of the gale, there came a balancing of strength against strength, and for a moment it stopped us if he would not be able to make headway. A third so proverbially swift, now done and barely moving against the gray sky, gave the angry storm a momentary suggestion of strangeness, which passed as quickly as the almost baffled duck when he turned and shot by with the wind. The storm land special interest to his course as he inspected one open space after another, turning away from the angry and forbidding water. After a long, circular detour, outlined sometimes against the ice and sometimes against the irregular colors of the city's waterfront, he returned and dropped excitedly into the open water of the gap.

There is no expression of wonder and surprise and alarm like that of a wild duck at close range, and this bird, blackbill, as he swung expressly and hovered in the lee of the lighthouse, was a picture of perplexed uncertainty. Warning voices from experienced companions moved their lines of line a little to help him in. The alarm of the expedition was real, for as the gale increased in the wind and turned outside the bay, the ice began to move in great irregular masses, and the open water was rapidly narrowing. Some of the birds, in wedging their way through the narrowing strait, were caught from the grandeur of the storm, and their efforts aroused much well-meant sympathy.

WEDDING STATIONERY

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENTS are always in order. The season for the final result of being a disciple of Cupid finds expression in the Hymeneal ceremony at the altar—that occasion when "two hearts that beat as one" are joined together—pronounced one.

For this auspicious occasion the printing must be chastely dignified—must be appropriate in appearance to this one time of life when everything "best" is donned—when happiness reigns supremely.

Marriage Announcements
Marriage Invitations
Marriage Reception Cards
Post Nuptial Reception Cards

All of these we are able to supply in a proper form and printed artistically. Our work is conducted under the supervision of skilled typographical mechanics and may be unhesitatingly presented to the most fastidious critic.

Our charges for such work are moderate—yet good printing is ever valuable. However, we give quality for our figures, and an order entrusted to our care will be speedily, carefully and satisfactorily executed.

No work can be well done which has to be done hurriedly. Time is necessary for the accomplishment of faultless printing. We will fulfil all expectations if given ample time for completion.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

With Edged Tools

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN
Author of "The Sowers," "Roden's Corner," "From One Generation to Another," Etc.

Copyright, 1894, by HARPER & BROTHERS

An English lady was coming out of the drawing room window to meet the travelers. She nodded in answer to the servant's salutation and passed on to greet the master.

"My brother has been called away suddenly," she said. "One of his subagents has been getting into trouble with the natives. Of course you are Mr. Meredith?"

"I am," replied Jack, taking the hand she held out; it was a small white hand—small without being frail or diaphanous. "And you are Miss Gordon, I suppose? I am sorry Gordon is away, but no doubt we shall be able to find somewhere to put up."

"You need not do that," she said quietly. "This is Africa, you know. You can quite well stay with us, although Maurice is away until tomorrow."

She was tall and fair, with a certain stateliness of carriage which harmonized wonderfully with a thoughtful and pale face. She was not exactly pretty, but gracious and womanly, with honest blue eyes that looked on men and women alike. She was probably twenty-eight years of age; her manner was that of a woman rather than that of a girl—of one who was in life and not on the outskirts.

"We rather pride ourselves," she said, leading the way into the drawing room, "upon having the best house in Loango. You will, I think, be more comfortable here than anywhere."

"I see you have all the new books."

"Yes, we have books and magazines; but, of course, we live quite out of the world."

She paused, leaving the conversation with him as in the hands of one who knows his business.

"I," he said, filling up the pause, "have hitherto lived in the world—right in it. There is a lot of dust and commotion; the dust gets into people's eyes and blinds them; the commotion wears them out; and perhaps, after all, Loango is better!"

"I once met a Sir John Meredith," she said suddenly.

"My father."

He paused, drawing in his legs and apparently studying his neat brown boots.

"Should you meet him again," he went on, "it would not be advisable to mention my name. He might not care to hear it. We have had a slight difference of opinion. With me it is different. I am always glad to hear about him. I have an immense respect for him."

She listened gravely, with a sympathy that did not attempt to express itself in words. On such a short acquaintance she had not learned to expect a certain lightness of conversational touch which he always assumed when speaking of himself, as if his own thoughts and feelings were matters for ridicule.

"Of course," he went on, "I was in the wrong. I know that. But it sometimes happens that a man is not in a position to admit that he is in the wrong—when, for instance, another person would suffer by such an admission."

"Yes," answered Jocelyn, "I understand."

At this moment a servant came in with lamps and proceeded to close the windows. She was quite an old woman—an Englishwoman—and as she placed the lamps upon the table she scrutinized the guest after the manner of a privileged servitor. When she had departed Jack Meredith continued his narrative with a sort of deliberation which was explained later on.

"And," he said, "that is why I came to Africa—that is why I want to make money. I do not mind confessing to a low greed of gain, because I think I have the best motive that a man can have for wanting to make money."

He said this meaningly and watched her face all the while.

"A motive which any lady ought to approve of."

She smiled sympathetically.

"I approve and I admire your spirit."

She rose as she spoke and moved toward a side table, where two lighted candles had been placed.

"My motive for talking so barefacedly about myself," he said as they moved toward the door together, "was to let you know exactly who I am and why I am here. It was only due to you on accepting your hospitality. I might have been a criminal or an escaped embezzler. There were two on board the steamer coming out and several other shady characters."

"Yes," said the girl; "I saw your motive."

They were now in the hall, and the aged servant was waiting to show him his room.

* * * * * * *

"No one knows," Victor Durnovo was in the habit of saying, "what is going on in the middle of Africa."

And on this principle he acted.

"Ten miles above the camping ground where we first met," he had told Meredith, "you will find a village where I have my headquarters. There is quite a respectable house there, with—a—a—woman to look after your wants. When you have fixed this gang at Loango and have arranged for the dhows to meet my steamer, take up all your men to this village—Msala is the name—and send the boats back. Wait there till we come."

In due time the telegram came, via St. Paul de Loand, announcing the fact that Oscard had agreed to join the expedition and that Durnovo and he might be expected at Msala in one month from that time. It was not without a vague feeling of regret that Jack Meredith read this telegram. To be at Msala in a month with forty men and a vast load of provisions meant leaving Loango almost at once. And, strange though it may seem, he had become somewhat attached to the dreary west African town. The singular cosmopolitan society was entirely new to him; the life, taken as a life, almost unique. He knew that he had not outstayed his welcome. Maurice Gordon had taken care to assure him of that in his boisterous, hearty manner, savoring more of Harrow than of Eton, every morning at breakfast.

Jack took a seat on the porch and began to search for his cigar in the pocket of his jacket. Jocelyn went to the front of the veranda and watched her brother mount his horse. When she came to the back of the veranda a little later she was thinking about her brother Maurice, and it never suggested itself to her that she should not speak her thoughts to Meredith, whom she had not seen until three weeks ago. She had never spoken of Maurice behind his back to any man before.

"Does it ever strike you," she said to Jack, "that Maurice is the sort of man to be led astray by evil influence?"

"Yes, or be led straight by a good influence, such as yours."

He did not meet her thoughtful gaze. He was apparently watching the retreating form of the horse through the tangle of flower and leaf and tendril.

"I am afraid," said the girl, "that my influence is not of much account."

"Do you really believe that?" asked Meredith, turning upon her with a half cynical smile.

"Yes," she answered simply.

Before speaking again he took a pull at his cigar.

[To be continued]

How Birds' Nests Are Made Round.

The little abandoned nest had fallen from the tree. The nature student lifted it from the ground.

"How round it is," he said. "No cup rim could be rounder. Don't you wonder how the bird, with neither rule nor compass, can make her nest so round? Well, she does it easily. She builds the nest about her breast, turning round and round in it, and its circular character comes spontaneously and inevitably. The circle is found everywhere in the buildings of the lower animals. The straight line, on the other hand, they can never achieve."

Cheering Tommy Up.

The obstacles which beset the pathway of a photographer when he endeavors to secure "a pleasant expression" are many, particularly when his sitters are of a tender age.

"I do not believe whipping does children a particle of good," said Mrs. Green, returning flushed and discouraged from a visit to the photographer with her Tommy. "Here I've spent over an hour in that hot room trying to make this child look pleasant. I've slapped his hands twice, and he looked crosser each time than he did before."—Youth's Companion.

The Corpse Plant.

The corpse plant is a remarkable carnivorous specimen that grows in the colony of Natal. Its principal feature is a bell shaped mouth, with a throat opening into a hollow stem. It is almost black and covered with a thick, glutinous secretion, while its odor is very offensive. This attracts carrion feeding birds to it, and once they alight on it they are lost. Their claws become entangled in the secretion, the bell shaped mouth folds up, and they are literally swallowed.

Costliest of All Fish.

The fish was no bigger than a silver dollar. Its color was bright gold, and it had a beautiful bushy golden tail.

"That," said the pet stock dealer, "is the finest aquarium fish in the world, a Chinese brush tailed goldfish. It is handsome, healthy and long lived. A good brush tailed goldfish," he concluded, "costs $250 or $300, and some fine specimens have sold for as much as $700 apiece."

Good Some Other Time.

"Just as Jack was about to kiss me last night father walked into the room."

"What did you do?"

"I gave Jack a rain check."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Imperative.

First Doctor—Is this operation absolutely necessary? Second Doctor—It is. The only possible chance we have of collecting our bill is from his life insurance!—Life.

is recommended

Mr. Eggert M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. 32. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 15 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 30 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 30 acres of J. B. 32 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 6 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 30 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 50 feet, and in it shows 6 inch nicolitte, 12 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 672-1235-692-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

New Liskeard, 17th November, 1906.

JACOB M. EGGERT, M.E.

We offer a few more shares at Fifty Cents (50c); par value One Dollar ($1.00). The property is being developed as fast as possible, and we cannot promise that stock will be sold at less than par for very long. Don't wait until it is $3.00 to invest, giving others big profits for what you should have bought sooner. We want you to get in on the ground floor and share in the big profits. For a limited time only we will accept subscriptions at 50 cents—the stock is slated for a sharp advance very soon. Send marked cheque or money order.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

WEAK WOMEN READ BELOW

One woman in three is struggling against weakness.

Are you one of the weak ones?

Not exactly sick, but oh, how miserable!

You discharge your daily duties, but who can measure the burden, the trial?

Talk of bravery, where find a finer spirit than among half-sick women, fighting, struggling to do their duty against terrible odds—and they never give up until they drop.

If you could put a drop of blood under the misroscope the cause would be revealed.

You would find the blood thin and watery, red cells far too few, the carrier of life very greatly reduced in vitality, and this means slow death.

Ferrozone cures weakness by fortifying both appetite and digestion, and making plenty of blood.

Ferrozone cures weakness by supplying nutriment and building material, by giving the body the constituents it requires for restoring tired organs.

It gives vim, vigor and endurance.

Ferrozone is a tissue builder.

It adds force to all the vital functions—the stomach, liver, kidneys.

Ferrozone gives sound sleep, sound digestion, promotes perfect removal of all the body wastes.

Ferrozone makes the body glow with health.

Any weak, pale or sickly woman that Ferrozone won't cure—why she must be hopeless. Wonderful power in Ferrozone, wonderful cures it makes, and this you can prove by trying it. Sold everywhere in 60c. boxes.

Hotel Bus Runs Over a Small Boy

The many friends of Mr. J. M. Brooks, formerly proprietor of the Palace Hotel, will regret to learn that his little son Fred was accidentally run over by the National Hotel bus yesterday morning. The little boy was playing near the Central Milling Company, and whilst crossing towards the C.P.R. station, the bus struck him as it was going to the 11.38 train. The boy's head was badly cut and his shoulder was injured. No bones were broken, and he will soon be all right again. He was carried into the Central Milling Co's office until a doctor arrived, when he was taken to his home on Dalhousie street.

Narrow Escape on Rice Lake

As Mr. P. Thompson and his sister, were last week crossing Rice Lake, they struck some bad ice near Rock Island, and almost lost their lives. Mr. Thompson and his sister in a buggy while nearing the island, the hock of ice give way, throwing the occupants into the water. Mr. and Miss Thompson as well as the horse managed to get on sound ice.

As Mr. Thompson was unhitching his horse the buggy again went down and the animal was drowned.

Military Camp at Kingston

The annual report of the militia council says practically that the troops of Military District No. 3, who last year went to Cobourg, will as soon, as the rifle range now being acquired at Kingston has been completed, a proper water supply installed, and the camp site better drained, ones more locate at the camp at Kingston.

Dummer Resident for the West

Yesterday afternoon, Mr. Robert Hunter of Dummer, left for Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, in charge of a fine Percheron stallion, which has been the property of a syndicate of Dummer and Douro farmers for the past couple of years. It is thought that this splendid specimen of horseflesh will be sold in that far western country, as several good offers have been made. Mr. Hunter expects to remain in the west for several weeks.

Is Missing Dentist Dead

The local press has for the past week or so been trying to locate Mr. John Williams, an Englishman who is alleged to have mysteriously disappeared a week ago last Sunday. This man who went home a week ago Saturday night, and had breakfast and dinner at his boarding house on Sunday, has not been seen or heard of since that last meal. The Times has been assured that Williams has gone to seek a relation of his who left town some weeks ago. The whole matter is enshrouded in mystery as Williams, it is said, has repeatedly threatened to do away with himself.

Mr. C. P. Solater's Death Chronicled

Mr. Charles Page Solater, who passed away at his late residence 143 Crescent street, will be mourned by many a Bell telephone subscriber and employe throughout the whole Dominion. The late Mr. Solater was popular with the employes of the Bell Telephone Company, of which he had been secretary-treasurer, and was alike popular amongst the business men with whom he came in contact. Mr. Solater was 57 years of age. He is survived by Mrs. Solater and six children, four daughters and two sons.

Solater was born at Dover, England. He was a son of H. Solater, a retired officer of the Royal Navy. On the formation of the Bell Telephone Company he became its first secretary-treasurer, and occupied that position up to the time of his death.

Mr. Solater was married to Margaret Wilda, of Hamilton, Ont., in 1878, and their family consists of four daughters and two sons, Mable, Edna, Ivy, Charles Henry, Arthur Norman and Marjorie.

Mr. Wm. McGregor Has Passed Away

Early yesterday morning, Mr. William McGregor, of Driscoll Terrace, east ward, passed away, after a short illness.

Mr. McGregor, who was thirty-four years of age, was a son of the late David McGregor. The deceased was born in this city and lived here all his life. Ten years ago he was married to Miss Margaret Murphy, of this city, who, with seven children, the oldest eight years of age, and the youngest, a baby only five weeks' old, is left to mourn his loss. He is also survived by his mother, four sisters and one brother.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, from the family residence, 434 Driscoll Terrace, to the Little Lake cemetery for interment.

Famous Surgeon Dead

Wiesbaden, Germany, March 26. — Professor Von Bergmann, the famous surgeon, died here yesterday. He was operated upon Sunday for appendicitis. He presided at a special meeting of the Berlin Medical Association last July to discuss the treatment of that ailment. He served in the Austrian-Prussian war of 1866, the Franco-Prussian war, and the Turko-Russian War, and last year attended the Sultan of Turkey and his daughter. Early this year he treated the late Shah of Persia, and received a fee of $22,000. He had charge of the surgical clinic at Berlin.

A Square Deal

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and their formulas are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate women and children. Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much better agent is used both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles used in them, viz.—pure triple refined glycerine. This agent possesse intrinsic medicinal properties of its own being a most valuable antiseptic and anti ferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate, chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

What HON. H. G. EWART, Former Congressman, Circuit Court and U. S. Judge, Western District, North Carolina, Has to Say of NEVADA MINING INVESTMENTS:

Nevada's past history was written by the Comstock. Its present history is being written by Goldfield, Tonopah and Bullfrog.

The great Comstock Mine at Virginia City, Nevada, produced $380,000,000. It added hundreds of millions to the world's supply of precious metals, it built transcontinental railroads, great steamship lines and telegraphic cables across the ocean, it financed some of the world's greatest newspapers, it endowed universities and colleges, and galleries of art, it built multitudes of towns and cities, it completed that splendid metropolis, San Francisco, it made United States senators, railroad and bank presidents, it fixed in history the names of Mackey, Fair, Flood, O'Brien, Shaw, Jones and Sutro.

Tonopah was discovered in 1900. Her Mizpah is probably the greatest silver-gold mine of the world. This camp has paid $2,200,000 in cash dividends.

Goldfield came next, and is producing today $130,000 every twenty-four hours, or at the rate of $50,000,000 per annum.

It is Bullfrog now, the baby among her wonderful camps, that Nevada is holding forth to the world like a doting mother. Unlike Goldfield, Bullfrog is essentially a great milling proposition, there being litterally mountains of ore, assaying from $5 to $250 per ton. When other mining camps in Nevada will be deserted, Bullfrog will be known as the "Camp of Confidence and Endurance." It will take centuries to exhaust its great ore deposits. This is the reason why Schwab, McKane, Oddie, Clark and other millionaires have quietly acquired nearly every foot of available mineral ground in this great district. This is the reason why four great railroads have already completed, and are rapidly extending their lines into the Bullfrog district. This is why Rhyolite has in the short space of three years changed from a habitation of coyotes and side-wheelers into a modern up-to-date city of 7,000 people. This is the reason why the Montgomery-Shoshone is building upon its properties a great reduction mill which will handle its thousands of tons of ore and which will cost over half a million. This is the reason why all Bullfrog stocks have steadily advanced in the face of the savage and unjustifiable attacks made by Wall street and their paid newspaper emissaries.

The South Bullfrog district, which includes the Keane Wonder, Big Dell, Cliff, California Bullfrog, Death Valley Mining & Milling Co., and others, is looked upon as one of the coming camps of importance. The ore found in this district are quartz and talc, carrying iron oxides, the principal values being in gold, with silver and copper traces.

It is in this district that the Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company (Inc.) properties in part are located. The company owns 80 acres of highly mineralized lands within two miles of the California Bullfrog Mine. Its assays show rich gold, silver and copper values, and being a tunnel proposition, can be economically and quickly developed. The other property of the Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company is splendidly located right in the very heart of this great gold-bearing camp, consisting of 100 acres within 1 1-2 miles of the great Montgomery-Shoshone Mine owned by Charles M. Schwab, the Pittsburg steel magnate, and his associates. It is only two miles from the City of Rhyolite with a fine road leading to the mines, and within one mile of the water pipes leading from Indian Springs to the City of Rhyolite. Its ledges are bold and well defined, and expert engineers declare it as the ir opinion, that the same rich veins of the Montgomery-Shoshone traverse this property.

Kansas City, Mo., February 20, 1907.

J. H. MORELAND,

Mr. Moreland is one of the most expert and reliable assayers in the United States. He is a graduate of the State School of Mines of Colorado, and has had fifteen years practical experience as assayer of leading mines and smelters. For many years he was the official Government assayer for the United States Custom House at Kansas City, Mo. The large proportion of all ores shipped from Mexico is received at Kansas City.

The Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Co. is officered and managed by gentlemen of the highest character and standing in this city. The company has secured the services of Mr. J. E. Lindstrom, of Rhyolite, Nevada, as general manager, whose years of experience in Alaska, Colorado, and California, peculiarly fit him for this position.

After the most careful and personal examination of the properties of this company, its officers, and its possibilities, I have accepted the position of Fiscal Agent of the company and offer to the investing public, 250,000 shares of its stock at 10 cents per share. With the knowledge I have of the tremendous possibilities of this company, and its valuable properties, and the high character of its officials, I do not hesitate to urge my friends in the south, and the investing public generally, to buy this stock, satisfied as I am that they will realize enormous profits on their investments.

It will give me pleasure to mail to any inquirers, prospectus, maps, and full information as to the properties of this company. Highest references given.

This stock can be purchased either for cash, or on the installment plan as follows:

$ 10.00 buys 100 shares, payable $ 5.00 cash, balance $ 1.00 per month.
$ 15.00 buys 150 shares, payable $ 7.50 cash, balance $ 1.50 per month.
$ 50.00 buys 500 shares, payable $10.00 cash, balance $ 2.00 per month.
$ 30.00 buys 300 shares, payable $15.00 cash, balance $ 3.00 per month.
$ 70.00 buys 200 shares, payable $10.00 cash, balance $ 8.00 per month.
$100.00 buys 1000 shares, payable $10.00 cash, balance $18.00 per month.
$500.00 buys 5000 shares, payable $50.00 cash, balance $90.00 per month.

This stock is being rapidly taken and I would advise my friends to send in their orders at once. Thousands of investors are making fortunes out of comparatively small amounts in Nevada Mining propositions. Why should you not do so?

Make all checks, money-orders, payable to, and address all letters to

H. G. EWART, Fiscal Agents,

I wish to secure the services of responsible and active agents to sell Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company's Stock, and will be glad to have parties who desire to act as such agents correspond with me.

GREAT ALARM FELT AT BUCHAREST, ROUMANIA

Peasants' March on Capital Continues---Engagment at Galata Was a Sanguinary Affair.

Vienna, March 27.—The newspapers here publish the most serious report concerning the Roumanian outbreak. They say the peasants' march on Bucharest continues unchecked. There is great alarm in the capital. The garrison in the eighteen forts, which defend the city, have been greatly strengthened, and the Royal Palace is guarded by troops.

One report states that 200 were killed and 600 wounded at Galatz. Many private and public buildings have been turned into hospitals. The inhabitants are fleeing. Giurgevo is besieged by rebels, and the commander there has telegraphed to Bucharest for aid. A hundred peasants have been killed at Margueile, a hundred at Petreanu and 70 at Bouaki. The troops also suffered severely, but the government is suppressing the casualties lest they encourage the rebels.

The victorious insurgents have established a republic at Feretsic and are sharing land, cattle and other property. Jassy is besieged by 46,000 peasants. It is defended by 12,000 soldiers, with artillery.

Without questioning the fact that the situation is serious, it should be remembered that the newspapers here are notoriously unreliable where there is a possibility of being sensational, and that ciphers are sometimes added to figures with reckless audacity.

There is little doubt that some terrible brutalities have been committed by the triumphant peasants, although they are possibly less numerous than the papers here represent. There is an apparently authentic story of marauders entering a house where a Jewess had just been confined of twins, and of their wringing the infants' necks in the mother's presence. They then killed her. A band of peasants set fire to fifty farm houses in the Alexandria district. In one instance they wrapped a tenant in hay and threw him into the flames where he perished. At another farm four children were torn limb from limb.

ALARM AT BUCHAREST.

Bucharest, March 27.—There was an impressive scene in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday which was indicative of the alarming condition of the country. M. Sturdza, the new Liberal Prime Minister, appealed to the deputies to keep the Government by hastening the passage of laws designed to quell the disturbances and appease the peasants, including the abolition of several taxes.

M. Ionesco, ex-Minister of Finance, who has been for years the bitterest political opponent of M. Sturdza, made an earnest speech, in which he promised the utmost assistance of his party in view of the disastrous position. Afterwards he effusively shook hands with the Prime Minister amid the enthusiasm of the deputies of all parties. The session was the most solemn ever remembered in the Roumanian Chamber. The Minister of public instruction and public works will go forthwith to the Moldavian riot area and appeal to the disturbers.

TO ENJOY A GOOD DINNER

How to Avoid Distress and Indigestion After Eating.

Let us tell you how you can enjoy a good dinner, so that the heartiest meal will set well on your stomach and cause no unpleasant and disagreeable after effects.

We will show you how to regain the appetite of your childhood and the enjoyment of food, so that it will taste as well as when mother cooked the dinner.

There is no hard work necessary to do this; no need of a rigid and self-denying diet list; no call for nasty and disagreeable medicines. Simply take a Mi-o-na stomach tablet before each meal and before going to bed, and it will so strengthen the stomach that before long a hearty meal will give you gratification and comfort, without the least fear of distress and suffering.

The strongest proof we can offer of our faith in this advice, is the fact that we give an absolute, unqualified guarantee (applying to two 50c. boxes of Mi-o-na), that your money will be refunded unless Mi-o-na cures.

Mi-o-na is not a mere digestive, giving only temporary relief, but a specific for all diseases of the stomach, strengthening the digestive organs and making a permanent cure.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50c box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50c.

Write today for a free sample package, and also give us your symptoms, and one of the best known stomach specialists will give your case his careful and personal attention without charge. Booth's Mi-ona Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Old Landmark Split Up

Yesterday one of Peterborough's oldest and best known landmarks, was destroyed. This landmark was the ancient, but dead oak tree in Victoria Park, near the fountain, which whilst having passed from its former use in bringing out a new dress of foliage every spring, this for years merely been used as a support for Virginia creepers, which during the summer months made this veteran look like "a thing of life." Yesterday the oak tree, after having been cut down, was hewed, sawn and split into cord-wood, which will eventually assist in warming the homes of some of Peterborough's poor. This old oak will be missed by many.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Gathered From the Local Police Station.

Yesterday morning some excitement was created and travellers across the Hunter street bridge were voluntarily stopped in transit, between the city and its latest new ward, formerly Ashburnham, by the actions of a gentleman who, having imbibed too freely of "Foolish Water," was being brought to the city by two friends. The jagged gentleman seemed to want to get to the east ward whilst his comrades wanted his presence, for his own good, on the city side of the bridge. When last seen, after our reporter's patience had become exhausted the jag was sambering in a back alley near the Rapid Tool Company's premises. We hope the either got home sober or will pay the usual penalty for such d——— foolishness.

At yesterday's Police Court Edward O'Brien was charged with having been found drunk on the preceding day. Edward noted that he had been working out in Otonabee and, coming into the city, the delights and conviviality of city life were too much for him, hence his spree. Edward pleaded for a chance, promising to get out of town in fifteen minutes. The Magistrated, however, remarked. "If you will get drunk, you must pay the shot." Edward went up on the hill in default of the necessary $2.

Cornelius Wall was charged with "robbery of the person," viz., stealing the sum of $35 from Frank Sullivan. Mr. McWilliams appeared for the prisoner. The Chief of Police asked for an enlargement, as his witnesses were not present. The Magistrate fixed the prisoner's bail at $200. The case was enlarged until next Monday.

Mr. S. A. Smithson Was Well Cared

Mr. S. A. Smithson, a former teacher on the very efficient staff of the Peterborough Business College, who has been appointed principal of the Norwood Public school, and will enter upon his new duties after the Easter holidays, and who was formerly principal of Villier's Public school, was on Tuesday presented with an appreciative address and gold-headed ebony cane by the boys of the commercial department.

Mr. Smithson made an appropriate reply, while short addresses expressive of the kindly feeling toward him and expressing regret at his departure were made by Messrs. McGee, Wm. Cluruthers, A. L. Andress and Mr. Wm. Pringle, the energetic principal of the Peterborough Business College.

Mrs. Latimer's Services Are Acknowledged

W. A. of All Saints' After a Good Year Honors Its Secretary.

Miss Chamberlain, in her customary "savoi faire" manner occupied the chair at the annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of All Saints' church.

Reports were read by Mrs. Latimer, the secretary, and Mrs. A. Gilbert read the treasurer's report, both of which were very satisfactory. During the past year the Women's Auxiliary has shipped clothing to the North-west, valued at $63.92. The auxiliary donated $51.25 for different missionary purposes while $77.55 was given by them to home missions. The amount of the cent a week collection for the year was $7.67.

The most important feature of the meeting, was the presentation of a life's membership certificate and gold pin to Mrs. J. W. Latimer, who has filled the office of secretary for the past nine years. Rev. Wm. Major expressed to Mrs. Latimer, the hearty thanks of the Women's Auxiliary for her faithful services, and hoped she would still continue to be an earnest worker in the Auxiliary. The framed certificate was handed to Mrs. Latimer by Mrs. Gilbert, and Miss Chamberlain presented the gold pin.

The officers for the coming year were then elected, and resulted as follows:

Hon. Pres.—Mrs. (Rev.) Major.
President—Miss Chamberlain.
1st. Vice-Pres.—Mrs. T. Hooper.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. A. Hopkins.
Secretary—Mrs. Hickey.
Treasurer—Mrs. A. Gilbert.
Dorcas Secretary—Mrs. Dryfuod.
Pres Jr. W. A.—Mrs. T. J. Blois.
Assistants—Mrs. J. G. Scott and Mrs. T. Molden.

Owing to lack of space in yesterday's issue we were compelled to hold back our report of the most successful smoker held by the curlers on Tuesday night. The smoker was a commemorate termination of a successful season and was characterized by a splendid program and a good attendance.

President T. F. Matthews occupied the chair.

Prominent among the events of the evening was the presentation of prizes to winners of the rink and points competitions by Mr. Matthews, as follows:

First prize, rink competition.—Mr. S. Ray's rink.

Second prize, rink competition.—Mr. C. Rutherford's rink.

First prize, points competition.—Mr. J. H. Ferguson.

Second prize, points competition.—Mr. R. N. Merrit.

Messrs Rutherford, Ferguson and Merrit were not able to be present.

Songs were rendered during the evening by Messrs. W. S. Davidson, Walter Stocker, W. J. Deenan, Harry Evans and John Crane. The latter acting as accomp anist in his usual accomplished manner.

Mr. C. L. Owen for E. Northumberland

A Warkworth despatch says: The Conservatives of East Northumberland, met in convention here today to nominate a candidate for the House of Commons, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Edward Cochrane. When Capt. Wilson, of Colborne, called the meeting to order the large hall was filled to overflowing, every sub-division of the constituency being fully represented. Mr. C. L. Owen of Campbellford, was the unanimous choice, no other nomination being made.

On rising to support Mr. Owen was most enthusiastically received. He expressed deep gratitude for the honor and confidence conferred. If elected he promised to strongly oppose the extravagance of the government at Ottawa. Short speeches were also made by Hon. Dr. Willoughby, Sam Nesbitt, reeve of Brighton W. L. Payne, H. Hicks, and N. D. Shetsinger, of Colborne; Wm. Wade, of Brighton township. Mr. Crews of Murray, and others.

Feeling references were made to the lamented death of Mr. Cochrane, and a committee was appointed to draft a letter of sympathy to the widow and family of the deceased.

FEAR UPRISING IN CHINESE EMPIRE

Famine a Cloak for Plotting Boxers.

RULING DYNASTY ALARMED

European Nations Warned to Keep Their Eyes Open.

Washington, D. C., March 28.—The ruling dynasty in China is seriously alarmed over the possibility of a general uprising on account of the famine. Advices to this effect have reached the state department from Shanghai.

If there should be an uprising there is danger that the government might not be able to control the situation. American and other foreign interests then would be jeopardized. So great is the concern that diplomatic and consular officials in China have been instructed to keep Washington advised in regard to the situation.

The spread of famine through the country offers an opportunity to seditionary societies to enlist converts to assuaging of want places the persons given assistance under obligations to the societies. The government's inability to relieve suffering, it is said have been magnified and the hardships of the people attributed to lack of sympathy by the government for the poor classes.

VICEROY SEES DANGER.

That the Chinese government recognizes the danger is shown by the fact Viceroy Tuan Fang, of Yanking, has memorialized the throne for $1,000,000 to purchase East Indian rice to feed his people. Undoubtedly this step was taken to offset the work that has been done by the seditionary societies as well as to relieve the immediate suffering. In taking his action the viceroy predicted a general uprising in the famine stricken districts unless prompt relief is provided, but he did not refer to the trouble that has been stirred up by the anti-government societies.

The suffering of the people is used as capital, it is said, in that judicious the cause directed against the government.

An extra effort will be made in the United States to broaden the scope of the movement to find relief for the Chinese. Already there have been large sums of money collected and dispatched to China to be used in the purchase of food, and in the near future the transport Buford will sail from San Francisco with a shipload of provisions given by Louis Klopsch, editor of the Christian Herald.

OTHER NATIONS CAN HELP.

A general movement throughout the civilized world to aid the sufferers, it is believed, will enable the Chinese government to strengthen its hands and possibly suppress uprisings and riots. For the protection of foreigners in China the United States and other countries are prompted by self, as well as humanitarian interest, to come promptly to the assistance of the Celestial empire.

That any movement which threatens the overthrow of the present dynasty in China gives alarm to the United States and every European nation which has interests and people in China is not denied. The life of every white person in China is believed by officials of the state department to depend upon the continuance of the Chinese government as it stands, the Boxer uprising being cited as an instance of what might result if the present government should be weakened.

A SPLENDID PROPOSITION

Mining Investors Will do Well to Give This Prompt Attention.

The attention of our readers is called to the advertisement of the Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company. The Fiscal Agent of this Company is Judge H. G. Ewart, of Kansas City, formerly a prominent member of the United States Congress, and well and favorably known throughout the Southern States, where he has many friends and admirers. This Company is under the management of some of the most prominent business men of Kansas City, Mo., as any of our readers may ascertain of any bank in that city.

This Company owns 130 acres of splendid mineral properties in the very heart of the celebrated Bullfrog district in Nevada, and within one and a half miles of the great Montgomery-Shoshone Mines, which are owned and operated by Schwab, the steel millionaire of Pittsburg, and his associates.

Judge Ewart desires to secure the services of an active and reliable agent to act for the Company in Peterborough and vicinity. Our readers would do well to send for a prospectus and map of the properties of this Company.

City Board of Works In Business Session

The Board of Works and Fire, Water and Light Committee met last night, when all the members were present.

An hour and a half was spent in hearing requests for sewer, sidewalk and creek diversion work.

J. C. Mutchett was appointed driver for the new team in fire hall, at a salary of $475. The Board of Works will pay to the Fire, Water and Light Committee $750 a year, which it is figured will be an equitable division between the Board of Works and the Fire, Water & Light Committee for the use of said team and drivers. This new team is absolutely indispensable for fire purposes, and it is proposed to use the new team and driver on street work as far as practicable. In summer there is plenty of drawing to be undertaken by this team, while in winter it can be used on snowplowing, and for drawing snow and ice from off the streets.

STREET WATERING.

The following tenders were received for street watering:—

	1907	1906
Eastern A. Varlow	$400	$349
Western, Z. Hodgett	399	399
Northern, J. Blodgett ...	409.50	349

The mayor moved, seconded by Ald. Wilson,—That the above tenderers be given the contract for the watering of the streets in the three divisions in question, and that their safeties be accepted.—Carried.

The mayor moved, seconded by Ald. Wilson,—That the chairman of the board be authorized to secure some person to undertake the street watering contract for the southern division.—Carried.

Ald. Wilson pointed out that bad drainage existed in Bethune street to the detriment of N. Lush's interests in particular. The board will investigate this matter today with a view to improving the situation.

The mayor pointed out that Mr. J. Storey, at corner of Reid and McDonnel streets, is also suffering from flood. The board will look into this matter.

The application of Mr. Dale for a crossing on George street, near McDonald's mill, was referred to the city engineer to report.

Ald. McIntyre drew the board's attention to the wretched condition of Thomas street, between King and Bolivar streets. It was almost impossible, he said, to take a vehicle along this street.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre.—That the city engineer be instructed to have this portion of the street gravelled, and both sides of the street to be used as sidewalks until a granolithic pavements are constructed.—Carried.

Ald. Wilson suggested that the creek underneath the Grand Trunk railway bridge on Bethune street, near the corner of Murray street, be dredged, thus giving the water a better opportunity to get away. This, he explained, would also have a tendency to keep the new tile drain, which the board laid along McDonnel street last year, clear of water. He also explained that a quantity of gravel might be obtained for the streets. The board will look into this matter with a view to speedy action.

REPORT ON BOUNDARY.

The city engineer reported as follows:—

To Ald. Duncan, chairman Board of Works—

Dear Sir,—As instructed, I have examined those parts of the boundary between the city and township of Monaghan, to be maintained by the city, with a view to putting them in good condition, and estimate the cost as follows:—

Lansdowne street, between Park and Haggart streets, 3,900 feet long, will require:
1200 cubic yards of gravel at 60c...	$720
Three culverts renewed, in pipe 12 inches—105 feet, at $1... ...	105
Three culverts renewed, in pipe 12 inches,—24 inch.35 feet, at $2	$ 70
	$895
Monaghan road between Chamberlain and Charlotte Sts., 3600 feet long, will require 750 cubic yards gravel at 60c...	$450
Two culverts renewed in 12-in. pipe—66 ft. at $1...	$ 65
Total $1410

If gravel can be procured nearer than the Hilliard pit, the cost for that item may be reduced considerably. A large quantity might be got from the new buildings to be erected on the Central Park, which if purchased at a reasonable price would reduce the cost by about 15 per cent.

The board then adjourned.

Mechanic Writes re Milk Prices

Whilst not Endorsing all the Opinions of Our Correspondents, we Print the Letters.

(To the Editor of The Times).

Dear Sir,—In your paper of yesterday I seen a letter that had ought to make the people of Peterborough thank you and put their names on your subscription list. What I am writing about is a letter that refers to the milk trust in this city. There is no use in the milkmen saying that no combine is in existence. We all know that a few months ago the milk dealers of Peterborough, when they raised the price of milk to six cents a quart, promised, when spring came, they would put the price back to the old price of five cents a quart.

According to your former writer's letter these milkmen are now pleading to keep their prices up to six cents. If such a combine, as this is in force, I would like to see other workingmen like myself, go into a combine and refuse to pay the prices asked. There are surely enough milk buyers in this city to back up a man or men who will sell milk for five cents. There is a good profit at that price and if the working people of Peterborough are to be bled by a Peterborough milk-trust, it is time for the working man, in defence of his family, to refuse to pay the prices asked and get outside people to bring in this necessary article of family use. The Times should be patronized by all the people of this city for giving the people a chance to show up a fraud.

Yours truly,
WORKINGMAN.

THAW MAY BLOCK AN ORAL EXAMINATION

Judge Has Power to Reject Finding of the Commissioners---Trial Will Continue if the Prisoner is Found Sane.

New York, March 28.—With the formal swearing in yesterday of the lunacy commission appointed by Judge Fitzgerald in the case of Harry K. Thaw, the first real step toward establishing the present mental status of the slayer of Stanford White was begun. The commissioners took the oath in the private chambers of the judge. Court was then re-convened before noon and the jury was excused till next Monday at 10.30 o'clock.

THAW LOOKED PALE.

Thaw, looking pale and affrighted, was brought into the court room, when a formal adjournment was made. Seated directly behind him was his wife, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, and on her left the prisoner's aged mother, Mrs. Wm. Thaw, The Countess of Yarmouth, Mrs. Geo. Lauder Carnegie, and the brothers of the prisoner, Josiah and Edward; occupied seats in the rear.

EVELYN'S BROTHER THERE.

For the first time since the trial began, Howard Nesbit, the brother of Evelyn, was among the spectators in the court room. Vainly he tried to get a glance of recognition from his sister, but she gazed over his head blandly, and did not appear to notice him. For an hour and a half the three commissioners and Judge Fitzgerald conferred in the latter's chambers adjoining the court before the regular proceedings began.

The question as to whether the inquiry should be held in public or at private sessions was a momentous one, and occupied their consideration. They had come to no definite decision, however, when court opened.

Judge Fitzgerald's remarks to the jury were brief. "I will excuse you, gentlemen of the jury, until Monday next at 10.30 o'clock."

They followed the usual admonishment, not to read the newspapers or discuss the evidence. No comment on the report that one of the jurors had expressed an opinion that Thaw was sane was made by the court.

CAN REJECT REPORT.

Just how long the sessions will last cannot be guessed at. Much will depend upon whether the commissioners decide to go into the history of the case or only hear witnesses who can swear as to the present mental condition of the defendant.

The justice appointing a commission in lunacy has the power to reject its report.

Hudson Bay Company Gives Orders to a Local Company

Yesterday is a good example of the growing possibilities and actual work done by the industrial world of Peterborough, was in evidence. In front of a Charlotte street canoe company, were piled, row upon row, of huge canoes, to each of which was attached a tag inscribed "H.B.C., Biscotasing." These canoes, a product of one of the oldest and most widely known of Peterborough's manufacturing output, are of a special size and make. They are designed for the use of trappers, hunters, and voyageurs, of that old English corporation, which at one time owned thousands of square miles of Canadian territory, and which used practically to dictate terms and treaties to the aboriginals of the country invaded in their operation. As is known to those posted in Canadian history, some years ago the Canadian Government made arrangements with the Hudson Bay Company, whereby their practically limitless control of a large section of Canada's real estate, was curtailed.

Apart from the historical aspect of this story, yesterday a whole carload of "Freighter" canoes was shipped as above noted. These canoes in question are painted a stone grey with a white rim between the gunwale and the body of the craft with the significant letters "H.B.C." at the bow of each in white.

It would take the pen or pencil of a novelist or romancist to portray what the history of these Peterborough boats may be. They will, propelled and guided by the paddles of sturdy "Courrier-de-Bois," seek furs and ultimate fortune, amidst the tortuous channels leading from lake to lake, in the almost unknown wilds of our northern and north-western territory. Many a man who starts on a trip in one of these "English" made canoes, who may possibly start out to make the money that will furnish a little cabin where he will take to wife this "petite Marie," may, before getting back to the post whence he started, run afoul of a sunken rock or rapid and leave that "petite Marie," in mourning or possibly a number of creditors saying D——— because they or first of them signed Baptiste LaPlume's note before leaving.

Only Fashion Plates

Ottawa, March 27.—A petition has been received by the Hull city clerk asking that a tax be imposed upon the bachelors of the city. The petition comes from the young ladies of Hull who have an aversion to matrimony, and states that such a law would be of great benefit to the citizens in general. The ladies say that single men are merely fashion plates, who stand on the corners, and that it would be much better if they were compelled to get married. It would also prove a boon to the parents of such young men, who in many cases spend all their wages in clothes or amusement. The petition suggests a tax of $5 for each bachelor over twenty-one years. The matter will come up at the next meeting of the city council.

May Fire Shells at Mob

Bucharest, Roumania, March 27.—Four thousand peasants from the districts of Teleorman and Vlashca have joined forces are are now marching on Bucharest.

A minor state of siege has been proclaimed here, and the military authorities have taken measures to prevent the revolted peasants from invading the city.

Should the latter refuse to retire, orders have been issued to the troops to use shrapnel shells.

BAD COOKERY

Produces Results and Bad Ones

"While teaching school," and "boarding round" writes a Penn. matron, "I was given all kinds of food—chiefly half-done pancakes soaked in grease, half-cooked oatmeal, greasy food and potatoes.

The inevitable result came in time.

My stomach became disordered, and I was the prey of terrible sick-headaches, so violent that I could not perform my duties satisfactorily—sometimes not at all—until finally I was compelled to give up the work altogether. For years I was a helpless sufferer from stomach and nerve troubles.

"After I married, my husband had to get his own breakfast and finally to save time he bought Grape-Nuts, which required no cooking. He persuaded me to try the food also.

"It was lucky I did so. To my surprise I found that it would stay on my stomach and agreed with me as nothing else did. I grew better and stronger rapidly, and am now a healthy, hearty woman, who does not know what it is to have a headache or an attack of 'nerves.' This is what Grape-Nuts food has done for me, and now we stick to the food that we know we can rely on.

"When my little daughter was weaned we thought she would die—no food we could give her (even the prepared infant's food) seemed to nourish her. Then we tried Grape-Nuts food. She took to it at once, and grew well and fat. My husband, who used to suffer from disordered stomach, has not lost a day from his business for three years, since we have adopted Grape-Nuts." HE IS CORRECT

Dr Hamilton Proves That Piles Are Caused by Constipation and Strong Catharties.

Knowing the frequency with which people suffer from this ailment, Dr. Hamilton made an exhaustive study into the cause of piles.

He found that the lower part of the bowels is like a network of blood-vessels, and if subjected to persistent pressure, a section will bulge out and form what is commonly known as piles.

The only effective mode of curing this trouble is the regular use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which can be taken before retiring. Next day will bring wonderful relief.

"I suffered up to about the limit of human endurance with piles," writes Miss Lueders, from Cornwall, Ont., "I was employed in a factory here, but for a while had to give up work till I got better of this trouble. I read in the Montreal Herald about Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and after using them for two weeks was cured. I can recommend these pills very highly; there are none better. They at once relieve and prevent a constipated condition of the bowels, and from my experience can be depended upon as a perfect safeguard against piles. Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, I am sure, would be a benefit to every girl or woman."

Take Dr. Hamilton's Pills and your system will be regenerated, revitalized, and made proof against disease.

Good for man, excellent for woman, and most effective for children. All ages and both sexes find Dr. Hamilton's Pills a marvelous medicine. Although active, they do not gripe or cause inconvenience, system, thereby maintaining a high state they cleanse and purify the standard of health. THE ADVANTAGE OF PHYSICAL TRAINING

Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, writing in a recent issue of the North American Review, says that in twenty years of parish work in a manufacturing town and metropolis nothing has surprised him more than the wretched physique of the poor.

In the United States, as in the European cities, height and weight are slightly decreasing. The national guards, a select body of men, do not come up to the required standards for warfare. At the outbreak of the Spanish war 26 per cent. of the young men failed to pass in height and weight, and in some regiments 50 per cent. failed to pass.

In the physical examinations carried on in the New York schools by the Board of Health it has been found that 66 2-3 per cent. of the children need a physician's care. The causes of this deterioration are overcrowding and underfeeding. A century ago only 3 per cent. of the United States' population was urban; now 40 per cent. of the people live in the cities. With increased density of population the death rate naturally increases. The vitality of the survivors is often sapped by chronic diseases.

With the growth of industrialism the country farms become deserted and their tenants flock to the cities. American farmer boys and European peasants alike breathe the vitiated air of crowded tenements. The children of the city poor both at home and abroad go to school without sufficient food; in England 30 per cent. of the people are living below the proper standard of nourishment. In New York 70,000 children go to school with but a scanty breakfast.

Our author finds that the notable increase during recent years in the height and weight of the college youth is due to physical training. He advises that the summer camps which have proven of such benefit to the children of the rich, be provided for the poor and made a part of the school systems and the work of the fresh air societies.

He complains that the schools which provide gymnastic training do not give it enough time and care. He believes that a thorough system of physical education in American schools would develop in their youth the strength and health derived in Europe from military training.

Since 1873 physical training has been made compulsory in the French schools and the result has been immense improvement in the French people. This system is also followed in Austria, Italy, Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Switzerland with like results. The Round Hill school at Northampton, Mass., was the first in the United States to combine physical training with literary study. A century ago there came an enthusiasm for physiological study which has gone on increasing ever since.

The training of military recruits results in enhanced bodily activity, dexterity, presence of mind and physical endurance. Muscular exercise develops and clarifies the brain. Our author would have the United States Government do for its school children in this matter of physical training what it does for its army recruits.

He would have the summer camps free of cost, compulsory and under official supervision; also a noon meal for poor school children. In short, he would make the development of sound mind in sound bodies the highest duty of every country.

Child Aided Father to Commit Suicide

New York, March 27.—With the innocent aid of his little six-year-old daughter Violet, Theodore Schmidt, a painter, who was part ially paralyzed, committed suicide yesterday with illuminating gas in his home in east 138th street. Mrs. Schmidt left the child at home to care for her husband, and during her absence Schmidt instructed the child to bring a piece of rubber hose from the kitchen, attach it to a gas jet, wind the other end around his neck and place it in his mouth. He then told her to turn on the gas and go to play. The child did as directed, and when Mrs. Schmidt returned her husband was dead. The little girl told her mother of her unsuspecting part in the tragedy.

New Woxall Was Named.

Near Schwenksville, Pa., is a village that bears the name of Woxall. This wonderful name was the result of an error upon the part of the postoffice department in Washington. The place was known many years ago as "Croppersettel," or "Crowtown," and later as Mechanicsville, but when a postoffice was established there in 1868 neither of these names was satisfactory, and it was decided to choose a new cognomen. Many were the suggestions submitted to the postoffice department, but all were found to be too nearly like the name of some other postoffice to be acceptable. One day the village storekeeper saw the word "Noxall" upon a piece of calico and called the attention of several friends to it. As once all agreed that "Noxall" would be a fine name for their town. So the postoffice authorities were notified. Soon a letter came from Washington approving the name that had been chosen, but in the letter it was spelled "Woxall." So Woxall became the name of the village.—Philadelphia Record.

What Puzzled Her.

A woman whose religious education had been received in the plain edifice erected by an unassuming New England congregation was persuaded, much against her will, to attend divine service in one of New York's most showy churches. She showed from the start that, notwithstanding her puritanical training, she was interested in the proceedings. She studied the elaborate ceremony, the architecture, the richly tinted windows and the gilded decorations closely. By and by her eyes became fixed on the ceiling. Her friend wondered what particular feature of those lofty heights held her attention for so long a time. During a lull in the chanting of the choir she tried to find out.

"Oh," said the New England woman in tones of infinite concern, "I was just wondering how on earth they get away up there to dust the rafters!"—New York Post.

The Juice of the Grape.

The Arabs say that when the first grapevine was planted the demon Ibis sacrificed a peacock on the spot where the plant was set. As soon as it began to sprout forth he sacrificed an ape over it. When the grapes began to appear he slaughtered a lion, and when these were ripe he offered up a pig; hence it is that he who drinks wine feels at first as proud as a peacock and becomes subsequently as treacherous as an ape, as bold as a lion and at length as stupid as a swine.

Definitions.

Asked to define a suffragist, a British schoolboy answered, "A person who creates a disturbance." One boy described "surf" as "a form of seaweed which grows in the Pacific ocean." In an essay on the canine race a pupil declared that "small dogs improve by keeping," and another gave the singular of "twain" as "worsted."

BEES IN WARFARE.

Two Instances In Which the Insects Were Used as Weapons.

History records two instances in which bees have been used in warfare as weapons against besieging forces. The first is related by Appian of the siege of Themiscyra, in Pontus, by Lucullus in his war against Mithridates. Turrets were brought up, mounds were built, and huge mines were made by the Romans. The people of Themiscyra dug open these mines from above and through the holes cast down upon the workmen bears and other wild animals and hives or swarms of bees.

The second instance is recorded in an Irish manuscript in the Bibliotheque Royale at Brussels and tells how the Danes and Norwegians attacked Chester, which was defended by the Saxons and some Gallic auxiliaries. The Danes were worsted by a stratagem, but the Norwegians, sheltered by hurdles, tried to pierce the walls of the town when "what the Saxons and the Gaedhil who were among them did was to throw down large rocks, by which they broke down the hurdles over their heads." What the others did to check this was to place large posts under the hurdles.

What the Saxons did next was to put all the beer and water of the town into the caldrons of the town and boil them and spill them down upon those who were under the hurdles, so that their skins were peeled off. The remedy which the Lochlans applied to this was to place hides outside on the hurdles. What the Saxons did next was to throw down all the beehives in the town upon the besiegers, which prevented them from moving their hands or legs from the number of bees which stung them. They afterward desisted and left the city.

DORMOUSE DELICACIES.

Titbits That Were Relished In Ancient Roman Times.

Brawn was originally a Roman dish and was eaten with garum, and cow's and calf's foot jellies were likewise dainties with Rome's upper ten in the time of the Cæsars. One would hardly suppose that black puddings were so old as the reign of Tiberius, but this is the fact. They were made of pig's blood, with little cubes of fat interspersed in the compound, and were the invention of a gentleman who rejoiced in the name of Bambouselvergius. It was he who invented all kinds of sausages—that is, meat stuffed into skins, which, we take it, is the ground plan, so to speak, of a sausage.

This gentleman also wrote a learned treatise on the fattening of dormice for the table, for at one period dormice were a craze. There were dormouse soup, dormouse sausage, dormouse brawn, dormouse cooked in every conceivable way, and the demand for this delicacy in prize sizes was so great that there was room for a book on the subject, though unfortunately this book is lost to posterity, and the only knowledge which we have of the fattening of dormice in Rome is from Petronius Arbiter, who tells us that they became fat by sleeping.

He also tells us that the best sauce to eat with dormouse is a mixture of poppy seed and honey, a mixture which probably had the merit of inducing sleep after a meal.

WEDDING STATIONERY

WEDDING ANNCUNCEMENTS are always in order. The season for the final result of being a disciple of Cupid finds expression in the Hymeneal ceremony at the altar—that occasion when "two hearts that beat as one" are joined together—pronounced one.

For this auspicious occasion the printing must be chastely dignified—must be appropriate in appearance to this one time of life when everything "best" is donned—when happiness reigns supremely.

Marriage Announcements
Marriage Invitations
Marriage Reception Cards
Post Nuptial Reception Cards

All of these we are able to supply in a proper form and printed artistically. Our work is conducted under the supervision of skilled typographical mechanics and may be unhesitatingly guaranteed to the most fastidious critic.

Our charges for such work are moderate—yet good printing is ever valuable. However, we give quality for our figures, and an order entrusted to our care will be speedily, carefully and satisfactorily executed.

No work can be well done which has to be done hurriedly. Time is necessary for the accomplishment of faultless printing. We will fulfil all expectations if given ample time for completion.

The Quaternary Period.

Our geologists rarely use the term quaternary. By European writers it is understood to mean the period which followed the tertiary and includes the present time. Archaeologically it is divided into two epochs, the older including the preglacial, the glacial and the postglacial ages, all characterized by a chipped stone industry, the latter beginning with the neolithic culture and continuing till now.

Skates.

Skates originally were made of bone. In and around 1,100 men skated on the thigh bones of cows, helping themselves along with pointed sticks. Steel skates were invented by the Hollanders in the seventeenth century.

The Instep's Curve.

A high instep is supposed to be a mark of aristocratic descent, and possessors of the Andalusian mark believe it a sign that their ancestors never bore burdens.

The Sacredness of Prayer Rugs.

Verses from the Koran and other passages considered sacred are generally stamped on the fabrics used as prayer rugs by the Mohammedans, and it is criminal in oriental law to export such pieces. This is doubtless because use by the occidentals means the treading of the sacred words under foot.

With Edged Tools

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN
Author of "The Sowers," "Roden's Corner," "From One Generation to Another," Etc.

Copyright, 1896, by HARPER & BROTHERS

"Your influence," he said, "appears to me to be the making of Maurice Gordon. I frequently see serious flaws in the policy of Providence, but I suppose there is wisdom in making the strongest influence that which is unconscious of its power."

"I am glad you think I have some power over him," said Jocelyn, "but at the same time it makes me uneasy, because it only confirms my conviction that he is very easily led. And suppose my influence, such as it is, was withdrawn; suppose that I were to die, or, what appears to be more likely, suppose that he should marry."

"Then let us hope that he will marry the right person. People sometimes do, you know."

She smiled with a strange little flicker of the eyelids. They had grown wonderfully accustomed to each other during the last three weeks. Here, it would appear, was one of those friendships between man and woman that occasionally set the world agog with curiosity and skepticism. But there seemed to be no doubt about it. He was over thirty, she verging on that prosaic age. Both had lived and moved in the world. To both life was an open book, and they had probably discovered, as most of us do, that the larger number of the leaves are blank. He had almost told her that he was engaged to be married, and she had quite understood. There could not possibly be any misapprehension; there was no room for one of those little mistakes about which people write novels and fondly hope that some youthful reader may be carried away by a very faint resemblance to that which they hold to be life. Moreover, at thirty one leaves the first romance of youth behind.

"I might have been a criminal or an escaped embezzler."

There was something in her smile that suggested that she did not quite believe in his cynicism.

"Also," she said gravely, "some stronger influence might appear—an influence which I could not counteract."

Jack Meredith turned in his long chair and looked at her searchingly.

"I have a vague idea," he said, "that you are thinking of Durnovo."

"I am," she admitted, with some surprise. "I wonder how you knew? I am afraid of him."

"I can reassure you on that score," said Meredith. "For the next two years or so Durnovo will be in daily intercourse with me. He will be under my immediate eye. I did not anticipate much pleasure from his society, but now I do."

"Why?" she asked, rather mystified.

"Because I shall have the daily satisfaction of knowing that I am relieving you of an anxiety."

"It is very kind of you to put it in that way," said Jocelyn. "But I should not like you to sacrifice yourself to what may be a foolish prejudice on my part."

"It is not a foolish prejudice. Durnovo is not a gentleman, either by birth or inclination. He is not fit to associate with you."

To this Jocelyn answered nothing. Victor Durnovo was one of her brother's closest friends; a friend of his own choosing.

"Miss Gordon," said Meredith suddenly, with a gravity that was rare, "will you do me a favor?"

"I think I should like to."

"You admit that you are afraid of Durnovo now; if at any time you have reason to be more afraid, will you make use of me? Will you write or come to me and ask my help?"

"Thank you," she said hesitatingly.

"You see," he went on in a lighter tone, "I am not afraid of Durnovo. I have met Durnovo before. You may have observed that my locks no longer resemble the raven's wing. There is a little gray, just here, above the temple. I am getting on in life, and I know how to deal with Durnovos."

"Do you know," she said, after a little silence, "that I was actually thinking of warning you against Mr. Durnovo? Now I stand aghast at my own presumption."

"It was kind of you to give the matter any thought whatever."

He rose and threw away the end of his cigar. Joseph was already before the door, leading the horse which Maurice Gordon had placed at his visitor's disposal.

CHAPTER X.

THE short equatorial twilight was drawing to an end, and all nature stood in silence, while night crept up to claim the land where her reign is more autocratic than elsewhere on earth. There was a black night above the trees, and a blacker beneath.

A sportsman was abroad. He was creeping up the right hand bank of a stream, his only chance lying in the noise of the waters which might serve to deaden the sound of broken twig or rustling leaf.

This sportsman was Jack Meredith, and it was evident that he was bringing to bear upon the matter in hand that intelligence and keenness of perception which had made him a person of some prominence in other scenes where nature has a less assured place.

Since sunset he had been crawling, scrambling, stumbling up the bank of this stream in relentless pursuit of some large animal which persistently kept hidden in the tangle across the bed of the river. The strange part of it was that when he stopped to peep through the branches the animal stopped, too, and he found no way of discovering its whereabouts.

Once Meredith was able to decide approximately the whereabouts of his prey by the momentary shaking of a twig. He raised his rifle and covered that twig steadily; his forefinger played tentatively on the trigger, but on second thought he refrained. He was keenly conscious of the fact that the beast was doing its work with skill superior to his own. In comparison to his, its movements were almost noiseless.

The News—No Pure Drug Cough Cure Laws would be needed, if all Cough Cures were like Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure is—and has been for 30 years. The National Law now requires that if any poisons enter into a cough mixture, it must be printed on the label or package. For this reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison-marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and see. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Simply refuse to accept any other. Sold by J. D. Tully.

SWEDISH FRUIT SOUP.

It Is an Appetizing and Nourishing Dish For Invalids.

I was in a Swedish hospital with fever that might prove typhoid. "Keep her on a milk diet," said the doctor to the nurse.

I loathed milk, yet the next day, "Keep her on a milk diet," said the learned man. I besought the nurse for baked potatoes, and she firmly repeated the doctor's words, "Keep her on a milk diet."

But one day that blessed nurse from Sweden brought me a bowl of fruit soup.

The Mohammedan paradise holds no joy equal to the taste of it. I cajoled that Swede woman into giving me the recipe.

Fruit Soup.—Stew together a handful each of dried apples, pears, cherries, raisins, prunes and currants. When done add water to make a gallon, sweeten to taste and add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Thicken with potato flour or with oatmeal.

Potato flour, to be used for thickening and for puddings, is made as follows: Grate potatoes, soak in cold water, strain out all the potatoes first with a coarse sieve, then with a fine one, leaving the potato starch in the water. Rinse this in water after water, pouring off each one as long as there is any color in the water. Finally, having poured off the last water, let the starch cake and take out and dry on cloths.—Kansas City Star.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

Pumpkins are much better when steamed than when boiled.

Potato salad is much more savory if mixed with the salad dressing while hot and before serving.

Breadcrumbs should always be used for covering articles for frying, as cracker crumbs absorb the grease.

When making mustard add a tiny drop of salad oil to it while it is being mixed. It will greatly improve the flavor.

Carrots should be cut in slices instead of cubes, because the outside darker part is richer and better, and if cut in slices it is more equally distributed.

It's an excellent idea to pass grated American or Parmesan cheese with tomato sauce which is to be used on rice or macaroni or with such dishes cooked with tomatoes. Not every one likes the cheese mixture, but many do. By serving the cheese separately all are suited.

The Mean Thing!

"Who was that fool you bowed to?"

"My husband."

"Oh, I—er—I—humbly apologize. I"—

"Never mind, I'm not angry. But what a keen observer you are!"

Did you ever notice that the size of trouble depends on whether it is coming or going?—Kansas City Star.

The best in Cobalt is not too good for you to buy. Try it.

KENNEDY COBALT, Ltd.

is recommended

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. 32. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 15 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 20 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 20 acres of J. B. 32 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 5 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 20 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 50 feet, and in it shows 5 inch nicolite, 12 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 672-1253-492-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

New Liskeard, 17th November, 1906.

JACOB M. EGGERT, M.E.

We offer a few more shares at Fifty Cents (50c); par value One Dollar ($1.00). The property is being developed as fast as possible, and we cannot promise that stock will be sold at less than par for very long. Don't wait until it is $3.00 to invest, giving others big profits for what you should have bought sooner. We want you to get in on the ground floor and share in the big profits. For a limited time only we will accept subscriptions at 50 cents—the stock is slated for a sharp advance very soon. Send marked cheque or money order.

The New and the Old.

A Chicago girl said the other day in an address before a girls' club: "I advise all of you to be new women. I urge you to pay no heed to the gibes about new women that are continually being uttered by men. It isn't a fine type of man that gibes at the new woman. You know the story of the man in the county jail? 'What brought you here, my poor fellow?' a missionary asked. 'I married a new woman, sir,' the prisoner groaned. 'Aha!' said the missionary. 'And she was so domineering and extravagant that it drove you to desperate courses, eh?' 'No,' said the prisoner. 'The old woman turned up.'"—San Francisco Argonaut.

An Odd Little Anagram.

Here is an interesting little puzzle and anagram which was published in a newspaper several years ago:

A —— old woman with —— intent
Put on her —— and to market went.
"——," said she, "give me, I pray,
The wherewithal to —— this day."

Each of the blanks is to be filled with a word of four letters, and the same letters occur in each of the five different words. These words are consecutively "vile," "evil," "veil," "Levi" and "live."

Nurses Memoranda Forms

Nurses will find an up-to-date sick room memoranda form done up in pads of 100 each, for only 35 cents, at Times Bookstore. Also receipt books for 25 cents each. These forms have been pronounced the best in use.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

Roller Rink Opens Monday

Mr. S. P. Sheridan, manager of the Charlotte street roller skating rink, yesterday informed The Times that this rink will not open, as noted in some of the local papers on Good Friday. The directorate of the rink had no intention whatever, of opening on this, one of the days most revered in christendom, as many church goers would be offended, not to mention the managers by such a desecration. Good Friday, Mr. Sheridan remarked, whilst in our sanctum is a day for religious services rather than for amusements. The rink will however, be formally opened for business on Monday, April 1st, when this place of general amusement and entertaining exercise will probably draw a large portion of the people of our city seeking recreation combined with pleasure.

Daily Mail for Springville

Springville expects to have a daily mail service within a few days. Arrangements are being made to have the mail taken from Peterborough and left off at Kendry siding. From there it will be taken by stage to Springville, which is only 3-4 of a mile distant. Peterborough will be the distributing point.

Aldermen Should not Kick

Some of our local aldermen who are kicking about the hours they lose over council and committee meetings should take to heart the old Shakesperian motto "Uneasy lies the head which wears a crown." If these men want civic glory they should not make a kick over doing the work their exalted position inspires.

Those interested in astronomy in this city, and we are glad to say there are many such, will have an intellectual treat when the inaugural lecture of the Peterborough branch of the Royal Astronomical Society will be held on Friday evening, April 5th, at the Y.M.C.A. hall. Rev. Dr. Marsh, president of the local branch, will give an address on the "Telescope." The use of the telescope is one of the first things that must be learned by the astronomical student and the inaugural lecture will give the members an excellent opportunity of making themselves familiar with this interesting instrument.

Verdict for Dr. Pierce

AGAINST THE

Ladies' Home Journal.

Sending truth after a lie. It is an old maxim that "a lie will travel seven leagues while truth is getting its boots on," and no doubt hundreds of thousands of good people read the unwarranted and malicious attack upon Dr. R. V. Pierce and his "Favorite Prescription" published in the May (1904) number of the Ladies' Home Journal, with its great black display headings, who never saw the humble, groveling retraction, with its inconspicuous heading, published two months later. It was boldly charged in the slanderous and libelous article that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of woman's weaknesses and ailments, contained alcohol and other harmful ingredients. Dr. Pierce promptly brought suit against the publishers of the Ladies' Home Journal, for $300,000.00 damages.

Dr. Pierce alleged that Mr. Bok, the editor, maliciously published the article containing such false and defamatory matter with the intent of injuring his business; furthermore, that no alcohol, or other injurious, or habit-forming, drugs are, or ever were, contained in his "Favorite Prescription"; that said medicine is made from native medicinal roots and contains no harmful ingredients whatever; and that Mr. Bok's malicious statements were wholly and absolutely false.

In the retraction printed by said Journal they were forced to acknowledge that they had obtained analyses of "Favorite Prescription" from eminent chemists, all of whom certified that it did not contain alcohol or any of the alleged harmful drugs.

These facts were also proven in the trial of the action in the Supreme Court. But the business of Dr. Pierce was greatly injured by the publication of the libelous article with its great display headings, while hundreds of thousands who read the wickedly defamatory article never saw the humble groveling retraction, set in small type and made as inconspicuous as possible. The matter was, however brought before a jury in the Supreme Court of New York State which promptly rendered a verdict in the Doctor's favor. Thus his traducers came to grief and their base slanders were refuted.

Cheap Groceries for Sale Today

In order to obtain permanent premises, China Hall has purchased the large and well assorted stock of groceries, etc., of Mr. A. Rountree, No. 394 George street. This stock, which is one of the finest grocery stocks in Peterborough, will, together with the balance of the China Hall stock, be thrown on the market at cost price, commencing March 2 and continuing until both stocks are entirely disposed of, but no longer than the 15th of April, after which date the store will be re-fitted, and opened about May 1, with an entirely new stock of crockery, china, glassware, cut-glass, plated ware, fine china ornaments, etc. China Hall, after that date, will be beyond a doubt one of the finest and most complete china stores in Canada. What HON. H. G. EWART, Former Congressman, Circuit Court and U. S. Judge, Western District, North Carolina, Has to Say of NEVADA MINING INVESTMENTS:

Nevada's past history was written by the Comstock. Its present history is being written by Goldfield, Tonopah and Bullfrog.

The great Comstock Mine at Virginia City, Nevada, produced $340,000,000. It added hundreds of millions to the world's supply of precious metals, it built transcontinental railroads, great steamship lines and telegraphic cables across the ocean, it financed some of the world's greatest newspapers, it endowed universities and colleges, and galleries of art, it built multitudes of towns and cities, it completed that splendid metropolis, San Francisco, it made United States senators, railroad and bank presidents. It fixed in history the names of Mackey, Fair, Flood, O'Brien, Shaw, Jones and Sutro.

Tonopah was discovered in 1900. Her Mizpah is probably the greatest silver-gold mine of the world. This camp has paid $2,200,000 in cash dividends.

Goldfield came next, and is producing today $150,000 every twenty-four hours, or at the rate of $50,000,000 per annum.

It is Bullfrog now, the baby among her wonderful camps, that Nevada is holding forth to the world like a doting mother. Unlike Goldfield, Bullfrog is essentially a great milling proposition, there being litterally mountains of ore, assaying from $5 to $250 per ton. When other mining camps in Nevada will be deserted, Bullfrog will be known as the "Camp of Confidence and Endurance." It will take centuries to exhaust its great ore deposits. This is the reason why Schwab, McKane, Oddie, Clark and other millionaires have quietly acquired nearly every foot of available mineral ground in this great district. This is the reason why four great railroads have already completed, and are rapidly extending their lines into the Bullfrog district. This is why Rhyolite has in the short space of three years changed from a habitation of coyotes and side-wheelers into a modern up-to-date city of 7,000 people. This is the reason why the Montgomery-Shoshone is building upon its properties a great reduction mill which will handle its thousands of tons of ore and which will cost over half a million. This is the reason why all Bullfrog stocks have steadily advanced in the face of the savage and unjustifiable attacks made by Wall street and their paid newspaper emissaries.

The South Bullfrog district, which includes the Keane Wonder, Big Dell, Cliff, California Bullfrog, Death Valley Mining & Milling Co., and others, is looked upon as one of the coming camps of importance. The ore found in this district are quartz and talc, carrying iron oxides, the principal values being in gold, with silver and copper traces.

It is in this district that the Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company (Inc.) properties in part are located. The company owns 80 acres of highly mineralized lands within two miles of the California Bullfrog Mine. Its assays show rich gold, silver and copper values, and being a tunnel proposition, can be economically and quickly developed. The other property of the Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company is splendidly located right in the very heart of this great gold-bearing camp, consisting of 160 acres within 1 1-2 miles of the great Montgomery-Shoshone Mine owned by Charles M. Schwab, the Pittsburg steel magnate, and his associates. It is only two miles from the City of Rhyolite with a fine road leading to the mines, and within one mile of the water pipes leading from Indian Springs to the City of Rhyolite. Its ledges are bold and well defined, and expert engineers declare it as the ir opinion, that the same rich veins of the Montgomery-Shoshone traverse this property.

Kansas City, Mo., February 20, 1907.

J. H. MORELAND.

Mr. Moreland is one of the most expert and reliable assayers in the United States. He is a graduate of the State School of Mines of Colorado, and has had fifteen years practical experience as assayer of leading mines and smelters. For many years he was the official Government assayer for the United States Custom House at Kansas City, Mo. The large proportion of all ores shipped from Mexico is received at Kansas City.

The Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Co. is officered and managed by gentlemen of the highest character and standing in this city. The company has secured the services of Mr. J. E. Lindstrom, of Rhyolite, Nevada, as general manager, whose years of experience in Alaska, Colorado, and California, peculiarly fit him for this position.

After the most careful and personal examination of the properties of this company, its officers, and its possibilities, I have accepted the position of Fiscal Agent of the company and offer to the investing public, 250,000 shares of its stock at 10 cents per share. With the knowledge I have of the tremendous possibilities of this company, and its valuable properties, and the high character of its officials, I do not hesitate to urge my friends in the south, and the investing public generally, to buy this stock, satisfied as I am that they will realize enormous profits on their investments.

It will give me pleasure to mail to any inquirers, prospectus, maps, and full information as to the properties of this company. Highest references given.

This stock can be purchased either for cash, or on the installment plan as follows:

$ 10.00	buys 100 shares,	payable $ 5.00	cash, balance $ 1.00 per month.
$ 15.00	buys 150 shares,	payable $ 7.50	cash, balance $ 1.50 per month.
$ 50.00	buys 500 shares,	payable $10.00	cash, balance $ 2.00 per month.
$ 90.00	buys 900 shares,	payable $15.00	cash, balance $ 3.00 per month.
$ 20.00	buys 200 shares,	payable $10.00	cash, balance $ 3.00 per month.
$100.00	buys 1000 shares,	payable $10.00	cash, balance $15.00 per month.
$500.00	buys 5000 shares,	payable $50.00	cash, balance $90.00 per month.

This stock is being rapidly taken and I would advise my friends to send in their orders at once. Thousands of investors are making fortunes out of comparatively small amounts in Nevada Mining propositions. Why should you not do so?

Make all checks, money-orders, payable to, and address all letters to

MR. R. M. DENNISTOUN IS HIGHLY HONORED

Local Law Association Present Him With a Handsome Silver Tea Salver, Accompanied by Appropriate Address.

Yesterday afternoon a pleasing courteous and genial gentleman, [illegible] was in evidence at the jib-[illegible]. Gratefully, on behalf of our Law Association, we accept your splendid gift of thirty-six volumes of "The Jurist."

And now we ask you to accept at our hands, a small gift, to remind you of the friends you leave behind. In selecting it we had in mind that the loved one who will preside at your table will, in this way, be often gladdened at the thought that your lives from your birth up have secured the respect and good-will of the people with whom you lived many and happy days.

We unite in wishing you around your new hearth, in the new land, length of days, with great happiness, prosperity and honor.

Signed on behalf of the local Bar.

Mr. Dennistoun made an appropriate reply.

Mrs. Dennistoun was given a beautiful bouquet of American beauty roses. The presentation was made by Mr. E. G. Goodwill, who bespoke the kind regards of the members of the Peterborough Law Association.

Life Insurance and Practical Generosity

For some time past, corporations and great fiduciary institutions—all organizations controlling or holding vast sums of money—have been the chief objects of public attention. Honest men have welcomed this manifestation of public interests in the problems created by modern methods of conducting enormous enterprises. Clear-headed men realize at the same time that some of the institutions made prominent by their far-reaching operations and intimate relations with the public, are conducted by men of the highest integrity and are performing a public service of incalculable value.

The great Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, of New York, is coming more and more to be recognized as an institution whose attitude toward the public is nearer to that of a generous philanthropist than an oppressive capitalist. This Company conducts the business of insurance in a way that can be understood by the ordinary citizen. It estimates in the light of universal experience and expert knowledge the actual cost of insuring a life under given conditions, exacts a legitimate premium based upon cost, writes a policy as definite and clear as the simplest business contract, and then pays every dollar the beneficiary expects or hopes to receive.

This, of course, is simply maintaining correct business principles and should call for no more commendation when practiced by a great corporation than it would in the case of an individual. The high estimation in which the Metropolitan Life is held today, however, cannot be attributed to the mere fact that it refrains from deceit and meets its obligations; it is due to repeated acts which indicate that it regards its millions of policy-holders as entitled to share from time to time in its own unanticipated profits.

This unique view of its obligations, it should be noted, is not the result of recent insurance agitation, but has been held consistently for many years. It has impelled the Company to distribute among its policy-holders during the past twelve years more than thirteen millions of dollars.

It has been made known in the latest published statements of the Metropolitan Life that all full-life policy-holders in the Industrial Department who reached the age of 75 in 1906, and all who reach that age in 1907, are to have their policies continued for life without further payment of premiums. It is further provided that any one holding a full-life industrial policy which has been in force fifteen years will at the age of 80 receive the amount of the policy in cash.

Perhaps no former act of this Company is so significant as this voluntary generosity toward aged policy-holders from whom it can expect no compensating relations in the future. It is stated that this concession alone costs the Company more than a million dollars. Any similar gift (for it is purely a voluntary gift) by an individual would cause the donor to be widely proclaimed as a leader in philanthropical work. It should not go entirely unrecognized because it emanates from a "Corporation."

Further concessions made by the Metropolitan Life during 1906 affect their younger policy-holders, and have taken the shape of voluntary cash dividends upon industrial policies—dividends not promised nor implied in the policies, not bargained for, hoped for, or expected by those who receive them. This is an item of something like two millions of dollars, making the total voluntary concessions during the year more than three millions.

Nevada's Treasures Richest in World

Splendid Opportunity for Canadian Investors.

Nevada, treasure vault of the world. Its future is in the realms of prophecy but the growing greatness of its older camps, the flattering prospects of its newer camps, the innumerable fresh discoveries in every part of Nevada from the northern-most border to the canyons of the Colorado warrant the assertion that the domain within the confines of the State of Nevada will still give stronger proof within the next few years of being the richest producing gold field in the known world and be the scene of the greatest mining and speculative activity in history of the world.

Nevada's early mining history was glorious, before many that are now engaged in re-stating the mining industry in the State were born, Nevada has already produced in precious metals the incomprehensible sum of one billion four hundred and forty-two millions of dollars. Of this vast sum the Comstock mine of Virginia City, Nevada, produced six hundred and eighty millions of dollars and as has been truly said this mine created more fortunes than any other mine in the world; it fixed in history the names of Mackay, Fair, Flood, O'Brien, Sharon, Jones, Ralston, Stewart, Hayward, Sutro, and many others. It made men famous throughout the world in finance and politics.

Nevada is already even within the first few years of its re-awakening the center of interest the country over. It holds the fixed attention of the speculative masses. Its gold output challenges the wonderment of the world, and thousands of people and millions of money are pouring over its borders into this realm of opportunity—an empire in extent, a treasure house in riches, truly a "Field of the Cloth of Gold."

Among the many rich gold camps in Nevada, Goldfield is easily first, and while only two and one half years old, is acknowledged to be the greatest gold camp in the world, and is now producing $130,000 in gold every twenty-four hours or at the rate of fifty million dollars a year. Goldfield has her Mohawk Mine, unquestionably the record producing mine of all history, having to her credit a production of $5,000,000 (five million dollars) in 108 days. Goldfield has many mines that are formidable rivals of the great Mohawk, The Jumbo, Red Top, Combination, Florence, Fraction, Daisy, Kendall, Sandstorm, and many others, and it is the opinion of the best informed mining men that we will have many more mines the equal of the Mohawk within the next year.

Goldfield has a population of 19,000 persons, has electric light, fine water system, sewerage, four banks with $12,000,000 in deposits, buildings now under construction and under contract $1,760,000. The telegraph business exclusive of private wires amounted to $240,000 for the year 1906. The increase in the marketable value of mining stocks during 1906 was upwards of $100,000,000 (one hundred million dollars) as set forth by the public quotations of the stock exchange for Jan. 1st, 1906, and Jan. 1st, 1907.

NATURE'S CATARRH CURE

Sensible and Scientific Way to Cure this Disagreeable Disease.

Nearly everyone suffers at one time or another with catarrh.

The natural way to cure this disagreeable disease is by applying healing medications direct to the diseased spot.

In no other way can this be done as naturally as by the use of Hyomei, breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit.

Put several drops of Hyomei in the inhaler and then for a few minutes, four or five times a day, let the air you breathe come through it. In that way all the air that enters the nasal passages, the throat or the lungs, is filled with Hyomei's healing medication, reaching the most remote air cells of the respiratory organs, destroying all catarrhal germs and soothing and healing the irritated mucous membrane.

A few days' use of Hyomei will show how quickly it relieves all catarrhal conditions, and you will not have to use it long before you find it has effected a complete and lasting cure.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, extra bottles, if needed, 50 cents.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei, or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Write us today for a symptom blank, which we will send you free, together with a booklet on Catarrh and how to cure it. When you fill in and return to us the symptom blank, our consulting physician will give your case the best care and attention, and write you a letter of advice without charge. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Gathered From the Local Police Station.

James Wilson, generally known as "Sunny Jim," was charged yesterday at the police court with stealing a quantity of Sunlight soap from Joseph Lossy. James pleaded not guilty. The chief of police asked for a further enlargement as Lossy was in Norwood; this the magistrate consented to. The case will be tried on Monday.

Afterwards Wilson, saying he did not want to lay in jail any longer, changed his plea to "guilty". The chief noted that Wilson is a poor unfortunate fellow, who does not work, and who drinks too much whiskey. The prisoner said he had worked five months for the Agoma Commercial Co., under Tom Marshall, this winter. The magistrate gave him three months in the county jail, on a charge of vagrancy.

DEAD WOMAN'S BODY FOUND YESTERDAY

Police Discover Mrs. John Martin's Corpse Lying on the Kitchen Floor---No Inquest is Necessary.

Yesterday afternoon the police sta- torney Wood was next notified, but tion was guided up its privacy by a [illegible] no indications of foul play existed and that an inquest was not necessary.

The late Mrs. Martin leaves her sister, Miss Fitzgerald who lives with Mrs. Demuttel in the first ward, and a husband who boards at the Maple Leaf Hotel, east ward. Mr. and Mrs. Martin have not lived together for some years.

Messrs. Lane & Enno, the Hunter street undertakers took charge of the corpse. No particulars as to date of funeral were available last night.

Expresion of Thanks

To Officers and Members of Court Stanley, A.O.F.:

Dear Sir,—Kindly accept this sincere thanks for your resolution of condolence in our bereavement by the loss of my late husband, your late Bro. Forester. Your untiring aid and counsel during his illness, will ever remain fresh in my memory and I herewith acknowledge your esteemed donation. Again thanking you as a lodge and personally believe me in sympathy with your Order.

THE

LARDER LAKE SYNDICATE

GOLD - SILVER - COPPER

TO PURCHASE FROM THE OWNERS

35 Gold, Silver and Copper bearing Claims covering 1400 acres in the now famous Larder Lake District. These claims have been located under the personal supervision of one of the most experienced men in the Cobalt District.

Assays have been made from a number of the Claims showing large values on surface.
Gold values as high as $134.00 to the ton.
Silver values as high as $38.00 to the ton.
Copper vein 28, feet wide on surface, assaying 10.65 per cent. Pure Copper.

On completion of the Syndicate it is proposed to form a Mining Company with a Capital of $5,000,000.00 (par value of shares $1 each) of which 1,500,000 shares are to remain in the treasury Three Million Shares will be divided pro rata among the Subscribers to this Syndicate, giving 2,400 shares of stock for each $100 subscribed and paid in. One-Tenth of the Capital Stock of the Company is to be paid to the owners of the claims together with $125,000 in money.

All monies paid in will be deposited in the Standard Bank, Ottawa, to the credit of the Syndicate, and no withdrawal can be made except on the order of the Trustees, to be elected at a properly called meeting of the members of the Syndicate of which each subscriber will have ample notice.

Here is Your Opportunity

to get in on a ground floor that has no basement, sub-basement or sub-cellars, No contribution is made for Promotion either in Cash or Stock. Your subscribtion is pro-rated with the others

2,400 shares of the Capital Stock for each $100 subscribed. Capitalization to be less than $4,000 per acre of claims Compare these figures with the capitalization of the mining companies of Coleman Township and you will at once realize the possibilities of profit in this syndicate. We have more acreage than Nipissing Mines Company. The copper showing on the claims alone gives promise of sufficient metal to make the company enormously wealthy.

The gold values shown by assays are very high and the rock carries also splendid value in silver. Altogether it is an ideal and splendidly practicable mining proposition.

The claims are less than 16 miles from the T. & N.O.R.R, and there is a good wagon road from the railroad into the lake.

The people that have made the money out of Cobalt are those that have gotten in on SYNDICATES. The syndicate subscribers are the real insiders and get the shares at bed rock prices.

Now is Your Opportunity

The subscriptions are coming in fast. Write today or you may be too late. Send in your subscription by cheque or money order.

Payments to be made 20 per cent cash with subscription, and 40 per cent. 30 days from receipt of notice of closing of subscription, and 40 per cent within 60 days thereafter.

Poison in Porter, Aged Woman Dead

Prof. Ellis, of Toronto, is examining the intestines of the late Mrs. Honor Gregg, aged 82, of Saintfield, Reach Township, Ontario County, who died a few days ago from the effect, presumably, of a glass of porter.

Mrs. Gregg, who was the mother-in-law of J. L. Dobie, ex-reeve of Reach, had been in the habit for some years of taking one glass every evening. An Uxbridge dealer supplied the porter in kegs as agent of a brewery in Toronto. A few days ago the porter remaining in the keg was poured into a glass jar. Mr. Dobie took a mouthful and Mrs. Gregg the usual quantity. Mr. Dobie was taken ill, the symptoms being vomiting and purging, but he recovered. His mother-in-law suffered similarly, and, not having her son-in-law's strength, and having taken a larger quantity, she died. Dr. Mellow of Saintfield had been called in, but the aged patient grew weaker, and expired in twenty-four hours.

A greenish powder or sediment was found at the bottom of the jar, and Coroner Mellow of Port Perry opened an inquest. Dr. Mellow of Saintfield and Dr. Bascom of Uxbridge performed the post-mortem. They found the organs in a normal condition, except that the stomach, kidneys, and liver showed signs of an irritant poison. These, with some of the porter, were forwarded to Dr. Ellis.

Chinese Eat Human Flesh

Shanghai, March 29.—Famine-stricken Chinese have been practising cannibalism in localities where the distress is more acute. The spread of fever continues, and the heavy rains are increasing the general misery. Epidemic rioting has occurred, but the outbreaks have not been serious.

The famine relief organization is taxed to the utmost in supervising the distribution of relief and in managing the relief work, which now employs hundreds of destitute Chinese. Large orders for grain have been placed in America, Australia and Manchuria.

Close to the body was a sofa, beside which was a blanket, showing that the deceased might, being ill, have been lying down and in a sick condition, after getting up, fallen over and expired.

The chief at once telephoned to Dr. Gray, Sherbrooke street, the coroner, but Dr. Gray was in the care of two

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at its formula will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of the following native American forest plants, viz., Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherry bark, Queen's root, Bloodroot, and Mandrake root.

The following leading medical authorities, among a host of others, extol the foregoing roots for the cure of just such ailments as the above symptoms indicate: Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Med. College, Phila.; Prof. H. C. Wood, M. D., of Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., Author of American Dispensatory; Prof. Jno. M. Scudder, M. D., Author of Specific Medicines; Prof. Lawrence Johnson, M. D., Med. Dept. Univ. of N. Y.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., Author of Materia Medica and Prof. in Bennett Medical College, Chicago. Send name and address on Postal Card to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive free booklet giving extracts from writings of all the above medical authors and many others endorsing, in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient of which "Golden Medical Discovery" is composed.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. They may be used in conjunction with "Golden Medical Discovery" if bowels are much constipated. They're tiny and sugar-coated.

Indiana Cities May Cure Drinking

Wabash, Ind., March 29.—The reform wave which has been sweeping Indiana for many months has taken a peculiar turn in threatening to invade the county jails throughout the State. This particular reform is not aimed at the jail management. It is proposed to install it as a department of each jail in the largest cities. If it is established it means a new terror in the bastile for the toper, who is wont to imagine strange and dreadful things in his cell the while he forgets his debauch.

The new terror will be the "jag cure." In other words a movement to provide a system of treatment for drunkenness in the case of habitual drunkards at each or all the lock-ups in the cities that can afford such a plan has been started, and is being favored in several Indiana cities.

One of the most interesting features of the movement lies in its origin. It was started indirectly by a woman. The name of "Tish" Higgins, of Wabash, is not confined solely to the city in which she lives. Year in and year out for a decade or so "Tish" Higgins has been a frequent visitor at the Wabash county jail. Usually she came unwillingly, protesting with maudlin vigor against being locked up. It is said that no other woman in Indiana, and it is not a record of which any woman would care to boast, has been locked up as many times as "Tish" Higgins.

She came so often to the Wabash jail and became such an expense to the city that Mayor Murphy finally began to wonder if it would not be money in the city treasury to devise some way to quench "Tish's" Higgins's unfortunate thirst. Then he decided to give her a "jag cure," and broke the news to the woman after one of her numerous appearances before him. It was enough. She has not been back since.

These Medical Facts

You Can Study With Profit

How few realize that twenty-five per cent. of all disease has its origin in some interference with the function of elimination.

The whole body exists by reason of the transfusion of fluids through its component parts.

Up to a certain point the body has power to resist to destructive elements, but this power is limited. When it happens that the body is flooded with wastes and poisons which it can't eliminate, fermentation, decay, and germ life run riot through the blood.

Serious illness is the result unless nature is assisted by a cleansing tonic like Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are purely vegetable, contain no mercury, no bismuth, no injurious metallic ingredient of any kind.

Such a medicine is the greatest known to the world for all stomach, liver and kidney troubles, and all diseases of the women of health, spirits and contentment.

Grand results are achieved and diseases cured made every day by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, as this letter proves.

From Newfoundland, Miss Lillian Anthony, of Upper Gullies, Conception Bay, writes: "In praise of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I must say that I have used them with grand success for three years. They never fail to cure me of indigestion or constipation. Formerly my face was full of pimples, but now my complexion is clear and ruddy. In more ways than I care to mention have Dr. Hamilton's Pills helped me; they would be good for every woman to use."

Insist on having only Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00, at all dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., or Kingston, Ont.

IS A EUROPEAN WAR INEVITABLE?

Things seem to be shaping themselves for trouble in Europe. The immediate issue is over the assassination of Dr. Mauchamp, a French scientist, in Morocco City, and the attack on the residence of the British consular agent, who was obliged to kill two of his assailants. An outbreak of a mob of fanatical Mohammedans against Christians is common enough to pass almost unnoticed, but the special circumstances of this case make it dangerous.

Germany fought at the Algeciras conference against giving France the mandate to pacify Morocco, and since she failed all sorts of complications have been stirred up to embarrass France, not the least significant of which were the presents sent by the Sultan of Turkey, as the over-lord of Morocco, to Raisuli, the bandit, at a time when he was in open and successful rebellion against his own government. The message that accompanied the presents gave the bandit to believe that he was fighting the cause of Mohammedanism. As the Sultan is regarded as the descendant of the Prophet, it was a virtual order for all Mohammedans to stand by Raisuli against the Christians. All over Northern Africa and Eastern Asia the Sultan has been carrying on an active propaganda for years, and if at any time he were to declare a holy war it would seriously embarrass France, England and Italy, all of whom have millions of Mohammedans among their subjects.

Whether rightly or wrongly, the French have been accusing Germany of inciting the Sultan to hostility against the Christians nations, and additional weight is lent to the suspicion by the fact that the two principal objects of the attack were a Frenchman and an Englishman. The heated state of feeling in France may be guessed from the fact of a general commanding an army corps referring openly to the "inevitable war with Germany." Britain could not afford to let France be again crushed by Germany, Russia, by virtue of her alliance, would be obliged to give what help she could. This would probably draw in nearly all the nations of Europe. The situation is a dangerous one, but the governments of France and Germany are doing all in their power to hold their peoples in check.

Preventics, as the name implies, prevent all colds and Grippe when "taken at the sneeze stage." Preventics are tasteless candy tablets. Preventics dissipate all colds quickly, if taken early, when you first feel that a cold is coming, they check and prevent them. Preventics are thoroughly safe for children, and as effectual for adults. Sold and recommended in 5 cent and 25 cent boxes by J. D. Tully.

MANAGING A MAN.

Good Advice About Nagging, Even Though It Be Hard to Follow.

The best time not to nag a man is when he's down—when he is suffering from the consequences of his own fault. Let him alone then if you never do again. Do not be afraid that he is not aware of his sins. He probably is. He probably has not an excuse in his own mind for his conduct, but if you begin to nag him all his human nature will rise in rebellion against the implied "I am better than thou," and he will justify himself, even though it be silently.

On the contrary, help him when he is down, not with ostentatious virtue, but by some sensible, practical aid in getting out of the trouble he has brought on himself. Don't act holy yourself, but "lend a hand."

Then when the trouble is all over don't rub it into him. More than likely he will confess to having been a beast. Don't take advantage of his humility. Just know that all human nature is the same and pin your faith to the good, not the evil.

Perhaps you are suffering from his fault. Perhaps the thought of your injuries is too strong to be borne. Then don't think about them. Turn your back resolutely on them and know that no one but yourself can injure you.

Your attempt to coerce a man and to drive him down some road of your making will surely wreck the cart. No individual has a right to attempt the control of another. Strew your own road with flowers of kindness and courage and the weary traveler will wish to walk therein with you.—Philadelphia Press.

A DOG IN THE HOUSE.

Keep the Children From the Animal If It Is Sick.

It makes you feel very mean to tear a fluffy bit of dog from the child or woman who is attached to it, writes Margaret Hubbard Ayer in the New York World, but in most cases too much dog petting is injurious for grownups, and particularly so for children. Families who live in the country have possibilities of avoiding the evil, for the dogs sleep in barns or outhouses. But for city dwellers a dog is liable to bring all kinds of disease germs into the house, and children are especially open to infection.

Setting aside the most terrible malady of the dog, rabies, there are hundreds of other diseases which the pet animal can communicate to the human being. No one can deny a child the pleasure of having a pet, but the dog can and should be trained never to lick even the hands of a person about it. At the first sign of sickness on the part of a house dog the animal should be quarantined and the veterinary called in. Children should never be allowed to touch or even to go near a sick dog.

The dog should never sleep on the bed of a child or grown person, particularly not of a nervous child. No pet should sleep in the room of a person who is easily devitalized, as the animal takes away some of the air and some of the vitality which belongs to the human being.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

When the waist is much contracted, it always means overdevelopment of the hips.

A paste of salicylic acid and witch hazel applied to moles will remove them. The paste must not touch the surrounding skin.

A woman who is noted for her beautiful white hair uses a salt shampoo. Ordinary table salt rubbed briskly into the scalp is stimulating and cleansing.

Instead of using talcum powder on the hair to remove the oily appearance try powdered orris root. It takes out the oil, does not cling to the hair as the talcum powder does and leaves a faint perfume.

A very fine mouth wash is made by combining an ounce of tincture of orris root, an ounce of essence of white rose, an ounce of alcohol and twenty drops of peppermint. Pour a few drops in a half glass of water and rinse the mouth thoroughly.

The Sink.

All wood should be removed from a sink, according to Good Housekeeping, and replaced with a porcelain sink, back and sides. That being too expensive, then use slate, zinc or copper. The materials should be absolutely impervious to moisture and without paint, which only wears off and leaves an untidy surface. Modern plumbers use iron instead of lead pipes almost entirely, and yet by care the old lead ones may continue to serve. Frequent flushing of the sink is an absolute necessity for perfect freedom from danger. It should be done with very hot water, but followed by a little cold water, lest the heat cause a vacuum and draw the water off the trap, leaving it open for gases to escape through the outlet of the sink. The treatment should be applied to every fixture in a house after the cleaning process.

The Wrong Things Cheap.

I remember the despairing cry of a woman looking hopelessly through her wardrobe. "I should have been a better woman if I had been born with feathers!" How well I knew just what she meant! She was examining disconsolately a shabby white satin dress—the kind of satin that betrays its plebeian cotton origin. "I wish I were a guinea hen with respectable speckled feathers!" she cried as she gave a discouraged slam to the wardrobe door. "Then I wouldn't use up three-quarters of my intellect getting the wrong things cheap!"—Mrs. John Lane in Everybody's Review.

Bialystock, Russia, March 27. — A bomb was thrown yesterday at Governor-General Engalitchi's while he was out driving. The Governor-General was uninjured, though the force force of the explosion broke all the windows in the street, and his coachman was slightly wounded. The bomb-thrower escaped. Last year terrible massacres took place at Bialystok.

New Syndicate for Larder Lake

Rare Chance on Ground Floor of Promising Proposition.

It is generally known that recently many sensational discoveries of rich gold, silver and copper bearing properties have been made in the Larder Lake District. A syndicate is now being formed to purchase one of the richest properties in that section, viz., 25 gold, silver and copper bearing claims, which cover some 1,400 acres. One of the most experienced and reliable experts, who has made a personal and thorough investigation of the property, has had assays made, which show that ore taken from various parts of the property contains gold running as high as $134 to the ton, silver as high as $38 to the ton, whilst a copper vein, 28 feet wide on the surface, assays 10.85 per cent. of pure copper.

As soon as the syndicate is formed a mining company with $5,000,000 capital will be organized. It is proposed to have the shares of a par value of $1 each, and to retain 1,500,000 of these shares in the treasury. 3,000,000 shares will be divided pro rata among subscribers to the syndicate, giving 2,400 shares for each $100 paid in. The owners of the claims will get one-tenth of the capital stock with $125,000 in cash.

This syndicate proposition seems to present an admirable opportunity for conservative and lucrative investment, as all subscriptions are paid into the Standard Bank, Ottawa, and cannot be withdrawn except on order of the trustees to be elected at a meeting of members of the syndicate, of which every subscriber will have ample notice. In the proposition there is nothing paid out for promoters' fees, either directly or indirectly.

The claims are connected by a good waggon road to the T. & N. O. R. R., which is less than 16 miles distant. For full particulars see adv. in this issue, or write to Mr. C. H. Cluff, 106 1-2 Sparks street, Ottawa.

The Emigrant Army

Halifax, March 28.—The Dominion liner Vancouver came into port yesterday with a bad list to port, the result of a battle with heavy gales almost the entire voyage over from Liverpool. The steamer sailed on the 14th, with 151 second cabin and 629 steerage passengers, 780 in all. The immigrants come under the auspices of the Salvation Army, and were given a grand send-off as the ship sailed. They are all of a superior class; fifty are Dutch and the remainder English. One hundred and twenty will go to Winnipeg, and the Northwest, one hundred and thirty are to remain in Nova Scotia, and the others go to points in Ontario and Quebec.

Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with some people, bring prompt relief for Constipation. With others, coarse all-wheat bread will have the same effect. Nature undoubtedly has a vegetable remedy to relieve every ailment known to man, if physicians can but find Nature's way to health. And this is strikingly true with regard to Constipation.

The bark of a certain tree in California—Cascara Sagrada—offers a most excellent aid to this end. But, combined with Egyptian Senna, Slippery Elm Bark, Solid Extract of Prunes, etc., this same Cascara bark is given its greatest possible power to correct constipation. A toothsome Candy Tablet, called Lax-ets, is now made at the Dr. Shoop Laboratories, from this ingenuous and most effective prescription. Its effect on Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath, Sallow Complexion, etc., is indeed prompt and satisfying.

No griping, no unpleasant after effects are experienced, and Lax-ets are put up in beautiful lithographed metal boxes at 5 cents and 25 cents per box.

What HON. H. G. EWART, Former Congressman, Circuit Court and U. S. Judge, Western District, North Carolina, Has to Say of NEVADA MINING INVESTMENTS:

Nevada's past history was written by the Comstock. Its present history is being written by Goldfield, Tonopah and Bullfrog.

The great Comstock Mine at Virginia City, Nevada, produced $580,000,000. It added hundreds of millions to the world's supply of precious metals, it built transcontinental railroads, great steamship lines and telegraphic cables across the ocean, it financed some of the world's greatest newspapers, it endowed universities and colleges, and galleries of art, it built multitudes of towns and cities, it completed that splendid metropolis, San Francisco, it made United States senators, railroad and bank presidents, it fixed in history the names of Mackay, Fair, Flood, O'Brien, Shaw, Jones and Sutro.

Tonopah was discovered in 1900. Her Mizpah is probably the greatest silver-gold mine of the world. The camp has paid $2,200,000 in cash dividends.

Goldfield came next, and is producing today $130,000 every twenty-four hours, or at the rate of [illegible] per annum.

It is Bullfrog now, the baby among her wonderful camps, that Nevada is holding forth to the world like a doting mother. Unlike Goldfield, Bullfrog is essentially a great milling proposition, there being practically mountains of ore, assaying from $5 to $250 per ton. When other mining camps in Nevada will be deserted, Bullfrog will be known as the "Camp of Confidence and Endurance." It will take centuries to exhaust its enormous deposits. This is the reason why Schwab, McKane, Oddie, Clark and other millionaires have quietly acquired nearly every foot of available mineral ground in this great district. This is the reason why four great railroads have already completed, and are rapidly extending their lines into the Bullfrog district. This is the reason why Rhyolite has in the short space of three years changed from a habitation of coyotes and side-winders into a modern up-to-date city of 7,000 people. This is the reason why the Montgomery-Shoshone is building upon its properties a great reduction mill which will handle its thousands of tons of ore and which will cost over half a million. This is the reason why all Bullfrog stocks have steadily advanced in the face of the savage and unjustifiable attacks made by Wall street and their paid newspaper emissaries.

The South Bullfrog district, which includes the Keane Wonder, Big Dell, Cliff, California Bullfrog, Death Valley Mining & Milling Co., and others, is looked upon as one of the coming camps of importance. The ore found in this district are quartz and talc, carrying iron oxides, the principal values being in gold, with silver and copper traces.

It is in this district that the Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company (Inc.) properties in part are located. The company owns 80 acres of highly mineralized lands within two miles of the California Bullfrog Mine. Its assays show rich gold, silver and copper values, and being a tunnel proposition, can be economically and quickly developed. The other property of the Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company is splendidly located right in the very heart of this great gold-bearing camp, consisting of 160 acres within 1 1-2 miles of the great Montgomery-Shoshone Mine owned by Charles M. Schwab, the Pittsburg steel magnate, and his associates. It is only two miles from the City of Rhyolite with a fine road leading to the mines, and within one mile of the water pipes leading from Indian Springs to the City of Rhyolite. Its ledges are bold and well defined, and expert engineers declare it as the [illegible] opinion, that the same rich veins of the Montgomery-Shoshone traverse this property.

Kansas City, Mo., February 20, 1907.

J. H. MORELAND,

Mr. Moreland is one of the most expert and reliable assayers in the United States. He is a graduate of the State School of Mines of Colorado, and has had fifteen years practical experience as assayer of leading mines and smelters. For many years he was the official Government assayer for the United States Custom House at Kansas City, Mo. The large proportion of all ores shipped from Mexico is received at Kansas City.

The Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Co. is officered and managed by gentlemen of the highest character and standing in this city. The company has secured the services of Mr. J. E. Lindstrom, of Rhyolite, Nevada, as general manager, whose years of experience in Alaska, Colorado, and California, peculiarly fit him for this position.

After the most careful and personal examination of the properties of this company, its officers, and its possibilities, I have accepted the position of Fiscal Agent of the company and offer to the investing public, 250,000 shares of its stock at 10 cents per share. With the knowledge I have of the tremendous possibilities of this company, and its valuable properties, and the high character of its officials, I do not hesitate to urge my friends in the south, and the investing public generally, to buy this stock, satisfied as I am that they will realize enormous profits on their investments.

It will give me pleasure to mail to any inquirers, prospectus, maps, and full information as to the properties of this company. Highest references given.

This stock can be purchased either for cash, or on the installment plan as follows:

$ 10.00	buys	100	shares, payable	$ 5.00	cash, balance $ 1.00 per month
$ 15.00	buys	150	shares, payable	$ 7.50	cash, balance $ 1.50 per month
$ 60.00	buys	600	shares, payable	$10.00	cash, balance $ 2.00 per month
$ 90.00	buys	900	shares, payable	$15.00	cash, balance $ 3.00 per month.
$ 20.00	buys	200	shares, payable	$10.00	cash, balance $ 5.00 per month.
$100.00	buys	1000	shares, payable	$10.00	cash, balance $15.00 per month.
$500.00	buys	5000	shares, payable	$50.00	cash, balance $90.00 per month.

This stock is being rapidly taken and I would advise my friends to send in their orders at once. Thousands of investors are making fortunes out of comparatively small amounts in Nevada Mining propositions. Why should you not do so?

Make all checks, money-orders, payable to, and address all letters to

ADVERTISING PAYS

With Edged Tools

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN
Author of "The Sowers," "Roden's Corner," "From One Generation to Another," Etc.

Copyright, 1894, by HARPER & BROTHERS

It was terrifically hot and all the while night was stalking westward on the summits of the trees with stealthy tread.

At last he came to an open space made by a slip of the land into the bed of the river. When Jack Meredith came to this he stepped out of the thicket and stood in the open awaiting the approach of his stealthy prey. The sound of its footfall was just perceptible, slowly diminishing the distance that divided them. Then the trees were parted and a tall, fair man stepped forward on to the opposite bank.

Jack Meredith bowed gravely, and the other sportsman, seeing the absurdity of the situation, burst into hearty laughter. In a moment or two he had leaped from rock to rock and come to Meredith.

"It seems," he said, "that we have been wasting a considerable amount of time."

"I very nearly wasted powder and shot," replied Jack, significantly indicating his rifle.

"I saw you twice and raised my rifle. Your breeches are just the color of a young doe. Are you Meredith? My name is Oscard."

"Ah! Yes, I am Meredith. I am glad to see you."

They shook hands. There was a twinkle in Jack Meredith's eyes, but Oscard was quite grave. His sense of humor was not very keen, and he was before all things a sportsman.

"I left the canoes a mile below Msala and landed to shoot a deer we saw drinking, but I never saw him afterward. Then I heard you, and I have been stalking you ever since."

"But I never expected you so soon. You were not due till—look!" Jack whispered suddenly.

Oscard turned on his heel, and the next instant their two rifles rang out through the forest stillness in one sharp crack. Across the stream, ten yards behind the spot where Oscard had emerged from the brush, a leopard sprang into the air five feet from the ground, with head thrown back and paws clawing at the thinness of space with grand free sweeps. The beast fell with a thud and lay still, dead.

The two men clambered across the rocks again, side by side. While they stood over the prostrate form of the leopard, beautiful, incomparably graceful and sleek even in death, Guy Oscard stole a sidelong glance at his companion. He was a modest man, and yet he knew that he was reckoned among the big game hunters of the age. This man had fired as quickly as himself, and there were two small trickling holes in the animal's head.

While he was being quietly scrutinized Jack Meredith stooped down and, taking the leopard beneath the shoulders, lifted it bodily back from the pool of blood.

"Pity to spoil the skin," he explained as he put a fresh cartridge into his rifle.

Oscard nodded in an approving way. He knew the weight of a full grown leopard, all muscle and bone, and he was one of those old fashioned persons mentioned in the Scriptures as taking a delight in a man's legs—or his arms, so long as they were strong.

"I suppose," he said quietly, "we had better skin him here."

"Yes."

They laid the skin out on the trampled maidenhair and contemplated it with silent satisfaction. In the course of their inspection they both arrived at the head at the same moment. The two holes in the hide, just above the eyes, came under their notice at the same moment, and they turned and smiled gravely at each other, thinking the same thought—the sort of thought that Englishmen rarely put into intelligible English.

"I'm glad we did that," said Guy Oscard at length; suddenly, "Whatever comes of this expedition of ours—if we fight, as we probably shall, before it is finished—if we hate each other ever afterward, that skin ought to remind us that we are much of a muchness."

By 9 o'clock they reached the camp at Msala. Victor Durnovo was still at work superintending the discharge of the baggage and stores from the large trading canoe. They heard the ghost ing and chattering before coming in sight of the camp, and one voice raised angrily above the others.

"Is that Durnovo's voice?" asked Meredith.

"Yes," answered his companion curtly.

It was a new voice, which Meredith had not heard before. When they shouted to announce their arrival it was suddenly hushed, and presently Durnovo came forward to greet them.

Meredith hardly knew him, he was so much stronger and healthier in appearance. Durnovo shook hands heartily.

"No need to introduce you two," he said, looking from one to the other.

"No; after one mistake we discovered each other's identity in the forest," answered Meredith.

Durnovo smiled, but there was something behind the smile. He did not seem to approve of their meeting without his intervention.

The three men walked up toward the house together. It was a fair sized house, with a heavy thatched roof that overhung the walls like the crown of a mushroom. The walls were only mud, and the thatching was nothing else than banana leaves, but there was evidence of European taste in the garden surrounding the structure and in the glazed windows and wooden door.

As they approached the open doorway three little children, clad in very little more than their native modesty, ran gleefully out and proceeded to engage seats on Jack Meredith's boots, looking upon him as a mere public conveyance. They took hardly any notice of him, but chattered and quarreled among themselves, sometimes in baby English, sometimes in dialect unknown to Oscard and Meredith.

"These," said the latter, when they were seated and clinging with their little dusky arms round his legs, "are the very rummest little kids I ever came across."

Durnovo gave an impatient laugh and went on toward the house. But Guy Oscard stopped and walked more slowly beside Meredith as he labored along heavy footed.

"They are the jolliest little souls imaginable," continued Jack Meredith. "There," he said to them when they had reached the doorstep, "run away

[To be continued]

THE FRONT DOOR.

How to Dress It Artistically When It Has a Glass Panel.

Perhaps no greater change has been made in any feature of house building than in the entrance or front door. Instead of the solid oaken door or a near imitation to it the modern front door is a solid panel of plate glass in a narrow frame of wood, which is necessary for hinges and locks. This glass door opens into a small vestibule, and the inner or secondary door has also a glass panel forming the upper half. This panel gives opportunity for taste to show itself in various lace and silk arrangements.

A panel of lace net ornamented with a medallion is almost invariably used, and one may pay anywhere from 50 cents for a coarse woven pattern in the center to $5 or $10 for a handmade lace medallion. The net panel is laid flat on the glass on the inner side of a rod at top and bottom. Sometimes after the panel is fastened two breadths of soft thin silk are shirred over rods to completely cover the back side of the lace. These breadths are then drawn partially to each side and tied with narrow ribbon, leaving the lace exposed in diamond form. The color shows through pleasantly in the daytime, and artificial light brings out a good effect at night.

While in the city one cannot leave the house door open or even unlocked, so much glass at the entrance partially takes away the imprisoned feeling that sometimes oppresses one who must almost literally unbolt and unbar every time she goes out or in.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

An Incentive to Suicide.

A London coroner remarked the other day that on no account should a weapon with which a suicide had been committed be returned. "People," he said, "brood over such weapons, and the fascination drives them to imitate the experience of other coroners.

The Sidesaddle.

A correspondent of the London Mail says that women always rode astride till Queen Elizabeth in order to show a magnificent dress upon a certain state occasion rode sidewise and so set the fashion.

Silk Stockings.

In 1570 Queen Elizabeth was presented with a pair of silk stockings by her fine woman and afterward never wore any other kind.

Sand Drifts.

Between Carthage and Stislingville, in Jefferson county, N. Y., there is a stretch of country where the sand drifts like snow, making great banks and blinding the eyes of those who look up wind. It is a desolate, barren region, where the soil is only as deep as the roots of the grass.

Umbrellas.

An umbrella dealer cautions against the double use for sun and rain of a rain umbrella. Silk wears, he says, as long as its oil lasts, then it splits and cracks and is gone. The sun dries out the oil; hence its harm.

KENNEDY COBALT, Ltd.

is recommended

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. 32. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 18 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 30 acre one and about 40 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 80 acres of J. B. 32 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 5 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 20 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 50 feet, and in it shows 5 inch nicolilite, 18 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 672-1283-492-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

Discovery of Iron in America.

One historical authority states that the earliest discovery of iron within the present limits of the country was in the mountain range of western North Carolina, and the first effort to manufacture it into merchantable form was made in the state of Virginia in 1619. The foundry was destroyed by the Indians in 1622.

Honeyed Butter.

Parisian restaurant keepers mix a little honey with their butter. This gives it an agreeable taste and flavor and makes the inferior butter more palatable.

Indian Pearls.

Pearls imported from Australia and Panama are all of medium and large size. Generally speaking, the Indian pearls command the highest price because of their superior form and their brilliant luster.

Curtains.

Curtains were employed for bedsteads in the eleventh century. They were afterward transferred to windows.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

Watery Blood

Nerves are Weak
Face is Pallid
You Lack Strength
You Look Sickly.

Until You Ironize and Fortify the Blood There's No Hope of Cure

Thousands of tired workers need the invigoration, the strength, the nerve-force which Ferrozone can supply.

Ferrozone imparts strength because it nourishes.

Ferrozone is able to nourish because it supplies to the blood the elements it lacks.

Once the blood is vitalized, its tonic influence is circulated to every nook and corner of the blood, carrying new life with it.

Cases on record prove that Ferrozone builds up when else fails. Mr. Alonzo W. Douglas, of Woodbridge, Ont., says: "I desire to state the results I derived from the use of Ferrozone. Two years ago I was stricken with pneumonia. So severe was the attack and so reduced was my strength that my life was despaired of. I had the very best medical attention, but made no progress towards recovery. When reduced to practically a skeleton, a kind friend told me of the remarkable powers of Ferrozone. An improvement began almost at once. I gained steadily in weight and strength until Ferrozone made me a new man. I will gladly answer inquiries from other sufferers if they care to have further particulars about my recovery. Ferrozone deserves its great measure of success."

When a man in Mr. Douglas' low condition can be quickly cured, aren't the chances good for you? Don't fail to try Ferrozone. Price 50c. per box at all dealers.

This stock, which is one of the finest grocery stocks in Peterborough, will, together with the balance of the China Hall stock, be thrown on the market at cost price, commencing March 2 and continuing until both stocks are entirely disposed of, but no longer than the 6th of April, after which date the store will be re-fitted, and opened about May 1, with an entirely new stock of crockery, china, glassware, cut-glass, plated ware, fine china ornaments, etc. China Hall, after that date, will be beyond a doubt one of the finest and most complete china stores in Canada. METROPOLITAN LIFE INSURANCE CO.

(INCORPORATED BY THE STATE OF NEW YORK. STOCK COMPANY)

JOHN R. HEGEMAN, President

ANOTHER VALUABLE CONCESSION

to Industrial policy-holders. The Company announces that every person insured in the Metropolitan under a Whole Life Industrial policy who is now 75 years of age or over IS RELIEVED OF FURTHER PAYMENT OF WEEKLY PREMIUMS, and a similar concession will be made to all persons now insured under Whole Life policies who will reach age 75 during 1907, as soon as they arrive at that age.

This concession takes effect as of January 1, 1907, and all premiums paid in advance of that date on any policy such AS WE REFER TO WILL BE RETURNED TO THE POLICY-HOLDER. This action of the Company in granting is without precedent in the insurance business, and we believe the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company is the only Company that has granted such a concession. This will cost in increase of reserve and in remission of premiums this year

OVER ONE MILLION DOLLARS

To appreciate the generous treatment accorded to its policy-holders by the Metropolitan Life, it must be remembered that already during THIS YEAR it has announced and is paying OVER TWO MILLIONS OF DOLLARS in voluntary contributions to Industrial policy-holders, over and above all obligations expressed or implied in their policies, by a cash dividend upon all Whole Life Industrial policies over five years old, by mortuary dividends (that is, voluntary additions to the face of the policies when they become claims) applicable to all death claims incurred during the year where policies at the date of death have been in force over five years, and by paying as endowments Whole Life policies on which premiums have been paid for 15 years when insured reaches age 80.

This makes a total of OVER THREE MILLIONS THIS YEAR allowed to Industrial policy-holders, over and above the contract obligations, and OVER THIRTEEN MILLIONS during the past twelve years.

If this announcement of a free policy affects any reader of this advertisement, and if his case has not yet been attended to, we ask him to speak to the agent who collects his premiums and the agent will attend to forwarding the policy to the Home Office, TO BE EXCHANGED, WITHOUT EXPENSE, FOR A FREE POLICY FOR THE FULL AMOUNT CALLED FOR BY THE POLICY SURRENDERED.

INCREASE IN BENEFITS

New Tables with large increases of benefits in Industrial policies have been adopted. The payment of premiums on all new Industrial Life policies will cease at age 75. Reductions have been made in the premiums charged for most of the forms of Ordinary policies.

Breach of Promise Case Settled

The threatened action for breach of promise brought against young man of this city for $2000 damages, has been settled out of court. The case was to have come up at the spring assizes on April 8th, but a settlement has been reached. It is said that Miss Porter will receive $1000.

Baseball League Meeting Today

Messrs. Arthur Johnston and H. Burridge will represent the Peterborough Baseball Club at the annual meeting of the Midland League to be held in Oshawa today. There will be six teams in the League this season, viz., Peterborough, Lindsay, Bowmanville, Oshawa, Cobourg and Port Hope. The Peterborough team will hold a meeting early next week.

Date of Farmers' Excursion Changed

The annual Farmers' Institute excursion to Guelph, will not be held on Thursday, June 13th, as at first proposed. Mr. Wm. Collins, secretary of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute, received word yesterday, that it would be necessary to change the date to Wednesday, June 12th, owing to a rush of traffic on the C. P. R. on June 13th. The message was sent to Mr. Collins by Mr. G. T. Creelman, president of the Guelph Agricultural College.

POLICE

Police Court was held this morning before Magistrate Denne. Only one case was on the docket, that of Thomas Hall, charged with being drunk and disorderly on Hunter street on Thursday night. He was fined $5 and costs, or 30 days in jail.

Red Blood Corpuscles Made by Good Food are the Police of the Body.

When a man keeps good red blood in his veins he has a sort of police squad and is practically immune from disease.

Pure blood made from the right food will resist the attacks of disease germs and drive them out or kill them. The first thing that should be looked to, therefore, is the blood, and prompt action to build up the red corpuscules by food. A lawyer in a Western town tells how he drove Bright's disease out of his system by supplying good red blood by food:

"For several years I had been afflicted with kidney trouble," he says, "which sometimes incapacitated me for business. My condition became such as to cause great fears that Bright's Disease was about to fasten itself upon me.

"I had always been very fond of coffee. When, however, the kidney symptoms became so alarming, I quit the coffee, and soon began to use Postum Food Coffee. I soon became as fond of the new beverage as I had been of the old coffee, and, what is more important, my health improved rapidly and steadily until in a short time, the kidney troubles had almost entirely disappeared. I am convinced that my former sufferings and the symptoms of Bright's disease were caused by the use of coffee, and that the credit for my cure belongs to the Postum. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum Food Coffee and Grape-Nuts make good red blood. They contain food that Nature uses in the process, so prepared as to be quickly assimilated. "There's a Reason."

Roller Rink Will Open on Monday

Planing Machine will be Made Busy on Monday on the Floor.

On Monday morning a recently invented and patented machine, run somewhat on the principle of an automobile, will be brought to the city to get the Charlotte street roller skating rink hardwood floor into proper shape. It seems that last winter the ice made for curling purposes upon the splendid new floor put in last summer by Messrs. Sheridan & Co., proprietors of the roller rink, interfered somewhat with the boards, which warped and buckled in places. The machine that will get busy on Monday, will however, as it has done in Toronto and other places, smooth off the floor till it will be smooth as a sheet of plate glass.

Yesterday three huge moves were running overtime to dry up the floor and carpenters were busy getting the floor into as good shape as possible, pending the arrival of the planing machine. The proprietors of the rink will open the rink officially on Monday night, and have had the skates all thoroughly renovated and renewed, and many pairs of up-to-date trailer skates added to the hundreds of pairs that carried so many of our citizens over the rink last season. Messrs. Sheridan & Co. have procured the largest floor in Ottawa, and will, as soon as possible install a modern roller rink in the capital on a floor surface of some 12,000 square feet. Such enterprise as this will undoubtedly result in the Charlotte street rink winning a large share of the patronage of our local lovers of good clean, healthy, and well managed sport.

Left the City for Want of Rooms

As a sample of the great demand for stores and other apartments in Peterborough, it might be noted that Mr. J. B. Byers, who formerly carried on a photographing business in this city, was for the past few weeks busily trying to get a location here to resume his business. After many futile efforts to get suitable premises in Peterborough, Mr. Byers yesterday left with his family to locate in Port Hope.

Mr. Jas. Dolan Convalescent

We are pleased to note that Mr. James Dolan, who has been confined to bed in his room at the City Hotel for about ten days, was somewhat better yesterday. Mr. Dolan whilst still very weak was able to get up for a short time. He remarked to a Times representative that Mr. Cottingham and others of the City Hotel staff had been very kind and attentive to him during his illness.

Mr. Jos. Molndoo Has Passed Away

Yesterday word was received by The Times that Mr. Joseph Molndoo, son of Mr. William Molndoo, of Pontypool, who was well and favorably known in this city and county, had passed away in the City of Buffalo, N.Y., on Wednesday. No particulars have as yet been received here, further than that the funeral will take place today.

Mr. Molndoo leaves a widow and three children to mourn his loss. The Times extends its heartiest sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

Mrs. Col. Poole Has Passed Away

Early yesterday morning Mrs. Margaret Poole, passed away in Nicholls Hospital from paralysis. The deceased was the wife of the late Colonel E. Poole, who predeceased her eleven years ago. She was seventy-one years of age, and was a life-long resident of this city. Mrs. Poole was the daughter of the late Wm. McBurney of Peterborough. The late Mrs. Poole was a member of St. John's church.

One daughter, Miss Minnie Poole, who resided with her mother, and one brother, Dr. E. McBurney, of Lodi, Ill., are left to mourn her loss.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the family residence, 96 Douro street, Ashburnham, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

No Times Out Tomorrow

Today being Good Friday, and a public holiday, there will be no issue of The Times on Saturday. Our editors, reporters, and staff-in-general are as anxious as the average layman to attend to the religious observances of this, one of the most important days in the christian's observance of feasts and festivals.

THE WOMEN FOUGHT AMONG THE REBELS

Many Found Dead With Those Who Fell Before the Field Guns---Stood the Cavalry Charges Bravely.

Bucharest, March 31.—Field guns, peasants on Galatz show that a pitched battle was fought. The insurgents, who were several thousand strong, began the assault at midnight, carried the outer earthworks by storm, and captured a suburb, which they set on fire after pillaging it. Three battalions of infantry attempted to stem the peasants' entry into the city itself, but the fork and scythe armed rustics fought desperately, hand-to-hand, and had almost routed the troops, when the Governor ordered field guns, loaded with grapeshot, to be fired at the insurgents, who wavered and then fled. The fire of the guns wrought great havoc on the retreating masses.

SHELLS DESTROY VILLAGES.

A number of conflicts between troops and marauders continue to be reported. Two thousand insurgents at Gorj, are said to have been quieted by the assistance of the authorities without resort to force. A hundred and fifty more rioters have been wounded at Rubeschitchi, and several of them have since died, and many have been arrested.

Artillery was used at Cucuosti, Valcoicle, and elsewhere, and in some instances whose villages are said to have been utterly destroyed by fire of inch shells.

The women of the insurgents, who are mostly hay forks and scythe blades. The insurgents were able to hold their own against the troops at close quarters, and even withstood cavalry charges, doing terrible execution with long-pronged forks and scythe blades, strapped to long poles, but the slaughter since the troops used artillery appears to be terrifying them into submission. In the district of Vlashica, where the outbreak was particularly serious, large numbers of insurgents have surrendered and have denounced their leaders to the authorities, with the result that many of the latter have been arrested. The government hopes that with the leaders in jail the undisciplined bands will soon abandon the fields.

PRIESTS AS GENERALS.

The self-styled "generals" usually turn out to be country schoolmasters and village priests. Numbers of women are fighting in the insurgent ranks, and many of them have been found among the killed, side by side with their husbands, sons, and brothers.

Details of the attack made by the peasants on Galatz show that a

Feeding Convicts at Penitentiary

Kingston, March 28.—It is said that in view of the report upon penitentiary affairs made by the grand jury to the assize court, held here last week, future grand juries may be prohibited from visiting this penal institution, which comes under Dominion and not Provincial control.

The report of the grand jury that a system of "treating feeding" was in vogue at the penitentiary has caused the resignment of the prison authorities, who state that the change in the meal system from that of a common dining hall to that now in vogue, of each prisoner carrying his food to his cell and eating it alone, was made because the better class of prisoners asked for it. Distinction cannot be shown to prisoners, and hence men of refined tastes had to sit alongside a convict diseased, or a convict of bestial nature.

Twelve years ago a large number of them petitioned for the present system, which was finally adopted after careful investigation. It has done away with gossip, insult and jibing, and the large majority of the prisoners prefer it, for there have been no complaints. It is held that the Grand Jury might have asked for the facts before passing the judgment it did upon the system inaugurated so he Government's principal men were making speeches leading the country to believe that something radical was intended. He (Lord Rosebery) owed no allegiance to the present Government, nevertheless he congratulated it on its success thus far. He feared, however, it was promising too much. If it made any general attack on property, as was threatened, its existence would be speedily ended.

Illegal Duck Killing at Rice Lake

Keene sportsmen are complaining that there is considerable illegal duck-shooting going on at the present time, and, while the members of the Gun Club of that village, are anxious to preserve the game and keep the law, they have no means at their disposal for enforcing the law, and want a game warden appointed. They say that both Indians and white men are guilty of the offence of shooting the ducks during the close season, and it is considered an outrage that no one has been appointed to preserve the law on Rice Lake.

Irish Parliament an Impossibility

London, March 27.—Presiding at a meeting of the Council of the Liberal League, held here today, Lord Rosebery said Great Britain would never tolerate a separate Irish Parliament. Such a proposal went far beyond anything the late Mr. Gladstone intended.

"A system suitable for Canada and Australia," Lord Rosebery added, "would be different in a contiguous island which in its public declarations prided itself on its disloyalty."

Continuing, the speaker said that he doubted if the Government's promised measure for Ireland would go to extremes, but it was a pity

EASTER AT ST. JOHN'S

This Great Church Festival Was Celebrated by Six Services Yesterday.

At St. John's church yesterday, three communion services were held, and two of a festival nature. The Sunday school children also attended a special service in the church in the afternoon.

As customary, the 11 a.m., and 7 p.m. services were of a specially joyous character, and both were marked by elaborate Easter music in which the choir excelled themselves. Very large congregations attended both these services at each of which Ven. Archdeacon Warren preached an eloquent sermon.

The altar and chancel were fully decorated with floral offerings, amongst which was a handsome floral cross at the curate's reading desk, sent by friends in memory of the late Rev. Mr. Tandy, a former curate of St. John's, who died in Kingston a few months ago after a lingering illness. Other floral mementos to members of the congregation who have been removed by death were also in evidence.

Large offertories were taken up in aid of the vestry enlargement project.

Ven. Archdeacon Warren, of Toronto, assisted the rector, Canon Davidson at all services.

Work to Begin on New Normal School

It is expected that the first sod will be turned for Peterborough's new Normal School this week. Mr. S. F. Whitham, of Brantford, the contractor for the four new schools, was in the city on Saturday in connection with his contract here. This gentleman, with his son, Mr. Heakes, Provincial Architect, and Mr. R. P. Fairbairn, Provincial Engineer, accompanied by Mr. E. T. Bradburn, M.P.P., looked over the site selected for the building.

The contractor noted that quick completion of the building is retarded by scarcity of bricks, however as noted the excavation will likely be proceeded with this week.

Artificial Teeth at $5.00 Per Set

Dr. Alex. J. Robertson, the well-known people's dentist, beginning Monday, March 11, and continuing until Thursday, April 11, will supply imported Gold Medal Artificial Teeth at $5 per set. In view of the latest and best methods and thoroughly up-to-date appliances, a full set of teeth can be supplied in three hours. Changes, additions or repairs to old plates executed in one hour. Ill-fitting dentures relined, perfect adaptation secured. Robertson's retainer holds rocking, dropping plates in correct position, supplying comfort and usefulness. All fully guaranteed. When necessary, teeth extracted absolutely without pain by a most simple method. A specialist in each department. 466 George street, Peterborough.

Grand Easter Concert

Given by the Peterborough Conservatory of Music, in the Charlotte street schoolroom, on Monday evening, April first, under auspices of the Young Men's Guild. The following soloists will take part; Henri J. Lautz, tenor, Toronto; Lina Drechsler Adamson, violiniste, Toronto; Conservatory Madrigal Club; Conservatory Orchestra; Mr. T. George, accompanist. General Admission, 25 cents. Plan of hall at Soden's Bookstore.

City Council Meets Tonight

The council will hold its regular monthly meeting tonight, when the principal business to be taken up will be the receiving of reports from the various committees, who have been at work all last week preparing statements of the work done. Over some of these reports there is likely to be considerable discussion, especially the building permit by-law.

Staff Capt. Bond is the City

Captain Bond, editor of the War Cry, the official organ of the Salvation Army, in Canada, spent Easter Sunday in the city, and conducted special meetings in the barracks. The band met the visitor at the C.P.R. station, on the arrival of the local. Yesterday afternoon the captain delivered his address on "London Bedlam 10,000."

Lieut.-Col. Edwards' Residence Let

Mr. J. H. Learmonth, manager of the Peterborough Light and Power Co., and the local street railway, has taken that fine residence formerly occupied by Lt.-Col. E. B. Edwards. This fine estate, which is situated near Jackson Park, will be handy for the new occupant, being only a stone's throw from where the railway's summer and winter attractions are held.

Swam the Canal on Friday

On Friday morning a venturesome local citizen, whether looking for notoriety or fully in want of his spring bath, took the first open air swim of the season for Peterborough. This young man, after duly divesting himself of his clothes swam across the canal at the lift lock, if his prospects in life were as blue as his cuticle, whilst resuming his clothes, he would require watching.

Dominion Bank's New Safe

On Good Friday morning the huge new modern time lock safe was unloaded and placed in the recently reconstructed premises of the owner of George and Simcoe streets soon to be occupied by the Dominion Bank, under the managership of Mr. John Orme. This great safe is unique of its kind in Peterborough, and represents the most recent invention to baffle the expert burglar or the dangers of fire. This safe is furnished with a time lock, and requires the service of several members of the bank's staff, before it can be opened.

CHINAMEN TO SEE ENGLAND

Sons of Wealthy Celestials to Study Existing Conditions.

London, March 31. —Arrangements are being made for the introduction into Great Britain of 15,000 young Chinamen, the sons of wealthy merchants, officials, and landowners, for the purpose of studying the industrial and commercial conditions of this country.

Captain Etti stated that he and his friends were starting a tourist emigration society in China to aid the importation of the students here. This gentleman, with his son, Mr. Heakes, Provincial Architect, and Mr. R. P. Fairbairn, Provincial Engineer, accompanied by Mr. E. T. Bradburn, M.P.P., looked over the site selected for the building.

The contractor noted that quick completion of the building is retarded by scarcity of bricks, however as noted the excavation will likely be proceeded with this week.

He produced a despatch from the Governor of Hunan, who heartily supported the scheme, and stated that he and other highly-placed officials were prepared to expend a large sum of money in its furtherance.

Captain Etti said it would all depend upon the way in which the students were received, as to whether or not the trade of Great Britain with China increased by £20,000,000 or £30,000,000 per year. "Unfortunately, there is at present a lot of bad feeling against the Chinese in this country, and unless that is stopped the students may not come here, but be diverted to Germany or Japan. I am trying to allay that feeling, and intend to ask for a parliamentary enquiry commission to investigate the situation of Chinamen in England. A society will also be formed to protect Chinese interests here.

"I will do all in my power to assist the British Government if they will reciprocate. All that is required is a stipulation that every Chinaman, before being allowed to land here, shall possess a health and character certificate from a Taotai, whose position corresponds with that of your chief town magistrate in this country. They always make the most searching investigations before granting such certificates, and it would only be possible for respectable and prosperous Chinamen to obtain them."

New Commemorative Ornaments in St. John's

Members of the congregation of St. John's church yesterday saw with respectful pleasure that the interior of that sacred edifice had been adorned and enriched by two handsome new solid brass wall ornaments placed there in honor of the memory of Rev. J. W. R. Beck, M.A., formerly for many years rector, and of the late Mrs. Beck.

These consist of a large and handsome brass Celtic Cross, which is placed in the chancel to the right of the organ and a massive brass tablet, which is located near the window, erected to the memory of Mrs. Beck.

These handsome and appropriate tokens of affection were presented by the surviving members of the late rector's family.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"Kerry Gow"

Joseph Murphy's famous play, "Kerry Gow," was presented to two large audiences on the Grand Friday, and Mr. Allen Doone, and his capable company, won unlimited approval in this romantic Irish comedy drama. It is needless to say anything about the play itself; everyone knows the pretty story of the love of the Kerry blacksmith and his colleen, and the villainy of "Mr. Hog, Sir." Suffice it to say, that all the features that have made the play famous were given, including the wonderfully realistic scene in the smithy, and the, barrier pigeons, which play such an important part in the development of the climax. Of the acting there can be little but good to say. The mantle of Joseph Murphy has fallen upon worthy shoulders in the person of Mr. Doone, whose acting in the title role was magnificent. Added to his great histrionic ability he possesses the added advantage of having a splendid voice, which are displayed with fine effect in two pretty songs. The supporting company is an excellent one, all the roles being in capable hands.

The house Friday night was one of the largest since the opening of the Grand Opera house, and was a Tribute to the enterprise of the management in securing such an excellent attraction.

A Rag Peddler's Wedding Day

Local Peddler Has to Borrow a quarter for the Parson's Fee.

On Friday morning one of the many local rag peddlers, approached Mr. G. S., dean of the members of this ancient craft in Peterborough, and with many a becoming blush, broke the news that he was contemplating matrimony, in fact wanted to get married that very afternoon. Incidentally he "made a touch" (or borrowed) the sum of $3 wherewith to pay for the nuptial feast and other incidentals usual at such ceremonies; The $3 was handed over when the bridegroom prospective proceeded to issue invitations to all the rag peddlers in the city.

Mr. S——— and his son arrived at the festive scene, situated in the western part of the city, and discovered that the $ 3 had been absorbed if not imbibed. The bride, a Havelock lady, was becomingly attired. After the ceremony had been celebrated the groom, calling Mr. S——— out to the wood shed, made a further call for 25 cents wherewith to pay the clergyman who had tied the nuptial knot. It has not yet been ascertained whether the wedding tour was taken in a Chinese junk, but it is certain that "rag time" music played on the bones was given during the nuptial feast.

Parry Harbor Citizens Here

Messrs. W. A. Bourne, Mgr. of the Bank of Toronto, and M. Brais, Visit Peterboro.

Mr. W. A. Bourne, formerly accountant of the local branch of the Bank of Toronto, but now manager of the Parry Sound and Parry Harbor branches of that bank, accompanied by his friend, Mr. Maurice Brais of Parry Sound, arrived in the city Friday night and spent Easter Sunday with friends in the city. Mr. Bourne's many friends here were pleased to welcome him in the city once more.

Mr. Brais is Dominion Government inspector of lights and lighthouses on the Georgian Bay and Lake Huron with headquarters at Parry Sound. Mr. Brais was very much interested in the lift lock which he visited yesterday. These two gentlemen return home this morning.

Will Run in Air

London, March 29. — Spitzbergen will soon boast the possession of the farthest North railway in the world. It will be built ten degrees further north than the so-called Lofoten Railway, which crosses the Arctic circle in northern Scandinavia. The object of the new line is to work the coal deposits of Spitzbergen, which are situated in the interior of the island. The new line will connect them with the coast.

The first plan for an earth surface line was abandoned owing to the natural difficulties. It is now proposed to construct an aerial suspension railway on the Borchert system.

Declares St. Peter Lies Under Vatican

Rome, March 28—Professor Marucchi, the distinguished archaeologist, who this year showed almost conclusively that the death of St. Peter took place in or near the Vatican, the great church that bears his name, and not, as later tradition affirmed, on the Janiculum, where the church of S'Pietro in Montorio stands, has given a lecture in the crypt of St. Peter's, the unquestionable site where the sarcophagus of the great apostle is still to be found.

The professor pointed out that the present basilica stands on the very spot on which once stood the great villa of Nero. Many pagan tombs have been found there, proving that the grounds of the villa contained a burying place for the use of the Caesar's households. If St. Peter were martyred there, with the other Christians who perished in the persecutions by Nero, it would be extremely probable that he be interred in the tomb of one of Caesar's servants, since the epistle to Philippians proves that Christians were to be found in the household of the Emperor.

This would account for the fact that no Christian cemetery grew up around the remains of St. Peter, as often happened around the resting place of a holy martyr, because the surrounding pagan tombs would render this impossible.

Professor Marucchi quoted authorities to prove that from early in the second century there is a continuous and undoubted chain of witnesses to the tradition which make it certain that the body of the great apostle really is to be found there.

THE EMPIRE WELDING IS PROGRESSING WELL

Britishers Should Look With Pride Upon the Organizing Powers of the Race---Praise Colonial Conference.

London, March 31.—The Chronicle, periat Defence, and the question of commenting on the approaching session of the Colonial Conference, says;

Among the events of peace which may happen in the Empire, it would be difficult to imagine one more important, or of better augury, than the Imperial Conference — as Sir Charles Dilke well named it in Parliament during a recent debate — which will assemble in April, when the prime ministers of the great self-governing states which are "The Britains beyond the seas," will be the guests of the British nation in London. No more striking example could, in fact, be given of the genius of the race for founding free and flourishing communities, and maintaining, through independence, that fraternity which alone can save a great Empire from disruption.

The British race has reason to think with pride of the development of the Imperial conference, whose third meeting will be held within a few weeks. Everyone knows that good will will be the dominant note of the gathering. The most delicate subjects may be and will be brought up for debate; but the discussion will take place in an atmosphere of genial Imperial patriotism which will keep it clear of acrimony. Freedom and fraternity have proved such good guides that there is no maximus imposition of limits to the scope of the agenda paper. Problems not only vital, but complex will be raised—the constitution of the Committee of Im-

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Gathered From the Local Police Station.

Last week an evening contemporary contained three feet, eleven inches, more or less of heart-breaking "poetry" written by an Englishman, until Saturday last employed on a nearby farm.

On Saturday night the "Poet" whether under the influence of the muse or of two frequent pottions of the extract of Canadian barley, was gathered in by a heartless policeman, and spent Easter Sunday behind the cold iron bars of cell No. 3. He will explain matters to his Worship this morning.

Another Store for E. F. Mason & Co.

Mr. E. F. Mason, the energetic local grocery man has added still another branch establishment to his large and rapidly growing business. He has purchased the property of Mr. Mr. Jas. Edgcumbe, at the corner, of George and Aaurim streets, which includes a well-stocked grocery store, a butcher shop and two residences. The transaction involves an outlay of over $12,000 on the part of Mr. Mason.

This makes three stores owned by Mr. Mason, each of which will be operated under separate management, as follows;

North store—D. H. Kernaghan.
Central store—J. M. Fanning.
South store—W. H. Dayman.

Elliott Inquest Opened Looks Like Murder Case

Port Credit, March 30.—An inquest was opened today at the Wilbur House Port Credit, by Dr. Sutton, coroner, of Peel county upon the body of Edward Elliott, who died shortly after being found on the Grand trunk tracks on Thursday night, near Lorne Park.

There is a very strong suspicion that Elliott's death is the result of foul play and a theory is advanced that he was lured to the woods about and then placed on the railway tracks.

An examination of the body reveals a hole under the chin, which may have been caused by a bullet. The hole is sufficiently large to allow a lead pencil being inserted. There are also two or three wounds on the chest, which appear to be the result of a fight or struggle.

At one p.m. today a jury was sworn in and the body viewed. Dr. Sutton adjourned the inquest until Wednesday morning next, to allow of a post mortem being made. This will be undertaken by Dr. Sutton of Port Credit, a son of the coroner.

No trace whatever has been found of the men who were in the handcar which passed the train the conductor of which discovered Elliott dying on the track. It is known that bad blood existed between Elliott and several of the Italian labourers who were working with him in the section gang.

All the indications point to the occupants of the handcar as the perpetrators of the crime, if, as suspected, a murder has taken place.

Transfusion of Blood to Save Life of Woman

New York, March 31.—For the first time in this city, transfusion of blood was resorted to yesterday to save the life of a patient.

Mrs. Peter Anderson was dying from anaemia in the polyclinic hospital. The doctors decided on a bold stroke to save her life, and the husband of the dying woman cheerfully permitted a quantity of his blood to be pumped into his wife's veins.

The woman was brought back to consciousness, and now has more than a fighting chance for complete recovery. Anderson himself, though weakened by the loss of blood and the ordeal of the operation soon rallied, and bids fair to be himself again in a few days.

Anderson was anesthetized and the pulse artery in his left arm was severed. The large vein in Mrs. Anderson's left arm was severed, and the artery of her husband was inserted in the incision. For an hour the man's heart pumped blood into his wife's veins. Then the arteries were severed and the proper connection made.

Fatal Effort to Save Child

Brockville, Ont., March 29. — Mrs. Fairbairn, of this city, was called to Buffalo, recently in consequence of the serious illness of a little niece, who was badly burned.

It was decided that the only chance of saving her life was the re-utment of skin, grafting. Mrs. Fairbairn pluckily consented to undergo the operation, and had taken from her body, several pieces of skin which were grafted on the young patient. The treatment, however, failed, for the child died.

Mrs. Fairbairn never recovered from the shock of the operation, and relatives have been summoned from here to Buffalo, as also Chief Hare.

WEAK STOMACH CAUSES SICKNESS

Different Symptoms That Result From Indigestion. How to Cure by Strengthening the Stomach.

If you have ever suffered with a weak stomach you must realize that the digestive system is to the body what the foundation is to the house—the base of support and strength.

Whatever hurts your stomach or lessens its power, hurts all other parts of the body and impairs their powers. If the stomach is weak and distressed, one organ after another will be involved until the heart, kidneys and liver are all distressed.

Get the stomach right and health will naturally come to the other organs. This explains why a good many people who have doctored for years for diseases of the heart, kidneys or liver, have at last been cured by Mi-o-na stomach tablets. They found to their astonishment and happiness that, when the weak stomach was strengthened, their health returned, the heart became regular, the torpid liver active and the kidneys healthy.

Do not think we claim Mi-o-na is a "cure-all." It is not. It is a specific for all distresses of the stomach, and when it strengthens the stomach and cures indigestion, you will soon be well all over without further medicine.

Mi-o-na is sold only in 50c. boxes, never in bulk. It is sold under an absolute guarantee to refund money unless it cures.

Write today for a free sample package, and also give us your symptoms, and one of the best known stomach specialists will give your case his careful and personal attention without charge. Booth's Mions Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

What Does It Mean?

Dr. Hamilton Gives a Full and Satisfactory Explanation.

Look at your tongue!

Sometimes it's heavily coated sometimes it's clear and red.

Study this out and you'll find some interference with the functional activity of the body.

This means the bowels are not regular, the liver is sluggish and the blood is contaminated.

Strong cathartic pills act so destructively on the intestines as to provoke deathly sickness; this often frightens people from taking medicine when they badly need it.

To the multitude of dangerous purgatives now on the market, Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a notable exception, they neither gripe, cause sickly feeling or headache, yet they cleanse and purify the entire system in one night. No other laxative acts with such mildness and certainty. Giving proper stimulus to the liver and kidneys, strengthening the stomach and lending valuable aid to digestion, it's small wonder that such marvelous results accompany Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Mr. Geo. O'Hagarty, of Amherst, N. S., writes; "Last winter I worked in a lumber camp and neglected my health. I was dreadfully constipated and had a headache that fairly made me reel at times. I was sick and miserable, and hadn't the slightest ambition to work or stir around. I felt heavy and dull and had a bad taste in my mouth. I sent into the city for Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which I knew were good for my condition. They fixed me up very quickly and have kept me in good condition ever since. There are other men in the camp that use Dr. Hamilton's Pills also. They say they wouldn't be without the pills for ten times their price."

Every dealer in the land sells Dr. Hamilton's Pills—25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson and Co. Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

COAST CHANGES IN BRITAIN

It is some satisfaction to learn that the reports of Great Britain and Ireland being washed away into the sea at the rate of 2,000 acres a year are not true. At a late meeting of the British Royal Commission on Coast Erosion, Mr. Ivor Guest, M.P., presiding, Col. Hellard, R.A., of the Ordnance Survey Department, said that the total loss or gain in land in England and Wales during the past twenty or twenty-five years was the difference between the gain of 31,171 acres, and the loss of 419 acres—30,752 acres. Between the years 1891 and 1901 there had been a gain of 9,000 acres. In England and Wales the general feature was that there had been a gain of land and a loss of foreshore. In Yorkshire and on the east coast of Norfolk and Suffolk erosion that had been going on was undoubtedly going on at the present time, whereas at other portions of the coast where erosion had been going on when one survey was made accretion was taking place at another period. He further stated that in Scotland the total loss of land was 315 acres, and the total gain was 4,704 acres, the difference of 3,859 acres being the gain of land. The loss of foreshore was 13,447 acres and the gain of foreshore from the sea was 4,705 acres, giving a loss of foreshore of 8,871 acres. That erosion had taken place mostly in the Solway Firth. In Ireland the figures showed a gain of land and a loss of foreshore.

April Canadian Magazine

From cover to cover the Easter number of The Canadian Magazine is the best publication of the kind that has ever appeared in Canada. It starts off with a frontispiece entitled "Christ and the Magdalen," and there are several other full-page reproductions depicting scenes and characters closely related to Christ. The letterpress begins with an article on "Toronto: A Turn in Its History," by Baldwin Smith. Hon. John Charlton contributes an article entitled "How Mackenzie Failed." Mr. S. T. Wood, a well-known nature student, writes on "The Awakening of Spring." Mrs. Jean Blewett has a good Easter story. William Campbell contributes eight pages, with photographs, on Scottish-Canadian poetry. There are, as well, several well-illustrated articles and poems, together with short stories of a seasonable and entertaining character. All round, the number contains an excellent variety of choice literary productions from Canadian writers.

Servia Shaken

London, March 28.—Prof. Belar, the seismologist, reports that an earthquake occurred at 12.40 p.m. yesterday, 6,250 miles from Laibach, Austria, where Prof. Belar is located. There was also a moderate shock in Servia, 24 hours earlier.

Laborers Blown to Pieces

Cleveland, O., March 29.—Two laborers were blown to pieces and several thousands of dollars' worth of property was destroyed yesterday when the glaze mill of the Austin Powder Company, at Fall Junction, twenty miles from here, exploded.

MALE VISITORS.

Girls Should Be Careful Before Inviting Men to Call.

It almost goes without saying that in the matter of receiving calls from young men very young girls must be guided entirely by the wishes of their parents. Girls going to school are not supposed to receive any special attention from either men or boys and are not usually permitted by their parents to receive calls from their boy friends in the evening unless perhaps upon the night preceding the school holiday, when they may see several of their young friends, girls and boys together, but rarely a boy alone.

For older girls there are really no set rules as to how and when they may invite men to call upon them. Much depends upon the manner and place of meeting. A girl does not usually ask a man whom she meets casually for the first time to call upon her. She finds it a better and safer plan to wait until she has met him several times, knows him a bit better and has decided whether or not she would care to include him among her friends. She thus avoids the possibility of placing herself in an awkward position later by being obliged to discontinue his acquaintance. Giving pain in any way is always to be avoided as bad form and showing lack of nice feeling.

On the other hand, if she meets a man at the home of some well known friends and he shows her special courtesy, such, for instance, as accompanying her to her home after the entertainment, and she realizes by his manner and apparent interest that he would like to continue her acquaintance, she may, if she finds him agreeable, invite him to call upon her or say when she is thanking him for his attention that she hopes to see him again. If he really wishes to call upon her he will undoubtedly then say so, and if he asks when she will be at home she may tell him when she is usually at home or designate, if he wishes it, a certain time. In the instance of a man and girl being introduced by mutual friends who have specially arranged the meeting through compliment alone to this man and girl, the girl should invite the man to call upon her.

Men usually call between 8 and 9 o'clock when they are making evening calls and should never remain later than 10 o'clock or, at very latest, half past 10.—Pittsburg Press.

A CORNER BENCH.

Attractive Seat, Easily Made at Home at Little Cost.

A very pretty corner seat is shown in the illustration. This was made by a young bride of limited means. The wooden seat she painted white to match the rest of the woodwork in the room. She then fastened green denim behind the seat and finished it off at the top by nailing up a piece of white picture molding. She made the cushion of cheap hair and covered it with green denim. On the picture molding she arranged little cups and saucers, which give a pretty little touch of color. She made a few cushions for the seat from remnants she picked up in the stores for a few cents. So she is now the proud possessor of a delightful corner seat which, owing to her capability, cost almost nothing.—Philadelphia North American.

How a Woman May Succeed.

Sitting with folded hands, resigned to a life of railing at fate, is a form of death. Who does not know women who believe that there is nothing for them but keeping on the gray routine of days, with never a hint of grace or glory? You visit them and find them lacking in any charm of dress or manner. They repine about bad health or hard luck, yet all around them you see the reason for that bad health or what they call bad luck. The dust lies thick upon their books and pictures. Their hair is untidy. They lack even the desire for cleanliness. Nothing ever comes to this mood. It repels and drives away the forces that aid us up to the heights, says Woman's Life. We may long for a great many things that we feel are beyond reach, but if we put our hand to the nearest task that confronts us the faroff thing comes nearer.

The New Wash Day.

Just as experience will prove Tuesday to be the best wash day for most modern housewives, so the newer methods or washing may be proved to be far the best for the sort of clothing we now wear. Old time fabrics were coarse and tough. They could be rubbed and pounded and pulled about without much danger to the fiber, but in these days garments must be handled with care. Soaps have been made according to recipes and formulas given by chemists to meet latter day requirements, to do away with board rubbing as much as possible, and it is nothing short of foolish to stand back and refuse to advance with the times by making use of every aid given us by science and invention.—Pictorial Review.

Mr. Jas. Dolan Convalescent

We are pleased to note that Mr. James Dolan, who has been confined to bed in his room at the City Hotel for about ten days, was somewhat better yesterday. Mr. Dolan whilst still very weak was able to get up for a short time. He remarked to a Times representative that Mr. Connors and others of the City Hotel staff had been very kind and attentive to him during his illness.

Will Revolutionize the Fuel Business

Altoona, March 29.—Two teaspoonfuls of a liquid invented by John Ellmore, an inventive but illiterate shoemaker, costing 25 cents, and dissolved in three gallons of water, is sufficient to treat three-quarters of a ton of ashes mixed with one-quarter of a ton of coal, and will bring out more heat and evolve it for a longer period than one ton of pure coal, bituminous or anthracite.

Without any knowledge of chemistry and so ignorant that he is compelled to seek assistance in writing to drug houses for his ingredients, Ellmore has succeeded in producing a compound which revivifies or recreates the combustible element in common coal ashes, at the same time creating a heat of greater intensity than that evolved from the highest grade of soft coal when fanned by a forced draft.

So convinced is Dr. Hoy, one of the leading practitioners of Altoona, that Ellmore's secret will revolutionize the use of coal as a fuel, and that the discovery is one of the most remarkable of the age, that he has agreed to back the manufacture of the compound, and to enlist capital to produce it on a large scale.

Dr. Hoy made his first test on January 30, and successive tests followed for 29 days. He timed the period of combustion of coal and the amount consumed, and then timed the mixed ashes and coal saturated with the compound. Not only did he obtain a fiercer heat, but the mixture of ashes and coal after treatment burned from one-third to one-half an hour longer.

It is said that the coal barons of Pennsylvania are very much worried over the discovery, for if it is what its inventor claims, coal prices will tumble.

Disorders in Persia

Teheran, Persia, March 28.—Serious disorders have broken out at Sebzewar, necessitating the intervention of Russian troops. The lawless natives of the vicinity have risen and are attempting to force an entrance into the city. Two Russians have been killed and a number wounded. The lives of all the Russians are in danger. Reinforcements of Russian troops are reported to have started for Sebzewar.

Society of Conjurors

London, March 27.—The Magic Circle which is the official designation of the society of conjurers, met in great strength in St. George's Hall today, and the members tried to mystify one another with a series of their latest tricks. In some cases they seemed to succeed as completely as they did in puzzling the lay section of the audience. The society's gold medal was finally awarded to Nate Leipzig, an American, in recognition of his marvelous skill and originality.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

What HON. H. G. EWART, Former Congressman, Circuit Court and U. S. Judge, Western District, North Carolina, Has to Say of NEVADA MINING INVESTMENTS:

Nevada's past history was written by the Comstock. Its present history is being written by Goldfield, Tonopah and Bullfrog.

The great Comstock Mine at Virginia City, Nevada, produced $350,000,000. It added hundreds of millions to the world's supply of precious metals, it built transcontinental railroads, great steamship lines and laid cables across the ocean, it financed some of the world's greatest newspapers, it endowed universities and colleges, and galleries of art, it built multitudes of towns and cities, it completed that splendid city, San Francisco, it made United States senators, railroad and bank presidents, it fixed in history the names of Mackey, Fair, Flood, O'Brien, Shaw, Jones and Sutro.

Tonopah was discovered in 1900. Her Mizpah is probably the greatest silver-gold mine in the world. The camp has paid $2,200,000 in cash dividends.

Goldfield came next, and is producing today $150,000 every twenty-four hours, or $54,000,000 per annum.

It is Bullfrog now, the baby among her wonderful camps, that Nevada is holding forth to the world as a doting mother. Unlike Goldfield, Bullfrog is essentially a great milling proposition, with mountains of ore, assaying from $5 to $250 per ton. When other mining camps in Nevada will be dead Bullfrog will be known as the "Camp of Confidence and Endurance." It will take centuries to exhaust its marvelous deposits. This is the reason why Schwab, McKane, Oddie, Clark and other millionaires have quietly secured nearly every foot of available mineral ground in this great district. This is the reason why four railroads have already completed, and are rapidly extending their lines into the Bullfrog district. This is the reason why Rhyolite has in the short space of three years changed from a habitation of coyotes and side-winders to a modern up-to-date city of 7,000 people. This is the reason why the Montgomery-Shoshone is building upon its properties a great reduction mill which will handle its thousands of tons of ore and which will cost over half a million. This is the reason why all Bullfrog stocks have steadily advanced in the face of the savage and unjustifiable attacks made by Wall street and their paid newspaper emissaries.

The South Bullfrog district, which includes the Keane Wonder, Big Hell, Cliff, California Bullfrog, Death Valley Mining & Milling Co., and others, is looked upon as one of the coming camps of importance. The ore found in this district are quartz and talc, carrying iron oxides, the principal values being in gold, with silver and copper traces.

It is in this district that the Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company (Inc.) properties in part are located. The company owns 80 acres of highly mineralized lands within two miles of the California Bullfrog Mine. Its assays show rich gold, silver and copper values, and being a tunnel proposition, can be economically and quickly developed. The other property of the Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company is splendidly located right in the very heart of this great gold-bearing camp, consisting of 160 acres within 1 1-2 miles of the great Montgomery-Shoshone Mine owned by Charles M. Schwab, the Pittsburg steel magnate, and his associates. It is only two miles from the City of Rhyolite with a fine road leading to the mines, and within one mile of the water pipes leading from Indian Springs to the City of Rhyolite. Its ledges are bold and well defined, and expert engineers declare it as the ir opinion, that the same rich veins of the Montgomery-Shoshone traverse this property.

Kansas City, Mo., February 20, 1907.

J. H. MORELAND,

Mr. Moreland is one of the most expert and reliable assayers in the United States. He is a graduate of the State School of Mines of Colorado, and has had fifteen years practical experience as assayer of leading mines and smelters. For many years he was the official Government assayer for the United States Custom House at Kansas City, Mo. The large proportion of all ores shipped from Mexico is received at Kansas City.

The Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Co. is officered and managed by gentlemen of the highest character and standing in this city. The company has secured the services of Mr. J. E. Lindstrom, of Rhyolite, Nevada, as general manager, whose years of experience in Alaska, Colorado, and California, peculiarly fit him for this position.

After the most careful and personal examination of the properties of this company, its officers, and its possibilities, I have accepted the position of Fiscal Agent of the company and offer to the investing public, 250,000 shares of its stock at 10 cents per share. With the knowledge I have of the tremendous possibilities of this company, and its valuable properties, and the high character of its officials, I do not hesitate to urge my friends in the south, and the investing public generally, to buy this stock, satisfied as I am that they will realize enormous profits on their investments.

It will give me pleasure to mail to any inquirers, prospectus, maps, and full information as to the properties of this company. Highest references given.

This stock can be purchased either for cash, or on the installment plan as follows:

$ 10.00	buys 100 shares,	payable $ 5.00	cash, balance $ 1.00	per month.
$ 15.00	buys 150 shares,	payable $ 7.50	cash, balance $ 1.50	per month.

$500.00	buys 5000 shares,	payable $50.00	cash, balance $90.00	per month.

This stock is being rapidly taken and I would advise my friends to send in their orders at once. Thousands of investors are making fortunes out of comparatively small amounts in Nevada Mining propositions. Why should you not do so?

Make all checks, money-orders, payable to, and address all letters to to you mother—very fine ride—no, no more tonight! I'm aweary, you understand, aweary!"

"Aweary, awe-e-e-ary!" repeated the little things, standing before him in infantile nude rotundity, looking up with bright eyes.

"Aweary, that is it. Good night, Epaminondas; good night, Xantippe! Give ye good hap, most stout Nestorius!"

He stooped and gravely shook hands with each one in turn, and, after forcing a like ceremonial upon Guy Oscard, they reluctantly withdrew.

"They have not joined us, I suppose?" said Oscard as he followed his companion into the house.

"Not yet. They live in this place. Nestorious, I understand, takes care of his mother, who in her turn takes care of this house. He is one and a half."

Guy Oscard seemed to have inherited the mind inquisitive from his learned father. He asked another question later on.

"Who is that woman?" he said during dinner, with a little nod toward the doorway through which the object of his curiosity had passed with some plates.

"That is the mother of the stout Nestorius," answered Jack—"Durnovo's housekeeper."

He spoke quietly, looking straight in front of him; and Joseph, who was drawing a cork at the back of the room, was watching his face.

There was a little pause, during which Durnovo drank slowly. Then Guy Oscard spoke again.

"If she cooked the dinner," he said, "she knows her business."

"Yes," answered Durnovo, "she is a good cook, if she is nothing else."

It did not sound as if further inquiries would be welcome, and so the subject was dropped with a silent tribute to the culinary powers of Durnovo's housekeeper at the Msala station.

The woman had only appeared for a moment, bringing in some dishes for Joseph—a tall, stately woman, with great dark eyes, in which the patience of motherhood had succeeded to the soft fire of West Indian love and youth. She had the graceful slow carriage of the creole, although her skin was darker than that of those dangerous sirens.

"They call me," she had said to Jack Meredith in her soft, mumbled English a fortnight earlier, "they call me Marie."

The children he had named after his own fantasy, and when she had once seen him with them there was a notable change in her manner. Her eyes rested on him with a sort of wondering attention, and when she cooked his meals or touched anything that was his there was something in her attitude that denoted special care.

Joseph called her "missis," with a sort of friendliness in his voice which never rose to badinage nor descended to familiarity.

The man who had found the simiacine was eager, restless, full of suspicion. To the others the scheme obviously presented itself in a different light. Jack Meredith was dilettante, light hearted and unsatisfactory. It was impossible to arouse any enthusiasm in him, to make him take it seriously. Guy Oscard was gravely indifferent. He wanted to get rid of a certain space of time, and the African forest, containing as it did the only excitement that his large heart knew, was as good a place as any. The simiacine was, in his mind, relegated to a distant place behind weeks of sport and adventure such as his soul loved.

"You men," said Durnovo eagerly, "don't seem to take the thing seriously."

"I," answered Meredith, "intend, at all events, to take the profits very seriously. When they begin to come in, J. Meredith will be at the above address, and trusts by a careful attention to business to merit a continuance of your kind patronage."

Durnovo laughed somewhat nervously. Oscard did not seem to hear.

"It is all very well for you," said the half caste in a lower voice. "You have not so much at stake. It is likely that the happiness of my whole life depends upon this venture."

A curious smile passed across Jack Meredith's face. Without turning his head he glanced sideways into Durnovo's face through the gloom. But he said nothing, and it was Oscard who broke the silence by saying simply:

"The same may possibly apply to me."

There was a little pause, during which he lighted his pipe.

It did not seem to occur to any of them that the only person whose individuality was still veiled happened to be Jack Meredith. He alone had said nothing. He it was who spoke first, after a proper period of silence.

"It seems to me," he said, "that we have all the technicalities arranged now. So far as the working of the expedition is concerned we know our places, and the difficulties will be met as they present themselves. But there is one thing which I think we should set in order now. I have been thinking about it while I have been waiting here alone."

The glow of Victor Durnovo's cigar died away as if in his attention he was forgetting to smoke; but he said nothing.

"It seems to me," Jack went on, "that before we leave here we should draw up and sign a sort of deed of partnership. Of course we trust each other perfectly—there is no question of that. But life is an uncertain thing, as some earlier philosopher said before me; and one never knows what may happen. I have drawn up a paper in triplicate. If you have a match I will read it to you."

Oscard produced a match and, striking it on his boot, sheltered it with the hollow of his hand while Jack read:

"We, the undersigned, hereby enter into partnership to search for and sell to our mutual profit the herb known as simiacine, the profits to be divided into three equal portions, after the deduction of one-hundredth part, to be handed to the servant, Joseph Atkinson. Any further expenses that may be incurred to be borne in the same proportion as the original expense of fitting out the expedition—namely, two-fifths to be paid by Guy Cravener Oscard, two-fifths by John Meredith, one-fifth by Victor Durnovo.

"The sum of £50 per month to be paid to Victor Durnovo, wherewith he may pay the thirty special men taken from his estate and headquarters at Msala to cultivate the simiacine, and such corn and vegetables as may be required for the sustenance of the expedition; these men to act as porters until the plateau be reached.

"The opinion of two of the three leaders against one to be accepted unconditionally in all questions where controversy may arise. In case of death each of us undertakes hereby to hand over to the executor of the dead partner or partners such moneys as shall belong to him or them."

At this juncture there was a little pause while Guy Oscard lighted a second match.

"And," continued Jack, "we hereby undertake severally on oath to hold the secret of the whereabouts of the simiacine a strict secret, which secret may not be revealed by any one of us, to whomsoever it may be, without the sanction, in writing, of the other two partners."

"There," concluded Jack Meredith, "I am rather pleased with that literary production. It is forcible and yet devoid of violence. I feel that in me the commerce of the century has lost an ornament. Moreover, I am ready to swear to the terms of the agreement."

There was a little pause. Guy Oscard took his pipe from his mouth, and while he knocked the ashes out against the leg of his chair he mumbled, "I swear to hold to that agreement."

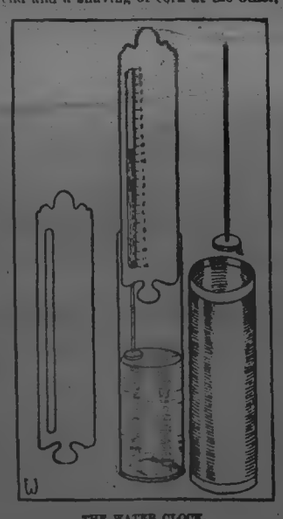
A WATER CLOCK.

Good Homemade Toy That Is Not Difficult to Make.

Very little difficulty will be encountered in making the water clock illustrated here, and any boy can manage it. All that is needed are a piece of cardboard, a piece of wire, two pieces of cork, some needles and a tin can.

A hole is made in the bottom of the can which shall suffice to let all the water run out in twenty-four hours. The piece of cardboard must be about twenty-six inches long and six inches wide and is cut out as shown in the diagram. This is set up on the tin can by means of wires.

A stiff wire twenty inches long has a small piece of cork fastened to one end and a shaving of cork at the other,



THE WATER CLOCK.

this last piece of cork to float in the water of the can, which is to be open at the top. The bit of cork at the top, which is to act as a pointer, can also help to steady the wire by having two needles inserted so that they will move up and down in the groove, being fixed crosswise.

One of the needles will thus serve as a pointer, and to mark out the hours on the cardboard one simply lets the water run out for an hour from the opening at the bottom and, going to the cardboard, makes a mark. The other hours are determined in the same way.—St. Louis Republic.

THE WHIRLING DERVISH.

A Singular Being Who Comes From Faraway Persia.

Nearly every circus or wild west show that comes to town has a "whirling dervish" for one of the attractions, and they are certainly wonderful creatures. I wonder if all of you know where they come from?

They are Mohammedans from Persia, a sect of men who devote or are supposed to devote their entire time to religion and are perhaps as nearly like monks as anything else. Fasting for days at a time, with continual prayer, at last affects their minds, and they see wonderful visions which they disclose to their superstitious brothers, over whom they have great influence. They are always miserably poor, living on charity and earn what little they have by being hired to mourn at funerals or to conduct religious ceremonies.

Some of these men perform most wonderful tricks, such as fire eating, juggling and walking on broken glass. How they do them will never be known, but they are supposed to be invested with supernatural power, which is of course untrue. We are all familiar with the "whirling dervish." This takes years of practice, but finally they become so expert and are so used to it that they can "whirl" for hours without becoming dizzy.

The Mean Thing!

"Who was that fool you bowed to?"
"My husband."
"Oh, I—er—I—humbly apologise. I"—
"Never mind, I'm not angry. But what a keen observer you are!"

KENNEDY COBALT, Ltd.

is recommended

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. 32. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 15 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 30 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 30 acres of J. B. 32 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 5 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 30 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 50 feet, and in it shows 5 inch nicollite, 18 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 673-1283-492-1161 oz., silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

New Liskeard, 17th November, 1906.

JACOB M. EGGERT, M.E.

We offer a few more shares at Fifty Cents (50c); par value One Dollar ($1.00). The property is being developed as fast as possible, and we cannot promise that stock will be sold at less than par for very long. Don't wait until it is $3.00 to invest, giving others big profits for what you should have bought sooner. We want you to get in on the ground floor and share in the big profits. For a limited time only we will accept subscriptions at 50 cents—the stock is slated for a sharp advance very soon. Send marked cheque or money order.

Watery Blood

Nerves are Weak
Face is Pallid
You Lack Strength
You Look Sickly.

Until You Ironize and Fortify the Blood There's No Hope of Cure.

Thousands of tired workers need the invigoration, the strength, the nerve-force which Ferrozone can supply.

Ferrozone imparts strength because it nourishes.

Ferrozone is able to nourish because it supplies to the blood the elements it lacks.

Once the blood is vitalized, its tonic influence is circulated to every nook and corner of the blood, carrying new life with it.

Cases on record prove that Ferrozone builds up when else fails. Mr. Alonzo W. Douglas, of Woodbridge, Ont., says: "I desire to state the results I derived from the use of Ferrozone. Two years ago I was stricken with pneumonia. So severe was the attack and so reduced was my strength that my life was despaired of. I had the very best medical attention, but made no progress towards recovery. When reduced to practically a skeleton, a kind friend told me of the remarkable powers of Ferrozone. An improvement began almost at once. I gained steadily in weight and strength until Ferrozone made me a new man. I will gladly answer inquiries from other sufferers if they care to have further particulars about my recovery. Ferrozone deserves its great measure of success."

When a man in Mr. Douglas' low condition can be quickly cured, aren't the chances good for you? Don't fail to try Ferrozone. Price 50c. per box at all dealers.

YOUNG CHILD DEVOURED

TOWNSHIP OF MANVERS IS TERRORIZED.

Huge Canadian Lynx is the One Committing the Depredations.

Yesterday a well known farmer, living in the 6th concession of the Township of Manvers, brought word to the city of one of the most exciting and distressing episodes that ever agitated this usually quiet agricultural district.

Our informant stated that for some days farmers of that neighborhood have been worried over the unaccountable loss of their sheep, hogs and poultry. Owing to the warm spring weather sheep have recently been left out to graze on the tender young sprouts of grass now timidly raising their heads to greet the welcome sunshine. One farmer, Mr. Andrews, on Friday last left three ewes, two of which had their recently born lambs with them, in his north pasture lot. Saturday morning, so our informant stated, Mr. Andrews went to the field to look after the lambs, fearing the cool weather of the preceding night might have affected the little tender animals. To his dismay, only one of the lambs was to be found. A vigilant search made along the fence line, in the corners, and in a small bunch of trees to the west end of the field, failed in locating the lambs. A careful examination demonstrated that the lamb, small as it was, could not have squeezed through the fence rails, nor could it be found anywhere on the farm. The same night (Friday) a neighbor of Mr. Andrews, whose name our informant had unfortunately forgotten, missed one of his pedigreed Tamworth hogs, which had mysteriously disappeared from a closely boarded pen and the gate had been carefully secured by a stout hasp and padlock after the pigs had been fed and counted some hours previously. After a fruitless search had been made, the hog was missing for good. These two neighbors, happening to meet Saturday morning, discussed their respective losses, and, concluding that a thief must be in the neighborhood, called at the residences of their near by neighbors and warned them to be on guard. The result of their kindly visit of warning was to ascertain that many other farmers, living close to the great "Manvers Swamp," had recently been losers of hogs, geese, turkeys and fowl.

On Saturday morning, instead of coming in to the city, some eighteen to twenty residents of the township met at Mr Andrews' residence to discuss the situation and provide some means of stopping such wholesale robbery. As a motion to hire a detective to run down their thief was being discussed, a pale faced woman, with dishevelled hair and eyes starting from their sockets, rushed into the house and paralyzed those present by exclaiming: "My baby boy is gone! My boy is gone! Some animal has taken my boy from the yard and carried him into the swamp!"

The horror stricken farmers at once guessed where their sheep and other farm stock had disappeared, particularly as, for months, it was common rumor that an enormous lynx was inhabiting this dense stretch of thickly growing pines, cedar and hemlock.

At once all present repaired to their respective homes and armed themselves with guns, revolvers and even pitchforks. They formed a semi-circle round the southern portion of the swamp, and each man, not thinking of his own paltry loss, was bound to recover or avenge the death of the innocent child. After beating the swamp to a distance of possibly half a mile, one of the hunters, Mr. J. L. Pearole, discovered beneath the roots of a huge pine tree, that some years ago had been blown over, a hole leading into the ground. Strewed about the entrance of what was at once recognized as the lynx's den, were sheep bones, turkey and geese feathers. A member of the party was dispatched to the nearest farm for picks and shovels. These tools, wielded by sturdy arms, soon widened the entrance to the animal's home. As they were working hard, without warning or any intimation in the way of growls, the wiry body of a huge Canadian lynx rushed from its retreat, knocking a young man named Wilson over in its flight, and scurried up a near by eighty-foot cedar. At the first branch it stopped, spitting, snarling and growling at its pursuers. Several shots were fired, which through excitement, went astray. Then the huge cat rapidly climbed to the topmost branch of the cedar, and, taking a strong and careful leverage under the stout branch, pulled the cedar completely from the ground, and, as the roots swung freely in the air, there was clearly visible beneath them the words: "April Fool."

Royal Bank Fittings Arrived

The handsome new weathered oak fittings of the Royal Bank, of which Mr. Vincent Eastwood, was recently appointed local manager, were taken there on Saturday. They are of the most modern type and will doubtless make this bank one of the most handsomely furnished in the Province of Ontario.

Handsome Jewellery Window

Mr. Alexander Gibson's jewellery window attracted much attention on Saturday. The dressing of the windows was quite unique, showing scores of small newly hatched chicks in miniature, either just answering "yes" in chicken dialect to the question, "does your mother know you're out?" or still partly in the shell, but each chick encircled by a gold ring of some kind of setting, from diamonds to artificial jewels and the plain gold circlet that some higher in the long run than ten carat emeralds.

—Mr. J. Fred Roddy, lately employed in the Peterborough Lock Works, left Saturday morning to accept a responsible position with the Chicago Novelty Company, in the Windy City.

—Mr. W. D. Parker, formerly local manager of the Bank of Ontario here, spent the holiday the guest of his sister-in-law, Mrs. J. Hazen Ritchie, in the Fleming Terrace.

—Mr. John Kennedy, the well known bricklaying and building contractor of Toronto, father of Mr. James Kennedy, of The Times staff, was in the city yesterday, a guest of the latter.

—Our Social Editor was laid up last night with what seemed like blind staggers. His wife had made him promise to keep tab on the new Easter bonnets worn at yesterday morning's church services. By judicious care and proper nursing he may escape the asylum.

Cheap Groceries for Sale Today

In order to obtain permanent premises, China Hall has purchased the large and well assorted stock of groceries, etc., of Mr. A. Rountree, No. 384 George street. This stock, which is one of the finest grocery stocks in Peterborough, will, together with the balance of the China Hall stock, be thrown on the market at cost price, commencing March 2 and continuing until both stocks are entirely disposed of, but no longer than the 15th of April, after which date the store will be re-fitted, and opened about May 1, with an entirely new stock of crockery, china, glassware, cut-glass, plated ware, fine china ornaments, etc. China Hall, after that date, will be beyond a doubt one of the finest and most complete china stores in Canada. The China Hall Company.

Hotel Thief is Known

The Times ascertained that the proprietor of the Oriental Hotel, who has recently been subjected to much annoyance by cheap sneak thieves stealing towels, soap, brushes, from the lavatory of that house, has proof now of the identity of at least one of these small hore robbers. It is possible that prosecution may follow. Any man who will make free use of elaborate accommodation and then steal that provided for his use should get a sentence of six months twice a year for a long term of years.

Do You Open Your Mouth

Like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you? Or, do you want to know something of the composition and character of that which you take into your stomach whether as food or medicine?

Most intelligent and sensible people now-a-days insist on knowing what they employ whether as food or as medicine. Dr. Pierce believes they have a perfect right to insist upon such knowledge. So he publishes broadcast and on each bottle-wrapper, what his medicines are made of and vouches it under oath. This he feels he can well afford to do because the more the ingredients of which his medicines are made are studied and understood the more will their superior curative virtues be appreciated.

For the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and derangements, giving rise to frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down pain or distress in lower abdominal or pelvic region, accompanied, ofttimes, with a debilitating, pelvic, catarrhal drain and kindred symptoms of weakness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy. It is equally effective in curing painful periods, in giving strength to nursing mothers and in preparing the system of the expectant mother for baby's coming, thus rendering childbirth safe and comparatively painless. The "Favorite Prescription" is a most potent, strengthening tonic to the general system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. It is also a soothing and invigorating nervine and cures nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, chorea or St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms attendant upon functional and organic diseases of the distinctly feminine organs.

A host of medical authorities of all the several schools of practice, recommend each of the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is made for the cure of the diseases for which it is claimed to be a cure. You may read what they say for yourself by sending a postal card request for a free booklet of extracts from the leading authorities, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post.

THE LARDER LAKE SYNDICATE

GOLD - SILVER - COPPER

TO PURCHASE FROM THE OWNERS

35 Gold, Silver and Copper bearing Claims covering 1400 acres in the now famous Larder Lake District. These claims have been located under the personal supervision of one of the most experienced men in the Cobalt District.

Assays have been made from a number of the Claims showing large values on surface.
Gold values as high as $134.00 to the ton.
Silver values as high as $38.00 to the ton.
Copper vein 28, feet wide on surface, assaying 10.65 per cent. Pure Copper.

On completion of the Syndicate it is proposed to form a Mining Company with a Capital of $5,000,000 00 (par value of shares $1 each) of which 1,500,000 shares are to remain in the treasury. Three Million Shares will be divided pro rata among the Subscribers to this Syndicate, giving 2,400 shares of stock for each $100 subscribed and paid in. One-Tenth of the Capital Stock of the Company is to be paid to the owners of the claims together with $125,000 in money.

All monies paid in will be deposited in the Standard Bank, Ottawa, to the credit of the Syndicate, and no withdrawal can be made except on the order of the Trustees, to be elected at a properly called meeting of the members of the Syndicate of which each subscriber will have ample notice.

Here is Your Opportunity

to get in on a ground floor that has no basement, sub-basement or sub-cellars. No contribution is made for Promotion either in Cash or Stock. Your subscription is pro-rated with the others

2,400 shares of the Capital Stock for each $100 subscribed. Capitalization to be less than $4,000 per acre of claims. Compare these figures with the capitalization of the mining companies of Coleman Township and you will at once realize the possibilities of profit in this syndicate. We have more acreage than Nipissing Mines Company. The copper showing on the claims alone gives promise of sufficient metal to make the company enormously wealthy.

The gold values shown by assays are very high and the rock carries also splendid value in silver. Altogether it is an ideal and splendidly practicable mining proposition.

The claims are less than 16 miles from the T. & N.O.R.R, and there is a good wagon road from the railroad into the lake.

The people that have made the money out of Cobalt are those that have gotten in on SYNDICATES. The syndicate subscribers are the real insiders and get the shares at bed rock prices.

Now is Your Opportunity

The subscriptions are coming in fast. Write today or you may be too late. Send in your subscription by cheque or money order.

—TERMS—

Payments to be made 20 per cent cash with subscription, and 40 per cent. 30 days from receipt of notice of closing of subscription, and 40 per cent within 60 days thereafter.

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 10 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:-

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres were have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

"Respectfully submitted,

The City Council met in regular session last night. Those present were; Mayor McWilliams, Aldermen Johnston, Elliott, Leary, Stevenson, Morgan, Duncan, Wilson, McIntyre, Morrow, Phelan, Tovey and Bradburn.

The minutes of the previous regular meeting were read and adopted.

INCREASE OF SALARIES.

A communication from a number of teamsters employed by the city, requesting that their wages be increased to $1 per day, was received.

On motion, the teamsters present were given an opportunity of expressing their opinions in the matter.

Messrs Brisbin and Fitzgerald stated that, owing to the high prices prevailing they did not consider their request for $1 per day unreasonable.

Aldermen Leary and Elliott were in favor of the increase.

After considerable discussion, Ald. Johnston moved that the matter be referred to the Board of Works. The motion was seconded by Ald. Wilson, and carried.

The matter will be considered by the Board of Works on Wednesday night.

AWARD RE JAS. BOGUE.

The arbitrator's award re the dispute between Jas. Bogue and the city, regarding the east ward outfall sewer provided that the city pay Bogue $1800.18, and his legal expenses amounting to $122.75. Mr. Bogue is to pay the expenses of the diver employed, $27.

THE SIGN BYLAW.

On motion of Ald. Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Morrow, the sign bylaw will not be enforced until next Monday night.

REARRANGEMENT OF WARDS.

Mr. Thos. McGrath informed the council that the rearrangements of the wards as suggested and previously reported would not affect the Separate school interests whatever.

Ald. Stevenson advocated that the wards should be made comparatively equal, as suggested by the mayor.

Ald. Stevenson moved, seconded by Ald. Johnston, —That the wards of the city be rearranged as follows;—

South Ward—All that part of the city lying south of Sherbrooke St.

North Ward—All that part of the city lying north of McDonnel St.

East Ward.—All that part of the city lying east of the Otonabee river.

Centre Ward—All that part of the city lying between Sherbrooke and McDonnel streets, and between Bethune streets and the Otonabee river.

West Ward—All that part of the city lying between Sherbrooke and McDonnel streets, and between Bethune street and the Monaghan road.

This resolution carried.

THE NORMAL SCHOOL.

Ald. Leary urged that it would be a crying disgrace to the city should the Normal school be erected on the site elected at Dixon Park. He advocated that a few thousand additional dollars be expended to secure a more appropriate site for this building.

Ald. Leary moved, seconded by Ald. Bradburn,—That a special committee consisting of Aldermen McIntyre, Bradburn, Wilson, Morrow, Phelan and the mayor look into the question of purchasing a more appropriate site for the Normal school. The committee to report this afternoon to the council.

Ald. Leary has in view the purchasing of the Clegg, Blackwell and adjoining properties.

This motion carried.

BYLAW.

The bylaw governing the fire department passed its several readings.

The bylaw governing fire escapes in buildings, except private dwellings, of three and more stories came up for discussion. The probability of the tenets of this measure being equitable to all concerned was questioned, and the bylaw was referred back to the committee to report at next meeting of the council.

The building bylaw as previously published passed its three readings.

A bylaw to appoint Walter Pakenham, foreman of the fire hall, at a salary of $800 a year, passed its several readings.

A bylaw appointing G. M. Matchett a driver for the fire hall, at a salary of $475 a year, passed its three readings.

A bylaw to authorize the execution of an agreement with Thos. Williams for a refuse grounds, at $400, passed its several readings.

A bylaw to execute an agreement for street watering at an increase of $100, together with additional area, passed its several readings.

Roller Skating Rink Re-opened

Large Crowd Enjoy the Whirling to Good Music.

As noted in former issues of this journal, Messrs. Sheridan and Henderson, the energetic managers of Peterborough's only roller skating rink, Charlotte street, have been busy getting the ice off the splendid hardwood floor they laid down last summer. This morning an electric motor paring machine will arrive which will quickly get the floor to the glossy glassy finish that characterized it last summer. As it was the floor, that had been covered, before the ice for curling was made last fall, with a special preparation of tallow, etc., was in good shape after the ice was removed.

The management have been busy during the past week, with four huge stoves melting the floor into shape, and last night the ease with which the large crowd present glided round the many thousands of square feet of flooring, demonstrated that, by the time the electric planer gets in its work, one will have to part his hair in the middle and skate straight to do business on the rink.

But, had Johnny apart, Messrs. Sheridan and Henderson have a most admirable floor on the Charlotte street rink. This rink will now be open morning, afternoon and night, with a good band present each evening.

NOVEL CURE FOR COLDS

Healing Medication that is Breathed giving quick relief.

It seems just as ridiculous to put medicine into the stomach to cure a cold in the head or lungs as it does to go out in the rain if we want to keep dry.

The fact that many people right in Peterborough cough and hawk and sniffle for days and weeks after they treat a cold with the usual stomach dosing, shows how valueless are the ordinary cough and cold cures.

The right way to cure a cold in the head or a cough and irritation in the throat and lungs, is by breathing Hyomei's medicated air. Put a few drops of Hyomei in the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit and breathe this healing air for a few times and immediate relief will be noted. The medication goes right to the spot where the disease germs are located and renders them harmless in the future.

At the same time the soothing and healing effects of Hyomei on the irritated mucous membrane give quick relief, and the cough or cold is broken up.

A complete Hyomei outfit, consisting of a bottle of Hyomei, the inhaler and a medicine dropper, costs but $1, while extra bottles of Hyomei, if needed, can be obtained for only 50c.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei, or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Write us today for a symptom blank, which we will send you free, together with a treatise on Catarrh and how to cure it. When you fill in and return to us the symptom blank, our consulting physician will give your case the best care and attention, and write you a letter of advice without charge. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Census Bulletin Estimates Population at 83,941,510.

HEAVY TREND TO CITIES

Thirty-One Illinois Cities Have 8,000 or More.

Washington, April 1.—If the United States was as densely populated as Rohde Island it would have a population of 1,368,113,149. In a bulletin just issued by the census bureau the population of continental United States in 1906 is estimated at 83,941,510. This shows that there remains some room for population to increase without overcrowding.

There are fourteen states now taking intercennial censuses, and, with the returns for 1904 in the case of Michigan and 1905 in thirteen other states, the census bureau has worked out its estimates, using the percentage of increase shown by the last regular census in 1900 as the basis.

The statistics for 1906 show the same deplorable trend of population toward the cities. The census bureau estimates that the population of the cities in the United States have increased in population since 1900 15.9 per cent., whereas the population of the entire country has increased only 10.5 per cent.

"It is evident that if these cities continue to increase at the same rate," it is stated in the bulletin, "they will have increased in 1910 more than continental United States exclusive of these cities."

DENSE IN RHODE ISLAND.

The most densely populated of the states and territories, exclusive of the District of Columbia, is Rhode Island, with 480 persons per square mile, followed by Massachusetts with 579; New Jersey, 392; Connecticut, 209; New York, 173; Pennsylvania, 155; Maryland, 128, and Ohio, 109. These are the only states with a density exceeding 100 per square mile. The density of continental United States is 25. Illinois is given 97 persons per square mile; Indiana, 76; Iowa, 40; Michigan, 45, and Wisconsin 41.

Police and school census of cities have been discarded by the bureau in reaching its estimates as unreliable. New York City has, according to the bulletin, twice the population of Chicago, the second city, and three times that of Philadelphia. The estimated population of the five leading cities in 1906 is given as follows:

New York	4,113,043
Chicago	2,049,185
Philadelphia	1,441,735
St. Louis	649,339
Boston	602,273

"Preventics" will promptly check a cold or the Grippe when taken early or at the "sneeze stage." Preventics cure seated colds as well. Preventics are little candy cold cure tablets, and Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis., will gladly mail you samples and a book on Colds free, if you will write him. The samples prove their merit. Check early Colds with Preventics and stop Pneumonia. Sold in 5c. and 25c boxes by J. D. Tully.

Thief Linked to Phillips on Trip

Kingston, March 30.—Joseph Phillips of York Loan notoriety, arrived here this afternoon to enter upon his give-year term at Portsmouth penitentiary. He was handcuffed to another convict, both prisoners being in charge of Sheriff's Officer Service.

Phillips' companion in irons was Nathaniel Hallman, who will serve two years for theft.

Phillips looked well, was apparently in good spirits, and enjoyed the fine drive in an open cab from the depot to the penitentiary. He will be assigned to his duties on Monday.

Rayner Escapes Gallows Home Office Intervenes

London, March 31.—It was announced today that as a result of the popular agitation in favor of a reprieve for Horace G. Rayner, who on Jan. 24, killed William Whitely, the well-known merchant of Westbourne Grove, the home secretary, Mr. Gladstone, had advised the King to commute the death sentence to life imprisonment at penal servitude.

The King almost invariably acts on the home secretary's advice and therefore Rayner's reprieve may be regarded as an accomplished fact.

The exercise of the royal prerogative of mercy is probably to a great extent due to the strong revulsion of public feeling against nursing a dying man back to life only to reserve him for the hangman's rope, together with the painful situation of the prisoner.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Gathered From the Local Police Station.

At yesterday's police court, Chas. Brandon was charged with having been found drunk in a public place on Saturday. Charles, the English poet, was assessed $2, and given ten days in which to raise the necessary collateral. Charles departed amid a cloud of thanksgiving.

Three merchants were fined $5 each for having their goods delivered, and opened on the pavement last Saturday. Mr W. H. Moore, who appeared for one of the defendants, claimed that the policeman who laid the information, should have warned the merchants before hailing them before "the Beak." He thought a policeman who saw a man breaking one of the city bylaws should warn them to desist. However, his Worship only replied to this argument by saying "Stuff and nonsense." The officer should not mix up in quarrels with men who know or should know the law!"

Each of the defendants was fined $5.00

Cornelius Walls was charged with stealing $31 from Frank Sullivan on March 26th. He had been remanded on bail for one week. Frank Sullivan saw the prisoner on Tuesday last, on Hunter street. On Monday night he went to the American House at 8.45. He asked for a bed. He had been drinking and lay on a sofa, at the head of the stairs. Did not undress. Some one had previously asked him how much money, he Sullivan, had on him. He replied $31. The next morning he thought it was Wall, but would not swear to that. When he went upstairs he had three $10 Traders' Bank bills, a $1 bill in his pant's pocket, and 80 cents in silver in another pocket. When he got up at 11 p.m., the bills were missing. He had been asleep. On Friday he met the prisoner on Cavanaugh's hotel. Prisoner invited him to drink, saying he was "spending money and having a good time." He laid an information on Tuesday, and seen Wall several times after the arrest, and Wall had asked him whether he, Sullivan, suspected him of stealing his money.

The magistrate thought that no tangible evidence had been produced tangible evidence had been produced and dismissed the case, in which Mr. R. E. Wood, county Crown attorney, appeared for the prosecution.

Easter Concert at Conservatory of Music

Eminent Toronto Musicians Take Part in Local Entertainment.

Last night one of the most artistic entertainments ever held in this city was given in the Conservatory of Music, under auspices of the Young Men's Guild.

Mr. Rupert Gliddon, musical director of the Conservatory, has good reason to be proud of the entertainment provided, especially as when such talented artists as Lena Dresebler Adamson, the celebrated violinist, and Henri J. Lanz the noted tenor of Toronto, took part. With such accomplished musicians in our midst, the local Conservatory must command great attention from all lovers of music in this neighborhood. A splendid program was presented.

Local Customs Receipts Increasing

As a sample of the rapid growth of Peterborough's popularity and increasing industrial progress it might be noted that enquiries at the Peterborough Customs House yesterday, demonstrated that the receipts of duty on imports during the past month greatly exceeded those of the same month in the year before. The exact figures are;

March, 1907	$31,938,76
March, 1906	30,405,97
Increase	$1,532,79

Police Force to Strike

Belleville, March 31.—Three constables of the Belleville police force, who are getting $450 a year, have notified the police commissioners that they will leave on April 1, if notgiven an increase of $150 a year.

The police commissioners told the men they had hired for a year from last July. When the year was up they would do something for them, not before.

Hush Money Used

Hamilton, March 31.—J. Bidwell Mills, near whose residence the late Constable Barron was shot, has written a somewhat sensational letter to Mayor Stewart.

He charges that the reason more active steps were not taken to investigate the affair is that money and influence have been used to hush the matter up.

He scouts the idea that the murderer is dead.

France Warns Morocco

Tangier, March 31.—M. Regnault, French minister, accompanied by the commander of the French cruiser Jeanne d'Arc, yesterday presented to Mohammed el Torres France's demands for reparation in the case of the murder of Dr. Mauchamp.

Mohammed el Torres was warned that he would be held fully responsible for the carrying out of the French demands and for any anti-European movement which might result therefrom. The representative of the sultan offered no objection.

Does Coffee disagree with you? Probably it does! Then try Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee. "Health Coffee" is a clever combination of parched cereals and nuts. Not a grain of real Coffee, remember, in Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee, yet its flavor and taste matches closely old Java and Mocha Coffee. If your stomach, heart, or kidneys can't stand Coffee drinking, try Health Coffee. It is wholesome, nourishing, and satisfying. It is nice even for the youngest child. Sold by J. D. Tully.

PRESENTATION TO MR. AND MRS. DENNISTOUN

From the Rector, Wardens and Congregation of St. John's Church---Testimony to the Worth of a Valued Citizen and His Lady.

The vestry of St. John's church met as warm friends as you leave behind in annual Easter session last night. The rector, Rev. Canon Davidson, in the chair.

The people's warden, Mr. Robert Fair, presented the annual financial statement, which showed a satisfactory surplus of $404.19.

The Easter offertory in support of the vestry encargement fund was $285.52.

The rector appointed Mr. D. Hughes-Charles his warden for the ensuing year, which appointment met with the hearty approval of the vestry.

On motion of Mr. Robert Fair, the retiring people's warden, seconded by Mr. Harry Rush, Mr. Chas. H. J. Mitchell, the retiring rector's warden, was appointed people's warden for the ensuing year.

Mr. W. H. Walkey, the efficient vestry clerk, was reappointed to the office he fills so satisfactorily.

On motion of Dr. Burnham, seconded by Mr. Jas. Bell, a substantial honorarium was, on advice of the retiring wardens, voted the choirmaster, Mr. (R. J. Chevey, for his valued services to the church outside of his official duties.

THE PRESENTATION.

The vestry then adjourned and convened in congregational session for the purpose of doing honor to Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Dennistoun, highly esteemed and valued workers in the church, who are leaving for Winnipeg on Friday next.

The rector, Rev. Canon Davidson prefaced the proceedings with an address highly eulogistic of the departing lady and gentlemen. He remarked that Mr. Dennistoun stands for principles which go to produce splendid results in the christian and civic community. From this standpoint, he felt sure that in looking back over Mr. and Mrs. Dennistoun's church career he would see that the highest interest of both the church and the city have been advanced. They have done the work which fell to them and done it well.

In conclusion the reverend gentleman referred in glowing terms to the splendid work accomplished by Mr. Dennistoun as teacher of the young men's Bible class of St. John's St. John's church.

THE ADDRESS.

Dr. Boucher, past warden of the church, here read the following address on behalf of the rector, wardens and the congregation.

R. M. DENNISTOUN, ESQUIRE;

Dear Mr. Dennistoun.—We, the rector, churchwardens, congregation, Sunday school teachers and pupils of St. John's, Peterborough, take this means of expressing, as fully as words will permit, our deep appreciation of the loss to be sustained by your departure from Peterborough, necessarily involving the severing of your relations with the church, Sunday school and congregation of St. John's.

The nature of the loss we feel, though its extent cannot be measured by words, is only partially indicated by recalling the liberality of your services in all the departments of church activity. Your greatest work may perhaps, seem since so connected with the Sunday school. In the capacity of teacher of the Men's Bible class for nearly a third of a generation, your work has borne fruit, unique in part, in the strong and vigorous chapter in the St. Andrew's Brotherhood, now a valued part of the church's organized equipment, and your services as superintendent of the Sunday school have been of the most faithful nature.

As church warden for two years, as lay delegate to Synod, as chairman of the building committee for the school house extension and, as a much sought adviser in all emergencies, you have left practical evidence of the confidence of the congregation of St. John's in your ability and zeal for the promotion of the several interests of the church, and it is our greatest pleasure, at the present crisis in our mutual relations to testify that the confidence reposed in you has been abundantly justified by the faithfulness and value of the services you have so freely and successfully given.

When we recollect all these things; when we mount that your material aid in support of the work of the church has ever been generously extended, and when we add, as we may well do, that your life amongst us and in the community has furnished our ideals of a christian gentleman, our sense of loss is indeed great.

What adds to the poignancy of our regret is the departure, at the same time, of Mrs. Dennistoun, who, perhaps, in a less public and active way, has sung won our hearty appreciation of her good work in very many ways in the interests of the church. As daughter of the late revered rector, her departure represents, to many of us, the severance of especially significant ties.

We thus emphasize our loss, through your departure from Peterborough, for, it is only dwelling upon what two thereby lose, that we can best voice our sense of the great services you have rendered and of the large place both yourself and Mrs. Dennistoun have had in the church life and activities of St. John's, and in the hearts of the congregation.

We trust and pray that in your new home the lives of both may be prosperous and happy—honorable and good we are sure they will be—and that the exercise of the same qualities which have marked your lives and ennobled your characters in Peterborough, will win for you, in your new places of residence as many and warm friends as you leave behind you in Peterborough and dear old St. John's.

As a memorial of our good wishes and high regards and as a memento of St. John's church, Sunday school and congregation, we ask your acceptance for yourself and Mrs. Dennistoun of this Grand Father's Clock.

(Signed.)

REV. CANON DAVIDSON,
Rector of Peterborough.
CHAS. H. J. MITCHELL,
Rector's Warden
ROBERT FAIR,
Peoples' Warden.

On behalf of the congregation.

A HANDSOME CLOCK.

Miss Joyce Davidson, daughter of Canon Davidson, at this juncture unveiled a handsome and expensive grandfather's clock by removing the church's flag which covered it. The timepiece is of mohogany and gives the moon's phases. It is a valuable memento of Mr. and Mrs. Dennistoun's connection with St. John's inasmuch as it will go down to posterity as grandfather's clock in truth as well as in name. It is inscribed with a suitable inscription.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Dennistoun were very much affected by the congregation's substantial acknowledgement of the high esteem in which they are held by them. Mr. Dennistoun replied in a very feeling and responsive address, in which he deeply regretted the severance from St. John's, in which Mrs. Dennistoun was baptized, and both were married and confirmed. He assured the congregation that his work had always been a pleasure and deep interest to him, and one of the greatest pleasures in his life. Still it was a source of satisfaction to him to know that he was leaving his class of young men in such capable hands as those of Mr. Harold Claxton, his successor. He also paid a passing tribute to the high standing of the Sunday school, of which he was superintendent, and which now enjoys a very efficient staff of teachers. Mr. Dennistoun also paid a glowing tribute to the christian virtues of Mrs. Dennistoun, whose kindness would have always been wrapped up in St. John's, of which her esteemed father the late Rev. Mr. Beck, was rector and canon of St. Andrew's cathedral.

Mrs. Dennistoun, as pointed out, has filled all the important offices in the church that come under the control of the ladies, and has been especially energetic in collecting for the mission funds in connection, he believed, that Mrs. Dennistoun and himself would go forth West carrying with them the sincere good wishes of the members of St. John's church, Peterborough.

Farewells were then exchanged, after which the gathering dispersed.

During the evening Miss Helen Davies very kindly rendered several vocal solos in her usual splendid voice.

—Mr. D. Angus, of Parry Sound, was registered at the White House yesterday.

—Mr. Fred R. Wallace, of Belleville, was in the city yesterday, a guest at the Snowden House.

Men for Cavendish Lumber Co.

Mr. Wm. Nixon, of the Cavendish Lumber Company, is in the city securing men to go to the back country to bring out logs for that company. He will be in Peterborough until Thursday, when he will leave for the limits to take charge of the drive. Mr. Nixon states that the ice will soon be all gone out of rivers and lakes in the back country.

Mr. Harold Snowden Goes Farming

One more engaged hereabouts in the hotel business, Mr. Harold Snowden, younger son of Mr. William Snowden, has decided to take up farming, and has either has purchased the John Moore farm, in North Monaghan. The price paid was $10,000. For the past two years Mr. Samuel Seabrook has rented this farm. The price he paid does not include live stock or farm implements. The farm consists of two patents, one of 100 acres and one of 50 acres, in Smith township.

Pale Faced Girls

Thousands Using Successful Cure For Paleness and Anaemia.

The pallid girl always lacks appetite. What little she eats is badly digested.

At night she is restless, she dozes, but doesn't sleep soundly.

Vital force must be increased, new blood must be supplied and a general rebuilding take place before she will feel like she ought.

Dr. Hamilton had invaluable experience in these cases and found nothing so prompt in building up the young women as his vegetable pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills begin by cleansing the system and purifying the blood; they also improve digestion and render food ready for absorption. Additional nourishment is quickly supplied and the patient is fast strengthened and invigorated.

Full of spirit, ruddy and strong is this girl that assists her system by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

The following recent letter from Miss Etta McEwen, of Haliburton, speaks for itself:

"In using Dr. Hamilton's Pills I find my system is wonderfully built up. It is certainly the most effective remedy I ever used. I have now a good appetite, sleep more soundly and awaken in the morning feeling quite refreshed.

"Formerly I felt tired and depressed. I looked as if a severe illness was hanging over my head.

"Nothing could give quicker results than Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I strongly advise every young woman to use them."

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for $1, by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

UNION LABEL

PETERBOROUGH, APRIL 1, 1907

A NEW TRUST

The German shipowners find themselves in a position where many of them are no longer making money. The advent of the big transatlantic companies started a period of competition, which was carried to the point where reasonable profits became impossible. The fight for business grew extremely sharp and all consideration for smaller competitors was forgotten by the great companies. But foreign attacks and the increasing demands of their customers soon made them aware of the fact that they were operating on a wrong plan.

The idea of mutual combination entirely different, however, from the American trust scheme, has been under consideration by the German steamship lines for a long time. A few days ago they decided to adopt it, and formed the Central Union of German Shipowners. The fundamental principle of the organization is that in many respects the shippers are on common ground and that on this common ground nothing shall be done to prejudice the interests of even the weakest.

The great divergence from the American trust idea is in the privilege enjoyed by each member of developing his own resources to the utmost extent. The object is to prevent the infliction of injury by one upon another. It is desired to have harmony among interests which under the old conditions have been in disastrous conflict.

The plan has something of a Utopian aspect. Its success, from the standpoint of the public depends entirely upon the manner in which it is administered. If exorbitant rates are not charged, good service is given and no attempt is made to prevent the entrance of new shipowners to the union, the results will probably be satisfactory. But if the temptation to make large profits unfairly is not resisted the organization must become in effect what the American trusts are now.

A New Theory in the Perkins Case

Cayuga, March 30.—A new feature of the Perkins' murder trial, which will be heard at the spring assizes, was rumored about town today when it was learned that the crown had unearthed an important witness at Buffalo, N.Y., who it is stated, will swear that Mattie Perkins purchased a quantity of poison in that city some time before the death of Henry Perkins.

That the rumor is founded on more or less fact is evinced by the fact that Detective Greer has been following up the case in Welland and Buffalo. He was expected here last Thursday night, but so far as not arrived. The crown are putting forth every effort to get evidence. County Constable Farrell, who has been closely identified with the case, has been out of town for nearly every day for the past two weeks.

Mattie Perkins is reported to be enjoying good health in her cell, No. 9, at the Cayuga jail. The heart trouble, that was feared might cause a collapse, at the preliminary investigation, has passed away, and her physician, Dr. Snyder, is quoted as saying that she is in the best of health.

The defence have important evidence that, it is said, will completely overturn the case put up by the crown.

He Took a Hand.

Mr. and Mrs. Stockton Bonds are inveterate bridge whist players, and their home is the meeting place of bridge players of all grades. On one evening in every week they are "at home" to any of their friends who wish to play, and on other evenings they entertain parties of their own selection for games which range from a cent a point to a much higher figure. Recently, long after the house had been closed, a noise was heard downstairs, and, regardless of his wife's protests, Stockton Bonds went below to ascertain the cause. The noise continued and grew louder, but no answer came to the wife's calls from above. She became alarmed, opened the window, saw a policeman, and he made a rush for the basement door. A few minutes later the husband appeared before his pale stricken wife and told her he had found the servants playing bridge and wagging over the propriety of certain plays.

"Did you send the whole party away?" asked the wife.

"Why, no. I took a hand and decided the question before I realized where I was."—New York Tribune.

He Held On.

"In a town back in Vermont one time," said a doctor, "a big, husky lumberman entered the office of a dentist I knew and showed the doctor a bad tooth. The dentist decided that the tooth should be pulled.

"'All right,' said the lumberman. 'But listen now. If I tell you to stop, you stop pulling or I'll beat you up.'

"The dentist agreed, and the lumberman got in the chair. The dentist took hold of the tooth and began pulling. Almost immediately the lumberman yelled, 'Hold on!'

"The dentist continued to pull. 'Hold on!' yelled the lumberman. The dentist kept pulling, and the tooth came out. Then the lumberman jumped from the chair mad.

"'Why didn't you stop when I told you to?' he asked fiercely.

"'You didn't tell me to stop,' said the dentist.

"'I did too! I yelled "Hold on!" twice.'

"'Oh,' said the dentist innocently, 'I thought you meant to keep hold of it.'

"The lumberman believed him and cooled off."—Denver Post.

The Outing Magazine for April

An article by Stewart Edward White entitled "Jack Boyd: Master Riverman," is the keynote of the April number of The Outing Magazine, which overflows with human interest and treats of a variety of topics which must make their appeal to every class of the American reading public. "Jack Boyd" is a study of that picturesque character who pilots droves of logs from the forest to the markets.

The other special articles are just as broad in their scope as this. Arthur Ruhl writes humorously on "The Banquet Belt"—that part of the West where the strong, kindly men insist on receiving with open arms the stranger that comes within their gates.

"The Conspiracy of Pontiac," by Lynn Tew Sprague, is one of the series of The Outing Magazine's "Timely History" articles. In Pontiac, Mr. Sprague has found a subject worthy of his vivid treatment, for the redskin was the greatest Indian organiser who ever lived. "The Soldiers of the Sea," by Clay Emery, is a picture of modern daring along our coasts. "Photographing Wild Pigeons," by Herbert K. Job, is a beguiling narrative of the new sport of camera hunting. "The Vale of Plenty," by Clifton Johnson, is the study of the evolution of a great game country—the San Joaquin valley in California—to a vast wheat producing area.

"The Long Labrador Trail" in the April installment, proves that Dillon Wallace has written a classic in travel literature. The wanderers at last turn toward home.

The fiction list is headed by "John Kendry's Idea," by Chester B. Fernald, "The Ding-Fiddled Ebenezer," by Ben Blow, is a genuinely funny yarn.

In the departments Stewart Edward White writes of Camp Equipment, telling how to outfit a horse; C. G. Davis writes of "Choosing the First Yacht;" F. M. Ware has further comments on "How to Ride a Horse;" Eben E. Rexford, in the article entitled "Making the Country Home," treats of lawns, rockeries and water gardens; Harold B. Deming has a word in reply to Mr. John Burroughs on "Fake Natural History;" Louis Rhead, on "The Care of the Tackle," is timely. In "The View-Point," Mr. Whitney has a few trenchant things to say on "Saving the Bison."

ONE MAN GOES FREE

Carthage, Mo., March 31.— Arthur Sanderson last night was acquitted of the murder of Dr. Solomon D. Meredith, in Carthage, on Jan. 2, last.

Mrs Sanderson testified that Dr. Meredith, the family physician, had made love to her when she went to his office to consult him. She had detailed her experiences with the doctor to Sanderson, who immediately left the house and upon returned with Dr. Meredith. Before Mrs. Sanderson, the husband accused the physician of ruining his home and shot and killed the doctor.

In the arguments of counsel for the defence, a parallel with the Thaw case was drawn. Attorney Shannon said there was evidence of an exaggerated ego, in that the defendant thought himself "Providentially called on to avenge the wrong of his wife."

In a dying statement, Dr. Meredith denied that his relations with Mrs. Sanderson had been criminal.

NEWFOUNDLANDERS OBJECT

St. John's, Nfd., March 31. —Fishermen at Bay of Islands held a public meeting last week and adopted resolutions protesting against the policy of the government of excluding the Americans from the herring fisheries there. The resolutions call upon the imperial government to take measures to secure the unobstructed prosecution of the herring fishery by the Americans. The resolutions were forwarded to Governor MacGregor yesterday for transmission to the British cabinet. The Village of Bay Islands was built up by the American frozen herring industry.

What HON. H. G. EWART, Former Congressman, Circuit Court and U. S. Judge, Western District, North Carolina, Has to Say of NEVADA MINING INVESTMENTS:

Nevada's past history was written by the Comstock. Its present history is being written by Goldfield, Tonopah and Bullfrog.

The great Comstock Mine at Virginia City, Nevada, produced $680,000,000. It added hundreds of millions to the world's supply of precious metals, it built transcontinental railroads, great steamship lines and telegraphic cables across the ocean, it financed some of the world's greatest newspapers, it endowed universities and colleges, and galleries of art, it built multitudes of towns and cities, it completed that splendid metropolis, San Francisco, it made United States senators, railroad and bank presidents, it fixed in history the names of Mackey, Fair, Flood, O'Brien, Shaw, Jones and Sutro.

Tonopah was discovered in 1900. Her Mizpah is probably the greatest silver-gold mine of the world. This camp has paid $2,200,000 in cash dividends.

Goldfield came next, and is producing today $150,000 every twenty-four hours, or at the rate of $50,000,000 per annum.

It is Bullfrog now, the baby among her wonderful camps, that Nevada is holding forth to the world like a doting mother. Unlike Goldfield, Bullfrog is essentially a great milling proposition, there being literally mountains of ore, assaying from $5 to $350 per ton. When other mining camps in Nevada will be deserted, Bullfrog will be known as the "Camp of Confidence and Endurance." It will take centuries to exhaust its great ore deposits. This is the reason why Schwab, McKane, Oddie, Clark and other millionaires have quietly acquired nearly every foot of available mineral ground in this great district. This is the reason why four great railroads have already completed, and are rapidly extending their lines into the Bullfrog district. This is why Rhyolite has in the short space of three years changed from a habitation of coyotes and side-wheelers into a modern up-to-date city of 7,000 people. This is the reason why the Montgomery-Shoshone is building upon its properties a great reduction mill which will handle its thousands of tons of ore and which will cost over half a million. This is the reason why all Bullfrog stocks have steadily advanced in the face of the savage and unjustifiable attacks made by Wall street and their paid newspaper emissaries.

The South Bullfrog district, which includes the Keane Wonder, Big Dell, Cliff, California Bullfrog, Death Valley Mining & Milling Co., and others, is looked upon as one of the coming camps of importance. The ore found in this district are quartz and talc, carrying iron oxides, the principal values being in gold, with silver and copper traces.

It is in this district that the Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company (Inc.) properties in part are located. The company owns 80 acres of highly mineralized lands within two miles of the California Bullfrog Mine. Its assays show rich gold, silver and copper values, and being a tunnel proposition, can be economically and quickly developed. The other property of the Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company is splendidly located right in the very heart of this great gold-bearing camp, consisting of 106 acres within 1 1-2 miles of the great Montgomery-Shoshone Mine owned by Charles M. Schwab, the Pittsburg steel magnate, and his associates. It is only two miles from the City of Rhyolite with a fine road leading to the mines, and within one mile of the water pipes leading from Indian Springs to the City of Rhyolite. Its ledges are bold and well defined, and expert engineers declare it as the ir opinion, that the same rich veins of the Montgomery-Shoshone traverse this property.

Kansas City, Mo., February 20, 1907.

J. H. MORELAND,

Mr. Moreland is one of the most expert and reliable assayers in the United States. He is a graduate of the State School of Mines of Colorado, and has had fifteen years practical experience as assayer of leading mines and smelters. For many years he was the official Government assayer for the United States Custom House at Kansas City, Mo. The large proportion of all ores shipped from Mexico is received at Kansas City.

The Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Co. is officered and managed by gentlemen of the highest character and standing in this city. The company has secured the services of Mr. J. E. Lindstrom, of Rhyolite, Nevada, as general manager, whose years of experience in Alaska, Colorado, and California, peculiarly fit him for this position.

After the most careful and personal examination of the properties of this company, its officers, and its possibilities, I have accepted the position of Fiscal Agent of the company and offer to the investing public, 250,000 shares of its stock at 10 cents per share. With the knowledge I have of the tremendous possibilities of this company, and its valuable properties, and the high character of its officials, I do not hesitate to urge my friends in the south, and the investing public generally, to buy this stock, satisfied as I am that they will realize enormous profits on their investments.

It will give me pleasure to mail to any inquirers, prospectus, maps, and full information as to the properties of this company. Highest references given.

This stock can be purchased either for cash, or on the installment plan as follows:

$ 10.00	buys 100 shares,	payable $ 5.00	cash, balance $ 1.00	per month.
$ 15.00	buys 150 shares,	payable $ 7.50	cash, balance $ 1.50	per month.
$ 50.00	buys 500 shares,	payable $10.00	cash, balance $ 2.00	per month.
$ 90.00	buys 300 shares,	payable $15.00	cash, balance $ 3.00	per month.
$ 70.00	buys 200 shares,	payable $10.00	cash, balance $ 8.00	per month.
$100.00	buys 1000 shares,	payable $10.00	cash, balance $18.00	per month.
$500.00	buys 5000 shares,	payable $50.00	cash, balance $90.00	per month.

This stock is being rapidly taken and I would advise my friends to send in their orders at once. Thousands of investors are making fortunes out of comparatively small amounts in Nevada Mining propositions. Why should you not do so?

Make all checks, money-orders, payable to, and address all letters to

I wish to secure the services of responsible and active agents to sell Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company's Stock, and will be glad to have parties who desire to act as such agents correspond with me.

WEDDING STATIONERY

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENTS are always in order. The season for the final result of being a disciple of Cupid finds expression in the Hymeneal ceremony at the altar—that occasion when "two hearts that beat as one" are joined together—pronounced one.

For this auspicious occasion the printing must be chastely dignified—must be appropriate in appearance to this one time of life when everything "best" is donned—when happiness reigns supremely.

Marriage Announcements
Marriage Invitations
Marriage Reception Cards
Post Nuptial Reception Cards

All of these we are able to supply in a proper form and printed artistically. Our work is conducted under the supervision of skilled typographical mechanics and may be unhesitatingly entrusted to the most fastidious critic.

Our charges for such work are moderate—yet good printing is ever valuable. However, we give quality for our figures, and an order entrusted to our care will be speedily, carefully and satisfactorily executed.

No work can be well done which has to be done hurriedly. Time is necessary for the accomplishment of faultless printing. We will fulfil all expectations if given ample time for completion.

Manhattan Gold Field

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 10 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 20 acres were have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

"Respectfully submitted,
"WM. R. PAYNE, President,
"J. ROGER BROWN, Secretary."

With Edged Tools

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN
Author of "The Sowers," "Roden's Corner," "From One Generation to Another," Etc.

Copyright, 1896, by HARPER & BROTHERS

Victor Durnovo took off his hat with a sweep and a flourish, and, raising his bared brow to the stars, he said: "I swear to hold to that agreement. If I fail, may God strike me dead!"

CHAPTER XI.

THE next morning Jack Meredith was awakened by his servant Joseph before it was fully light.

"Woke you before yer time, sir," he said. "There's something wrong among these 'ere darky fellers, sir."

"Not rebellion?" he said curtly, looking toward his firearms.

"No, sir, not that. It's some mortual sickness. I don't know what it is. I've been up half the night with them. It's spreadin' too."

"Sickness! What does it seem like? Just give me that jacket. Not that sleeping sickness?"

"No, sir. It's not that. Missis Marie was tellin' me about that—awful scourge that, sir. No, the poor chaps are wide awake enough—groanin', and off their heads, too, mostly."

"Call Mr. Durnovo."

"Met Mr. Durnovo, sir, goin' out as I came in."

In a few minutes Jack joined Durnovo and Oscard, who were talking together on the terrace in front of the house. Guy Oscard was still in his pajamas, which he had tucked into topboots. He also wore a sun helmet, which added a finish to his costume. They got quite accustomed to this getup during the next three days, for he never had time to change it, and somehow it ceased to be humorous long before the end of that time.

"Oh, it's nothing," Durnovo was saying, with a singular eagerness. "I know these chaps. They have been paid in advance. They are probably shamming, and if they are not they are only suffering from the effects of a farewell glorification. They want to delay our start. That is their little game. It will give them a better chance of deserting."

"At any rate we had better go and see them," suggested Jack.

"No, don't!" cried Durnovo eagerly, detaining him with both hands. "Take my advice and don't. Just have breakfast in the ordinary way and pretend there is nothing wrong. Then afterward you can lounge casually into the camp."

"All right," said Jack rather unwillingly.

"It has been of some use, this scare," said Durnovo, turning and looking toward the river. "It has reminded me of something. We have not nearly enough quinine. I will just take a quick canoe and run down to Loango to fetch some."

He turned quite away from them and stooped to attach the lace of his boot.

"I can travel night and day, and be back here in three days," he added. "In the meantime you can be getting on with the loading of the canoes, and we will start as soon as I get back."

He stood upright and looked around with weatherwise, furtive eyes.

"Seems to me," he said, "there's thunder coming. I think I had better be off at once."

In the course of his inspection of the lowering clouds which hung, black as ink, just above the trees his eyes lighted on Joseph, standing within the door of the cottage watching him with a singular half suppressed smile.

"Yes," he said hurriedly, "I will start at once. I can eat some sort of breakfast when we are under way."

He looked beneath his lashes quickly from Jack to Guy and back again. Their silent acquiescence was not quite satisfactory. Then he called his own men and spoke to them in a tongue unknown to the Englishmen. He hurried forward their preparations with a feverish irritability which made Jack Meredith think of the first time he had ever seen Durnovo, a few miles farther down the river, all palpitating and trembling with climatic nervousness. His face was quite yellow and there was a line drawn diagonally from the nostrils down each cheek, to lose itself ultimately in the heavy black mustache.

Scarcely had the boat disappeared in the bend of the river before the rain broke. The thunder crashed out in sharp reports, and the men ceased rowing and crouched down in the canoe. But Durnovo knew that behind him he had left a greater danger; smallpox had laid its hand on the camp at Msala.

It is still said on the Ogowe river that no man travels like Victor Durnovo. Certain it is that in twenty-seven hours from the time he left Msala on the morning of the great storm he presented himself before Maurice Gordon in his office at the factory at Loango.

"Will you be at home tonight?" asked Durnovo, gently pushing aside the hospitable decanter. "I have got a lot of work to do today, but I should like to run in and see you this evening."

"Yes, come and dine."

Durnovo shook his head and looked down at his wrinkled and draggled clothing.

"Well, I'll lend you a black coat. Seven o'clock sharp?"

Durnovo hurried away with a gleam of excitement in his dark eyes.

Maurice Gordon did not resume his work at once. He sat for some time idly drumming with his fingers on the desk.

"If I can only get her to be civil to him," he reflected aloud, "I'll get into this business yet."

At 7 o'clock Durnovo appeared at the Gordons' house. He had managed to borrow a dress suit and wore an orchid in his buttonhole. It was probably the first time that Durnovo had worn his in this garb of civilization, which is at the same time the most becoming and the most trying variety of costume left to sensible men in these days. A dress suit finds a man out sooner than anything except speech.

Jocelyn was civil in her reception; more so, indeed, than Maurice Gordon had hoped for. She seemed almost glad to see Durnovo, and evinced quite a kindly interest in his movements. Durnovo attributed this to the dress suit, while Maurice concluded that his obvious hints thrown out before dinner had fallen on fruitful ground.

At dinner Victor Durnovo was quite charmed with the interest that Jocelyn took in the expedition, of which, he gave it to be understood, he was the chief. So also was Maurice, because Durnovo's evident admiration of Jocelyn somewhat overcame his natural secrecy of character.

"Well," said Maurice, when Jocelyn had left them, "I suppose you'll be a millionaire in about six months?"

He gently pushed the wine toward him at the same time. Durnovo had not slept for forty hours. The excitement of his escape from the plague ridden camp had scarcely subsided. The glitter of the silver on the table, the shaded candles, the subtle sensuality of refinement and daintiness appealed to his hot blooded nature. He was a little off his feet perhaps. He took the decanter and put it to the worst use he could have selected.

"Not so soon as that," he said; "but in time—in time."

"Lucky beggar!" muttered Maurice Gordon, with a little sigh.

"I don't mind telling you," said Durnovo, with a sudden confidence begotten of madeira, 'that it's simiacine—that's what it is. I can't tell you more."

"Simiacine," repeated Gordon, fingering the stem of his wineglass and looking at him keenly between the candle shades. "Yes. You've always been on its track, haven't you?"

"In six months your go-downs will be full of it—my simiacine, my simiacine."

"By Jove, I wish I had a hand in it!" Maurice Gordon pushed the decanter again—gently, almost surreptitiously.

AN ODD WAGER.

The Peculiar Bet a Foreign Prince Laid and Won in Paris.

Gambling has always been a favorite occupation for the sons of royal houses, but none of them probably has ever exhibited so much wit and ingenuity in his betting as a foreign prince did at his stay in Paris.

He laid a heavy wager with a member of the Imperial club of the French capital that within two hours he would be arrested by the police without committing any offense or provoking the officers of the law in any fashion. Accordingly, having clothed himself in rags of the most disreputable appearance, he walked into one of the most aristocratic restaurants in the city and ordered a cup of chocolate. The waiter refused to serve him unless he showed evidence that he could pay. The prince at once drew a roll of bank notes from his pocket and offered one of large denomination to the astonished attendant. The latter took the bill and carried it at once to the proprietor, who sent for the police, in the meantime allowing his strange guest to be served.

As soon as the authorities arrived they arrested the incognito son of royalty and took him to the nearest station, where of course he was released after he had disclosed the facts of the affair.—New York Tribune.

Color Blindness.

The term color blindness implies an entire absence of the color sense, and there are a few persons who are in this condition, but it also includes all the forms of partial color blindness in which the perception of one of the fundamental colors—red, green and violet—is wanting, and which are known as red blindness, green blindness and violet blindness. The line between these various kinds of color blindness and a perfect perception of colors is not sharply drawn, so that a large number of persons have what is called a feeble color sense, which falls short of actual color blindness. There is no doubt that color blindness in its various forms is much more common than is generally supposed, and it is more common among the imperfectly than the well educated classes.

Barbers Ages Ago.

The first barbers of whom there is any record plied their trade in Greece in the fifth century B. C. In Rome the first barbers operated in the third century B. C. In olden times in England the barber and the physician were identical. Thus a king's barber was also his chief medical adviser. In the time of Henry VIII. of England laws were made concerning barbers, of which the following is an extract: "No person occupying a shaving or barbery in London shall use any surgery, letting of blood or other matter, except the drawing of teeth."

After It Is All Over.

When yarns are being spun one hears a good deal concerning the curious antics people go through when highly excited, but very little is said about the man who "gets scared after it is all over." And the latter, not being so constituted that he can faint, as a woman often does after a fright, generally keeps his own counsel and often is given the credit of being cool and "nervy" when the fact is that his knees are ready to bump together for mutual support.—Forest and Stream.

On the Safe Side.

"I have a surprise in store for you, Alfred, dear," she said. "I can cook as well as I can play the piano."

"That being the case, darling," he replied, "it will be well for us to board."

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

KENNEDY COBALT, Ltd.

is recommended

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. #2. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 15 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 30 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 80 acres of J. B. 33 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 5 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 20 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 80 feet, and in it shows 5 inch nicolite, 18 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 672-1289-492-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

New Liskeard, 17th November, 1906.

JACOB M. EGGERT, M. E.

We offer a few more shares at Fifty Cents (50c); par value One Dollar ($1.00). The property is being developed as fast as possible, and we cannot promise that stock will be sold at less than par for very long. Don't wait until it is $3.00 to invest, giving others big profits for what you should have bought sooner. We want you to get in on the ground floor and share in the big profits. For a limited time only we will accept subscriptions at 50 cents—the stock is slated for a sharp advance very soon. Send marked cheque or money order.

Nerves Unstrung

You Feel Limp
Loaded With Worry
Unable to Sleep
Tired and Excitable.

You'll Grow Steadily Worse Unless the System is Better Nourished.

Nothing will build you up with the certainty of Ferrozone. Thousands it has cured who never hoped to be well—and here is ample proof—substantiated by one of Nova Scotia's prominent clerics.

"Before taking the first box of Ferrozone," writes Mrs. Annie Jeffry, of Sandy Cove, N. S., "my condition was deplorable. Though I employed the most skilful medical aid, I grew steadily weaker. In fact, I was in such a low condition that it was impossible for me to walk across the room. My heart was very weak, and I suffered from terrible palpitations, which the doctors said were from troubles peculiar to women. Friends urged me to try Ferrozone, and I bought six boxes. When I had used the third box my old-time vigor and strength returned. The palpitation ceased, my appetite increased, and I got a good rosy color in my cheeks. It would be impossible to speak too highly of Ferrozone. All weak women should use it. I hope many suffering sisters will use Ferrozone for it will surely cure them."

Rev. J. C. Morse, D.D., pastor of the Baptist Church, Sandy Cove, bears witness to the recovery of Mrs. Jeffry, and writes: "This is to certify that Mrs. Annie Jeffry is a lady upon whose word you can depend. I have known her since childhood, and believe her to be a truthful, honest woman." This adds additional force to the testimony of Mrs. Jeffry, and gives assurance to other sufferers that Ferrozone does what is claimed for it. Three weeks' treatment costs 50c., or six boxes for $2.50 at all druggists.

Local Sunday School Association Meets

Yesterday morning a meeting was held in the Y.M.C.A., by County of Peterborough Sunday School Association. Reports were read by the Field Secretary, Rev. G. A. McLennan, of Norwood, and the treasurer, A. J. Johnston, of Peterborough, on the work of the year.

It was further reported that a meeting was held in Smith in June and others at Keene, Westwood, Warsaw, and Havelock in November. The first was addressed by Mr. E. A. Hardy of Toronto, and local workers, while the others were addressed by Mr. Thos. Yellowlees, of Toronto; Mr. R. Lees, of Peterborough, and local speakers.

Arrangements were made for rallies during the last week of May.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Richard C. Hoard, of Bridgenorth.

Vice President, Samuel Armstrong, of Otonabee.

Treasurer, A. J. Johnston, Peterborough.

General Secretary, Richard Lees, Peterborough.

Superintendents, Primary Department; Mrs. E. D. Lewis, and Miss Ivah Fisher for city; Miss Edith L. Waters, Norwood, for the county.

Home Dept., Sheriff Hall, for the city; Miss Pauline Udy, Bridgenorth, for the county.

Teacher Training, Dr. Metzler, Bridgenorth.

Representatives to the Provincial Convention; Richard Lees, city; Dr. Metzler, county.

The News—No Pure Drug Cough Cure Laws would be needed, if all Cough Cures were like Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure is—and has been for 20 years. The National Law now requires that if any poisons enter into a cough mixture, it must be printed on the label or package. For this reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison-marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance, particularly with your children insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and see. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Simply refuse to accept any other. Sold by J. D. Tully.

Education Board Delegates Off

Messrs. Fair, Dumble, Crane and Pringle who are the delegates selected by the Board of Education to attend the trustee session in connection with the Ontario Educational Association meetings in Toronto, will leave tomorrow.

Lieut.-Col. Edwards for Kingston

Militia orders just just issued, containing the appointments for the summer instruction camps, contain the name of Lt.-Col. E. B. Edwards as lieutenant-colonel, commanding the 7th Brigade, Infantry, at the Kingston camp, June 17th to 28th.

Invited to See Sample Work

We invite those having circular work, or any need for duplicate copies of forms, etc., to call and see sample work done by the Dupligraph. This machine can produce 100 perfect copies in 10 minutes. Times Printing Co. sole agents for Peterborough.

First Regimental Drill

The first drill of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, for the season, will be held this evening at the drill shed. It is expected that there will be a large turn out of officers and men. All those intending to join the corps should bear on hand.

Coll. Inst. by Local Contractor

It is now said, on presumably good authority that a local man will get the contract for the new Collegiate Institute. The building committee of the Board of Education, met Saturday night and opened the tenders which had been submitted. It seems that the tenders submitted were satisfactory to the committee, being inside the appropriation awarded for building the collegiate. The contract will probably be let Thursday night.

WHEN DINNER COMES

One Ought to Have a Good Appetit

A good appetite is the best sauce. It goes a long way toward helping in the digestive process, and that is absolutely essential to health and strength.

Many persons have found that Grape-Nuts food is not only nourishing but is a great appetizer. Even children like the taste of it and grow strong and rosy from its use.

It is especially the food to make a weak stomach strong and create an appetite for dinner.

"I am 67 years old," writes a Tenn. grandmother, "and have had a weak stomach from childhood. By great care as to my diet I enjoyed a reasonable degree of health, but never found anything to equal Grape-Nuts as a standby.

"When I have no appetite for breakfast and just eat to keep up my strength, I take 4 teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with good rich milk, and when dinner comes I am hungry. While if I go without any breakfast I never feel like eating dinner. Grape-Nuts for breakfast seems to make a healthy appetite for dinner.

"My little 13-months-old grandson had been very sick with stomach trouble during the past summer, and finally we put him on Grape-Nuts. Now he is growing fat and well. When asked if he wants his nurse or Grape-Nuts, he brightens up and points to the cupboard. He was no trouble to wean at all—thanks to Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Man Robbed at Station

The local police force is now on the search for the party or parties who robbed a local citizen of all his money, four cents. The man robbed, notified the ticket sellers at the C.P.R. and G.T.R. stations, to be on the watch for two young men whom he charges with having stolen his money. It appears that the man robbed, and the two fellows whom he charges with stealing it, boarded at the same house. The two young men, who are now missing, have been employed in the C.G.E. Works.

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are almost exactly like the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach-churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every tainting or corrupting element. In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood.

If you have bitter, nasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and despondent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, gnawing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter risings after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid or lazy liver with the usual accompanying indigestion, or dyspepsia and their attendant derangements.

The best agents known to medical science for the cure of the above symptoms and conditions, as attested by the writings of leading teachers and practitioners of all the several schools of medical practice, have been skillfully and harmoniously combined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That this is absolutely true will be readily proven to your satisfaction if you will but mail a postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy of his booklet of extracts from the standard medical authorities, giving the names of all the ingredients entering into his world-famed medicines and showing what the most eminent medical men of the age say of them.

THE

LARDER LAKE SYNDICATE

GOLD - SILVER - COPPER

TO PURCHASE FROM THE OWNERS

35 Gold, Silver and Copper bearing Claims covering 1400 acres in the now famous Larder Lake District. These claims have been located under the personal supervision of one of the most experienced men in the Cobalt District.

Assays have been made from a number of the Claims showing large values on surface.
Gold values as high as $134.00 to the ton.
Silver values as high as $38.00 to the ton.
Copper vein 28, feet wide on surface, assaying 10.65 per cent. Pure Copper.

On completion of the Syndicate it is proposed to form a Mining Company with a Capital of $5,000,000 00 (par value of shares $1 each) of which 1,500,000 shares are to remain in the treasury Three Million Shares will be divided pro rata among the Subscribers to this Syndicate, giving 2,400 shares of stock for each $100 subscribed and paid in. One-Tenth of the Capital Stock of the Company is to be paid to the owners of the claims together with $125,000 in money.

All monies paid in will be deposited in the Standard Bank, Ottawa, to the credit of the Syndicate, and no withdrawal can be made except on the order of the Trustees, to be elected at a properly called meeting of the members of the Syndicate of which each subscriber will have ample notice.

Here is Your Opportunity

to get in on a ground floor that has no basement, sub-basement or sub-cellars. No contribution is made for Promotion either in Cash or Stock. Your subscription is pro-rated with the others 2,400 shares of the Capital Stock for each $100 subscribed. Capitalization to be less than $4,000 per acre of claims. Compare these figures with the capitalization of the mining companies of Coleman Township and you will at once realize the possibilities of profit in this syndicate. We have more acreage than Nipissing Mines Company. The copper showing on the claims alone gives promise of sufficient metal to make the company enormously wealthy.

The gold values shown by assays are very high and the rock carries also splendid value in silver. Altogether it is an ideal and splendidly practicable mining proposition.

The claims are less than 16 miles from the T. & N.O.R.R., and there is a good wagon road from the railroad into the lake.

The people that have made the money out of Cobalt are those that have gotten in on SYNDICATES. The syndicate subscribers are the real insiders and get the shares at bed rock prices.

Now is Your Opportunity

The subscriptions are coming in fast. Write today or you may be too late. Send in your subscription by cheque or money order.

—TERMS—

Payments to be made 20 per cent cash with subscription, and 40 per cent. 30 days from receipt of notice of closing of subscription, and 40 per cent within 60 days thereafter.

COST TO RAILWAYS

Stormy Weather Reduce the Profits.

C P.R. WAS A HEAVY LOSER

Earnings of Road, However, From Last July to Present Show Substantial Increase.

Montreal, April 2.—Some interesting statistics showing the cost to the railways of the recent hard winter in the West, and, in fact, throughout the Dominion, have been set forth by the Canadian Pacific Railway. The gross earnings of that road for the month of February last amount to $4,2s8,206; while the gross earnings for the same month of last year amounted to $4,224,450, thus showing an increase of $43,754 for February of this year.

This increase, however, in the gross earnings is very much more than offset by the great increase in the cost of running the road, due to the extremely severe weather suffered throughout the Dominion. The heavy snowfall and extreme cold made it at times almost impossible to operate trains at all in the West, and even when operation was practicable, it was only at a very great cost and damage to the rolling stock.

The statistics made the additional expense quite clear. The working expenses for February of this year amounted to $3,646,218, as against $3,-018,767 for the same month last year. This meant an increase in running expenses of $427,500. The net profit for February, 1907, was thus considerably lessened, being only $621,986, as against $1,206,743 for the same month of 1906. Thus the C. P. R. lost in net profit $584,756.

Another figure to be considered, too, is that this figure, large as it is, does not represent the total loss of profit, for the record of the road for the preceding months has shown that a very large advance in profits might have been confidently expected were it not for the unusual climatic conditions. As it is, the extra cost of the severe weather to the C. P. R. during the month of February is reckoned at $627,510.

In spite of this loss the gross earnings of the road from the first of July, 1906, to the end of last February show an advance of $5,969,987 over the gross earnings of the same year of the preceding year. The figures are $45,-938,207, as compared with $40,029,120. The net profits of this period for the last year amount to $15,756,152, against $11,840,276 in the former year. This means an increase in net profits of $1,895,896 for 1907. This gratifying increase, in spite of the severe losses occasioned by the bad weather of the winter months, leads the officials of the road to expect a very prosperous season this spring.

Relief Against the Dust

"How long oh Lord, (Manchester) how long?" has been the cry of dust choked merchants, was answered yesterday by the city watering carts, which have for some days graced (?) the north side of Geo. Fitzgerald's wagon shop. The point is where or whence did the grey colored expansive cart that the city teams, unless combined come from and particularly "Why?"

Diver Ends Great Task

Winnipeg, April 3.—One of the greatest feats of diving known on the Great Lakes has been performed by Diver H. Valentine, in the employ of the Great Lakes Dredging Company, by removing the rails, angle bars and spikes which slid into the Kam last fall off the G. T. dock at Westfort. By means of the derrick and diving outfit, 3,700 rails, 7,100 angle bars, and 2,300 spikes have been recovered between December 8th and March 25th.

Many of the rails were imbedded in the mud and a fresh hole had to be cleared in the ice each day in order that the derrick might be able to lift the rails. A small movable house was built in the ice for the benefit of the six men engaged.

A chimney in the Mervin block, corner of Aylmer and Hunter streets, over the Chinese laundry, was burning out, brought out the brigade on Monday night. By means of the Babcock extinguisher the fire was put out after it had been in progress during the greater part of the afternoon and evening.

TO BREAK A COLD QUICKLY

Mix half an ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) with two ounces of Glycerine and half a pint of good Whiskey. Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses. A well-known authority on lung trouble declares that the above formula will cure any cough that is curable. It will break up a cold in twenty-four hours. The ingredients can be secured from any good prescription druggist at small cost.

Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) is put up only in half-ounce vials for dispensing. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case with engraved wrapper, showing the name—Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Windsor, Ontario—plainly printed there-on. The cheaper oils and those sold only in bulk only create nausea, and never effect the desired results.

EMMERSON TENDERS HIS RESIGNATION

Minister of Railways Puts It Into Sir Wilfrid's Hands Pending the Clearing of His Reputation.

Ottawa, April 3.—When the House of Commons reassembled yesterday afternoon announcement was made of Hon. Mr. Emmerson's resignation of his office as minister of railways and canals. This was coupled with an unqualified denial on Mr. Emmerson's part of the charges of personal misconduct that were made against him in the Fredericton Gleaner last week, and the declaration of his purpose to sue for libel the papers who have given thus sentiments currency.

In his letter of resignation to the prime minister, Mr. Emmerson declared the desired to be relieved from his cabinet duties so that he might the better vindicate his character, and so that no obstacle might be imposed to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's departure for the colonial conference in London.

Ottawa, April 2.—When the House reassembles this afternoon it is understood that the minister of railways and canals, Hon. Mr. Emmerson, will take the first opportunity of replying publicly to the charges of personal misconduct which have been brought against him in a New Brunswick newspaper, that he will declare his innocence of the imputations therein made, his intention of taking the necessary legal steps to punish the author of these charges and that in the meantime he has placed his resignation in the hands of the prime minister. The accusations herein asserted to have been made in such a way that it is feared that in justice to himself and the government of which he is a member nothing else can be done in the matter than to take the course here stated, in which Hon. Mr. Emmerson will be but following the British precedent.

The Fredericton Gleaner, in which the charges against the minister of railways and canals appeared, is owned by a company of which Geo. W. Fowler, M.P., is president, but it is understood that that gentleman declines all responsibility for the article in question.

Mr. Emmerson has already taken steps against the three papers in which the statements against him were made, one in Nova Scotia, one in New Brunswick, and one in Ontario.

Mr. Emmerson has been a member of the government and minister of railways and canals for the past three years, and has represented the county of Westmoreland in the House of Commons since the general election of 1902. Prior to that he had been for some years premier minister of the Province of New Brunswick.

No announcement will be made for the present as to the vacant portfolio.

FIRST LIBEL WRIT.

Halifax, N.S., April 2.—Messrs. Harris, Lovett, Harry, and Stairs, issued a writ today on behalf of Hon. Mr. Emmerson, minister of railways and canals against the Halifax Herald Publishing Company, for libel in publishing the article from the Fredericton Gleaner reflecting on his character.

Gallagher Was Not Told of the Murder

Hamilton, April 3.—Chief of Police Smith received word yesterday from the authorities in Peel county that an officer would be here today to take Harry Gallagher, under arrest, to Port Credit, where he will be one of the chief witnesses at the inquest in the Elliott murder case.

The county authorities will either have to pay the prisoner's fine, or get an order from the minister of justice so that he can be brought back here to complete his term for assaulting Conductor Connors at the Grand Trunk station.

Gallagher does not know he is going to be a witness at the inquest. In fact, he is apparently still in ignorance of the murder.

Governor Ogilvie, the keeper of Burton Castle, was asked by a reporter to question Gallagher as to his movements after he left Clarkson's with the murdered man, but he refused to mention the subject to the prisoner until the detective arrives to take him away.

Smart Arrest of Midnight Despoilers

On Monday about midnight as Mr. Alex. Walker of the east side was gently dreaming in his down couch, he was rudely awakened by a demand from outside of three men to open his door. This he refused to do, whereupon the three ruffians set to work to break open the door, and told him to be mighty quiet or they would "shoot his block off." A scuffle ensued, and Mr. Walker gave a good account of himself with a club. He then lodged an information at the police station, the result being that at four o'clock yesterday afternoon a Frederick Burroughs, professional loafer, and well known to police circles, William Wallace, and Frank Fountain were quietly holding a social time in a local thirst parlor, P.C.'s Newbold and Adams walked in and before the three mentioned gentlemen had finished blinking or began to understand they felt the tie that binds around their wrists, and by the time they had come together, the officers had them face to face with the magistrate, who was holding afternoon court.

Burleigh took advantage of his past experience and became apologetic for these midnight prowlers, and when he had had his little say, it amounted to "Guilty," and in less than thirty minutes from the time that they were arrested, they were dining at Castle Nesbit, the first evening out of 15 to follow, unless some kind friend puts up $15.

Mother Elinor Has Disapeared

Windsor, Ont., April 3.—Mrs. Mason, "Mother Elinor," local head of the Flying Rill colony here and Detroit, charged with being the notorious Miss De Barr, returned Saturday night after a three weeks' absence. She gave a hearing to the trustees and promised a full explanation Monday. She spent part of Sunday at the colony headquarters here and disappeared again Sunday midnight together with David Livingstone Mackay.

"Shortly before midnight," says one of the sisters in the Windsor Flying Roller headquarters, "after everyone had gone to bed, Mother Elinor and David Mackay got up, packed their trunks, and dressed themselves for a journey. A carriage and a dray drove up and took the half dozen trunks of Mother Elinor and Mackay and drove away."

The colony has now repudiated her. Members of it say Mother Elinor admitted being mixed up in the Jackson case.

New York, April 2.—Mrs. Jos. Jack, wife of a resident of Rose street, Trenton, is entirely blind, with little prospect of ever regaining her sight, the result of a violent attack of sneezing which she suffered a few evenings ago.

New Site for Normal School to be Decided

The Normal school site question is not yet decided, although Contractor F. S. Whitham was ready to begin work yesterday. This matter was fully described in yesterday's Times' report of the city council.

However, the special committee appointed in company with several members of the Board of Education, visited the vicinity yesterday morning, and inspected the ground thoroughly. It was decided to secure options on the lots in question and two of the members of the council were authorized to do this at once. Until this is accomplished it will be impossible to do anything further. Those who visited the spot yesterday decided that a site near the brow of the hill would be better than in the hollow of the park, but the question of price would have to be settled before any steps can be taken.

Former Local Man Dies in Edmonton

Yesterday The Times received the sad intelligence that John, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Long of Edmonton, has passed away.

The deceased, who was 30 years of age, was well known in this city, and in Harvey, where he formerly resided. He left for the West some years ago. His death was caused by typhoid fever.

The deceased is survived by three brothers and three sisters. They are Bert and Arthur, of Edmonton; William, of Bucklhorn; Florence and Ida, and Mrs. Sam Jordan, of Peterborough. Messrs. Harry and Jas. Long, of this city, were uncles, and Mrs. Tully and Mrs. Wm. Hibbitliffe, of Peterborough, were aunts of the deceased, who was unmarried.

The funeral took place in Edmonton.

Former Capt. Rubidge Property Not Sold

Yesterday afternoon, Mr. John Haggart held an important sale, which however, did not result in disposing of the property put up, viz., that splendid property formerly owned and occupied by the late Captain Chas. Rubidge, R.N., Peter Robinson's (after whom the city is called) right hand man, in locating the earliest upbuilders of our now prosperous city, and afterwards purchased and reared by the late Mr. Aemon Cox.

It is understood that a reserve bid of $15,000 was held on the property. The highest bid was $14,000, but as this did not reach the reserved price, the sale was adjourned. Bidding started at $12,000, but went no further than the above mentioned sum.

Old Otonabee Resident Has Passed Away

Death of Mr. Jas. Hayes for Over Half a Century a Resident of This County.

Mr. Jas. Hayes, one of Otonabee township's most respected and eldest residents, has passed away at his home in Skibbereen, Otonabee, at the venerable age of 95 years.

The late Mr. Hayes was born in Ireland and years later on became proprietor of a hotel near Keene, known as the Cork House. He was married over 60 years ago, and has lived ever since in Otonabee.

His local was prominent when the Cobourg and Peterborough Railway, was in course of construction half a century ago.

Four sons and three daughters remain to mourn his loss, they are Daniel, James, John, of Denver, Cornelius of Sudbury; and Mrs. Dan Kelly of Asphodel, Miss Ella at home, and Miss Hannah in Denver.

In religion the late Mr. Hayes was a Roman Catholic, and in politics a Reformer.

Mr. R. Neil Was a Heavy Loser

Yesterday a Times reporter called at Mr. R. Neil's large double boot and shoe store, and enquired as to what damage this gentleman has sustained by the bursting of the large city water works' main in front of The Times office, George street. Mr. Neil very obligingly took the Times man down his cellar, beneath the store and then the whole story was legible at a glance. In the cellar Mr. Neil has hundreds of boxes of boots and shoes, and now upon row of new trunks. The water, which poured in during the night or early morning had risen to quite a height in the cellar. Fortunately, however, some of the cases had been raised by planks placed beneath. However, many cases of shoes and boots were partly submerged and his furnace put out of business. Mr. Neil at once got plumbers to work and had the porcelain part of his closet removed, so that the unwelcome inundation was thus led to the George street sewer. Mr. Neil will hold the city responsible.

Miss M. A. Rickey is Now Mrs. Welch

Yesterday morning a pretty but unostentatious celebrated wedding was solemnized in All Saints' church by Rev. W. Major, rector of this popular place of worship.

Miss Mabel Adelaide Rickey, daughter of Mr. Geo. Rickey, became the wife of Mr. Ernest Alexander Welch, son of Mr. Thos. Welch, of Dromboe. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a few immediate friends, and the young couple were unattended. The bride was attired in grey lady's cloth with hat to match, and wore a pearl necklace and pendant, the gift of the groom. After the wedding they left on the local train for Port Arthur, where they will reside.

The bride received many beautiful presents including a handsome clock from the employees' Guild and other remembrances from individual members of the choir.

Mrs. Welch was a member of All Saints' church, and was connected with the Ladies' Guild, the choir and Sunday school, of which she was junior.

PETERBORO' HONORS A DEPARTING CITIZEN

Mr. R. Max. Dennistoun Is Given a Banquet by Many Leading Local Citizens in the Oriental Hotel.

As is known, to the regret of the residents of Peterborough, one of Peterborough's leading citizens and foremost members of the local bar, Mr. R. Maxwell Dennistoun, will shortly leave this part of the country to locate in Manitoba's capital, the City of Winnipeg. Possibly never in the history has such general regret been felt or such tangible tokens of esteem been offered to any citizen of Peterborough on the eve of his departure from the city, as have been manifested over Mr. Dennistoun's withdrawal from our midst. The Dennistoun family has for several generations occupied a prominent position in both professional and social circles in Peterborough. Many of the older residents remember with deepest interest the grandfather, Judge Dennistoun, one of the best known and most generally respected of Ontario's judges.

The Times ascertained yesterday that when Mr. Dennistoun arrives with his family in his new place of abode, he will not enter, at least no arrangements have yet been entertained to that effect, with other law firm or partner in the law business, but conduct his profession there solus.

Last night the culmination of the honors deservedly heaped upon Mr. Dennistoun recently, including a banquet by the 57th Regiment to their departing major, presentations by St. John's church and Sunday school, etc., was a banquet given by one hundred of Peterborough's leading citizens in the large dining room of the Oriental Hotel. At 8.30 o'clock the officers and committee nominated to organize and conduct the banquet, together with the invited guests gathered in the rotunda of the hotel, and shortly afterwards repaired to the dining room.

Mine Host Geo. Graham had spared neither trouble nor expense to make the banquet a thorough success, and had a menu prepared that would appeal to the tastes of Epicurus. The tables were arranged in such form as to most conveniently seat the large assemblage. A large majority of those present were attired so full dress and not for many a long month has so representative a body of Peterborough's leading citizens met together.

To describe the banquet from its inception, it might be noted that this tangible token of esteem was a spontaneous movement devoid of either political or denominational leanings and simply a slight expression of the esteem in which Mr. Dennistoun is held by his many friends in the city. It is but fair to remark that the Hon. J. R. Stratton, hon. chairman; Mr. Robert Fair, hon. secretary, and Mr. P. Campbell, hon. vice-chairman of the committee of management of the banquet, had left no stone unturned to make the event a success, their efforts being loyally and thoroughly endorsed and backed by the citizens of Peterborough.

The Banquet

At the appointed hour and after the invited guests had taken their seats at the beautifully decorated and furnished tables; Hon. J. R. Stratton took the chair, and officially opened the proceedings.

The following menu was presented, a well served and admirably cooked style.

Blue Points

Consomme en Tasse

Queen Olives Celery

Canapes of Russian Caviar

Fillet of Oregon Salmon, de Homard
(Pommes Gastronomy)

Turkey Cutlets, au Provincale
Boiled Potatoes California Asparagus
Timbale de Fis. Cognac

Punch a la Oriental

Roast Spring Lamb, Mint Sauce
Mashed Potatoes New Green Peas

Rachiel Salad Beet Salad

Nesselrode Pudding, Sauce au Kershwiser
Lemon Pie a la Merangue, Charlotte Russe
Madeira Jelly with Whipped Cream
Neapolitan Ice Cream Assorted Cake
Nuts Raisins
McLaren's Cheese
Appollinaris Radnor
Cafe Noir

The souvenir menu cards consisting of several pages were a masterpiece of the printers' art. The second page of the menu card contained a fine half tone portrait of the guest of the evening.

The Toasts

After the elaborate procession of viands had been duly disposed of, the chairman, Hon. J. R. Stratton, arose and in a short, pithy and humorous speech, proposed the time-honored and honorable toast of "The King." Next Vice-chairman Mr. Peter Campbell, proposed that of the "Governor-General and Lieut.-Governor."

Following on these patriotic toasts was that of an equally popular, though possibly not strictly in political party lines, toast of the "Parliament of Canada, and the Legislature of Ontario." Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., (and for many years Mayor of Peterborough, and for over half a century a member of the local Board of Education, was down on the program to formally propose the toast, which was eloquent, and appropriately replied to by Messrs. R. R. Hall, M.P. of West Peterborough, and George Grant, M.P. of Orillia.

The toast of the evening, "Our Guest," was then proposed in most suitable and eulogistic terms by the Hon. J. R. Stratton, chairman of the occasion. Mr. Stratton in a few well chosen words referred to the general regret felt through all classes of the city over Mr. Dennistoun's proposed withdrawal from the people with whom he had, from birth been brought up with, and all his life lived among, and expressed a most supreme confidence that Mr. Dennistoun's welcome in the legal and social circles of Winnipeg would be as hearty as was the regret felt here over his departure, and predicted a prosperous future for the evening's guest in his about-to-be-adopted home.

Mr. Dennistoun, with every symptom of deepest feeling responded to the toast, and assured those present that he would always entertain the kindliest feelings towards the old town (Peterborough), and carry in his heart a most sincere love for his many friends here. He thanked those present for their kindness in tendering the splendid banquet with which he had been honored.

The next toast was that of "Our Municipal Institutions," which was gracefully proposed by Mr. D. O'Connell, in words that might have been issued by his illustrious namesake, and as well responded to by Mayor McWilliams, and the warden of the county. Following this, Major L. M. Hayes, of the firm of Hall & Hayes, originally founded by the grandfather of the guest of the evening, proposed the health of "The Financial, Agricultural, Manufacturing and Mercantile Interests." This was replied to, on behalf of the "Financial" interests by Messrs. John Crane, manager of the Dominion Bank here, and Mr. J. Hughes-Charles, of the local Canadian Bank of Commerce. Messrs. County Treasurer Ed. M. Elliott, and replied to the agricultural portion of this toast. Mr. Robt. Fair, one of Peterborough's leading drygoods merchants spoke ably for the mercantile interests, whilst the manufacturers were eloquently represented in turn by Mr. Patterson, superintendent of the great Canadian General Electric Co., Mr. W. H. Meldrum, manager of the Peterborough Cereal Co., Mr. Frank Matthews of the great Matthews packing houses of Lindsay, Peterborough and Ottawa, and Mr. Denham, manager of the local branch of the Quaker Oats Co.

Mr. (W. H. Hall, one of the best known and most successful insurance men of Ontario next proposed "The Professions." This was responded to by Rev. Canon Davidson, rector of St. John's church, of which Mr. Dennistoun is a member and Rev. Father McColl, P.P. of Peterborough, on behalf of the clergy. For the legal fraternity, Messrs. E. A. Peck, D. W. Dumble, W. H. Moore and Geo. Edmison, county magistrate responded as eloquent lawyers generally speak. For the medical end of the "Professions," Doctors J. T. I. Halliday and R. P. Boucher replied in well chosen terms, and Mr. John E. Belcher, C. E., a leading office of the Ontario Society of Architects replied for the civil engineering and architects' part of "The Professions" in a short speech worthy of the witty Irishman that Mr. Belcher is.

The "Press" was proposed by Mr. Harry Denne, and responded to by the press representatives present.

To Mr. W. S. Davidson, of Messrs. Hall, Medd & Davidson, the local lawyers, fell the honorous but agreeable task of proposing that ever popular toast "The Ladies," which was done in a way that would have melted the heart of the sternest judge that ever wore a wig or robe. To this Mr. F. Kerr, of the firm which proudly calls Mr. Dennistoun its senior partner, in those well known epigrammatic and humorous speeches of his responded to this toast.

The banquet taken as a whole was a great success without a hitch from when the chairman took his seat until when at a late hour, "Should Auld Acquaintance be forgot," was in order. Those to whom the success of the evening's proceedings was due spent with the guests present were as follows:

"There's a Reason"

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Gathered From the Local Police Station.

At yesterday's session of the police court Benjamin Hobgin admitted having been drunk on April 1st. This April foolishness cost him $2, to be paid forthwith.

Lawrence Green, when charged with having been found drunk, said: "Well, I guess I was pretty full but I was insulting no one." As the officer who arrested him was not present, the case was enlarged until four p.m., as was that of a local carpenter, who was charged with a similar offence.

The next case tried was that of a conductor of the C.P.R., who had some days ago been charged with having obstructed George street, for eight minutes, the legal allowance for such obstruction by railroad cars being five minutes.

It will be remembered that P. C. Newhall, some days ago was in a car coming north from Lake street, and the car, together with several rigs driving each way, was stopped for at least eight minutes by the officer's watch. Mr. W. H. Moore appeared for the conductor. His Worship in delivering judgment, said that without the doubt proven was no fault of either the local C.P.R. station agent or the C.P.R. Company, and notwithstanding the fact that their sidings and stations had better have been further from George, the leading street of Peterborough, the traffic of the city must not be stopped illegally. He therefore imposed a fine of $20 on the conductor in charge of the alleged law-breaking train.

It is understood, on the strength of general rumor that the C.P.R. Company will appeal the case.

At the post-prandial session the policeman wanted at the morning court as witness, was present, and each of the "boosters" was summoned to pay $2, which will go towards paying interest on the city debentures and taxes.

During the morning session, Abraham Low was charged with having stolen a quantity of lead and rubber, last Sunday, from a junk dealer named Doig. It seemed, however, that the wrong man was charged with the theft. The way the occurred was that Low had recently sold out his junk business to another Jew named Mendes, but the junk dealer's license had not been transferred. Doig recognized Mendes in court, whereupon Doig was advised by the magistrate to lay a new information. This was done later, but, here pardon a few exclamation marks such as ?!!!!!! which is the only semi-recognizable method of what took place in the court room. Four descendants of lawsuit forefathers got busy trying unanimously and contemporaneously to insure his worship that the Jews charged or otherwise of this city, did not, nor would not take a ten carat diamond, if found on the public streets. With hands uplifted and palms to the front they simultaneously declared that the prosecutor was deserving of, at least, crucifixation or being tossed in oil brought from 60 degrees to that of 212, or at least that was the impression made in The Times representative's mind. Their talk which was in the key of E.B.Z.Y., to use a musical term, was all together, each seemingly to consider that he had the addresses's attention. This case will probably come up in a day or two as Mr. Doig said he would lay a new information and also in answer to a question by the magistrate, clearly, as noted by him demonstrated that he had seen Mendes in his Doig's, yard last Sunday, and had, when accompanied by a policeman, recognized his goods in Mendes's junk yard. This was practically corroborated by the policeman, who noted that, when he searched Mendes's yard, the latter tried to cover up the alleged stolen articles.

No Arrest in Opera House

Mr. J. J. Turner called up The Times yesterday and asked us to emphatically deny a rumor current throughout the city to the effect that a man had been arrested the preceding evening for creating a disturbance in the Opera House. Mr. Turner stated that neither was any arrest made in the Opera House that night nor was any disturbance created.

Just as strength is the natural outcome of pure blood, so is debility and sickness the result of impure blood.

To know how quickly, how surely Ferrozone cures, to see how it rebuilds and restores, you have only to read the following letters—read them carefully—see if the symptoms resemble yours.

Miss Evelyn M. Gaetz, of Kingston, writes: "I have had an attack of blood disorder which broke out in horrid looking pimples. They were ugly, red, disfiguring blotches that ruined the appearance of my face. I tried all sorts of medicine, but the pimples didn't leave. I was recommended Ferrozone and gave it a trial. I noticed an improvement after the second box, and kept up the treatment which finally cleared my skin. As the result of Ferrozone I have a clear healthy complexion, and can recommend it to all other young women similarly affected."

Another young lady well known in society circles of Springfield, who derived exceptional benefit from Ferrozone, says: "I felt it my duty to make known the value of Ferrozone. My trouble was poor, weak blood, and as a consequence my lips were pallid, and my cheeks had no color. I wasn't at all strong, and required a bracing tonic. Ferrozone soon brought color to my cheeks, improved my appetite and made me stronger than I have been in years. I favor Ferrozone because it is so simple to take and works so quickly."

No blood remedy exists that has the power to cure, to heal, to restore like Ferrozone; try it, 50c per box at any druggist.

JAPAN NOT FOR WAR

In spite of the fact that the Japanese are flocking to the Hawaiian Islands, and in spite of the fact that they are active in many ways, there is no reason for thinking, as some do, that they are bent on more war. It is more reasonable to believe that Viscount Hayashi, foreign minister of Japan, told the exact truth, in his speech the other day before the Japanese Diet, when he said: In regard to the foreign suspicion of aggressive intentions on the part of Japan, these ideas can only be attributed to great ignorance of the conditions in the country. The military and naval proposals in the budget are of a kind merely to restore and reorganize the national forces—just as every other nation is doing. On behalf not only of the government, but also of the nation, I beg to declare that Japan has no aggressive intentions whatever. So far as commerce is concerned, our policy may or may not be considered aggressive. We intend to push our interests to the front. We have the right possessed by all countries to compete peacefully with other nations, but we intend firmly to adhere to the principles of equal opportunity, and the open door, in which we have the fullest belief.

Of course it is easy to say that such talk is insincere, but what Japan has done indicates that it is not, and the general attitude of the civilized world also indicates that it is not.

TRANSVAAL AND ITS PREMIER

No mistake seems to have been made in the choice of General Botha as the first premier of the new self-governing Transvaal Colony. Not long after the election he sent a message to the London Chronicle in which he said that Britain would never have cause to regret the trust placed in the Boer people. More recently an invitation was sent to Botha to attend the Colonial conference, and in announcing his acceptance he stated that British interests were absolutely safe in the hands of the new Transvaal cabinet, and that the world would see that the ministers were as zealous for the flag as any minister could be. If this should sound like over much protestation, it must be remembered the party which General Botha leads is not entirely made up of Boers. It includes a majority of Boers along with the English South Africans who stand for "South Africa first," and who are opposed to the domination of the country by the element—largely alien—which controls the mines.

Rayner Escapes Gallows Home Office Intervenes

London, March 31.—It was announced today that as a result of the popular agitation in favor of a reprieve for Horace G. Rayner, who on Jan. 24, killed William Whitely, the well-known merchant of Westbourne Grove, the home secretary, Mr. Gladstone, had advised the King to commute the death sentence to life imprisonment at penal servitude.

The King almost invariably acts on the home secretary's advice and therefore Rayner's reprieve may be regarded as an accomplished fact.

The exercise of the royal prerogative of mercy is probably to a great extent due to the strong revulsion of public feeling against nursing a dying man back to life only to reserve him for the hangman's rope, together with the painful situation of the prisoner.

France Warns Morocco

Tangier, March 31.—M. Regnault, French minister, accompanied by the commander of the French cruiser Jeanne d'Arc, yesterday presented to Mohammed el Torres France's demands for reparation in the case of the murder of Dr. Mauchamp.

Mohammed el Torres was warned that he would be held fully responsible for the carrying out of the French demands and for any anti-European movement which might result therefrom. The representative of the sultan offered no objection.

Hush Money Used

Hamilton, March 31.—J. Bidwell Mills, near whose residence the late Constable Barron was shot, has written a somewhat sensational letter to Mayor Stewart.

He charges that the reason more active steps were not taken to investigate the affair is that money and influence have been used to hush the matter up.

He scouts the idea that the murderer is dead.

The Bohemian for April

One of the most genuinely entertaining "fish" stories of magazine literature appears in the April Bohemian and is entitled "The Whale." This is one of the Unnatural History series by Edward Marshall, which has been an ever-growing delight from the first installment.

The life of this whale, whose name was Levi A Than, spanned a mere bit of three or four thousand years. In the course of his rambles through the seas from the Antarctic Ocean to the depths of the Arctic Seas, the big fellow met many adventures, and none of them more amusing than his mistake in swallowing Jonah, which ever thereafter gave him incurable dyspepsia. This stomach trouble was aggravated somewhat by the carpentry skill of Jonah, who fitted up the stomach of Levi A Than into bachelor apartments, which were discovered when the big fellow passed in his checks to a modern whaler's crew.

Reinforcing this splendid humorous leader in the April Bohemian, Henry Miller tells one of the best stories yet in "My Yesterdays." Mr. Charles F. Peters writes entertainingly of some women artists. Miles Bradford's cooking article entitled "The Apotheosis of the Pie" will make America's mouth water and make the women hunger for the enticing receipts printed therein.

The eight stories chain the reader's interest, every one of them. Some of them are: "A Talk with Tabitha," by Nellie Cravey Gillmore; "The Granted Wish of Tom Kennan," by W. A. Frost, a vivid and dramatic story of a giant's last fight; "The Revolt of Hannah," by Leigh Gordon Giltner, the story of the successful revolt of a timid little woman against a brutal husband. Edwin L. Sabin is unsurpassed in "An Experiment by Posner." Posner tries to win a charming girl by his science of psychological advertising. Mr. Sabin has never written anything better than this.

"A Guide to Girlology" by Cecil Ford, is a scientific travesty for the enlightenment of mere man.

Joseph Weber of Weber's Theater, New York, contributes a readable article entitled "The Business Side of Being Funny."

The number overflows with delightful parodies and enjoyable verse.

Harvey Peake writes a humorous monologue supposed to be carried on by a talkative dame at the symphony concert. The Iconoclast is written by E. J Appleton, who wants "An Eruption of Individual Liberty." The sly digs at the strenuous and simple livers are as timely as they are amusing. "Here and There" is alive with crisp anecdotes. The new plays and the new books are briefly and adequately characterized as usual.

Catarrh

To prove unquestionably, and beyond any doubt, that Catarrh of the nose and throat can be cured, I am furnishing patients through druggists, small free Trial Boxes of Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure. I do this because I am so certain, that Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure will bring actual substantial help. Nothing certainly, is so convincing as a physical test of any article of real, genuine merit. But that article must possess true merit, else the test will be condemn, rather than advance it. Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure is a snow white, healing antiseptic balm, put up in beautiful nickel capped glass jars at 25c. Such soothing agents as Oil Eucalyptus, Thymol, Menthol, etc., are incorporated into a velvety, cream like Petrolatum, imported by Dr. Shoop from Europe. If Catarrh of the nose and throat has extended to the stomach, then by all means also use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Stomach distress, a lack of general strength, dizziness, backache, biliousness, bad taste, etc., apply call for Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

For unconditional catarrh only of the nose and throat nothing else, however, need be used but

What HON. H. G. EWART, Former Congressman, Circuit Court and U. S. Judge, Western District, North Carolina, Has to Say of NEVADA MINING INVESTMENTS:

Nevada's past history was written by the Comstock. Its present history is being written by Goldfield, Tonopah and Bullfrog.

The great Comstock Mine at Virginia City, Nevada, produced $680,000,000. It added hundreds of millions to the world's supply of precious metals, it built transcontinental railroads, great steamship lines and telegraphic cables across the ocean, it financed some of the world's greatest newspapers, it endowed universities and colleges, and galleries of art, it built multitudes of towns and cities, it completed that splendid metropolis, San Francisco, it made United States senators, railroad and bank presidents, it fixed in history the names of Mackey, Fair, Flood, O'Brien, Shaw, Jones and Sutro.

Tonopah was discovered in 1900, Her Mizpah is probably the greatest silver-gold mine of the world. This camp has paid $2,200,000 in cash dividends.

Goldfield came next, and is producing today $190,000 every twenty-four hours, or at the rate of $50,000,000 per annum.

It is Bullfrog now, the baby among her wonderful camps, that Nevada is holding forth to the world like a doting mother. Unlike Goldfield, Bullfrog is essentially a great milling proposition, there being literally mountains of ore, assaying from $5 to $250 per ton. When other mining camps in Nevada will be deserted, Bullfrog will be known as the "Camp of Confidence and Endurance." It will take centuries to exhaust its great ore deposits. This is the reason why Schwab, McKane, Oddie, Clark and other millionaires have quietly acquired nearly every foot of available mineral ground in this great district. This is the reason why four great railroads have already completed, and are rapidly extending their lines into the Bullfrog district. This is why Rhyolite has in the short space of three years changed from a habitation of coyotes and side-wheelers into a modern up-to-date city of 7,000 people. This is the reason why the Montgomery-Shoshone is building upon its properties a great reduction mill which will handle its thousands of tons of ore and which will cost over half a million. This is the reason why all Bullfrog stocks have steadily advanced in the face of the savage and unjustifiable attacks made by Wall street and their paid newspaper emissaries.

The South Bullfrog district, which includes the Keane Wonder, Big Dell, Cliff, California Bullfrog, Death Valley Mining & Milling Co., and others, is looked upon as one of the coming camps of importance. The ore found in this district are quartz and talc, carrying iron oxides, the principal values being in gold, with silver and copper traces.

It is in this district that the Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company (Inc.) properties in part are located. The company owns 80 acres of highly mineralized lands within two miles of the California Bullfrog Mine. Its assays show rich gold, silver and copper values, and being a tunnel proposition, can be economically and quickly developed. The other property of the Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company is splendidly located right in the very heart of this great gold-bearing camp, consisting of 160 acres within 1 1-2 miles of the great Montgomery-Shoshone Mine owned by Charles M. Schwab, the Pittsburg steel magnate, and his associates. It is only two miles from the City of Rhyolite with a fine road leading to the mines, and within one mile of the water pipes leading from Indian Springs to the City of Rhyolite. Its ledges are bold and well defined, and expert engineers declare it as the ir opinion, that the same rich veins of the Montgomery-Shoshone traverse this property.

Kansas City, Mo., February 20, 1907.

J. H. MORELAND,

Mr. Moreland is one of the most expert and reliable assayers in the United States. He is a graduate of the State School of Mines of Colorado, and has had fifteen years practical experience as assayer of leading mines and smelters. For many years he was the official Government assayer for the United States Custom House at Kansas City, Mo. The large proportion of all ores shipped from Mexico is received at Kansas City.

The Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Co. is officered and managed by gentlemen of the highest character and standing in this city. The company has secured the services of Mr. J. E. Lindstrom, of Rhyolite, Nevada, as general manager, whose years of experience in Alaska, Colorado, and California, peculiarly fit him for this position.

After the most careful and personal examination of the properties of this company, its officers, and its possibilities, I have accepted the position of Fiscal Agent of the company and offer to the investing public, 250,000 shares of its stock at 10 cents per share. With the knowledge I have of the tremendous possibilities of this company, and its valuable properties, and the high character of its officials, I do not hesitate to urge my friends in the south, and the investing public generally, to buy this stock; satisfied as I am that they will realize enormous profits on their investments.

It will give me pleasure to mail to any inquirers, prospectus, maps, and full information as to the properties of this company. Highest references given.

This stock can be purchased either for cash, or on the installment plan as follows:

$ 10.00	buys 100 shares,	payable $ 6.00 cash,	balance $ 1.00 per month.
$ 15.00	buys 150 shares,	payable $ 7.50 cash,	balance $ 1.50 per month.
$ 50.00	buys 500 shares,	payable $10.00 cash,	balance $ 2.00 per month.
$ 30.00	buys 300 shares,	payable $15.00 cash,	balance $ 3.00 per month.
$ 20.00	buys 200 shares,	payable $10.00 cash,	balance $ 3.00 per month.

$500.00	buys 5000 shares,	payable $50.00 cash,	balance $90.00 per month.

This stock is being rapidly taken and I would advise my friends to send in their orders at once. Thousands of investors are making fortunes out of comparatively small amounts in Nevada Mining propositions. Why should you not do so?

Make all checks, money-orders, payable to, and address all letters to

WEDDING STATIONERY

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENTS are always in order. The season for the final result of being a disciple of Cupid finds expression in the Hymeneal ceremony at the altar—that occasion when "two hearts that beat as one" are joined together—pronounced one.

For this auspicious occasion the printing must be chastely dignified—must be appropriate in appearance to this one time of life when everything "best" is donned—when happiness reigns supremely.

Marriage Announcements
Marriage Invitations
Marriage Reception Cards
Post Nuptial Reception Cards

All of these we are able to supply in a proper form and printed artistically. Our work is conducted under the supervision of skilled typographical mechanics and may be unhesitatingly presented to the most fastidious critic.

Our charges for such work are moderate—yet good printing is ever valuable. However, we give quality for our figures, and an order entrusted to our care will be speedily, carefully and satisfactorily executed.

No work can be well done which has to be done hurriedly. Time is necessary for the accomplishment of faultless printing. We will fulfil all expectations if given ample time for completion.

Manhattan Gold Field

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 10 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assasays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

"Respectfully submitted,
"WM. R. PAYNE, President.
"J. ROGER BROWN, Secretary."

Lax-ets 5c Sweet to Eat A Candy Bowel Laxative

With Edged Tools

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN
Author of "The Sowers," "Roden's Corner," "From One Generation to Another," Etc.

Copyright, 1894, by HARPER & BROTHERS

"And so you may, some day. You help me and I'll help you—that is my ticket. Reciprocity — reciprocity, my dear Maurice."

"Yes, but how?"

"Can't tell you now, but I will in good time—in my own time. Come, let's join the lady—eh? Ha, ha!"

But at this moment the servant brought in coffee, saying in his master's ear that Miss Jocelyn had gone to bed with a slight headache.

* * * * * * * *

During the three days that followed Durnovo's departure from Msala Jack Meredith and Oscard learned to know each other. These three days were as severe a test as could well be found, for courage, humanity, tenderness, loyalty, were by turns called forth by circumstance. Smallpox rages in Africa as it rages nowhere else in these days. The natives fight it or bow before it as before an ancient and deeply dreaded foe. It was nothing new to them, and it would have been easy enough for Jack and Oscard to prove to their own satisfaction that the presence of three white men at Msala was a danger to themselves and no advantage to the natives. It would have been very simple to abandon the river station, leaving there such men as were stricken down to care for each other. But such a thought never seemed to suggest itself.

The camp was moved across the river, where all who seemed strong and healthy were placed under canvas, awaiting further developments.

The infected were carried to a special camp set apart and guarded, and this work was executed almost entirely by the three Englishmen, aided by a few natives who had had the disease.

For three days these men went about with their lives literally in their hands, tending the sick, cheering the despondent, frightening the cowards into some semblance of self respect and dignity. And during these three days, wherein they never took an organized meal or three consecutive hours of rest, Joseph, Meredith and Oscard rose together to that height of manhood where master and servant, educated man and common soldier, stand equal before their Maker.

Owing to the promptness with which measures had been taken for isolating the affected the terrible sickness did not spread. In all eleven men were stricken, and of these ten died within three days. The eleventh recovered, but eventually remained at Msala.

It was only on the evening of the third day that Jack and Guy found time to talk of the future. They had never left Durnovo's house, and on this third day they found time to dine together.

"In six months your go-downs will be full of it."

"Do you think," Oscard asked bluntly when they were left alone to smoke, "that Durnovo spotted what was the matter?"

"I am afraid that I have not the slightest doubt of it," replied Jack lightly.

Guy Oscard gave a contemptuous little laugh which had a deeper insult in it than he could have put into words.

"Umph!" he grunted. "It is rather disgusting," he said after a pause. "I hate dealing with cowards."

"And I with fools. For everyday use give me a coward by preference."

"Yes, there is something in that. Still, I'd throw up the whole thing if"—

"So would I," said Jack, turning sharply in his chair, "if"—

Oscard laughed curtly and waited.

"If," continued Jack, "I could. But I am more or less bound to go on now. Such chances as this do not turn up every day. I cannot afford to let it go by. Truth is, I told—some one who shall be nameless—that I would make money to keep her in that state of life wherein her godfathers, etc., have placed her; and make that money I must."

"That's about my size, too," said Guy Oscard, somewhat indistinctly, owing to the fact that he habitually smoked a thick stemmed pipe.

"Is it? I'm glad of that. It gives us something in common to work for."

"Yes." Guy paused and made a huge effort, finally conquering that taciturnity which was almost an affliction to him. "The reason I gave the other night to you and that chap Durnovo was honest enough, but I have another. I want to lie low for a few months, but I also want to make money. I'm as good as engaged to be married and I find that I am not so well off as I thought I was. People told me that I should have three thousand a year when the guv'nor died, but I find that people know less of my affairs than I thought."

"They invariably do," put in Jack encouragingly.

"It is barely two thousand, and—and she has been brought up to something better than that."

"Um! They mostly are. Mine has been brought up to something better than that too. That is the worst of it."

"I believe implicitly in this scheme," said Oscard. "It is a certain fact that the men who can supply pure simiacine have only to name their price for it. They will make a fortune, and I believe that Durnovo knows where it is growing in quantities."

"I cannot see how it would pay him to deceive us in the matter. That is the best way of looking at it," murmured Jack reflectively. "When I first met him the man thought he was dying, and for the time I really believe that he was honest. Some men are honest when they feel unwell. There was so little doubt in my mind that I went into the thing at once."

"If you will go on with it I will stand by you," said Oscard shortly.

"All right. I think we two together are as good as any half bred sharper on this coast, to put it gracefully."

During the ensuing silence Jack was apparently meditating over the debt of confidence which he still owed to his companion, for he spoke first and quite seriously about himself, which was somewhat against his habit.

"I dare say you have heard," he said, "that I had a—a disagreement with my father."

"Yes, heard something of it," replied Oscard in a tone which seemed to imply that the "something" was quite sufficient for his requirements.

"It was about my engagement," Jack

Monkey With Glasses.

In the zoological gardens of Breslau, Germany, there is a spider monkey which was operated on for cataract and now wears glasses. For more than a year after it was received at the zoo it was very healthy and lively. Then it became very quiet, ceased to play and crouched in a corner. It was examined and found to be suffering from cataract, so it was immediately taken to the eye hospital and operated on. In less than a month it was fitted with a pair of spectacles, which it wears with becoming gravity.

Conundrums.

Why should a man always wear a watch when he travels in a desert? Because every watch has a spring in it.

What question is that to which you must always answer yes? What does y-e-s spell?

How many sides are there to a tree? Two, the inside and the outside.

If.

If c-a-t spelled dog and cow
And horse and mouse and heaven,
If two plus two made six and nine
And twelve and eighty-seven,
If "see the man" was all there was
To learn inside my reader,
No boy would be as bright as I;
In school I'd be the leader.

If school took up at nine and then
Let out in an hour or less,
If half of this was singing songs
And the other half recess,
If all the days were holidays
'Cept Christmas and Thanksgiving,
I'd know what people mean who talk
About the joy of living.

—Ellis O. Jones in St. Nicholas.

Agility of Hares and Rabbits.

Interesting figures on the relative agility of hares and rabbits are given in a volume by J. G. Millais. "When running at ease," he says, "the length of the hare's stride is about four feet, but under conditions of fear its leaps extend to ten and twelve feet, while some authors claim that it can jump ten ditches twenty to twenty-five feet in width. Perpendicularly a hare can jump on to a five foot wall, but seems to be nonplused by one about six feet. The stride of the rabbit is about two feet. When necessary it can make leaps of six or seven feet horizontally. About three feet is the highest that a rabbit can attain to even when helped by the asperities of a stone wall." Mr. Millais tells how rabbits swim—when compelled to: "They swim with the head held as high as possible, while the hocks of the hind legs appear above the element at each stroke. The shoulders and front part of the body are buried beneath the water, while the rump and tail are high and dry."

Tyranny of Clothes.

Place a man in a silk hat and frock coat and transport him to a farmyard. Agricultural pursuits may be the one passion of his life, but clad in these garments he feels in such surroundings miserable, out of place, essentially urban. Clothe him, conversely, in flannels or knickers and place him in a church, and it is utterly impossible for him to assume a fittingly devotional frame of mind. Unlimited autocracy itself cannot impose such tyrannies on the subject. Civilisation is the slave of its clothes, and there is no prospect of freedom. — London Graphic.

KENNEDY COBALT, Ltd.

is recommended

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. 22. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 15 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 20 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 20 acres of J. B. 22 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 5 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 20 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 50 feet, and in it shows 6 inch nicolite, 12 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 672-1233-492-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

New Liskeard, 17th November, 1906.

We offer a few more shares at Fifty Cents (50c); par value One Dollar ($1.00). The property is being developed as fast as possible, and we cannot promise that stock will be sold at less than par for very long. Don't wait until it is $3.00 to invest, giving others big profits for what you should have bought sooner. We want you to get in on the ground floor and share in the big profits. Petty Criticism.

Cyrus Small's time was largely spent in discovering the faults and shortcomings of things animate and inanimate, while Mrs. Small, as it seemed, was equally vigilant in attempting to bring forward something of which she could say, "There, you can't pick any flaws in that!"

Once she thought this happiness would be hers. A certain man in the town inherited large wealth under peculiar circumstances. It was his under the law, but when the court awarded it to him he stood up and said that, in view of all the facts in the case, he believed that the property belonged of right to another heir. His action was generally looked upon as a noble one.

Mrs. Small was loud in her expressions of praise.

"Yes, I know," said her husband, "'twas a fine thing. Few men would have done it, and that's why he felt so awkward to stand up there and say what he did. He showed that he felt embarrassed by the way he stood."

"Cyrus Small, I should hope you would not find fault with his attitude when he was doing such a grand thing!"

"Oh, no; I have no wish to criticise," said Cyrus, "but if I had been on the platform, facing all those people, I should have tried to toe out a little more."

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

Are You a Woman Needing Strength?

Not long ago you were able to enjoy life.

You had vigor, strength, ambition—did everything with zest and pleasure

Upon you cheeks was the hue of health, in your eyes the sparkle of vim and animation.

Today—all is a drudge.

Not actually sick, but if your work were less imperative, how gladly you would rest.

You are breaking down.

Nervous system is out of gear.

Digestive powers are weak.

Blood lacks nourishment.

Just one thing to do—Build up—Win back your health with Ferrozone.

No remedy restores so fast, builds up so permanently, instills such vigor or surplus strength like Ferrozone.

A case showing how Ferrozone acts is illustrated by the following from Mrs. H. Wright, of Enfield, N.S.

"Six months ago I experienced a serious illness. It commenced with splitting headaches, dull pains through my chest and shoulders. I found it hard to get satisfying sleep—would roll and toss and in the morning felt tired all over. Then I grew nervous, lost flesh, got pale and had heavy dark circles under my eyes. My strength got so low I couldn't do housework. I was worried and unable to eat and feared I would not get well. Ferrozone traced me up in a few weeks. It seemed to supply wonderful strength. I gained in flesh, looked better and was able to sleep. In all I took twelve boxes of Ferrozone and my cure was complete."

If Ferrozone doesn't help and cure you—then nothing ever will; your druggist sells it in 50c. boxes—Better try Ferrozone.

The Engineering Magazine

The Engineering Magazine for April opens with a striking review of the great undertakings in constructive work which are in progress in and about New York City. It makes an impressive picture—sixteen tunnels under the rivers, three huge terminals, three underground railways aggregating nearly 30 miles, the electrification of 75 miles of heavy railway, three huge river bridges and five smaller ones, and the gigantic project for bringing the new water supply from the Catskill Mountains. More than $600,000,000 is being thus expended, all under the direction of civil engineers and by capable contractors. The Engineering Magazine contrasts the efficiency, order, and triumphant success of these enterprises with the turmoil and scanty performance in the building of the Panama Canal by political commission, and argues that the Isthmian waterway, if it is ever to be constructed, must be taken out of politics and constructed by business methods. There are in the same number illustrated articles on the Cobalt mining field, by J. E. Hardman, on the marine gas engine, by Howard Greene, and on Profit-Making Shop Management, by C. U. Carpenter. C. E. Knoeppel discusses cost reduction through cost comparison; H. von Schoo, engineer of the great Sault Ste. Marie power plant, begins a very interesting series on hydro-electric power plants; R. P. Bolton continues his articles on superheated steam, and E. Schaaf-Regelman contributes a valuable paper on the so-called rare metals and minerals and their uses. There is the usual complete index to current technical literature, and the Review of the Engineering press of the World.

CELLARS WERE FLOODED

HAVOC CAUSED BY A BROKEN WATER PIPE.

George Street Stores Lose Heavily by Water Main Bursting.

Yesterday morning when the owners or occupants of shops on either side adjoining or adjacent to The Times Publishing Co., 348 George street, arrived at their respective places of business, they were reminded somewhat of the Biblical story of when Noah built the first twin screw propellor.

To get down to plain or rather watery facts, from Mr. R. Neill's large shoe store at the north to and inclusive of Mr. H. P. Kennedy's fine modern meat market, every cellar of the shops included had from, say, six inches to four feet of what chemists describe as H_2O or in plain English, "Water."

It seems that the large water-works main, running down George street, the largest in the city, had burst, and water, under the immense pressure and volume had found an outlet or inlet to all the surrounding cellars along that street.

The first intelligence of the disaster was reported by one of the Times staff, who had been on night work. As this work called him to the basement early in the morning, the man was startled to find his way to part of the basement machinery blocked by perhaps two feet of water. Word was at once phoned to the water works authorities who as quickly as possible shut off the water.

Mr. Dick Martin, Mr. Henderson's capable lieutenant at once put a gang of men at work in front of The Times main entrance, to dig down and locate the trouble. George street, at this particular spot, at least, displayed the efficient work done by the city's road makers, as it was only by such drilling as is used in mines that a hole could be made in the roadway. It was in fact, after noon before the main was reached, and, found at the wrong spot, so that another excavation had to be made some 10 or 15 feet north.

As noted above all the merchants in the vicinity are heavy losers by stock stored in their cellars being submerged. It is altogether likely that the city will have to put its (putative) hand into its pocket and pay the damages.

A FRIENDLY GROCER

Dropped a Valuable Hint About Coffee.

"For about eight years" writes a Mich. woman, "I suffered from nervousness—part of the time down in bed with nervous prostration.

"Sometimes I would get numb and it would be almost impossible for me to speak for a spell. At others, I would have severe bilious attacks, and my heart would flutter painfully when I would walk fast or sweep.

"I have taken enough medicine to start a small drug store, without any benefit. One evening our grocer was asking Husband how I was and he urged that I quit coffee and use Postum, so he bought home a pkg. and I made it according to directions and we were both delighted with it.

"So we quit coffee altogether and used only Postum. I began to get better in a month's time and look like another person, the color came back to my cheeks, I began to sleep well, my appetite was good and I commenced to take on flesh and become interested in everything about the house.

"Finally I was able to do all my own work without the least sign of my old trouble. I am so thankful for the little book, 'The Road to Wellville.' It has done me much good. I haven't taken medicine of any kind for six months and don't need any.

"A friend of ours who did not like Postum as she made it, liked mine, and when she learned to boil it long enough, her's was as good as mine. It's easy if you follow directions." Name given by Postum Company, Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

—Mr. James Dolan, who has been very ill for over a fortnight, was somewhat better yesterday.

Citizens Go to Kirkfield

Yesterday Mr. D. A. Murphy, head engineer for the Dominion Bridge Company of Montreal, was in the city en-route for Kirkfield. He arrived here yesterday morning, and in company with a number of others left during the afternoon for Kirkfield. Mr. Murphy is going there to attend to the finishing of the lift lock, which is now nearing completion.

Among the others who went up yesterday afternoon were Messrs. M. Lowry, J. McWilliams, Maurice Guerin and Robert Mitchell.

—Mr. P. G. Demetrie, of Montreal, owner of the large confectionery, at the corner of George and Charlotte streets, is in the city for a few days.

—Mr. Geo. Forsyth, Toronto, representing the Crown Oil Co., who has been a guest at the Snowden House for a few days, left yesterday for home.

—Miss Susie Kelly, Downie street, who underwent an operation on Sunday, is not recovering very rapidly, and yesterday was not so well as it was hoped.

—Mr. P. G. Demetrie, of Montreal, who is in the city for a few days on his way home from a trip to Toronto and Buffalo, whilst in the latter city, purchased a parcel of real estate, that he disposed of the same day bought at a profit of some $3000.

Mr. M. Pappas Suffers Much Loss

Mr. M. Pappas, the local cigar dealer and pool room magnate estimates his loss at the store just south of The Times office, by water which got into his cellar there, by a burst city water pipe, at from $300 to $400. Mr. Pappas had a quantity of goods destroyed and his furnace put out of business.

Water Carts Busy Yesterday

Yesterday morning the water-wagon made its first appearance of the year and waged war on the dust that has been misling George street merchants drop cuss words for the past few days. The appearance of the sprinkler in the business section was hailed with delight by the merchants. Ald. Duncan, chairman of the Board of Works, affirms that the delay was not the fault of the Board.

A Very Long Lived Family

Mr. Thos. Sage, who has spent a few days visiting his mother in Lakefield, yesterday left the Munro House for his home in Wroxeter, Ont. Mr. Sage's mother is 99 years of age and holds the unique place of being a great-great-grandmother. Mr. Thos. Sage is the fourth member of the family now in Canada representatives of five generations.

More Bill Boards in the City

Mr. Walter Stotiger is erecting several new boards to post up the paper which the advertisers use. April 1st is the date on which the spring advertising matter is posted, and this year more billboard advertising will be done than ever before. Whilst the billboards are a good advertising medium, for results, financial, for paying results the columns of The Morning Times which appeal to, and are read by most of Peterborough's citizens from the highest to the lowest who have the price, are the best medium of selling whatever goods you or your friends may have for sale or wants to buy. The Times can sell more goods by advertising therein in a week than you can give away in a month whilst relying on other means of presenting your goods and prices to the buyers.

A Woman's Back

Has many aches and pains caused by weaknesses and falling, or other displacement, of the pelvic organs. Other symptoms of female weakness are frequent headache, dizziness, imaginary specks or dark spots floating before the eyes, gnawing sensation in stomach, dragging or bearing down in lower abdominal or pelvic region, disagreeable drains from pelvic organs, faint spells with general weakness.

If any considerable number of the above symptoms are present there is no remedy that will give quicker relief or a more permanent cure than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has a record of over forty years of cures. It is the most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine known to medical science. It is made of the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots found in our forests and contains not a drop of alcohol or harmful, or habit-forming drugs. Its ingredients are all printed on the bottle-wrapper and attested under oath as correct.

Every ingredient entering into "Favorite Prescription" has the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice—more valuable than any amount of non-professional testimonials—though the latter are not lacking, having been contributed voluntarily by grateful patients in numbers to exceed the endorsements given to any other medicine extant for the cure of woman's ills.

You cannot afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for this well proven remedy of KNOWN COMPOSITION, even though the dealer may make a little more profit thereby. Your interest in regaining health is paramount to any selfish interest of his and it is an insult to your intelligence for him to try to palm off upon you a substitute. You know what you want and it is his business to supply the article called for.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original "Little Liver Pills" first put up by old Dr. Pierce over forty years ago, much imitated but never equaled. Little sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

Cheap Groceries for Sale Today

In order to obtain permanent premises, China Hall has purchased the large and well assorted stock of groceries, etc., of Mr. A. Rountree, No. 294 George street. This stock, which is one of the finest grocery stocks in Peterborough, will, together with the balance of the China Hall stock, be thrown on the market at cost price, commencing March 2 and continuing until both stocks are entirely disposed of, but no longer than the 15th of April, after which date the store will be re-fitted, and opened about May 1, with an entirely new stock of crockery, china, glassware, cut-glass, plated ware, fine china ornaments, etc. China Hall, after that date, will be beyond a doubt one of the finest and most complete china stores in Canada. THE

LARDER LAKE SYNDICATE

GOLD - SILVER - COPPER

TO PURCHASE FROM THE OWNERS

35 Gold, Silver and Copper bearing Claims covering 1400 acres in the now famous Larder Lake District. These claims have been located under the personal supervision of one of the most experienced men in the Cobalt District.

Assays have been made from a number of the Claims showing large values on surface.
Gold values as high as $134.00 to the ton.
Silver values as high as $38.00 to the ton.
Copper vein 28, feet wide on surface, assaying 10.65 per cent. Pure Copper.

On completion of the Syndicate it is proposed to form a Mining Company with a Capital o $5,000,000 00 (par value of shares $1 each) of which 1,500,000 shares are to remain in the treasury Three Million Shares will be divided pro rata among the Subscribers to this Syndicate, giving 2,400 shares of stock for each $100 subscribed and paid in. One-Tenth of the Capital Stock of the Company is to be paid to the owners of the claims together with $125,000 in money.

All monies paid in will be deposited in the Standard Bank, Ottawa, to the credit of the Syndicate, and no withdrawal can be made except on the order of the Trustees, to be elected at a properly called meeting of the members of the Syndicate of which each subscriber will have ample notice.

Here is Your Opportunity

to get in on a ground floor that has no basement, sub-basement or sub-cellars. No contribution is made for Promotion either in Cash or Stock. Your subscription is pro-rated with the others 2,400 shares of the Capital Stock for each $100 subscribed. Capitalization to be less than $4,000 per acre of claims. Compare these figures with the capitalization of the mining companies of Coleman Township and you will at once realize the possibilities of profit in this syndicate. We have more acreage than Nipissing Mines Company. The copper showing on the claims alone gives promise of sufficient metal to make the company enormously wealthy.

The gold values shown by assays are very high and the rock carries also splendid value in silver. Altogether it is an ideal and splendidly practicable mining proposition.

The claims are less than 16 miles from the T. & N.O.R.R, and there is a good wagon road from the railroad into the lake.

The people that have made the money out of Cobalt are those that have gotten in on SYNDICATES. The syndicate subscribers are the real insiders and get the shares at bed rock prices.

Now is Your Opportunity

The subscriptions are coming in fast. Write today or you may be too late. Send in your subscription by cheque or money order.

—TERMS—

Payments to be made 20 per cent cash with subscription, and 40 per cent. 30 days from receipt of notice of closing of subscription, and 40 per cent within 60 days thereafter.

Champion Defeated for the Chicago Mayoralty.

MAIN ISSUE OF ELECTION

Mayor Dunne, Defeated Candidate, Favored Immediate Appropriation of Traction Systems.

Chicago, April 3.—Fred A. Busse, Republican, was elected Mayor of Chicago yesterday by a plurality of 18,000 to 20,000. There are a few precincts yet to be heard from, but these will not change the result materially.

Twenty-two Republican aldermen and the entire Republican city and county tickets were also victorious. The traction ordinance also have been carried by a large majority.

The issues in the campaign have been largely based upon the improvement of the local traction systems. Both parties agreed that present conditions are intolerable, but differed as to the best method of revising them. The Democratic party, headed by Mayor Dunne, stood for immediate municipal ownership through condemnation of the street car property, if the result could not be obtained in any other way. The Republican party favored ordinances which were recently passed by a Democratic City Council over the veto of Mayor Dunne.

These ordinances provided for 20-year franchises for the street car companies, the city retaining the right to purchase the systems for $50,000,000, plus the amount to be spent for immediate rehabilitation of the lines, six months' notice being necessary for the city's intention to acquire the property. The ordinances also provide for universal transfers throughout the city, a 5-cent fare, and 55 per cent. of the net profits of the companies to be paid to the city. These ordinances were approved today by a majority of about 40,000.

The vote generally showed a decided reversal of public opinion on municipal ownership, compared with the mayoralty campaign two years ago.

Objection to Recent Police Court Award

Correspondent Thinks the Men Who Broke Into a House Should Get More Punishment.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir,—I see in the account contained in your paper of yesterday that what I call a "miscarriage of justice" was in evidence last Monday afternoon in the police court.

Now Sir, whilst, as a teetotaller, I do not recommend the use of intoxicating liquors, and consider that those who take too many glasses, and thereby become a nuisance, should be punished by law, I cannot blind my eyes to the difference in punishment awaited for such a comparatively trifling offence and that given for a crime tried and proven Monday afternoon.

In the case of a poor pitiable drunkard who, having taken too many glasses, happens to fall by the wayside on his route home, such a poor creature, who hurts no one but himself or his immediate family is fined from $2 to $5 for such offence.

However, it seems to have been clearly proven that on Tuesday afternoon, these men, one of whom at least has an unenviable police record there, broke into a man's private residence, after making most intimidating threats. The householder's family was terrorized, and I am told the children were impelled to go out of the house in their night raiment to escape the marauders, and possibly as far as they knew them, to save their lives.

Now my contention is this, that if a poor, pitiable drunk is fined, say, $5, for a fault that does not do the general public any harm, a man or three men, who with threats and violence, as proven, break into a law-abiding (as far as I can learn) citizen's residence, and terrorize his family, should receive a much heavier penalty than the poor drunkard. However, what do we see here? We see men commit the act of violence and get off with a paltry $5 fine each, and $5 extra, the latter divided between three.

In this matter I have no animosity against the three who committed the offence charged and proven, but I think the city lawyer, county crown attorney or whomever the proper official may be, should see that the public is better protected, and that police officers who make arrests for such serious offences should get a little more recognition of their services, than to see such hoodlums get off so lightly.

Yours truly,

FAIR PLAY.

Miss Goodfellow is Now Mrs. Sommerville

Yesterday afternoon a prettily celebrated marriage was performed at the residence of Mrs. James Goodfellow, 184 Brock street, when her daughter, Miss Sophie Phoebe Isabella, became the bride of Mr. T. A. Sommerville, of Hartney, Manitoba.

The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. J. G. Potter, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Joseph Goodfellow, of Sault Ste. Marie, and was becomingly attired in a travelling suit of grey ladies' cloth, with a blue hat to match. The bride and groom were unattended.

Mr. and Mrs. Sommerville left on the 5.15 C.P.R. train for Hartney, Man., where they will reside in future.

Selwyn's Venerable Postmaster Gone

Mr. James Bell one of the County's Most Respected Residents Has Passed Away.

Yesterday morning Mr. James Bell, for some 25 years postmaster of Selwyn, and one of the most respected residents of the county, passed away.

The late Mr. Bell, who was 73 years of age, has not been in robust health for many years.

He was born in the township of Smith, and was a farmer until his removal to Selwyn. About 48 years ago he was married to Miss Mary Ann Manning, of Smith township, who survives him, along with a family of three sons and two daughters. The sons are Matthew J., Thomas J., and Harry C. Bell, of Smith. The daughters are Mrs. Alfred McIlmoyle and Mrs. George Nicholls, also of that township. The deceased was a Conservative in politics and a Baptist in religion. He was generous in disposition and upright in character. Mr. F. J. Bell, division court clerk, Peterborough, is a nephew of deceased, and Mr. W. H. Manning of this city, is a brother-in-law. Mr. Wm. Bell, of Smith, is a brother.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon to Lakefield cemetery.

Havelock Subdues a Fire

Havelock had a serious "April Fool" on Monday, although not sprung as a joke. A fire broke out in the Williams block, near the Armstrong Hotel, above Mr. Williams' grocery store. The fire was caused by clothes hanging to dry on an inside line, falling on the kitchen stove. Fortunately a hose from the C.P.R. station was available, and despite much difficulty and danger from smoke the flames were subdued, although considerable damage was done by water.

British Diplomacy Just, Canada Treated Fairly

Is Message of Mr. Bryce, Who Says That Canadian Interests Will Not be Sacrificed to the United States.

Toronto, April 4.—"May God be with you in making your democracy worthy in every sense of the enormous opportunities of this new country."

The Rt. Hon. Mr. Bryce closed his address to the Canadian Club yesterday afternoon with a patriotic benediction. He had spoken on Democracy, drawing lessons for Canada and Canadians from Switzerland and the Swiss.

Mr. Bryce gave several reasons why Switzerland had escaped almost entirely from the usual faults of democracies.

The external pressure of great power had squeezed the people together and given them an unusual sense of civic duty and patriotism; then there was, lastly, the advantage of comparative poverty that lessened the opportunities and temptations for corruption.

Canada's destiny could not be poverty, and the fight for civic virtue must be all the stronger. Canada's chief advantages were a high type of popular government; high traditions, and a universally diffused education; their glorious history that had inspired them to their duty, not only when serving as soldiers, but when they used the ballots at the polls there was also the very valuable training in self-government that they secured from the referendums that were frequently being submitted.

THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR.

In moving a vote of thanks the Lieutenant-Governor, by allusions to the necessity for Canada being on her guard against the aggression of the United States, and a hint that Great Britain had not guarded with sufficient care the interests of Canada, drew from the audience a very marked expression of endorsation.

His words were neatly chosen. After referring to the fact that Mr. Bryce had represented Aberdeen, his own native city, for 23 years, he went on: "To do that he must be a man of staying properties; a man who believes in the sentiment, 'What I have, that I will hold,' and gentlemen, that is not a bad sentiment to take (with you nearest the border."

Scarcely were the words uttered when thunderous applause broke forth that was repeated again and again, while cheers resounded all over the room.

CANADA HAS BEEN SQUEEZED.

One other thrust along the same line the Lieutenant-Governor made, again in a delicate but most effective manner.

"One of the traditions that Mr. Bryce mentions as belonging to the Swiss was that they had been subjected to a little squeezing from their neighbors."

Scarcely less pronounced was the applause, and the British ambassador, with his quiet laugh, showed that he understood.

In closing his address of thanks, Hon. Mortimer Clark observed: "It is of great importance that the ambassador at Washington should be no stranger to Canada or the sentiments of the Canadian people, and he will have listened with considerable interest to your applause this afternoon." (Again, loud applause.)

BRITAIN HAS DONE HER DUTY.

Dr. Goldwin Smith seconded the motion of thanks, and was very earnest as he argued that the British Government had done all that diplomacy could do.

"This is an epoch in our history," he declared. "It was proposed that Canada should have an ambassador of her own at Washington. This would have bred worse confusion. Only a nation can have an ambassador, and Canada is not yet a nation. His Excellency, in close communication with us, will do his best for us, and that best will be the best that can be done. But we must be reasonable in our expectations. The responsibility lies after all on the Imperial country. Not with us are the issues of peace and war. Irresponsibility is apt to make us unreasonable. The British Government has always done the utmost that diplomacy could do for us. It did its utmost as I well remember in the case of Maine. It did its utmost, I have no doubt, in the Alaska case. We had no means of enforcing our claim. If there had been an appeal to force we should have been crushed by irresistible power. The best that diplomacy could do the British Government has always done. To anything more the British people would never consent."

SUSPEND JUDGMENT.

Mr. Bryce was found by the two addresses to touch on the relations between Canada and Great Britain. "I cannot enter into the issues that have been raised, but let me say this to you Canadians — loyal Canadians—of Toronto, I ask you to suspend judgment on the past, on the allegation that British diplomacy has not done its best for Canada and Canadians. I speak to you as ambassador—for the Home Government—when I state that the idea that the British Government is indifferent to the sentiment of Canadians is an entirely mistaken one.

"Let me tell you that in every section the British people are eastern day, insistant, that all just claims and rights of Canada shall be secured in every respect.

"I am persuaded, as a representative of the British Government, that this is a duty—that it is, in a sense, my duty—and it shall be a paramount duty."

Such was the significant statement of this Excellency, Rt. Hon. James Bryce, British Ambassador to the United States, at the close of the Canadian Club meeting yesterday afternoon.

And the sentiment was punctuated by volley upon volley of wild applause. More, the enthusiastic members rose to their feet, waved their berobiefs in the air and cheered—and cheered again.

Electric Planer Gets to Work Yesterday

The Floor of the Charlotte Street Roller Rink Being Smoothed.

Mr. H. A. Werum, of Toronto, yesterday afternoon had in use, at the Charlotte street Roller Rink, one of the most recent products of modern requirement: a sandpaper planing machine which was used to correct errors in the hardwood floor caused by warping or buckling by the ice of last winter. Mr. Werum started this machine, which was connected by an electric wire to the lighting system of the rink, about three o'clock. The machine includes as its main feature, so far as utility is concerned, a heavy roller covered with sandpaper. The "planer" at first went diagonally across the northern section of the floor, and then took up a portion to the south until the whole floor is to be renovated. This process will be repeated some eight or ten times until the roller rink floor is as smooth as a sheet of French plate glass. It costs money to put this machine in operation, as the cost of smoothing the Charlotte street Rink floor will run into hundreds of dollars: still the management is determined to have the floor a little better than the best.

Local Junk Dealers Have a Quarrel

As noted in yesterday's issue of The Times, several of the Hebrew colony of this city, were concerned in a charge laid that day against one of them by Mr. John Doig, the local rag and junk expert, to the effect that one of the Jews had stolen a quantity of lead and rubber from him. The charge was originally laid by misconception of facts against the wrong Sheeny, whereupon Doig swore out a fresh information against a man named Mendel.

Just at the time that the police court would have met, were not Peterborough too virtuous or too well policed to require a session yesterday, the Jewish junk dealers, backed by several English immigrants, employed by them, met on Water St., in front of the police station door, with vehement ejaculations, and many uprising of extended palms, explained to all who would listen how the matter stood.

It seems that Mendel, accused of stealing Doig's goods, is going to get back at Doig, and was at the police station ready to swear out an information against the latter for wrongfully accusing him of taking a quantity of brass and rubbers from his yard on Sunday last and selling the same.

Now comes in the complicated phase of the trouble. It is said that Mendel has paid Doig ten dollars for the stuff which Doig said that he took. Another local junk dealer says Doig brought the stuff and left it in his yard on Sunday. He told him that he had purchased it from an Orillia man. Yesterday Doig sold the same stuff which he accused Mendel of stealing and for which he had got ten dollars from Mendel. Mendel claims that he has been done a great injustice and in all probability the complications will be threshed out this morning in the police court.

Former Local Bank Manager Has Gone

Mr. Hammett, Once Manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia Dies in Jamaica.

Yesterday Mr. J. H. Ferguson, local manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia in this city, received the sad intelligence from the bank's headquarters that Mr. E. T. Hammett, who was the first manager for Peterborough of this bank, had passed away, at the age of 55 years, in the Island of Jamaica from yellow fever. Mr. Hammett had many warm friends in this city. Mr. Hammett was an inspector of the Bank of Nova Scotia previous to his appointment as manager here from March to July, 1905. No particulars were received as to the funeral.

Mr. Hammett has been in the West Indies since the recent earthquake, in Jamaica and other places, getting the bank's branches there in shape again.

The late Mr. Hammett is survived by his wife and child, who are at present in Fredericton, N. B.

During his residence in this city, Mr. Hammett and his wife lived at 14 Murray street. He was a member of the Peterborough Club and of the Peterborough Golf Club. The late Mr. Hammett was a man of the most sterling integrity, and respected both by the head officers of the Bank of Nova Scotia and the many customers of this institution that he secured the business of here.

Mr. Maurice Condon Hurt in Runaway

Yesterday morning as Mr. Maurice Condon of Douro, was driving to Lakefield, his team becoming frightened at something unknown took the bits in their teeth and ran away free from all control of the driver.

When some few miles this side of Lakefield, the runaway got into full operations and Mr. Condon lost control of his steeds. The horses turned into a fence and Mr. Condon was severely injured.

A friend of the injured man happening along drove Mr. Condon to the village where medical aid was at once summoned. Mr. Condon is doing as well as could be expected.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"Zephra"

The Grand Opera house was crowded with an enthusiastic audience last night when the beautiful operatic spectacle "Zephra" was again presented by the same local talent as before. The company were perhaps at home in their several characters, and this the third offering excelled all previous efforts. The large audiences was unstinted in their applaudits which were of an unusually demonstrative character.

"Zephra" is too well known here to need a very descriptive notice of its splendid sequel, either scenic or operatic. It is a piece that may be well heard and seen more than once with unalloyed pleasure. In the hands of its exceptionally strong galaxy of local talent, it cannot fail to please even the most fastidious taste. The piece is presented this time for the benefit of those taking part in the performance.

Shot Himself and Baby Girls

Montreal, April 4.—William Simpson, a young farmer of Hudson Heights, was brought to the Notre Dame Hospital yesterday suffering from self-inflicted bullet wounds, and if he recovers will have to face the serious charge of having murdered his two young children by shooting them. The tragedy occurred Tuesday forenoon about ten o'clock at the home of Simpson, about three miles outside the village of Hudson Heights. Simpson shot his two months' old child, and then turned the gun on another two years old, both of them girls.

Mrs. Simpson was present at the time of the tragedy, but beyond threatening her and pointing the revolver at her he did her no injury. She ran at once to the home of Simpson's father, near by, for assistance, and when it reached the scene of the tragedy it was found that Simpson had turned the pistol on himself. The cause of the tragedy is shrouded in mystery, as Simpson had never shown signs of insanity.

To Reach the Pole

New York, April 4. — Commander Robt. E. Peary, it was stated last night, now has the $200,000 necessary for his coming expedition to the far north, and expects to set out about the first of June. Definite arrangements are under way.

The Roosevelt, the boat which was designed especially for Arctic exploration, is at the shipyards on Shooter's Island, receiving the necessary repairs.

In it Commander Peary and his party will steam as far north as possible during the coming summer, and then will go into winter quarters and conserve their energy for the final dash the following summer. The commander says he firmly believes he will attain his goal this time, if the summer of 1908 is a normal Arctic summer.

Prince in Canada

Vancouver, April 4.—Most unostentatiously, accompanied only by his traveling secretary, a nephew of King Edward and grandson of Queen Victoria stepped ashore from the Oriental liner Empress of Japan yesterday morning. The young man is Leopold Charles Edward, Prince of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha and Duke of Albany. He will ascend the throne of Saxe-Coburg on attaining the age of 25. He is on a tour round the world, and is a son of the late Prince Leopold of England.

New Labor Party

Vancouver, B. C., April 4.—The trouble brewing in the socialist party has reached a crisis and a new party is now being formed.

Adherents of the old party found it impossible to countenance the dogmatic manner in which it was being run and decided to form a new organization with broader principles.

One of the principal reasons is antagonism to labor unionism.

Nurses will find an up-to-date sick room memoranda form done up in pads of 100 each, for only 25 cents, at Times Bookstore. Also receipt books for 25 cents each. These forms have been pronounced the best in use.

Thaw' Sanity Tested By Lunacy Commission

Prisoner Requested Counsel to Consent to Private Examination---Has no Fear of the Result.

New York, April 4. — The Thaw lunacy commission went into session at 12.18 p.m. yesterday for the final examination of the defendant.

New York, April 4.—When the lunacy commission resumed its session yesterday Harry K. Thaw appeared for the final and crucial test of his mental condition—the test that was intended to settle all doubts as to his sanity in the minds of the commissioners, and either send him back to the court room for the completion of his trial for the killing of Stanford White, or to Matteawan as a madman.

It had been agreed that Thaw should submit to a private examination at the hands of the commissioners, and that he would be subjected to a physical test by Dr. Putzel, the medical member of the commission. The place selected for the examination was an upper room in the Criminal Courts Building, and Thaw was taken there as soon as it was announced that the commissioners were ready.

COUNSEL EXCLUDED.

It was proposed to have Dr. Putzel examine Thaw as he would a private patient. It was stated that in addition to the physical tests, Thaw would be questioned as to the delusions Jerome's experts had declared he labored under. No person was present except Thaw, the commissioners and a stenographer. Counsel for the prosecution and for the defence were also excluded.

Thaw although a little nervous, was ready for the ordeal. He seemed to have no fear of the result. It was at his request that his counsel had consented to the private examination. Lawyer Hartridge dissenting from an objection when Thaw signalled him not to oppose such a course.

WILL REPORT TODAY.

It was the plan to conclude the hearing with Thaw's examination, and unless something unexpected intervenes the commission will then go into executive session to consider its report to Justice Fitzgerald. This report will probably be made today before the Thaw trial court is reconvened, in order that the trial may proceed should the decision be favorable to the defendant.

New York, April 4.—When the Thaw lunacy commission went into session yesterday District Attorney Jerome immediately called to the witness stand Dr. Allen Ross Diefendorf, superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane at Middletown, Conn., and professor of mental and nervous diseases at Yale University. Dr. Diefendorf testified for the State at the Thaw trial, declaring the defendant knew the nature and quality of his act when he shot and killed Stanford White, and knew the act was wrong. To the commission yesterday the alienist declared that from what he had seen of Thaw and the writings he had examined he was of the opinion that Thaw is not now capable of rightly understanding his own position or appreciating the nature of the charge against him, or of rationally advising his counsel.

Mr. Dawson Kennedy Will Speak Tonight

Interesting Address at Meeting of the Young Conservative Club.

The meeting of the Young Conservative Club tonight will be particularly interesting as, at this evening's meeting Mr. Dawson Kennedy will give his reminiscences of Thomas D'Arcy McGee and Joseph Howe, two prominent factors in Canada's Confederation. Mr. Kennedy has promised the club a literary treat, as it is doubtful if any one in this part of the country, has had the privilege of hearing in debate these two great political leaders. Ald. Phelan will preside, and there will be the usual smoker. Mr. Gardiner will recite, Mr. J. E. Firth will sing and Mr. F. Clarke will give several numbers on the banjo. All are cordially invited tonight.

Has Three Husbands

Brantford, April 4.—A most romantic case of bigamy has come to light in this city by the arrest yesterday of Charlotte Herbert, a woman of forty years of age, who is alleged to have three husbands in the land of the living. The arrest was effected by High County Constable Kerr, who found the charge in this city, after a vain search in various parts of the county. Action was taken on an information laid by George W. Pemberton, second husband of the prisoner. She is now in jail, but hopes to be liberated on raising bail of $2,500.

When arraigned before Justice of the Peace Andrews, the woman admitted having three husbands, and alleged that one of them also had two wives. It is said one husband is in England. In 1905 she came to Canada and married Pemberton here. In 1906 she left him and is alleged to have married a resident of Burford township. She is of good appearance, well educated, and is a graduate nurse of the Metropolitan Hospital, London, England.

New York, April 4.—Herbert B. Walker today was elected president and general manager of the Old Dominion Steamship Company. Mr. Walker entered the service of the steamship company twenty-four years ago as an office boy. W. L. Woodruff, who has been general freight agent for the company, was promoted to the position of traffic manager.

London, April 3.—A despatch from the Lizard yesterday announced that the White Star Line steamer Suevic, which went ashore near the Lizard, March 7, was cut in two yesterday by means of the extensive use of dynamite, and that her afterpart was finally severed this morning and towed into port. Her forepart is firmly fixed on the reef.

In no Shape for War

Berlin, April 3.—Germany dare not even think of fighting a great naval war before the year 1910.

This is the verdict which the great German naval expert, Count Reventlow passes on his country's much vaunted fleet. Count Reventlow has nothing but praise for the officers and men of the German navy, but condemns most of the battle ships as unseaworthy and obsolete.

Seventeen of the German battleships which figure as formidable fighting units in the navy lists he regards as so many floating coffins, whose use in war would only mean the sacrifice of their gallant crews.

Count Reventlow gives the names of seventeen ships which he includes in this class of floating coffins and points out that the construction of new and more efficient battleships is proceeding so slowly that thirteen years will pass before Germany can view the possibility of a naval war with equanimity.

Do You Seek Health?

Consult Dr. Hamilton And You Will Be Shown the Way.

Thousands are in the same boat—all sickly, bilious and feeling far from well.

Trouble is, the system is clogged with impurities which need to be cleared away.

Before downright sickness arrives you should cleanse and purify the system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

At once you feel their mighty influence building up weak spots, clearing out disease, and putting you again on your feet.

These purely vegetable pills change your tired, worn-out condition to one of health and vigor, because they supply the body with nourishing blood that builds up and enlivens the entire system.

Mr. John Whitley, of Stanwood, P. O., Ont., knows the merit of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and says: "I wouldn't be alive today had it not been for Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Last winter I was sick with grippe, and when spring came I was weak, bilious and rheumatic. I used enough medicine to cure twenty times, but I didn't get any help till I tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They purified my blood, took the yellow color out of my face, put new tone in my lazy stomach, and increased my appetite. The bilious attacks and rheumatic pains gradually departed, and Dr. Hamilton's Pills made a new man of me. I proved their merit, and proclaim them a medicine for all men."

If better health and prompt recovery are important, get Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut today. At all dealers, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

THE MEATLESS THEORY

Prof. Irving Fisher, of the Yale University, has made the important rediscovery that people who don't eat meat can hold their arms out longer and bend their knees oftener than carnivorous persons. He concludes from this momentous fact, ascertained by testing forty-nine persons of various sizes, ages and sexes, that "non-flesh-eaters have far greater endurance than those accustomed to the ordinary American diet.

It is perhaps worth noting that similar statements have been made many times before by that group of human herbivora, known as vegetarians, and most of us still eat meat.

The obvious reason for this is that the average man has found by practical experience that ability to hold his arm out forty-three seconds longer than the average or personal record of 117 knee bends without stopping is of relatively little assistance in either earning a livelihood or securing a high social position. He finds that the average truck driver can far outdo the average banker in these "stunts." Furthermore, he is inclined to consider his meals not as physical training or medicine, but pleasant periods of relaxation and recreation. He finds a certain amount of meat agreeable, and sufficiently wholesome to keep him in good business trim.

Therefore, it is not surprising that he refuses to limit his diet to such fodder as turnips, cabbage, nut butter, dandelion greens, and puree of potato. Any one ambitious to raise his "chinning" record would do well to try Prof. Fisher's meatless diet. Those whose ambition turns in other directions will continue their omnivorousness.

Had to Keep Vows to Plunder People

Bucharest, April 3.—The Metropolitan of Bucharest will issue shortly a pastoral letter, releasing the peasantry from the oaths which they took on enlistment in the insurgent forces. This is expected to assist in the work of pacification, many fanatical rustics having sent in word that they could not cease plundering until absolved from the oaths.

Quie continues to prevail in Moldavia, but the troops will remain under arms until the peasants resume the cultivation of the land. Agitation is still rampant in some of the Danubian districts and mountainous regions of Valecia.

Four villages in Mehedintzi are reported to have been razed by artillery fire, with considerable loss of life. Some reports say that hundreds of peasants were killed or wounded. Investigations of similar sensational figures regarding casualties in the case of previous bombardments, have always proved them to be greatly exaggerated.

A Hint For Young Playwrights.

The young man wrapped up his rejected play with a rather sad smile.

"Thank you for reading it," he said. "It is the sixth unsuccessful drama I have written."

The manager of 117 theaters gave him an encouraging pat on the shoulder.

"Look here," he said. "I'll tell you what you want to do. You want to begin less ambitious. Begin with a one act curtain raiser. And after you've wrote this here curtain raiser send it around with the sentence printed on the cover, 'You can play this for nothing.' I guarantee you'll get a hearing then. Ten to one, by gosh, you'll get played."

"A good idea," murmured the young man.

"That's what it is," said the great manager. "I got it from Sidney Grundy. It's how he began. His first play was a curtain raiser, 'A Little Change.' He said on it, 'Play it for nothing.' And the Haymarket theater took him up."

Spectacles Demoralizing.

A certain Somerset vicar made himself notorious by the vigor with which in the seventeenth century he inveighed against the use of the newly invented optic glasses, since they perverted vision and made all things appear in an unnatural and therefore a false light. Microscopes and telescopes, with their array of lenses, he declared to be impostors, since a man could not see so well with two pairs of spectacles as with one. Some asserted it to be sinful to assist the eyes, which were adapted by Providence to the capacity of the individual, whether good, bad or indifferent. "It was argued that society at large would become demoralised by the use of spectacles. They would give one man an unfair advantage over his fellow and every man an unfair advantage over every woman, who could not be expected on aesthetic and intellectual grounds to adopt the practice."—London Spectator.

Put His Foot In It.

On one occasion in Scotland a guest arriving rather late at a country house was quartered in the haunted room. Although professing to be a skeptic, like many others, his courage vanished with the light. Determined, however, to protect himself as well as possible, he placed a loaded revolver under his pillow and awaited events. As the clock struck midnight he saw a fleshy hand at the end of the bed, and, steadying his nerve, he addressed the visitant thus: "If you do not instantly remove your hand I shall fire without further warning." He counted three and then discharged the bullet. A howl of pain which aroused the household followed, and it was soon discovered that the successful marksman had shot away two of his own toes.—London Throne.

What HON. H. G. EWART, Former Congressman, Circuit Court and U. S. Judge, Western District, North Carolina, Has to Say of NEVADA MINING INVESTMENTS:

Nevada's past history was written by the Comstock. Its present history is being written by Goldfield, Tonopah and Bullfrog.

The great Comstock Mine at Virginia City, Nevada, produced $350,000,000. It added hundreds of millions to the world's supply of precious metals, it built transcontinental railroads, great steamship lines and telegraphic cables across the ocean, it financed some of the world's greatest newspapers, it endowed universities and colleges, and galleries of art, it built multitudes of towns and cities, it completed that splendid metropolis, San Francisco, it made United States senators, railroad and bank presidents, it fixed in history the names of Mackey, Fair, Flood, O'Brien, Shaw, Jones and Sutro.

Tonopah was discovered in 1900. Her Mizpah is probably the greatest silver-gold mine of the world. This camp has paid $2,200,000 in cash dividends.

Goldfield came next, and is producing today $130,000 every twenty-four hours, or at the rate of $50,000,000 per annum.

It is Bullfrog now, the baby among her wonderful camps, that Nevada is holding forth to the world like a doting mother. Unlike Goldfield, Bullfrog is essentially a great milling proposition, there being literally mountains of ore, assaying from $5 to $250 per ton. When other mining camps in Nevada will be deserted, Bullfrog will be known as the "Camp of Confidence and Endurance." It will take centuries to exhaust its great ore deposits. This is the reason why Schwab, McKane, Oddie, Clark and other millionaires have quietly acquired nearly every foot of available mineral ground in this great district. This is the reason why four great railroads have already completed, and are rapidly extending their lines into the Bullfrog district. This is why Rhyolite has in the short space of three years changed from a habitation of coyotes and side-winders into a modern up-to-date city of 7,000 people. This is the reason why the Montgomery-Shoshone is building upon its properties a great reduction mill which will handle its thousands of tons of ore and which will cost over half a million. This is the reason why all Bullfrog stocks have steadily advanced in the face of the savage and unjustifiable attacks made by Wall street and their paid newspaper emissaries.

The South Bullfrog district, which includes the Keane Wonder, Big Dell, Cliff, California Bullfrog, Death Valley Mining & Milling Co., and others, is looked upon as one of the coming camps of importance. The ore found in this district are quartz and talc, carrying iron oxides, the principal values being in gold, with silver and copper traces.

It is in this district that the Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company (Inc.) properties in part are located. The company owns 80 acres of highly mineralized lands within two miles of the California Bullfrog Mine. Its assays show rich gold, silver and copper values, and being a tunnel proposition, can be economically and quickly developed. The other property of the Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company is splendidly located right in the very heart of this great gold-bearing camp, consisting of 160 acres within 1 1-2 miles of the great Montgomery-Shoshone Mine owned by Charles M. Schwab, the Pittsburg steel magnate, and his associates. It is only two miles from the City of Rhyolite with a fine road leading to the mines, and within one mile of the water pipes leading from Indian Springs to the City of Rhyolite. Its ledges are bold and well defined, and expert engineers declare it as the fr opinion, that the same rich veins of the Montgomery-Shoshone traverse this property.

Kansas City, Mo., February 20, 1907.

J. H. MORELAND,

Mr. Moreland is one of the most expert and reliable assayers in the United States. He is a graduate of the State School of Mines of Colorado, and has had fifteen years practical experience as assayer of leading mines and smelters. For many years he was the official Government assayer for the United States Custom House at Kansas City, Mo. The large proportion of all ores shipped from Mexico is received at Kansas City.

The Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Co. is officered and managed by gentlemen of the highest character and standing in this city. The company has secured the services of Mr. J. E. Lindstrom, of Rhyolite, Nevada, as general manager, whose years of experience in Alaska, Colorado, and California, peculiarly fit him for this position.

After the most careful and personal examination of the properties of this company, its officers, and its possibilities, I have accepted the position of Fiscal Agent of the company and offer to the investing public, 250,000 shares of its stock at 10 cents per share. With the knowledge I have of the tremendous possibilities of this company, and its valuable properties, and the high character of its officials, I do not hesitate to urge my friends in the south, and the investing public generally, to buy this stock, satisfied as I am that they will realize enormous profits on their investments.

It will give me pleasure to mail to any inquirers, prospectus, maps, and full information as to the properties of this company. Highest references given.

This stock can be purchased either for cash, or on the installment plan as follows:

$ 10.00 buys	100 shares,	payable $ 5.00	cash, balance $ 1.00	per month.
$ 15.00 buys	150 shares,	payable $ 7.50	cash, balance $ 1.50	per month.
$ 50.00 buys	500 shares,	payable $10.00	cash, balance $ 2.00	per month.
$ 50.00 buys	300 shares,	payable $15.00	cash, balance $ 3.00	per month.
$ 20.00 buys	200 shares,	payable $10.00	cash, balance $ 8.00	per month.
$100.00 buys	1000 shares,	payable $10.00	cash, balance $18.00	per month.
$500.00 buys	5000 shares,	payable $50.00	cash, balance $90.00	per month.

This stock is being rapidly taken and I would advise my friends to send in their orders at once. Thousands of investors are making fortunes out of comparatively small amounts in Nevada Mining propositions. Why should you not do so?

Make all checks, money-orders, payable to, and address all letters to

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 10 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 6200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the grass-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the panning bore out the assayays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

"Respectfully submitted,
"WM. R. PAYNE, President.

With Edged Tools

Copyright, 1896, by HARPER & BROTHERS

went on deliberately. "I do not know how it was, but they did not hit it off together. She was too honest to throw herself at his head, I suppose, for I imagine a pretty girl can usually do what she likes with an old man if she takes the trouble."

"Not with him, I think. Seemed to be rather down on girls in general," said Oscard coolly.

"Then you know him?"

"Yes, a little. I have met him once or twice—out, you know. I don't suppose he would know me again if he saw me."

Which last remark does not redound to the credit of Guy's power of observation.

They paused. It is wonderful how near we may stand to the brink and look far away beyond the chasm. Years afterward they remembered this conversation, and it is possible that Jack Meredith wondered then what instinct it was that made him change the direction of their thoughts.

"If it is agreeable to you," he said, "I think it would be wise for me to go down to Loango and gently intimate to Durnovo that we should be glad of his services."

"Certainly."

By 7 o'clock the next morning the canoe was ready, with its swarthy rowers in their places. The two Englishmen breakfasted together and then walked down to the landing stage side by side.

"Take care of yourself," said Oscard gruffly as Jack stepped into the canoe.

"All right."

"And bring back Durnovo with you."

Jack Meredith looked up with a vague smile.

"That man," he said lightly, "is going to the plateau if I have to drag him there by the scruff of the neck."

CHAPTER XII.

IT is possible even in Loango to have a fling, but the carouser must be prepared to face, even in the midst of his revelry, the haunting thought that the exercise of the strictest economy in any other part of the world might be a preferable pastime.

During the three days following his arrival Victor Durnovo indulged, according to his lights, in the doubtful pleasure mentioned. He purchased at the best factory the best clothes obtainable; he lived like a fighting cock in the one so called hotel, a house chiefly affected and supported by ship captains. He spent freely of money that was not his and imagined himself to be leading the life of a gentleman. He rode round on a hired horse to call on his friends, and on the afternoon of the sixth day he alighted from this quadruped at the gate of the Gordons' bungalow.

A few minutes later Jocelyn came into the drawing room, where he was waiting, with a brazen face and a sinking heart. Somehow the very room had power to bring him down toward his own level. When he set eyes on Jocelyn, in her fair Saxon beauty, he regained aplomb.

She appeared to be rather glad to see him.

"I thought," she said, "that you had gone back to the expedition?"

"Not without coming to say goodby," he answered. "It is not likely."

Just to demonstrate how fully he felt at ease he took a chair without waiting for an invitation and sat tapping his boot with his whip, looking her furtively up and down all the while with an appraising eye.

"And when do you go?" she asked, with a subtle change in her tone which did not penetrate through his mental epidermis.

"I suppose in a few days now. But I'll let you know all right, never fear."

Victor Durnovo stretched out his legs and made himself quite at home, but Jocelyn did not sit down. On the contrary, she remained standing persistently and significantly.

"Maurice gone away?" he inquired.

"Yes."

"And left you all alone," in a tone of light badinage.

"I am accustomed to being left," she answered gravely.

"You?"

She looked at him with a steady surprise which made him feel a trifle uncomfortable.

"Well, you know," he was forced to explain, shuffling the while uneasily in his chair and dropping his whip, "one naturally takes an interest in one's friends' welfare. You and Maurice are the best friends I have in Loango."

"Maurice has always spoken of you with gratitude," she said.

"To deaf ears, eh? Yes, he has reason to be grateful, though perhaps I ought not to say it. I have put him into several very good things on the coast, and it is in my power to get him into this new scheme. It is a big thing; he would be a rich man in no time."

He rose from his seat and deliberately crossed the room to the sofa where she had sat down, where he reclined, with one arm stretched out along the back of it toward her. In his other hand he held his riding whip, with which he began to stroke the skirt of her dress, which reached along the floor almost to his feet.

"Would you like him to be in it?" he asked, with a meaning glance beneath his lashes. "It is a pity to throw away a good chance; his position is not so very secure, you know."

She gave a strange little hunted glance round the room. She was wedged into a corner and could not rise without incurring the risk of his saying something she did not wish to hear. Then she leaned forward and deliberately withdrew her dress from the touch of his whip, which was, in its way, a subtle caress.

"Is he throwing away the chance?" she asked.

"No, but you are."

Then she rose from her seat, and, standing in the middle of the room, faced him with a sudden gleam in her eyes.

"I do not see what it has to do with me," she said; "I do not know anything about Maurice's business arrangements and very little about his business friends."

"Then let me tell you, Jocelyn—well, then, Miss Gordon, if you prefer it—that you will know more about one of his business friends before you have finished with him. I've got Maurice more or less in my power now and it rests with you"—

At this moment a shadow darkened the floor of the veranda and an instant later Jack Meredith walked quietly in by the window.

"Enter, young man," he said dramatically, "by window—center."

"I am sorry," he went on in a different tone to Jocelyn, "to come in this unceremonious way, but the servant told me that you were on the veranda with Durnovo, and"—

He turned toward the half breed, pausing.

"And Durnovo is the man I want," weighing each word.

Durnovo's right hand was in his jacket pocket. Seeing Meredith's proffered salutation, he slowly withdrew it and shook hands.

The flash of hatred was still in his eyes when Jack Meredith turned upon him with aggravating courtesy. The pleasant, half cynical glance wandered from Durnovo's dark face very deliberately down to his jacket pocket, where the stock of a revolver was imperfectly concealed.

"We were getting anxious about you," he explained, "seeing that you did not come back. Of course, we knew that you were capable of taking care of yourself."

BOOKS IN THE HOME.

The Way Children Should Be Taught to Use Them.

Children should early be taught the proper way to open and hold a book. All heavy books require especial care. When too heavy for the hand, they should rest on a table or a stand.

No one ever should be allowed to lean upon an open book. The books that can be handled without effort should be allowed to rest with their backs in the palm of the hand while one is reading. This, of course, applies to books with fine bindings.

It is taken for granted that every house, as a matter of course, will have at least one Bible and one copy of Shakespeare as indispensable furnishings. Next come an unabridged dictionary and a complete atlas of the world. The next book is a classical dictionary.

Any standard book of prose and poetical quotations comes next in importance in the family library. A book of English synonyms follows in order of desirability.

Popular nature books are delightful, particularly where there are children to enjoy the information about stars and plants and animals.

The children should be taught how to use reference books, to look up meanings, spellings, places, and so on. The habit of looking up whatever needs greater elucidation augurs well for good culture and education. The child that has acquired it requires but little going to school in order to surpass those who have expensive schooling, but no training in the use of reference books.—Exchange.

STAIN REMOVERS.

Medicine can be removed by soaking in alcohol.

Stove polish, if washed while fresh in cold water and soap, may easily be removed.

Mucus is removed by soaking in ammonia water and then washing in cold water and soap.

Milk or cream can be removed readily by washing first in cold water, followed by a thorough soaping.

Scorch marks may be removed by hanging in sunlight. This is most effective for only slight scorch.

Paint stains are removed by the use of benzine or turpentine. Rub well with the benzine or turpentine. For delicate colors chloroform in naphtha is best.

Perspiration discolorations are taken out by either soap solution and ap-

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. 23. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 15 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 20 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 20 acres of J. B. 23 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 5 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 20 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 50 feet, and in it shows 5 inch nicolilite, 18 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 672-1283-492-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

New Liskeard, 17th November, 1906.

We offer a few more shares at Fifty Cents (50c); par value One Dollar ($1.00). The property is being developed as fast as possible, and we cannot promise that stock will be sold at less than par for very long. Don't wait until it is $3.00 to invest, giving others big profits for what you should have bought sooner. We want you to get in on the ground floor and share in the big profits. Papering Whitewashed Walls.

Rooms whose walls have been whitewashed or calcimined present a difficult problem when one wishes to paper them. The usual method is to "size" the walls with a sticky preparation of molasses, vinegar, milk or glue to "kill" the lime so that the paper will stick. Here is a much better way that has proved perfectly satisfactory. Simply wet up the usual paste with vinegar instead of water and add 5 cents' worth of glue for each ordinary sized room. Brush the walls well with a dry broom to remove any dust or loose particles, put on the paper in the usual way and be assured that it will stay there.

Dainty China.

Delicate pieces of bric-a-brac are often broken by upsetting them with a dust cloth or by accidentally touching them when reaching for something else on the same shelf. To prevent this weight down every vase or jar that is not quite heavy in itself with sand or small shot. It will not require a great deal in each piece and will often save a valued possession. This is especially useful where there are small children.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

Nerveless Women

No Animation
Lack Endurance
Weak, Unstrung, Tired.

Ferrozone Will Cure.

For sick women no remedy exists that uplifts like Ferrozone.

No remedy exerts so profound an influence upon the functions that supply clearness of the skin, brightness of eye, elasticity of spirit, abundance of strength.

Ferrozone is a marvelous former of blood—rich, red nutritious blood, the kind that circulates life and activity to every organ in the body.

Buoyancy, vigor and vim are restored—to the nerves is given vitality, to weak places is strength sent.

Wonderful power in Ferrozone, and any weak, pallid woman can be quickly nourished back to joyous health if Ferrozone is used.

Won't you try Ferrozone?

It will cure you just as it did Mrs. Abram Carley, of Strange P. O., Ont., —who says: "I consider that I should recommend this preparation because I have proved it is simply wonderful in building up. I was all run down, suffered from an extremely nervous and unstrung condition. My sleep was broken and didn't rest me as it should. My appetite was fickle and only certain food appealed to me. My color was dull and I looked sick. Ferrozone gave me a splendid appetite —I grew stronger day by day. My nervousness and apprehension disappeared. Ferrozone has given me absolute, strong health and I recommend it highly."

No tonic is more effective. Absolutely safe for women girls and even children, good wherever there is weakness, debility, nervousness or ill-health. Try Ferrozone, 50c. per box at all druggists.

Havelock to Sell Debentures

At a recent meeting of the Havelock village council it was decided to sell the Havelock park debentures for par, if they could not be sold for more than that by April 1st. Reeve Thompson and Coun. Knox were instructed to look after a gravel pit for gravel for the village streets.

Hair Burnt by Celluloid Comb

A local young lady has been accustomed to confine her luxuriant locks by celluloid combs, but henceforth she will probably use wrought iron or other metal hair compressors. It seems that the lady in question, a night or two ago, was sitting near the family fire with combs of celluloid in her hair. The heat of the stove caused these combustive combs to ignite and before the brigade could be summoned or her head placed beneath the kitchen tap, much of "the crowning glory of woman, her hair," had been frizzled into such condition that no artificial aid could restore its beauty. We are glad to be able to say that, whilst this report is somewhat exaggerated, the lady in question fortunately sustained no serious burns.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Gathered From the Local Police Station.

The Toronto Star says; William A. Elliott neglected to obey summons on a charge of stealing $5.82 from Walter Hallett, in consequence of which he was at the request of the Toronto police, locked up in Peterborough.

Elliott undertook to make a door and window sashes for Hallett, Hallett paid for them, before they were finished, and as they were not suitable, Hallett sent them back.

"Elliott was working on them in November, 1906, and has not settled for them yet," said Hallett.

"I was ill with pneumonia," said Elliott, "and was unable to arrange matters to suit him. I don't think my character should be blackened in this way."

"If you behaved yourself as you should, your character would not be blackened," the Worship reminded him. "When can you settle the matter?"

"I'll adjourn the case until tomorrow," said the magistrate, and Mr. Corley will let you know whether you will have to appear then."

Does Coffee disagree with you? Probably it does! Then try Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee. "Health Coffee" is a clever combination of parched cereals and nuts. Not a grain of real Coffee, remember, in Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee, yet its flavor and taste matches closely old Java and Mocha Coffee. If your stomach, heart, or kidneys can't stand Coffee drinking, try Health Coffee. It is wholesome, nourishing, and satisfying. It is nice even for the youngest child. Sold by J. D. Tully.

Mr. Jas. Hayes Funeral Today

The funeral of the late James Hayes, whose death was noted in yesterday's issue of The Times, will take place this morning at nine o'clock, from the family residence, Skibereen, Otonabee, to St. Peter's cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

Golf Club Will Meet

A meeting of the members of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club will be held in the Bank of Montreal chambers, on Thursday, April 4th, 1907, at eight o'clock p.m., for the purpose of considering the advisability of holding an entertainment in order to raise funds to build a fence about the club property.

Harvey School Teacher Honored

Miss Maud Hulpin, teacher in the Harvey township school, (sec. No. 6), was presented with a handsome gold bracelet by her admiring scholars some days ago. The presentation was made by Master Bruce Simpson on behalf of his fellow scholars. Miss Hulpin, although acting under deep emotion, conveyed suitable thanks for the kind remembrance.

C.M.B.A. Held Easter Concert

The C.M.B.U., held a most successful Easter social in the T.A.S. rooms. The prizes in the euchre contest were as follows:—Ladies' first prize, Miss M. Lynch, a quartered oak table; 2nd prize, to Miss M. O'Brien, china five o'clock tea set. Gentleman's first prize was won by Mr. C. Giroux, a gentleman's umbrella; 2nd, to Mr. P. Garvey, a handsome pipe. A very enjoyable musical program was rendered, followed by dainty refreshments.

Asphodel Vag Gets a Month

Yesterday morning a "vag" from the Township of Asphodel was haled before His Worship Magistrate Edmison, and sentenced to one month in the county jail. The man was brought in by County Constable Cochrane. Complaints had been made by the residents of Asphodel that the man was a vagrant. He told a hard luck story of having been badly treated by a farmer with whom he was working, and said his employer had only given him $1.25 during two years past, as well as insinuating that the farmer he worked for had kept money sent him (the defendant) from England.

Is the Blackwell Lot Available?

It was generally rumored yesterday that the option sought on the Wm. Blackwell property, to be used in conjunction with other lots for the new Normal school, will not be available. It is said that the Blackwell property is registered under Mrs. Blackwell's ownership, and, as generally known, this lady is at present abroad on an extended European trip, and will not be back until September. This will have a tendency to delay, if not block the proposed deal.

LOCAL INCIDENTS

By The Times Man on the Street

—A meeting of the Board of Works was held yesterday evening to take up a number of small matters.

—The Medical Health Officer reports that the general health of the city is good. Only two cases of scarlet fever exist in the city.

—The Sons of Rest had no intellectual enjoyment yesterday as "Nothing doing," was the sign hung out at the police station.

—The weekly cottage meeting of Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, will be held at the residence of Mrs. H. Mackey, Douro, April 11, at eight o'clock.

—Mr. Byers, the photographer, formerly of Peterborough, has again taken possession of the studio opposite the Queen's Hotel.—Port Hope Guide.

—Last night about seven o'clock a team which was standing at the Central mills, got frightened and ran away. They were caught on Sherbrooke street near the city limits.

—One of the large plate glass windows in the G. A. Gobeen block in the south end had to be replaced this week. It was broken by a stone being thrown against it by a small boy.

—Yesterday morning a gentleman who dropped into the police station was stricken with all the symptoms of blind staggers or paresis, when he saw a woman busy with a pail of hot water and a bar of real soap; backed up and in active service with a genuine scrubbing brush and some rags. The police station is now nothing if not in the next row to godliness.

Trappers Busy on the Otonabee

Muskrat trappers are now busy along the route of the lower stretch of the Otonabee, and especially so in the creeks which empty into this confluent of the Trent Valley canal's most important branch. The season for trapping these fur bearing rodents lasts from January 1st to May 1st, when the pelts begin to get thin in fur and useless.

Mr. Jas. Dolan Convalescent

The many friends of Mr. James Dolan will be pleased to learn that, after having been confined to bed for some weeks by a serious illness, this popular Peterborough citizen was yesterday, much better. Mr. Dolan was sufficiently recovered, not only to "take notice," but to get off one or two of his characteristic Irish witticisms, which is a clear proof of convalescence.

Improvements by Rev. Loucks

Rev. W. M. Loucks, formerly in this city, but now rector of St. Matthew's church, Ottawa, has been busy in the interests of this church and flock since arrival in his new sphere of usefulness. His church in Ottawa will be greatly enlarged, at a cost of some $8,000. The extension will include an increase in the seating capacity of from 450 as at present, to 800. The basement will be fitted up for a Sunday school hall. It is the intention of the congregation to erect a permanent church on the site as soon as the parish can stand the expense.

If You Read This

It will be to learn that the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice recommend, in the strongest terms possible, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, "liver complaint," torpid liver, or biliousness, chronic bowel affections, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region, name or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all such chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections and their resultants, as bronchial, throat and lung disease (except consumption) accompanied with severe coughs. It is not so good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic cases it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherry bark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root—all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. College; Prof. Hare, of the Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago, and scores of others equally eminent in their several schools of practice.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for like purposes that has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any number of ordinary testimonials. Open publicity of its formula is the best possible guaranty of its merits. A glance at this published formula will show that "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no poisonous, harmful or habit-forming drugs and no alcohol—chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead. Glycerine is entirely unobjectionable and besides is a most useful agent in the cure of all stomach as well as bronchial, throat and lung affections. There is the highest medical authority for its use in all such cases. The "Discovery" is a concentrated glyceric extract of native, medicinal roots and is safe and reliable.

Cheap Groceries for Sale Today

In order to obtain permanent premises, China Hall has purchased the large and well assorted stock of groceries, etc., of Mr. A. Rountree, No. 394 George street. This stock, which is one of the finest grocery stocks in Peterborough, will, together with the balance of the China Hall stock, be thrown on the market at cost price, commencing March 2 and continuing until both stocks are entirely disposed of, but no longer than the 15th of April, after which date the store will be re-fitted, and opened about May 1, with an entirely new stock of crockery, china, glassware, cut-glass, plated ware, fine china ornaments, etc. China Hall, after that date, will be beyond a doubt one of the finest and most complete china stores in Canada. THE LARDER LAKE SYNDICATE

GOLD - SILVER - COPPER

TO PURCHASE FROM THE OWNERS

35 Gold, Silver and Copper bearing Claims covering 1400 acres in the now famous Larder Lake District. These claims have been located under the personal supervision of one of the most experienced men in the Cobalt District.

Assays have been made from a number of the Claims showing large values on surface.

Gold values as high as $134.00 to the ton.

Silver values as high as $38.00 to the ton.

Copper vein 28, feet wide on surface, assaying 10.65 per cent. Pure Copper.

On completion of the Syndicate it is proposed to form a Mining Company with a Capital of $5,000,000 00 (par value of shares $1 each) of which 1,500,000 shares are to remain in the treasury Three Million Shares will be divided pro rata among the Subscribers to this Syndicate, giving 2,400 shares of stock for each $100 subscribed and paid in. One-Tenth of the Capital Stock of the Company is to be paid to the owners of the claims together with $125,000 in money.

All monies paid in will be deposited in the Standard Bank, Ottawa, to the credit of the Syndicate, and no withdrawal can be made except on the order of the Trustees, to be elected at a properly called meeting of the members of the Syndicate of which each subscriber will have ample notice.

Here is Your Opportunity

to get in on a ground floor that has no basement, sub-basement or sub-cellars. No contribution is made for Promotion either in Cash or Stock. Your subscribtion is pro-rated with the others

2,400 shares of the Capital Stock for each $100 subscribed. Capitalization to be less than $4,000 per acre of claims. Compare these figures with the capitalization of the mining companies of Coleman Township and you will at once realize the possibilities of profit in this syndicate. We have more acreage than Nipissing Mines Company. The copper showing on the claims alone gives promise of sufficient metal to make the company enormously wealthy.

The gold values shown by assays are very high and the rock carries also splendid value in silver. Altogether it is an ideal and splendidly practicable mining proposition.

The claims are less than 16 miles from the T. & N.O.R.R, and there is a good wagon road from the railroad into the lake.

The people that have made the money out of Cobalt are those that have gotten in on SYNDICATES. The syndicate subscribers are the real insiders and get the shares at bed rock prices.

Now is Your Opportunity

The subscriptions are coming in fast. Write today or you may be too late. Send in your subscription by cheque or money order.

—TERMS—

Payments to be made 20 per cent cash with subscription, and 40 per cent. 30 days from receipt of notice of closing of subscription, and 40 per cent within 60 days thereafter.

TENDERS LET FOR THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

Messrs. Langford and Sheehy Secure the Building Contract, Mr. Duranseau Gets the Plumbing and Mr. MacPherson the Wiring.

Last night the Board of Education necessary papers. The tenders were as met in regular session at 7.45, there being present; Chairman Fair and Messrs. Dr. Morrison, Robinson, Dr. Burnham, Dumble, Pringle, Hill, Ackerman, members of the Board, and Mr. J. E. Belcher, C.E., architect. The Board at first went, until about 8.30, into committee of the whole, or what is in plain English, a "secret session," as is customary with such bodies.

After the regular open session was in evidence, the press representatives were admitted. After the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, communications were read, one of the first of which was a communication finding fault with the proposed offer of Mr. Babcock to examine the eyes of the school children, which proposition included an offer to make glasses suitable to the respective children affected. It was generally thought that Mr. Babcock's offer was an advertising scheme.

Next, George Jacobs, and J. W. Edwards, the latter of Sherbrooke street, put in a requisition for care taker of the King Edward school.

Mr. Dumble thought that if children were suffering from imperfect vision, without wanting to draw any invidious comparisons between oculists, thought that the firm who first offered to repair such troubles, should be patronized, particularly, as no other oculists, at the time, offered to do such service. He thought that specialists knew more than the average practitioners about defection of vision.

This matter was referred to the Supervision Committee.

Mr. F. J. R. MacPherson's letter was referred to the Collegiate Institute Committee, in which the writer noted that he had made a mistake in his tender.

Mr. Ackerman, chairman of the Finance Committee, reported a number of accounts, the motion was adopted.

Mr. Pringle moved that the payments of several accounts be confirmed.—Carried.

Dr. Morrison, chairman of the Building Committee, noted that several accounts for the Collegiate Institute had been received. He, on behalf of the committee, recommended that the following tenders be accepted and let as follows. He said that the tenders instead of being $5000 or $6000 above the estimate, they were only some $2000 higher. The tenders would be about $55,000, including the architect's commission, this being some $5000 or $6000 to spend on heating, etc.

The report was adopted.

The actual report as received and adopted was as follows:

Your Building Committee beg leave to report, that, as instructed, we advertised for tenders for the erection of a Collegiate Institute building. For the building we received two tenders, for the heating six tenders, for plumbing three tenders, and for electric wiring two tenders. Your committee recommend that the tenders of Messrs. Langford and Sheehy for the building, $51,318, be accepted; that the tender of C. J. Duranceau for plumbing, $2,216, be accepted; and that the tender of F. R. J. MacPherson for wiring, $226.50, be accepted.

Regarding the tenders for heating your committee found that they are in excess of what they anticipated, and thought it advisable to give the matter more consideration before awarding the contract.

Dr. Morrison explained, in answer to Mr. Dumble, that two tenders were received from outside the city. Dr. Morrison recommended that the city solicitor be instructed to draw up the necessary papers.

Dr. Morrison moved that the question of heating of the Collegiate Institute be referred to the Building Committee, so as to save delay, this motion included "power to act."

The report of the north ward school committee was received and adopted.

Dr. Burnham recommended and moved that Mr. E. A. Peck be retained as legal advisor of the Board, at a salary of $100 per annum. This is however outside any outside litigation. Mr. Dumble thought that this matter should as Mr. Dennistoun is leaving, and his place to be taken, that the firm of Peck & Kerr, Mr. Dennistoun's partners, should have the position. The motion, however carried, and Mr. Peck is now the Board's solicitor.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennistoun Further Honored

Yesterday afternoon still another link was forged to the chain of practical proofs of the regret felt on account of Mr. R. M. Dennistoun leaving the city for Winnipeg.

This latest mark of esteem was demonstrated in the parlor of the National Hotel, when the Chemong Yacht Club, presented their retiring commodore, Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, with a handsome club burgee of silk, in the upper left hand corner of which is worked in attractive letters the following: "Presented to R. M. Dennistoun, by the Chemong Yacht Club, 1907." The burgee consists of a red ground, blue cross and white crescent, the emblem of the club.

Mrs. Dennistoun was remembered with a beautiful set of hand painted china.

Those who made the presentation were,—Messrs. T. F. Matthews, W. C. P. Heathcote, W. H. Denham, W. S. Davidson, H. W. Morphet, Alex. Elliott, Milne Hamilton, Howard Hopwood, Fred Roy, W. H. Hall, R. J. Munro, R. H. Nelson, C. Currier, F. Merrett, Dr. Young, A. O. Dumble, Dr. Poole, L. M. Hayes, A. A. Hollingshead, and others.

Mr. Dennistoun, on behalf of Mrs. Dennistoun and himself, made a grateful reply, expressing regret at severing his connection with the club.

Marriages at Charlotte St. Parsonage

Yesterday morning at the Charlotte street church parsonage, with Rev. H. M. Manning tying the nuptial knot, Miss Ruth Loucks became the blushing and fair bride of Mr. Silas Jones. Both of the high contracting parties hail from Marmora township. The bridal pair were unattended. Mr. and Mrs. Jones will reside in Marmora.

DUNLOP—HARPER

The matrimonial market seems to be booming in that section where the knot is tied by Rev. Mr. Manning, at the Charlotte street parsonage, as on Wednesday evening this reverend gentleman, united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Miss Margaret Harper, of this city, to Mr. Jas. Dunlop, of North Monaghan. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Alice Harper, while the groom was supported by his brother Mr. Darcy Dunlop.

Operatic Event of the Year in Toronto

"Madame Butterfly" to Have Four Performances at Princess Theatre, Toronto, by Henry W. Savage's New English Grand Opera Company With Orchestra of 60, and Direct From its Record-breaking Season in New York.

Music lovers, as well as all theatregoers throughout this section of the country, will be delighted to learn of the coming opportunity to hear the widely heralded and beautiful Grand Opera "Madam Butterfly" at the Princess Theatre, Toronto, for four performances beginning Thursday evening, April 11, with Saturday matinee.

Subscription orders with remittances to O. B. Sheppard filled in order of receipt as near as possible to desired, before regular box office sale opens to public.

"Madam Butterfly" will be sung by Henry W. Savage's New English Grand Opera Company, especially organized for the first American production of this masterpiece of masterpieces. A triple cast of artists is necessary, and each of the five prima donnas has won a personal triumph in the title role. The entire company numbering 150 people, including the full Grand Opera Orchestra of 60 persons, under 3 conductors, will come to Toronto direct from its engagement at the Garden Theatre, New York.

Henry W. Savage spent eight months in organizing his company, his agents visiting every prominent opera house in Europe for available prima donnas to sing the exacting role. Walter Rothwell, the gifted conductor, who was so highly praised for his work with the "Parsifal" orchestra, together with the composer himself, found one of the primma donnas at Budapest, where "Madam Butterfly" was a perfect furore last season. This is the little Hungarian beauty, Eliza Szamosy. Puccini also selected Miss Reno Viennne, the American girl, who was singing with so much success in Milan, Italy. Another Madam Butterfly is the beautiful coloratura soprano, Florence Easton, from Convent Garden. The other Madam Butterfly is Dora de Fillippe, of Paris.

At the Berlin Opera Comique, Mr. Savage found Harriet Behnes, contralto, who has the role of Suzki, the little Japanese maid to Madam Butterfly, and at Dresden was secured Estelle Bloomfield, a pupil of Lilli Lehmann, who is so versatile that she sings either the title role or that of Suzuki. Ethel Dufré Houston, the contralto who was brought from Paris three years ago for the Savage English Grand Opera Company, has been re-engaged to alternate as the Japanese maid.

The other well known artists left from the English Grand Opera Company are the two superb tenors, Francis MacLennan and Joseph F. Sheehan. The entire cast of "Madam Butterfly" numbers nearly 30 roles with a chorus of geisha girls, ladies, Japanese officials and the friends of Butterfly.

Arrangements are being made for excursion rates on all railroads during "Madam Butterfly" engagement in Toronto.

Plea for Protection of Local Trade

(To the Editor of The Times).

Sir,—In the Review of last night I read a letter signed "Citizen," which called attention to the too prevalent employment here of Toronto lawyers and the too often seen purchase of Toronto goods by our local citizens. Now I quite agree with the Review correspondent. There is too much of this high toned travel to Toronto or Montreal, to buy goods that could or can just as well be purchased here. I do not mean to say that Toronto's markets do not offer a somewhat broader choice of goods to the public of Peterborough, but—and at this word but there is much food for reflection—it must be considered that a majority, and a great majority of those going or able to go to Toronto, for carpets, curtains, furniture, etc., are the men with the greater stake in Peterborough's prosperity.

Such men as go to Toronto to buy their wives' that "New drawing room carpet," or "a rug for the dining room," owe their present and future prosperity, to increase of Peterborough's prosperity and consequent property valuation being boomed. It seems to me that men who own property here, and who expect a raise thereon, should spend their money right here instead of taking the money wrung from Peterborough ratepayers to Toronto, to spend it. The merchants of this city have, in their stores, enough and as good goods as could, or should satisfy the ambition of any nouvelle richesse of this city. By all means buy your goods where you live and make your living and help along the home merchants and home factories.

HOME INDUSTRY.

Kansas City, Mo., April 3.—Representative Edgar C. Ellis, who has just returned from the Isthmus of Panama, said last night: "In eight years ships will be going through the Panama Canal. It will cost five hundred millions of dollars, but we will build it. The army has got hold of it and can do it. I was always convinced that it could not be built by contract."

SLASHING ATTACK ON SECONDARY EDUCATION

Professor Milner Says Politics are Not Producing Great Leaders in the Different Walks of Life.

Toronto, April 5.—At the Education Association convention yesterday, Professor W. S. Milner, in his address as chairman of the College and High Schools Department, made a slashing attack on the complexity of Ontario's secondary system of education—that part of a pupil's training which comes after he leaves the Public school.

"Our educational menu resembles nothing so much as some dream-picnic in Alice in Wonderland," declared the professor. "We wake up to find that bread and butter, pure water and fresh air, are after all the main things. And the boy—he is the same boy as he was two thousand years ago, with no more intellectual capacity. The more numerous the subjects the less he knows of each.

"You will agree with me that economy is not the first note in the educational parliament now filling these halls, and that it is only a very earnest and very distinct appeal that will be heard. I wish to make two such distinct appeals. The time is for simplification. We have so elected, as we call it—understand, we should call it—our secondary program of studies, that the load is overpressure, and the moment is surely come when one may appeal to the reason of the thing. Be it manual training or science or language, it is plain that there is no real limit to what may be added as subjects. Some choice must at last be made.

"My time appeal is for simplification, and to make it distinct, I will put a great and practical question: Cannot a program be constructed which shall be uniform from the beginning to nearly the end of a High school course, for all pupils, whatever their destination may be?

"As I reflect upon our system, while I am conscious enough of grave defects in university education, the education of the common school so far as it is illustrated by this city, appears to me wonderfully good. I accept it, and believe in it, frills and all. But the secondary system seems to me cruelly mistaken from the standpoint of the teacher, the pupils, and the public."

SCARCITY OF LEADERS.

To this cause Prof. Miner ascribed Ontario's lack of great leaders. He said:

"To our Province undoubtedly still belongs the moral and material primacy of the Dominion, but in how many fields are we searching helplessly for leaders! A great deal is indeed being debated by our churches, but without great leadership. In various fields we organize, but we cannot animate the machines we construct. We have scholarship, scientific attainments, good preachers, and corporation lawyers, and probably the most skilful teaching to be found on the continent, many men 'decent not to fail,' but no distinction. We know what distinction is, for we have produced it in great counsels and statesmen, and we knew they were great while yet we had them. But we appear at the moment to have got rid of individuality and leadership. The truth is that the life has been organized out of our politics, and that education is fast dying by inanition in its lower grades, partly because we cannot show the people what education really means."

Mr. Alex Elliott Wins Suit in North Bay

Messrs. Alex. Elliott and G. W. Hatton have returned from North Bay after attending the High Court proceedings there on Tuesday. Mr. Elliott brought action against Mr. W. B. O'Neill, formerly of Omemee, to recover on a promissory note for $500 or $600. The case came up Tuesday morning and Mr. Elliott was given a judgment. Mr. O'Neill is now keeping a hotel in Ottawa. It seems that in this case Mr. Elliott, after the defendant had made certain admissions to him, trusted him with a bill of goods but the man did not pay up. We are pleased to note that this Peterborough merchant won out.

Mr. M. Pappas Asks City for Compensation

First Case for Damages Arising Out of Broken George Street Water Main.

Yesterday Mr. Mehril Pappakeriades, better known by his many friends in the city as "Mike Pappas," the George street cigar and pool room man yesterday notified the mayor and council that he would expect substantial damages for loss sustained by bursting of the George street water main.

It will be remembered that the watermain on the east side of George a few nights ago, burst, making an ocean over The Times offices a series of pictures that would have shown up the difficulties experienced by Noah after his unprecedented efforts in ship carpentering.

As noted in a former issue of The Times, Mr. P. Bole's cellar had more water in it than the present generation, even after continued series of nights "out with the boys," could drink in several decades. The Times office cellar demanded the use of at least an "alligator" to get past goods, machinery and several feet of water, Mr. Pappas cellar was filled, shutting off his furnace, putting the barber shop compressed air mechanics out of business for several days, as well as stock destroyed, and Mr. Kennedy had several hundred bushels of potatoes submerged as well as other stock.

Mr. Pappas yesterday put in a claim against the city for $75 for damages sustained, and has notified the city officials, that, as he pays about $1000 in taxes and license fees, and consequently entitled to protection of property, he will demand this amount for damage done.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"Zophra"

The last performance of this charming spectacle, was presented at the Grand Opera House last night to a demonstrative audience. The success of this opera has been phenominal and reflects a large measure of credit on Peterborough's local talent. Mr. Booth, under whose mangement, this offering was prepared and conducted, is to be congratulated on the success of his venture, and it is to be hoped that he will return with another opera at some future date, when he will undoubtedly be again generously patronized.

COLLEGE BOY

Food of Doughnuts and Pie, but could not "Keep in the Game" on Such Food.

One good thing about modern college athletics is that the young fellows learn some sense about food and what it is really for.

A thing may taste good, but may not be the thing to make clear brains, elastic muscles and "good wind."

A Mich. boy went in for sport, but soon found that there was something wrong with his food. He writes:

"During my school days I was fond of outdoor sport and excelled in nearly every game that I entered. It was just at my greatest growing period and I was springing up like a vine.

"The food I ate then soon proved to be unfit to sustain my growth and hard mental and physical work. I relished and ate pastry and used to eat hot doughnuts by the half dozen. I had starchy and greasy food pretty much all the time.

"Soon I became so weak I would have to eat during the middle of the night before I could go to sleep, (half starved because the undigested food eaten never became absorbed for strength).

"My body was calling for nourishment that it could not get from the kind of food I ate. My stomach pained me and specialists pronounced my case severe intestinal indigestion.

"I tried everything imaginable in the way of different foods, but without avail. Finally I hit on Grape-Nuts which I began to eat and relish, three times a day. Soon my stomach and bowels got all right and my natural sleep returned. Now I am hard at work every day and sound in health, which I owe largely to the advice in 'The Road to Wellville,' the little book in the pkgs." Name given by Postum Cereal Co., Battle Creek, Mich. "There's a Reason."

Now that their new vault has been completed, thus ensuring their treasury, bonds, etc., from depredations by the festive burglar from ire, the Bank of Ottawa is sending he big combination burglar proof afe, which has been in use in The oal branch for several years, to Cobalt, where a new branch was opened on Tuesday. The Bank of Ottawa is now getting into New Ontario. They have had a branch at Haileybury for some time.

The Maccabees are Busy

Another member has been initiated into the Peterborough Tent of the Knights of the Maccabees. Four applications for membership have been received. Deputy Sir Knight C. N. Yule, of Colborne, was now here, will remain in the city for about ten days and it is likely a large number of new members will be admitted into the order.

An Old Pioneer Has Passed Away

Mr. Mark Graystock, one of the pioneers of the township of Otonabee, has passed away at the age of 95 years.

The late Mr. Graystock was born in Yorkshire, Eng. He settled in Otonabee some 66 years since. He was a staunch member of St. Mark's Anglican church, and was a regular attendant, as long as his strength permitted. Mr. Graystock died from old age.

His wife predeceased him by nearly thirteen years. He is survived by ten children, eight daughters and two sons. They are all married except Charles and Miss Lizzie, who live at home.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, when Rev. E. A. Langfeldt will conduct the services. Interment will take place in St. Mark's cemetery, Otonabee.

Another Writer on the Burglary Case

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—I read with much interest the letter signed "Fair Play," in your paper of yesterday, regarding the inadequate and, if it were not disrespectful to the court, would add absurd penalty imposed on the three young men who terrorized a householder a few nights ago.

Surely sir, if an ordinary vagrant or drunk is fined $5, the penalty for terrorizing a whole family at night, should meet with a heavier penalty than imposed on a drunk. If this is qualifying justice with mercy, it is not giving much protection to the public or backing up our police force. Who are now more too strong in numbers.

Yours truly,
JUSTICE.

Chickens Make Trouble Instead of Laying

The Spring Assizes open here on Monday There are three cases on the docket. Waters vs. Aslan; Reutsch vs. Spry and Kendry vs. Richmond. The Aslan case is too well known by readers of The Times to reiterate. The two latter stated cases are however of some general interest and will involve some fine points of law. Frederick Reutsch is a mechanic, and the defendant, Louis Spry, one of Peterborough's oldest and most respected tinsmiths, both reside in Peterborough in May, 1903, the defendant sold a portion of some property which he owned on Sherbrooke street, to the plaintiff, and the latter built a dwelling house on it and resides therein. The plaintiff claims that in November, 1906, the defendant erected a high, close board fence on his property, but situated in such a manner as to exclude the air and light from three windows in the side of the plaintiff's house. Reutsch claims that Spry built the fence with a malicious purpose, on account of the latter defeating him in a law suit some time ago.

Reutsch asks the court to have Spry remove the fence permanently, he also asks for the costs of the action.

The defence claims that Spry had a right to build the fence, as it is on his own property. Plaintiff's solicitors O'Connell & Gordon; defendant's solicitors, Eamiss & Dixon.

The other case noted is that concerning what must appreciated but most prolific bird "the Canadian hen. The plaintiff, Thomas H. Kendry sold a farm to the defendant, John L. Richmond, last August, for $2,000, to be paid in instalments. The land had been used as a "chicken farm, and at time of purchase, Richmond claims that the purchase included 800 chickens and 12 old hens, which the plaintiff stated were on the farm. The defendant claims that there were only 500 chickens, and that otherwise the terms of agreement were not complied with. He therefore refused payment the property reverting to Kendry again.

Kendry claims $1,000 and the costs of the action for damages sustained through the failure of the defendant to carry out the agreement, while Richmond has a counter claim of $200 for labor and chicken feed during the time he was in possession of the farm. He also asks for costs.

Plaintiff's solicitors, O'Connell & Gordon; defendant's solicitor, A. P. Poussette, K.C.

Civic Official in Toronto

His Worship Mayor McWilliams and City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall, were in Toronto yesterday, looking after the city's interests before the Private Bills Committee. The city's private bill came up during the morning for final disposition. It was fully expected that the bill would be reported in full, except the Cotton Company's clause, which the city decide to drop for the time being.

The Cheese Board has practically decided to hold its first meeting of the season on May 15th. There may not however be enough cheese to keep the buyers interested, as the supply of milk is extraordinarily limited. The cows are going dry. A gentleman well versed in cheese matters yesterday told a Times' representative that the farmers of this district have been negligent in their management of their cows.

A SANITARIUM STRIKE

A Most Commendable Institution Had Internal Dissension.

As there are quite a number of local citizens, who are interested in, and subscribe to, the National Sanitarium for Consumptives at Gravenhurst, our readers will be interested to learn that the Toronto Star says:

Some months ago Mr. A. M. Tyrrell, the steward, was notified that his position was to be combined with that of matron, and two weeks ago he was notified that the new matron-steward had been appointed, upon which he stepped out. The nurses, then struck in a body, and the superintendent, Dr. Elliott, who has occupied the position almost since the sanitarium's inception, also forwarded his resignation, with the proviso, however, that it need not take effect at once. The management, at once sent up Dr. Doble, from Weston, to relieve Dr. Elliott of his duties, and took immediate steps to fill the places of the striking nurses.

Mr. Williams, the bookkeeper and secretary, who at the time was on a trip to England, immediately on his return sent in his resignation and steps out today. This morning the secretary, Mr. J. S. Robertson, went up, having with him Dr. W. H. Kendall, who is to take his place.

Inquiry of one of the directors as to the condition of affairs elicted the counter-statement that, instead of a strike, the changes had been entirely instituted by the management, who had asked for the resignations of different officials, including the nurses.

"We have contemplated the change for some time, as things have not been altogether satisfactory," said he. "As for the strike of nurses, the idea is absurd. There are only three of them anyhow, and there is not the slightest trouble in filling their places. Dr. Doble was in charge temporarily, until Dr. Kendall, the permanent superintendent, arrived on the scene."

Strikers Fight Englishmen

Hamburg, April 4.—Eight English longshoremen were badly injured and many others were slightly hurt last night in a fight with local striked-out longshoremen. The Englishmen had been sent to an excursion, contrary to warnings which they had received, and were assaulted at their return to the wharf where they were embarking for the ships in the harbor. On board of which they were housed in order to keep them from getting into contact with the striked-out men. A mob of the latter fell upon the Englishmen with stones, and a strong force of police had to be hurried to the scene in order to rescue the imported laborers.

NATURE'S CATARRH CURE

Nearly everyone suffers at one time or another with catarrh.

The natural way to cure this disagreeable disease is by applying healing medications direct to the diseased spot.

In no other way can this be done as naturally as by the use of Hyomei, breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit.

Put several drops of Hyomei in the inhaler and then for a few minutes, four or five times a day, let the air you breathe come through it. In that way all the air that enters the nasal passage, the throat or the lungs, is filled with Hyomei's healing medication, reaching the most remote air cells of the respiratory organs, destroying all catarrhal germs and soothing and healing the irritated mucous membrane.

A few days' use of Hyomei will show how quickly it relieves all catarrhal conditions, and you will not have to use it long before you find it has effected a complete and lasting cure.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, extra bottles, if needed, 50 cents.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei, or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Write us today for a symptom blank, which we will send you free, together with a treatise on Catarrh and how to cure it. When you fill in and return to us the symptom blank, our consulting physician will give your case the best care and attention, and write you a letter of advice without charge. IMPROVE YOUR COMPLEXION

Give Up Cosmetics And Seek The Cause of Your Bad Color.

When it's so easy to bring back the bloom of youth, to remove the blemishes and fill the hollows, isn't it foolish to plaster on cosmetics?

Sallowed skin and fallen in cheeks are produced by disorders of the alimentary canal.

Remove the cause—correct the condition that keeps you from looking as you ought. Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills and very soon you'll have a complexion to be proud of.

Just imagine how much happier you will feel when those pimples and murky look have gone.

Dainty looks came to Miss Vrooman, a well known resident of Belfast, from using Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I used to look so yellow I thought it might be jaundice. There was simply no color in my cheeks at all. Today my skin is clear and never gets that murky, dull appearance, it had before. Dr. Hamilton's Pills have also given me a good appetite and improved my general health also."

Not only the complexion, but every organ of the body is strengthened, cleansed and made healthy by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Buoyancy, vim and a feeling of vigor invariably follow their use. Sold in yellow boxes by all dealers; 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

REVOLUTION IN CHINA

An impression is abroad that China is on the eve of a great revolution, but the Chinese mind is so inscrutable that all attempts on the part of foreigners to understand it are usually futile. The news which the world gets is the gossip of the treaty ports, which may or may not be the truth. Still it is difficult to believe that where there is so much smoke there can be no fire, and everything indicates that China is about to occupy an extremely important position in the drama of world politics.

The present ruling house of China is known as the Ta-Tsing, or "Great Pure" dynasty, and it has occupied the throne since 1644. It was preceded by the Ming dynasty, which was in power for nearly three hundred years, and was the last royal house of the Chinese race to rule over the empire. The Ta-Tsings are of Manchu origin, and it may be interesting to know that it was by an edict by the first of this dynasty that the plaited queue of the Manchus was imposed upon the Chinese people, who resisted the order to wear it until compelled by force to comply. This house has produced only one great emperor, namely, Khang-Hi, who reigned from 1662 to 1723, perhaps the longest reign in all Chinese history. He brought Thibet under his suzerainty, and in many ways improved the conditions of his people. During his occupancy of the throne the country was thrown open to Roman Catholic missionaries, who were well received everywhere, but under his successor persecutions began, and it may be broadly said that from that time to the present, the country has made very little progress intellectually. Occidental inventions have been utilized to a very considerable extent during the last half century, but so far as the morals of the nation is concerned, it has not appreciably advanced, possibly it has retroceded, since 1722.

During this time causes have been at work, which are likely to bring about important changes. Intercourse with European traders, familiarity with modern appliances of civilization, the work of missionaries, the knowledge acquired by students in foreign lands, and by people of more humble rank who have come to America, and last, but not least, the direct and indirect influence of Japan, have combined to produce a powerful effect even upon a people who seemed almost hopelessly lethargic. Therefore it is by no means improbable that a revolution is at hand. In fact such observation as an outsider is able to make as to the conditions existing in the country indicate that some great and far-reaching change is inevitable. But, as we have said, the Chinese mind is inscrutable. "For ways that are dark," they are just as peculiar as they ever were. But history tells us that the race has been a mighty power in the past, and there is certainly no good reason why it should not again be so. No great Asiatic leader has arisen for several centuries, but we must not lose sight of the fact that Genghis Khan and Tamberlane were Asiatics, although not Chinamen. Confusion may come about in China, and out of it may emerge a leader, who will know what word to speak to arouse to action the hundreds of millions of people who have remained quiescent for so long a time. If this should prove to be the case, almost anything might happen afterwards. Therefore a revolution in China is something which the world cannot regard with aquanimity.

Sent to Jail for Flogging Natives

Mombasa, East Africa, April 2.—The recent flogging of natives by European at Nairobi for insulting white women has been followed by the prosecution of those accused of the flogging and those who abetted them. As a result Capt. Grogan, president of the Colonists' Association, has been sentenced to a month's imprisonment and to pay a fine of 500 rupees.

Two other prominent colonists, Messrs Bowker and Grag, have each been sentenced to two weeks' imprisonment and fined 250 rupees. Two of their abettors, who are also prominent, were sentenced to a fortnight's imprisonment.

The whites are very indignant over the sentence. Capt. Grogan is a well known explorer and writer. He walked from Cape Town to Cairo, 6,500 miles, in 1898-99.

Change in Eddy Suit.

Concord, N.H., April 4.—A motion to substitute Henry M. Baker, of Bow, Archibald McLellan of Boston, and Josiah E. Fernald of Concord, as plaintiffs in place of the so-called "next friends" in the proceedings instituted last February against certain Christian Science officials, was filed in the Superior Court last yesterday by Frank S. Streeter. The motion declares that Mary Baker G. Eddy in March of this year conveyed to Baker, McLellan, and Fernald by deed, subject to certain reservations, all her interests in any real estate, and also all her interests in all property of every description. This property is to be held in trust by Baker, McLellan, and Fernald, and is to be administered by them in accordance with provisions made in the trust deed.

Punishing a Court Fool.

Ivan the Terrible, Peter the Great and the Emperor Paul had rough ways with their fools. A dagger thrust would follow a poor joke and banishment any sign of declining wit. Once when Fougere, the jester of Czar Paul, offended his royal master he was permitted to depart in peace. In the middle of the night, however, he was aroused and ordered to get up and prepare for immediate banishment to Siberia. In vain the unhappy man pleaded. He was bundled into a dark van and driven away on his long journey. Day after day, week after week, it lasted. Upon arrival he stepped out into the presence of—the czar. All the time he had been driven not toward Siberia, but around and around St. Petersburg!

Polite Notice Boards.

At the hospital just opposite the entrance to the East India docks and the Blackwall tunnel—under the Thames—notice boards are set up asking the drivers, for the sake of those who are ill within, to walk their horses past the building. That is a common enough request, but what gives it a peculiar interest here is that the carter, having complied or not with the modest demand, is confronted at the other corner of the building by another board, saying, "Thank you, driver."—A Wanderer in London.

An Event.

"What's the matter? You look as if something extraordinary had happened."

"Something extraordinary has happened. Do you see that street sweeper—the fellow who is stirring things up?"

"Yes. What about him?"

"When he saw me coming a moment ago he stopped and didn't try to choke me with dust and germs."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Wrong Things Cheap.

I remember the despairing cry of a woman looking hopelessly through her wardrobe. "I should have been a better woman if I had been born with feathers!" How well I knew just what she meant! She was examining disconsolately a shabby white satin dress—the kind of satin that betrays its plebeian cotton origin. "I wish I were a guinea hen with respectable speckled feathers!" she cried as she gave a discouraged slam to the wardrobe door. "Then I wouldn't use up three-quarters of my intellect getting the wrong things cheap!"—Mrs. John Lane in Fortnightly Review.

What HON. H. G. EWART, Former Congressman, Circuit Court and U. S. Judge, Western District, North Carolina, Has to Say of NEVADA MINING INVESTMENTS:

Nevada's past history was written by the Comstock. Its present history is being written by Goldfield, Tonopah and Bullfrog.

The great Comstock Mine at Virginia City, Nevada, produced $680,000,000. It added hundreds of millions to the world's supply of precious metals, it built transcontinental railroads, great steamship lines and telegraphic cables across the ocean, it financed some of the world's greatest newspapers, it endowed universities and colleges, and galleries of art, it built multitudes of towns and cities, it completed that splendid metropolis, San Francisco, it made United States senators, railroad and bank presidents, it fixed in history the names of Mackey, Fair, Flood, O'Brien, Shaw, Jones and Sutro.

Tonopah was discovered in 1900. Her Mizpah is probably the greatest silver-gold mine of the world. This camp has paid $2,200,000 in cash dividends.

Goldfield came next, and is producing today $150,000 every twenty-four hours, or at the rate of $50,000,000 per annum.

It is Bullfrog now, the baby among her wonderful camps, that Nevada is holding forth to the world like a doting mother. Unlike Goldfield, Bullfrog is essentially a great milling proposition, there being literally mountains of ore, assaying from $5 to $250 per ton. When other mining camps in Nevada will be deserted, Bullfrog will be known as the "Camp of Confidence and Endurance." It will take centuries to exhaust its great ore deposits. This is the reason why Schwab, McKane, Oddie, Clark and other millionaires have quietly acquired nearly every foot of available mineral ground in this great district. This is the reason why four great railroads have already completed, and are rapidly extending their lines into the Bullfrog district. This is why Rhyolite has in the short space of three years changed from a habitation of coyotes and side-winders into a modern up-to-date city of 7,000 people. This is the reason why the Montgomery-Shoshone is building upon its properties a great reduction mill which will handle its thousands of tons of ore and which will cost over half a million. This is the reason why all Bullfrog stocks have steadily advanced in the face of the savage and unjustifiable attacks made by Wall street and their paid newspaper emissaries.

The South Bullfrog district, which includes the Keane Wonder, Big Bell, Cliff, California Bullfrog, Death Valley Mining & Milling Co., and others, is looked upon as one of the coming camps of importance. The ore found in this district are quartz and talc, carrying iron oxides, the principal values being in gold, with silver and copper traces.

It is in this district that the Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company (Inc.) properties in part are located. The company owns 80 acres of highly mineralized lands within two miles of the California Bullfrog Mine. Its assays show rich gold, silver and copper values, and being a tunnel proposition, can be economically and quickly developed. The other property of the Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Company is splendidly located right in the very heart of this great gold-bearing camp, consisting of 160 acres within 1 1-2 miles of the great Montgomery-Shoshone Mine owned by Charles M. Schwab, the Pittsburg steel magnate, and his associates. It is only two miles from the City of Rhyolite with a fine road leading to the mines, and within one mile of the water pipes leading from Indian Springs to the City of Rhyolite. Its ledges are bold and well defined, and expert engineers declare it as the ir opinion, that the same rich veins of the Montgomery-Shoshone traverse this property.

Kansas City, Mo., February 20, 1907.

J. H. MORELAND,

Mr. Moreland is one of the most expert and reliable assayers in the United States. He is a graduate of the State School of Mines of Colorado, and has had fifteen years practical experience as assayer of leading mines and smelters. For many years he was the official Government assayer for the United States Custom House at Kansas City, Mo. The large proportion of all ores shipped from Mexico is received at Kansas City.

The Bullfrog-Comstock Mines Co. is officered and managed by gentlemen of the highest character and standing in this city. The company has secured the services of Mr. J. E. Lindstrom, of Rhyolite, Nevada, as general manager, whose years of experience in Alaska, Colorado, and California, peculiarly fit him for this position.

After the most careful and personal examination of the properties of this company, its officers, and its possibilities, I have accepted the position of Fiscal Agent of the company and offer to the investing public, 250,000 shares of its stock at 10 cents per share. With the knowledge I have of the tremendous possibilities of this company, and its valuable properties, and the high character of its officials, I do not hesitate to urge my friends in the south, and the investing public generally, to buy this stock, satisfied as I am that they will realize enormous profits on their investments.

It will give me pleasure to mail to any inquirers, prospectus, maps, and full information as to the properties of this company. Highest references given.

This stock can be purchased either for cash, or on the installment plan as follows:

$ 10.00 buys	100 shares, payable	$ 5.00 cash, balance	$ 1.00	per month.
$ 15.00 buys	150 shares, payable	$ 7.50 cash, balance	$ 1.50	per month.
$ 50.00 buys	500 shares, payable	$10.00 cash, balance	$ 2.00	per month.
$ 30.00 buys	300 shares, payable	$15.00 cash, balance	$ 3.00	per month.
$ 70.00 buys	200 shares, payable	$10.00 cash, balance	$ 8.00	per month.
$100.00 buys	1000 shares, payable	$10.00 cash, balance	$12.00	per month.
$500.00 buys	5000 shares, payable	$50.00 cash, balance	$90.00	per month.

This stock is being rapidly taken and I would advise my friends to send in their orders at once. Thousands of investors are making fortunes out of comparatively small amounts in Nevada Mining propositions. Why should you not do so?

Make all checks, money-orders, payable to, and address all letters to

WEDDING STATIONERY

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENTS are always in order. The season for the final result of being a disciple of Cupid finds expression in the Hymeneal ceremony at the altar—that occasion when "two hearts that beat as one" are joined together—pronounced one.

For this auspicious occasion the printing must be chastely dignified—must be appropriate in appearance to this one time of life when everything "best" is donned—when happiness reigns supremely.

Marriage Announcements
Marriage Invitations
Marriage Reception Cards
Post Nuptial Reception Cards

All of these we are able to supply in a proper form and printed artistically. Our work is conducted under the supervision of skilled typographical mechanics and may be unhesitatingly presented to the most fastidious critic.

Our charges for such work are moderate—yet good printing is ever valuable. However, we give quality for our figures, and an order entrusted to our care will be speedily, carefully and satisfactorily executed.

No work can be well done which has to be done hurriedly. Time is necessary for the accomplishment of faultless printing. We will fulfil all expectations if given ample time for completion.

Manhattan Gold Field

If you never invest you never make

The millionaires of to-day are the investors of yesterday.

In choosing your investment these things should be considered: the ability, responsibility and integrity of those in charge of the company; that the property is in a proven district, and is owned by the company, and that gold has been found upon the property; that the money is being used for the interests of the company; that the company has no debts or obligations.

We have all these essentials, and own four claims, located in the heart of the Wonderful Manhattan District, from all of which we have taken rich ore, OUR AVERAGE ASSAY BEING OVER $400.00 TO THE TON.

We have so thoroughly tested our claims that WE KNOW WHAT WE HAVE. THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW! Stock selling at 10 cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid and non-assessable.

REPORT OF OFFICERS

"To the Directors of the Manhattan Independent Mining Co.:

"We have been in Manhattan, Nevada, and thoroughly tested our four claims, namely, 'American Flag,' 'Anglo Celtic,' 'Peerless' and 'Independent,' and personally took 100 or more samples of ore from different places along the 5200 feet of main ledge crossing our claims, and across the width of same, together with numerous samples from the cross-ledges, and had the same assayed, and the result of the assay was an average of $400.00 to the ton. We also had some of the samples panned, and the pannings bore out the assassays. These samples were in no way selected, but were taken from all the ledges with no regard to value. Our property is all we could ask and is easy of access. Throughout our entire 80 acres we have an unlimited rich deposit of free milling gold, as good as the best in this wonderful camp.

"Respectfully submitted,
"WM. R. PAYNE, President.
"J. ROGER BROWN, Secretary."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

With Edged Tools

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN
Author of "The Sowers," "Roden's Corner," "From One Generation to Another," Etc.

Copyright, 1894, by HARPER & BROTHERS

He was still looking innocently at the telltale jacket pocket, and Durnovo, following the direction of his glance, hastily thrust his hand into it.

"But one can never tell with a treacherous climate like this what a day may bring forth. However, I am glad to find you looking so very fit."

Victor Durnovo gave an awkward little laugh, extremely conscious of the factory clothes.

"Oh, yes; I'm all right," he said. "I was going to start this evening."

The girl stood behind them, with a flush slowly fading from her face. There are some women who become suddenly beautiful, not by the glory of a beautiful thought, not by the exaltation of a lofty virtue, but by the mere practical human flush. Jack Meredith, when he took his eyes from Durnovo's, glancing at Jocelyn, suddenly became aware of the presence of a beautiful woman.

The crisis was past, and, if Jack knew it, so also did Jocelyn. She knew that the imperturbable gentlemanliness of the Englishman had conveyed to the more passionate West Indian the simple, downright fact that in a lady's drawing room there was to be no raised voice, no itching fingers, no flash of fiery eyes.

"Yes," he said; "that will suit me splendidly. We will travel together."

He turned to Jocelyn.

"I hear your brother is away?"

"Yes, for a few days. He has gone up the coast."

Then there was a silence. They both paused, helping each other as if by prearrangement, and Victor Durnovo suddenly felt that he must go. He rose and picked up the whip which he had dropped on the matting. There was no help for it—the united wills of these two people were too strong for him.

Jack Meredith passed out of the veranda with him, murmuring something about giving him a leg up. While they were walking round the house Victor Durnovo made one of those hideous mistakes which one remembers all through life with a sudden rush of warm shame and self contempt. The very thing that was uppermost in his mind to be avoided suddenly bubbled to his lips, almost, it would seem, in defiance of his own will.

"Enter, young man," he said dramatically.

"What about the small—the smallpox?" he asked.

"We have got it under," replied Jack quietly. "We had a very bad time for three days, but we got all the cases isolated and prevented it from spreading. Of course we could do little or nothing to save them; they died."

Durnovo had the air of a whipped dog. His mind was a blank. He simply had nothing to say. The humiliation of utter self contempt was his.

"You need not be afraid to come back now," Jack Meredith went on with a strange refinement of cruelty.

And that was all he ever said about it.

"Will it be convenient for you to meet me on the beach at 4 o'clock this afternoon?" he asked when Durnovo was in the saddle.

"Yes."

"All right; 4 o'clock."

He turned and deliberately went back to the bungalow.

There are some friendships where the intercourse is only the seed which absence duly germinates. Jocelyn Gordon and Jack had parted as acquaintances; they met as friends. There is no explaining these things, for there is no gauging the depths of the human mind. There is no getting down to the little bond that lies at the bottom of the well—the bond of sympathy. There is no knowing what it is that prompts us to say, "This man or this woman of all the millions shall be my friend."

"I am sorry," he said, "that he should have had a chance of causing you uneasiness again."

Jocelyn remembered that all her life. She remembers still, and Africa has slipped away from her existence forever. It is one of the mental photographs of her memory, standing out clear and strong amid a host of minor recollections.

"I do not believe," she said, "that you know the risks you are running into. Even in the short time that Maurice and I have been here we have learned to treat the climate of western Africa with a proper respect. We have known so many people who have succumbed."

"Yes, but I do not mean to do that. In a way Durnovo's—what shall we call it?—lack of nerve is a great safeguard. He will not run into any danger."

"No, but he might run you into it."

"Not a second time, Miss Gordon. Not if we know it. Oscard mentioned a desire to wring Durnovo's neck. I am afraid he will do it one of these days."

"The mistake that most people make," the girl went on more lightly, "is a want of care. You cannot be too careful, you know, in Africa."

"I am careful; I have reason to be."

She was looking at him steadily, her blue eyes searching his.

"Yes?" she said slowly, and there were a thousand questions in the word.

"It would be very foolish for me to be otherwise," he said. "I am engaged to be married, and I came out here to make the wherewithal. This expedition is an expedition to seek the wherewithal."

"Yes," she said, "and therefore you must be more careful than any one else, because, you see, your life is something which does not belong to you, but with which you are trusted. I mean if there is anything dangerous to be done let some one else do it. What is she like? What is her name?"

"Her name is Millicent—Millicent Chyne."

"And—what is she like?"

[To be continued]

MANAGING A MAN.

Good Advice About Nagging, Even Though It Be Hard to Follow.

The best time not to nag a man is when he's down—when he is suffering from the consequences of his own fault. Let him alone then if you never do again. Do not be afraid that he is not aware of his sins. He probably is. He probably has not an excuse in his own mind for his conduct, but if you begin to nag him all his human nature will rise in rebellion against the implied "I am better than thou," and he will justify himself, even though it be silently.

On the contrary, help him when he is down, not with ostentatious virtue, but by some sensible, practical aid in getting out of the trouble he has brought on himself. Don't act holy yourself, but "lend a hand."

Then when the trouble is all over don't rub it into him. More than likely he will confess to having been a beast. Don't take advantage of his humility. Just know that all human nature is the same and pin your faith to the good, not the evil.

Perhaps you are suffering from his fault. Perhaps the thought of your injuries is too strong to be borne. Then don't think about them. Turn your back resolutely on them and know that no one but yourself can injure you.

Your attempt to coerce a man and to drive him down some road of your making will surely wreck the cart. No individual has a right to attempt the control of another. Strew your own road with flowers of kindness and courage and the weary traveler will wish to walk therein with you.—Philadelphia Press.

A DOG IN THE HOUSE.

Keep the Children From the Animal if It Is Sick.

It makes you feel very mean to tear a fluffy bit of dog from the child or woman who is attached to it, writes Margaret Hubbard Ayer in the New York World, but in most cases too much dog petting is injurious for grownups, and particularly so for children. Families who live in the country have possibilities of avoiding the evil, for the dogs sleep in barns or outhouses. But for city dwellers a dog is liable to bring all kinds of disease germs into the house, and children are especially open to infection.

Setting aside the most terrible malady of the dog, rabies, there are hundreds of other diseases which the pet animal can communicate to the human being. No one can deny a child the pleasure of having a pet, but the dog can and should be trained never to lick even the hands of a person about it. At the first sign of sickness on the part of a house dog the animal should be sequestered and the veterinary called in. Children should never be allowed to touch or even to go near a sick dog.

The dog should never sleep on the bed of a child or grown person, particularly not of a nervous child. No pet should sleep in the room of a person who is easily devitalized, as the animal takes away some of the air and some of the vitality which belongs to the human being.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

When the waist is much contracted, it always means overdevelopment of the hips.

A paste of salicylic acid and witch hazel applied to moles will remove them. The paste must not touch the surrounding skin.

A woman who is noted for her beautiful white hair uses a salt shampoo. Ordinary table salt rubbed briskly into the scalp is stimulating and cleansing.

Instead of using talcum powder on the hair to remove the oily appearance try powdered orris root. It takes out the oil, does not cling to the hair as the talcum powder does and leaves a faint perfume.

A very fine mouth wash is made by combining an ounce of tincture of orris root, an ounce of eau de cologne, an ounce of alcohol and twenty drops of peppermint. Pour a few drops in a half glass of water and rinse the mouth thoroughly.

The Sink.

All wood should be removed from a sink, according to Good Housekeeping, and replaced with a porcelain sink back and sides. That being too expensive, then use slate, zinc or copper. The materials should be absolutely impervious to moisture and without paint, which only wears off and leaves an untidy surface. Modern plumbers use iron instead of lead pipes almost entirely, and yet by care the old lead ones may continue to serve. Frequent flushing of the sink is an absolute necessity for perfect freedom from danger. It should be done with very hot water, but followed by a little cold water, lest the heat cause a vacuum and draw the water off the trap, leaving it open for gases to escape through the outlet of the sink. The treatment should be applied to every fixture in a house after the cleaning process.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent one one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

KENNEDY COBALT, Ltd.

is recommended

Mr. Eggert, M.E., in his report on this property, says:

J. B. 32. This claim is situated on Trout Creek, not 15 chains from water's edge, in Temagami Forest Reserve, on the first bend of the Montreal River, directly at the head of Bay Lake and opposite V. and VI. concession of Coleman. Lease has been granted.

The claim is a 30 acre one and about 60 feet high with the exception of the most westerly part through which the creek runs and a small swamp to the south. Through it from one boundary line to the other runs the celebrated Nadeau vein following the contact between the middle Huronic quartzites and the diabase.

This vein, which comes up from the water on the Kay Foster claim is stripped all the way across the 80 acres of J. B. 32 at which southern end it dips down in a swamp to come up at the Nadeau.

It has a width of 6 feet, carrying a large amount of cobalt bloom, and in it runs a calcite vein 12 inches wide. Parallel with it runs an 18 inch vein of quartz richly mineralized with copper and iron sulphides.

This last vein has been traced for 4 chains while the first one, as already said, is uncovered for all of 20 chains making it plainly seen that the vein crosses the whole lot.

At the Nadeau, for which $100,000.00 was refused, has been sunk a shaft to a depth of 50 feet, and in it shows 6 inch nicollite, 18 inch smaltite together with cobaltite. Assays gave 672-1283-492-1161 oz. silver, or an average of over 900 oz. silver, which at the present price of 70c. is equal to $630.00 per ton, exclusive of cobalt values. The Edison Mine is right above on higher land.

The property is well situated right at water, has enough timber for all purposes and is one which needs only a shaft of 50 feet depth to be ready as a producer.

New Liskeard, 17th November, 1906.

JACOB M. EGGERT, M.E.

We offer a few more shares at Fifty Cents (50c); par value One Dollar ($1.00). The property is being developed as fast as possible, and we cannot promise that stock will be sold at less than par for very long. Don't wait until it is $3.00 to invest, giving others big profits for what you should have bought sooner. We want you to get in on the ground floor and share in the big profits. For a limited time only we will accept subscriptions at 50 cents—the stock is slated for a sharp advance very soon. Send marked cheque or money order.

Life's Pleasures Rest on Nourishing Blood.

Is Yours Rich, or Weak?

If your color is poor, your blood is poor.

If you lack strength, can't get fat, can't do your work, it's because your blood is too thin to nourish the body.

Your condition is like an expiring fire. Fuel must be added or the fire goes out.

Nutriment, new building material must be instantly infused into the blood—the vital stream must be quickened and enriched. Do this and your health is assured.

Simply take Ferrozone.

Its marvellously stimulating influence upon the appetite upon the formation of rich, red blood makes available for building up of the system the very nutriment it requires.

The heart, strengthened by the increased nutrition Ferrozone supplies, is more regular in its action, and imparts an impetus to the circulation that ensures the proper discharge of all the functions of the body.

There very quickly sweeps through the whole body a stream of vitalized, strength-giving blood.

Quickly color is restored to the cheeks.

Elasticity, endurance and vigor come to the muscular system.

In brief, the old time strength and vigor are restored, and those inestimable charms that spring from good health, high spirits and endurance, are gained by even a short use of Ferrozone.

A true, uplifting tonic, a medicine that goes to the root of things—one that makes the weak strong, makes the sick well—makes the despondent ones happy—that is Ferrozone. Truly a wonderful remedy, try it, 50c. per box at all druggists.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Gathered From the Local Police Station.

At yesterday's session of the police court, two boys were charged with having broken windows in a Chinaman's laundry. The magistrate, after they had pleaded guilty, remarked, "Chinamen are entitled to as much protection as your own fathers are." He fined them $5 and $1 compensation.

Mr. Lawless, proprietor of the National Hotel, was charged with having sold liquor after seven o'clock on Saturday evening last. A local contractor was called as a witness, but he is out of the city.

Mr. Wood, county crown attorney, appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Haverson of Toronto, for the defendant. Inspector Stewart said he was not able to proceed without the first witness. The magistrate said he did not like to bring Mr. Haverson back, so would go ahead with the case.

Mr. Lawless, the first witness, said that he was in his hotel last Saturday night, after 11.30. Inspector Stewart called at the hotel about midnight; witness was then in room No. 35. Two young men were in the room. The contractor was a guest at the hotel. Part of a glass of lager was on the table. It was there when witness came in with the other man. He left the room with the inspector. Did not say for the inspector "How can we fix this matter?"

A local young chap, the next witness, was at the National last Saturday night. He went up to the contractor's room with Lawless. His evidence was practically that of Mr. Lawless.

Inspector Stewart, in the box, said that at 11.55 Saturday night, he saw a boy, sitting near the door, run through the swing doors as he approached the entrance. He ran after him. The boy ran into the lavatory. Witness went up the back stairs. Hearing voices, he entered the room where, as before noted, the others were. He did not know the absent witness, who hesitated about giving his name. Lawless and he went down to the basement. Lawless said, "This is hard luck. How can we fix this thing, Stewart?" He replied, "I have nothing to fix." Lawless then said, "I have been pretty good lately," to which he answered, "No better than you could help being."

Mr. Haverson spoke very strongly against an adjournment.

Mr. Wood noted that the inspector was anxious to follow the matter to a conclusion, and as the contractor, a material witness, was out of the city, he asked for an adjournment.

The magistrate said he would not adjourn the case and create great expense, waiting for one witness absent for an indefinite time in an unknown locality. No case had been made. The magistrate dismissed the case saying that all the evidence brought into court showed clearly that no illegal act had been proven. Under the present liquor laws a householder may allow the consumption of liquor in his hotel by guests of the house at all hours, but may not sell in certain prescribed hours.

Thaw is Sane

A despatch received yesterday afternoon says that the New York lunacy commission has declared that Thaw who shot Stanford White in a theater of the American metropolis, is SANE. Whilst this may save Thaw from being sent to the criminal insane asylum, it may possibly, but not probably send him to the "chair."

Former Local Hotelman Here

Mr. Jas. Allan, formerly proprietor of the C.P.R. Hotel, Simcoe street, now known as the "Oxford" who now is proprietor of a successful hotel business on Banks street, Ottawa, is in the city, in connection with a suit against him, that Mr. Allan seems to regard rather with amusement than otherwise.

Statistics of Local Jail

The thirty-ninth annual report of the inspector of prisons and reformatories of the Province of Ontario, for the year ending September 30th, 1906, shows that Peterborough jail during this year, contained 177 prisoners, who spent altogether 5,230 days in confinement, at a total cost of $891.04 for food, fuel and clothing, or 17c. per day per prisoner. The cost of the report is the same as appeared in the press last fall.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine scalds, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggist recommend and sell

LOCAL INCIDENTS

By The Times Man on the Street

—The Board of Education met last night. Particulars in another part of this issue.

—The Quaker Oats Co., will next week have a new product entitled Quaker Wheat Berries on the market.

—As a result of St. Patrick's Concert, held under the auspices of St. Peter's T.A.S. the neat sum of about $200 was realized.

—The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid, will be held this afternoon at 3.30 in the church parlors.

—Mrs. Rennie, 627 George street, accidentally fell over an open oven door of the kitchen stove, and broke her arm above the elbow.

—The adjourned sitting of the first Division Court will be held today before this Honor Judge Weller. There is a large number of cases to be disposed of.

—Rev. E. A. Langfeldt left yesterday for Kingston, to deliver a lecture before the Young Men's Guild of St. George's Cathedral, on "A Tour of the Rhine."

—How those robins try to force the season by starting to warble just as human beings turn over for a second beauty sleep, by warbling strains that, whilst musical engender danger of the average citizen's future when awakened.

—License Inspector Stewart had to take some good natured chaffing over the National Hotel liquor selling case, which failed yesterday. The inspector took it in good part, but ——, well, he is once more on the warpath after other violators of the law.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Mr. F. A. McDiarmid of Lindsay, was in the city yesterday.

—Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Dennistoun will leave on the 5.10 C.P.R. train this afternoon for their new home in Winnipeg. They will go via Chicago, in which city they will spend a few days en route.

Many New Houses Being Built

Many new houses, despite the high prices forbidding and building material demanded here now are being rushed to completion and the foundations are being laid for new dwellings. The new houses are all handsome structures well located. The area south of Charlotte street and west of Park contains many fine new houses and several more are under way. There are nearly a dozen new houses.

Mr. Keir Dolan Gets Good Position

The many friends of Mr. Kier Dolan, will be pleased to learn that this former Peterborough boy, has been offered and accepted a good position with Messrs. Lazarus & Co., of Columbus, O., where his brother James has been employed for some time. Messrs. Lazarus & Co., occupy a whole block in the business part of that city, a picture of which appears on their letterheads and envelopes.

Personals from Hastings

That bright little sheet, the Hastings Star has the following personals of local interest; Mr. and Mrs. John Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Renwick, Master Arthur Renwick, of Lang, and Mrs. John C. Hope and children, of Otonabee, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cameron this week.—Mr. Joseph White, of Peterborough, spent Good Friday in town.—Miss M. Kennedy, of Lakefield, is spending the Easter holidays in town.

Mr. Hayes Laid to Rest

Yesterday morning the last mortal remains of the late James Hayes, whose regretted demise has previously been chronicled in these columns, were conveyed from the family residence Sidbreen, Otonabee, to Peter's cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery. The funeral was very largely attended. The pall bearers were Messrs. John Doris, Wm. Leahy, Michael Lynch, James Duffus, Dan Kelly and Patrick Crowley.

A Lazy Liver

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with over work. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, "faint," "all gone" or "rising" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

The "Discovery" is non-secret, non-alcoholic, is a glyceric extract of native medicinal roots with a full list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Its ingredients are endorsed and extolled by the most eminent medical writers of the age and are recommended to cure the diseases for which it is advised.

Don't accept a substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION.

Cheap Groceries for Sale Today

In order to obtain permanent premises, China Hall has purchased the large and well assorted stock of groceries, etc., of Mr. A. Rountree, No. 324 George street. This stock, which is one of the finest grocery stocks in Peterborough, will, together with the balance of the China Hall stock, be thrown on the market at cost price, commencing March 2 and continuing until both stocks are entirely disposed of, but no longer than the 15th of April, after which date the store will be re-fitted, and opened about May 1, with an entirely new stock of crockery, china, glassware, cut-glass, plated ware, fine china ornaments, etc. China Hall, after that date, will be beyond a doubt one of the finest and most complete china stores in Canada. The China Hall Company.

THE

GOLD - SILVER - COPPER

TO PURCHASE FROM THE OWNERS

35 Gold, Silver and Copper bearing Claims covering 1400 acres in the now famous Larder Lake District. These claims have been located under the personal supervision of one of the most experienced men in the Cobalt District.

Assays have been made from a number of the Claims showing large values on surface.

Gold values as high as $134.00 to the ton.

Silver values as high as $38.00 to the ton.

Copper vein 28, feet wide on surface, assaying 10.65 per cent. Pure Copper.

On completion of the Syndicate it is proposed to form a Mining Company with a Capital of $5,000,000.00 (par value of shares $1 each) of which 1,500,000 shares are to remain in the treasury Three Million Shares will be divided pro rata among the Subscribers to this Syndicate, giving 2,400 shares of stock for each $100 subscribed and paid in. One-Tenth of the Capital Stock of the Company is to be paid to the owners of the claims together with $125,000 in money.

All monies paid in will be deposited in the Standard Bank, Ottawa, to the credit of the Syndicate, and no withdrawal can be made except on the order of the Trustees, to be elected at a properly called meeting of the members of the Syndicate of which each subscriber will have ample notice.

Here is Your Opportunity

to get in on a ground floor that has no basement, sub-basement or sub-cellars. No contribution is made for Promotion either in Cash or Stock. Your subscribtion is pro-rated with the others

2,400 shares of the Capital Stock for each $100 subscribed. Capitalization to be less than $4,000 per acre of claims Compare these figures with the capitalization of the mining companies of Coleman Township and you will at once realize the possibilities of profit in this syndicate. We have more acreage than Nipissing Mines Company. The copper showing on the claims alone gives promise of sufficient metal to make the company enormously wealthy.

The gold values shown by assays are very high and the rock carries also splendid values in silver. Altogether it is an ideal and splendidly practicable mining proposition.

The claims are less than 16 miles from the T. & N.O.R.R., and there is a good wagon road from the railroad into the lake.

The people that have made the money out of Cobalt are those that have gotten in on SYNDICATES. The syndicate subscribers are the real insiders and get the shares at bed rock prices.

Now is Your Opportunity

The subscriptions are coming in fast. Write today or you may be too late. Send in your subscription by cheque or money order.

—TERMS—

Payments to be made 20 per cent cash with subscription, and 40 per cent. 30 days from receipt of notice of closing of subscription, and 40 per cent within 60 days thereafter.
